FAIRMONT, Minn. (AP)—George Kraft, son of Mrs. Carl Kraft who turned 100 today, told a reporter: "When she gets my breakfast for me that's fine, and as long as she insists on doing her own house cleaning I'll let her, but when she tries to iron more than an hour and a half, I put my foot down and hide the iron."

Slemon Succeeds A-M Curtis As R.C.A.F. Chief

OTTAWA (CP)—Air Marshal W. A. Curtis, 59, father of Canada's modern air force, is retiring next Jan. 31 after five years as Chief of the Air Staff.

The Defence Department's announcement last night named his successor as Air Vice-Marshal C. Roy Slemon, 48, a crisp disciplinarian and a top administrator. His job will be to direct the $2,000,000,000 three-year air power expansion that was largely shaped by Air Marshal Curtis.

Retirement of Air Marshal Curtis ends an era. He is the last First World War veteran to sit as one of the Canadian Chiefs of Staff. He has also served in all three armed forces.

The native of Havelock, Ont., won the D. S. C. twice and became a fighter ace as a navy flier in the First World War. He was also a soldier in both the active and reserve forces.

He left the forces after 1918, went into the insurance business in Toronto and re-enlisted in 1939, eventually becoming the first reserve-force flier to become Chief of Air Staff.

SOUGHT STRONGER FORCE

He reached the top of the air force ladder after the Second World War. He fought for a stronger air force, insisting that its main element should be the fighter force.

His arguments, coupled with the circumstances of the Cold War and the Korean War, finally jelled plans for a 41-squadron force by 1954 with 50,000 men, nearly as big as the army. In his five years he has built the force from 13,000 to 37,000 men.

Air Vice-Marshal Slemon, meticulous and ramrod-straight, joined the air force at its inception in 1924 and was the first Canadian trained as a military pilot after [illegible] and conduct of a high order from his men.

He grew up in the air force, moving from one job to another and finally to his present post as head of the Training Command with headquarters at Trenton, Ont.

Anthem Violates S. African Status

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (Reuters)—Prime Minister Daniel F. Malan said today the playing of the British anthem "God Save the Queen" at the end of theatre and radio programs violated South Africa's independent status.

He also condemned the flying of the Union Jack, over public buildings.

However, he told a political rally that his government had no intention of "forcing the issue."

At present the Union Jack flies alongside the South African union flag and "God Save the Queen" is played with South Africa's national anthem "Die Stem van Suidafrika."

Phillips Suggests Gov't Control Hospital

TORONTO (CP)—Health Minister Phillips of Ontario yesterday suggested the possibility of new legislation to give the government powers of control over such institutions as the East Windsor Hospital for Incurables.

"While I have 100-per-cent control of all mental hospitals in the province, our control of such hospitals as those for the chronical [illegible] and general hospitals is limited," he said after publication of the report of a Royal Commission investigation into the East Windsor institution.

Attorney-General Porter said: "We are going through the report most carefully but as yet it is impossible for me to say what action, if any, we will take against anyone."

Living Cost Shows Slight Drop In Both Indexes

OTTAWA (CP)—A slight decline in Canadian living costs in September, helped mainly by lower food prices, was shown in Canada's two living-cost indexes released Friday by the Bureau of Statistics. The new consumer price index, based on 1949 prices equalling 100, dropped one-tenth of a point to 116.0 from 116.1, cancelling out a similar-sized increase in August. The old cost-of-living index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, declined by 1.5 points to 185.0, from 186.5 for its third successive monthly decline.

The peak in living costs was reached last December, measured as 118.2 on the new index and 191.5 on the old.

The decreases in food prices were mainly in beef, lamb and potatoes. Coupled with lower prices for canned tomatoes, onions and cooked meats, they offset increases for grapefruit and oranges, lettuce and fresh tomatoes and fresh pork.

MIXED PRESSURE

Other price decreases in September: Men's wool underwear, women's coats, children's wear, textiles, soap and floor coverings. Higher prices were paid for coal, fuel oil and ice, street-car fares, house repairs and mortgage interest rates.

The Bureau plans to publish both the old and the new indexes simultaneously for the next six months before the old index is discarded.

On the wholesale scene, the Bureau found prices for industrial items declining, but not as rapidly as in previous months. Farm prices reversed their previous downward trend for a slight increase. Indexes for both of these are based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100.

The index for 30 industrial materials declined by 1.6 points to 238.1 on Oct. 31 from 239.7 on Sept. 26. The farm products index climbed 2.9 points to 222.8 from 219.9.

Savage Fighting Fades In Korea Barrages Start

SEOUL (AP)—Allied big guns hammered thundering barrages today at Communist artillery strongholds in the Kumhwa ridges and mighty Osong mountain on the central Korean front.

Savage fighting that for more than three weeks marched up and down the shell-blistered slopes of Snipers Ridge and Triangle Hill had faded to minor thrusts.

Allied gunners were firing nearly 1,000 rounds an hour aimed at knocking out the strongest Communist artillery concentration of the Korean War. Many of the Red guns were protected by deep log and earth bunkers or spotted in tunnels.

Time after time the Red artillery had cut down South Koreans short of the crest of Triangle hill. Allied commanders finally called a halt this week and asked the artillery to bleed off the Red firepower.

ENEMY HOLDS TRIANGLE

The Reds hold Triangle and the South Koreans own most of Shippers Ridge.

In the air war nine Superforts from Okinawa dumped 90 tons of bombs at a North Korean staff school at Yongpoung, on the West coast. Two Communist night fighters attacked. One, a jet, was shot down.

The Fifth Air Force said Communist ground fire downed three of its planes in the week ended Friday. None was lost in air combat.

Marauder Beats 2 Blind Women

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Police today sought a man who entered the apartment of two attractive blind women as they prepared for bed last night and savagely beat them.

Neighbors heard the screams of Nora Yvonne Wigley, 19, and Geraldine Armstrong, 22, and scared off the intruder.

Miss Wigley said:

"I heard someone come in the front door and Geraldine asked who was there. I could tell it was a man by his footsteps. I heard the light switch click and I knew he had turned the lights off.

"We thought somebody we knew was playing a joke on us. Then I heard Geraldine get scared. She said, 'who are you? Are you trying to play [illegible]'

Miss Wigley said [illegible] man strike her roommate and heard her screams. Then she said, something hit her.

"I put my hands up over my head and he hit me again and I fell to the floor."

Polish View of Canada:

Dreary Land Dancing To Dollar's Tune

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada, as seen through the eyes of the Polish press, is a hungry, dreary country which dances to the tune of the American dollar.

Moreover, a woman wearing slacks on a bicycle is liable to be beaten up by passers-by, says one Polish newspaper.

The pattern of Polish news coverage of Canada, the bulletin says, stresses "news items which show the difficulties besetting the Canadian economy or which illustrate the allegedly hostile intentions of western countries towards the countries of the Soviet bloc."

A Mr. Dabrowski, a repatriate who returned from Canada, wrote an article for a Polish newspaper painting a harrowing picture of a vast number of workers in Canada driven to despair by unemployment and hunger. A mother unable to feed her two small children jumped from a bridge, he reported.

HAD 50 CENTS LEFT

Mr. Dabrowski said he got a job in a Quebec mine without having to follow the normal practice of giving his employer a bribe of $100 to $150. He earned $90 a month, paid $25 for rent and after paying debts at the store often had about 50 cents for the whole month. "That was the average standard of living."

The Polish government has barred many citizens who want to emigrate to Canada, the bulletin says.

"Much of the adverse comment on conditions in Canada, therefore, undoubtedly is intended to combat the frustration of the prospective emigrant. . . Every opportunity of showing the fate of Polish emigrants in Canada in the worst light possible is eagerly seized."

Mr. Dabrowski reported: "The whole Parliament and Senate is ruled by the British governor, and he in turn by the multi-millionaires in New York."

SLACKS MEAN BEATING

The case of slacks-wearing women on bicycles is raised by the Dziennik Baltycki, commenting on Canadian manners and culture:

"Wearing of shorts on playing fields is prohibited in Canada whereas a woman daring to ride a bicycle is risking loss of freedom or a beating by the passers-by.

"Canada is a country where there is not a single theatre. On the other hand, the Canadian government is weekly accepting the export of American gangster films and is slavishly disseminating the art of boogie woogie dancing among Canadian youths."

Reds Discipline Demoted Heads

PARIS (Reuters)—The French Communist party has decided to take further disciplinary action against its two demoted leaders, Andre Marty and Charles Tillon, for failing to admit their "deviationist activities."

The politburo of the French Communist party today accused them of "refusing to carry out the self-criticism which they had promised and which had been requested from them."

A politburo statement published in the party newspaper, Humanite, said their case would go to the central committee of the party "for discussion and decision."

They were suspended from the politburo last September for not following the party line closely enough.

A-Bomb "Looks Like Runt" Beside H-Bomb, Says Paper

"It is likely," Clausen writes, "that the tremendous unparalleled force of the H-bomb—the world's first—vaporized into gas and dust the atoll, a half-mile wide and three miles long, on which the detonation took place."

The eye-witness account of the big explosion, the Examiner says, was furnished by a Los Angeles resident who received a letter from a friend at the Atomic Energy Commission's Pacific proving grounds. The A. E. C. has kept mum thus far on the scheduled autumn tests.

The blast, the letter-writer said, was viewed through dark glasses and "appeared a huge orange ball, which grew larger and brighter until it appeared as if no dark glasses were there at all."

"All we could do was stand there and gasp in amazement and awe at the enormous size and force released before us. Typical comment from old timers: 'Holy cow! That sure makes the A-bomb a runt.'"

The H-bomb has been estimated at up to 1,000 times more powerful than the A-bomb.

Reject Party Names On Ontario's Ballots

TORONTO (CP)—It is contrary to the fundamentals of the British system of elections to place party affiliation of candidates on the ballot paper, Attorney - General Porter told the legislature's select committee on election law yesterday.

The committee rejected a suggestion that this course be recommended to the government, but it did favor a new regulation providing for the posting of $100 by each candidate. This will be forfeited if a candidate fails to obtain 50 per cent of the vote obtained by the winning candidate.

Harry Nixon, Liberal member for Brant, sponsored both proposals but withdrew the motion to place party affiliation on the ballots. Tom Dent, Progressive Conservative member for Oxford, said he did not want his party affiliation on the ballot paper.

Man Collapses Dies On Street On Way To Work

Samuel Currie, 70, 500 College St., collapsed and died suddenly at 8:40 a.m. today in front of a garage at the corner of Charlotte and Stewart Sts.

Coroner Dr. H. G. Carleton pronounced death due to coronary thrombosis.

Mr. Currie got up this morning as usual to carry out his duties as a caretaker and took sick as he was walking along Charlotte St. He died before medical help arrived.

Born in Partadown, Ireland, Mr. Currie has lived in Peterborough for the past 50 years, coming here from Ireland. He was a caretaker and gardener and was janitor of the Dominion Store.

He was a member of All Saints' Anglican Church.

Surviving are his wife, the former Jennie Summerville; one daughter, Mrs. H. Clark (Margaret), Hamilton; two sons, Harry of Toronto, and John, Peterborough; and two grandchildren, Sharon and Sandra, Peterborough. One son, Robert, predeceased him in 1951.

The funeral will be held Monday at 3:30 p.m. from the Kaye funeral home. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

Rust Research Changes Mode Of Attack

WINNIPEG (CP)—Rust research at the University of Manitoba some day may save millions of dollars for grain growers in Canada and the United States.

Initial grants, totalling $2,000, are provided by the federal and provincial governments and private industry. The project is under the direction of Dr. W. Leach, assisted by Dr. P. K. Isaac from the Imperial College at London.

Dr. Leach, chairman of the University's botany department, says the work may take 10 years. Some results might be available within three to four years. Object is to determine why some grains are resistant to rusts while others are not.

Previously, the rust problem, which costs prairie farmers millions of dollars in damaged grain, was takled almost entirely by plant breeders. They worked to develop rust-resistant grain strains, chiefly in wheat varieties.

DEVELOPS STRONGLY

However, rust has a strange ability to hybridize and produce new and stronger races. The immunity possessed by new grain types was lost even before it could be grown commercially.

Dr. Leach says a resistant plant produces a toxin which destroys surrounding cells attacked by rust and actually starves the rust spores to death.

In research here, rust spores will be produced and studied on growing plants in a greenhouse. An attempt also will be made to grow spores in culture mediums, something never before accomplished.

Dr. Leach says if the project is successful, it will be possible with the controlled culture to determine accurately what chemicals are essential to the growth or destruction of the rust spores themselves.

Similar research is being conducted at the University of Saskatchewan.

Iran May Call Schacht For Aid

BONN, Germany (Reuters) — Hjalmar Schacht, Germany's "finance wizard" under Hitler, may be called into help Iran launch a foreign trade bank, an Iranian official said today.

Gholam Ali Ferivar, Iranian trade attache in West Germany, said the bank would be a "semi-state" enterprise in which Schacht might have a share.

Schacht visited Iran recently to advise on the financial problems which have beset the regime of Prime Minister Mohammed Mossadegh since he took over the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company—minus markets and technicians.

Kazem Hassibi, member of the Iranian oil commission now visiting West Germany to discuss orders for tankers and other products needed by Iran, said Schacht at that time urged Mossadegh to print new currency, not backed by gold but by the country's production capacity. This was the formula Germany used in an attempt to stem inflation after the First World War.

Hassibi said once the present British "blockade" of oil shipments from Iran is lifted, Iran would be able to deliver 3,000,000 tons of oil a year to American buyers and 5,000,000 tons to Italians.

French Stations Must Wait CBC-Governors' Decision

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC board of governors yesterday reserved decision on the requests of owners of two radio stations for permission to reach more French-speaking listeners.

The owners of Quebec City Station CJNT asked permission to switch to French-language operations completely. The owners are Senator H. Bouffard, Senator J. M. Dessureault and Jean Paul St. Laurent, son of the Prime Minister.

Both Senator Bouffard and Mr. St. Laurent said CJNT has been losing money since they bought it three years ago. They said a commercial English-language station cannot be operated successfully in Quebec.

Station CHNO in Sudbury, Ont., renewed its application for permission to operate English and French outlets simultaneously. It now operates 70 per cent of the time in English and 30 per cent in French.

Senator Bouffard said, "we are not going to continue spending money just to bring the people of Quebec an English-language service they don't want to support."

READY TO SELL

The CJNT owners said they are ready to sell the Quebec station to the CBC or to anyone else who wanted to buy it.

Their application was opposed by Hon. C. G. Power, speaking for himself and "some people in Quebec," by two French-language stations in Quebec City—CKCV and CHRC, and by the Quebec junior board of trade.

Mr. Power, Liberal member for Quebec South and wartime air minister, said Quebec should not be deprived of its English-language outlet. Later in the hearing he said he was satified the application did not mean that some one else would be barred from seeking a licence for an English station in the city.

$30,000 IN RED

Senator Bouffard said his station is $30,000 to $35,000 in the red. Surveys showed it had about 4,000 listeners in a population of 210,000 —not good enough to attract national advertising.

Other stations were selling spot announcements for $11 and $12, CJNT had offered them for as low as 50 cents and then sold only a few. It could not obtain a sponsor for hourly newscasts—normally the easiest thing to sell.

The application by Sudbury's CHNO for full-time transmission in both languages was opposed by Station CKSO, the city's English-language station, represented by G. M. Miller.

Mr. Miller said there is no place for two English-language stations in Sudbury. If the application were granted, CHNO would in effect be two stations and the business of Station CKSO would be affected.

Recommendations of the CBC board of governors may be made public Monday on the two applications and on others heard yesterday.

Queen Rejects Costly Affairs

A government circular said:

"It is her majesty's express wish the celebrations should be as simple as possible and that all undue expenditure should be avoided."

It is aimed solely at local government spending, not at private donations or affairs.

The circular gave no hint of the reason for the ban but presumably it was in line with the continuing austerity campaign.

Many cities and villages have made elaborate plans for pageants, street-dancing and parades

As far as London is concerned, there was no hint of any economy measures. Advance preparations for the coronation itself indicate that austerity will be thrown out the window—for the big day, at least.

Special seats in Westminster Abbey and along the route of procession alone will cost an estimated £700,000.

Cheese, Produce And Livestock

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—A firm tone was apparent Friday in coarse grain futures trading on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange. Commercial demand was not too aggressive, but factors in the trend were upturns in U.S. markets, light offerings and the drought in the North American grain belt.

Heavy buying in nearby months of oats and barley was reported late in the session. Export and shipper business also was reported along with good inquiry for barley. Seaboard support was reported in flax. U.S. and local interests took rye. Prices of Class 2 and I.W.A. wheat were up five-eighths of a cent.

WINNIPEG NATIVE

He is a native of Winnipeg and an engineering graduate of the University of Manitoba. Six years of northern aerial photography made him an Arctic expert.

During the Second World War he he held a number of major jobs, including director of air operations in Ottawa, a big role in organizing the famed 6th Bomber Group overseas, and the job of No. 2 man overseas from 1944 until named to command Canada's forces for Pacific service in 1945. Japan's surrender ended that command.

Last summer he directed the "enemy" force in a 1,200-plane exercise in Europe of Atlantic Pact forces.

Pioneer Of West Dies At 104

Mrs. Beggs, the former Lovinia Burwash of Prescott county, Ont., was the first white woman in the Arcola settlement and when her son, Nelson, was born in 1883 he was the first white baby.

Grandma Beggs, as she was affectionately called, saw the development of the spinning wheel and the sewing machine, oil lighting and electric lighting and lived through wars ranging from the Franco-Prussian war of 1870 and the Riel Rebellion to the Second World War.

When asked on her 102nd birthday what had contributed most to her longevity, she answered: "A cultivation of the homely virtues—thrift, honesty, consideration for other people and hard work."

She married John Beggs in 1878. They survived many hardships in the west. While moving to the Red River district they lost all their belongings in a train collision. Four years later they again lost everything in a Red River flood.

Barbiturate Drug Consumption Soars

LONDON (CP)—A team of doctors investigating increased consumption of barbiturate drugs in Britain reports that of 17,000 national health prescriptions recently analyzed, nine per cent were for barbiturates.

Consumption of barbiturate drugs —there are about 1,000, 40 of which are used medically—has soared since 1939. In 1949, 280 deaths were attributed to their use. About half of the deaths were due to deliberate overdosing.

It is reckoned that 78,000 pounds of barbiturate drugs were produced in 1949, sufficient for 526,500,000 prescriptions at the usual rate of one grain each. Records show that around 20,000,000 prescriptions a year are made out for these drugs, and about £2,000,000 is spent yearly by people purchasing small amounts.

Conservative Urges Ban On Toy Blackjacks

LONDON (AP)—A member of Parliament said today he will ask the government to ban toy blackjacks.

... tive, said the sale of toy coshes (blackjacks) should be stopped "in view of the wave of crime and violent assault."

Labor member G. R. Chetwynd said he will ask the government to ban toy guns and daggers as well.

Slight Incline Of British Stage Nearly Lands Canadians In Pit

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—A Toronto dance team, Umberto and Dorin Campitelli, came to Britain for experience—and got a little more than they bargained for.

Their first surprise was the "rake"—a slight incline from the stage to the footlights.

"We were used to Canadian stages, which are flat," said the 28-year-old Umberto, "so we nearly landed in the orchestra pit right in our first dance routine."

Then there were the "tabs"—the cords holding the curtains.

During a tango, the Toronto team got tangled up in the tabs.

"It amused the audience, but we did feel awful," said Dorin.

CAME IN 1951

Umberto and his 26-year-old wife arrived in London late in 1951. Since then they've danced on hundreds of stages in provincial and suburban theatres, billed under British stage name of Chic and Candy Ross. Depite some grim experiences, they now are well established here and will probably stay at least another two years.

"There are so few openings for a stage career back home," they said in a joint interview. Like many other Canadians here they are looking forward to the day when there will be greater show-business opportunities in Canada.

The Campitellis fell in love while working with Toronto's Volkof Ballet company. They married in 1949. Since then they've done cabaret turns in Toronto, danced in the Canadian Ballet Festival at Toronto, Montreal and Winnipeg, and taken part in ballet productions at the Royal Alexandra Theatre, Toronto.

TOURING IN REVUE

Their favorite dance routine is exhibition ballroom. Now, however, they are touring provincial centres in a revue that gives a bit of everything—ballroom, tap, singing and patter.

One of their toughest experiences was a wet night at Collin's Music Hall in working-class Islington, the London theatre that gave Charlie Chaplin his first chance before the footlights. Rain poured into the underground dressing rooms, wetting the costumes, which the entire cast had to feverishly dry and iron before curtain time.

Bring Reindeer To Labrador

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A big-antlered, hardy animal which Easterners know only as a picture on a Christmas card may soon be roaming the wind-swept barrens of Labrador.

A local group planning to introduce reindeer to Newfoundland's northern dependency visualize herds running into the thousands as raw material for a profitable industry in hides and meat.

The herd found the terrain and food supplies to its liking and multiplied to 1,200 in four years. But indiscriminate slaughter during the First World War decimated their numbers and those left were turned over to the Canadian government.

The area planned for the new attempt is north of Lake Melville and might extend to the extreme limits of population along the coast. Reindeer like sub-artotic climate and vegetation and can survive without any kind of shelter.

Unlike moose, reindeer will not be treated as game. They'll be a domesticated animal providing meat and hides.

The scheme's backers say well-established markets for reindeer meat already exist in Canada and Great Britain.

Delivery Horses Well Cared For

During the month of October Bruce Menzies, inspector for the Humane Society inspected many of the delivery horses on routes in the city. He found all to be in good condition he reported at the monthly meeting of the Society. He asked dog owners to either keep their dogs in the house or on a leash as more than 40 dogs have been killed by cars on the streets.

Complaints were investigated of boys wounding animals in Jackson Park with bows and arrows.

Reports of inspections for the month included 14 dogs and 18 cats picked up; 27 dogs and 42 cats destroyed; 25 dogs and 27 cats taken in as strays; homes found for 11 cats and 17 dogs, 63 warnings given and 13 charges laid.

Miss Helen Lytle and Mr. Menzies reported on the recent O.S.-P.C.A. convention held in Niagara Falls. At that convention conditions in Northern Ontario were reviewed by J. Douglas Dalziel of North Bay. Little support is given the Humane Society except in the Sault Ste. Marie area he said. Among the evils he described were horses frozen to death, dying for lack of shelter and left ... they had to forage in garbage dumps. On the other hand he quoted statistics from the Algoma region to show that horses classified as poor by the inspector had decreased from 25 per cent to five per cent in three years.

Walter Sproule Retires After 26 Years

An air-hammer chipper in the Motor-Generator Division of the C.G.E., Walter Sproule, left the plant last Friday after more than 26 years of service.

Although his occupation caused him to be named the "noisiest man" in the Peterborough works, he was a soft-spoken and popular employee.

Mr. Sproule was born in Carlington township, Durham county, and after 14 years of farming was employed in two Port Hope factories, a grist mill at Garden Hill and C.P.R. construction work and employment at the Henry Hope Company.

He joined the C.G.E. in 1926, a short time after his son, who are both members of the Quarter Century Club: A daughter, Rencorda, worked for several years in the inspection department.

Enjoying the best of health at all times, Mr. Sproule was a steady worker. His wife, however, had a stroke about four years ago. "She will benefit from my retirement at home," he said.

Mr. Sproule found his greatest recreation in the outdoors and is an ardent hunter, fisherman and conservationist.

Millions Of Fish Dying Of Old Age

TORONTO (CP)—Millions of pounds of fish in Ontario waters are being allowed to die of old age, the department of lands and forests said recently in a bulletin.

Much of this poundage is made up of what are commonly called coarse fish—suckers, alewives, sea lampreys, carp and a small deep-water herring. But the flesh of these fish, the department says, is actually platable and can be put to good use as food.

The department is encouraging Ontario fishermen to net more of these coarse species to sell as food, thereby leaving greater food supplies for more desirable types.

The main use for coarse fish still is as food for domestic animals. Penned mink on Manitoulin Island last year consumed 41,880 pounds of smelt, 12,135 pounds of herring and 4,473 pounds of cooked fillet waste.

OBITUARIES

CECIL MATHEW GRAHAM

Cecil Mathew Graham, 72, formerly of Smith township and Peterborough, died in Toronto Thursday.

Mr. Graham was born in Emily township, the only son of the late Robert Graham and Sarah Green.

He was a retired farmer. While in Peterborough he was a member of George St. United Church.

Mr. Graham was not married and his closest surviving relatives are cousins.

The funeral will be held Monday at 2 p.m. from the Kaye funeral home. The Rev. A. A. Mathews of George St. United Church will conduct the service. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. GEORGE E. PORTER

Mrs. George E. Porter, the former Susan Margaret Campbell, 580 Gilmour St., died Friday in hospital following a lingering illness.

Mrs. Porter was born in Keene, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Campbell, and has lived in Peterborough for the past 55 years, coming here from Keene.

She was an active member of ... Sunday school of that church.

Her husband, Dr. George E. Porter, predeceased her several years ago. She was a sister of the late William D. Campbell of Campbell and Best Hardware in Peterborough. She has no living survivors.

The funeral will be held Monday at 3 p.m. from the Comstock funeral home. The Rev. Henry Cotton of St. Andrew's United Church will conduct the service. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

MRS. MORLEY WILFRED LYLE

Mrs. Morley Wilfred Lyle, the former Elizabeth Dunk, 84, 317 Park St. N., died in hospital today following a lingering illness.

Mrs. Lyle was born in Seymour township, daughter of the late Thomas Dunk and Marjory Thompson, and has lived in Peterborough for the past 62 years.

Mrs. Lyle was a most loyal supporter of Trinity United Church. She was a life member of the W.M.S. and an active worker in the Women's Association of which she was president for three years. During her term as president the present church was dedicated. The minister at that time was the Rev. Dr. J. P. Wilson.

She leaves one daughter, Mrs. Jasper Humphrey (Lenore), of Montreal; one son, Vernon, Peterborough; one brother, Fred Dunk, Wawanesa, Man., and two sisters, Mrs. B. W. Fogg, Bethesda, Maryland, and Mrs. Edith Chaplin, Trent River. Her husband, Morley Wilfred Lyle, predeceased her in 1943.

The funeral will be held Monday at 2 p.m. from the Comstock funeral home. The Rev. H. G. Douglas of Knox United Church will conduct the service. Burial will be in Little Lake cemetery.

Fraserville Holds Hallowe'en Party

FRASERVILLE.—Ghosts, the bride and groom, Mickey Mouse, the Hobo, Punkinhead, The Old Man, the Japanese lady, the fortune teller, the absent-minded professor, and many others in Hallowe'en costume were at the Hallowe'en social sponsored by the W. A. of Fraserville.

Pries were won by Mrs. K. Larmer, Sharon Hoy, Marshall Willan and Gail Lunn.

Games and a short program were enjoyed by all after the parade. Mrs. Lackey's pupils sang a couple of choruses. Mrs. Larmer gave a reading "The Cow." Leona Moffatt and Joan Cook sang a duet. Mary Lou and Catharine Waterman also sang two duets. Lunch was served at the close of the social.

Film Workshop Will Aid Various Groups

Films, panel discussions, speakers and demonstrations will be included in the Fifth Annual Film Workshop to take place in Peterborough next week.

The workshop is sponsored by the Peterborough Film Council and will be held in the Public Librfary auditorium Tuesday Wednesday and Thursday evenings.

Members of all organizations in the district, who participate in the council's activities, have been invited to attend. Special invitations have also been sent to teachers, ministers and industrialists.

The theme Tuesday night will be "The Use of Religious Films in the Church and Community." The evening will include a practical demonstration on the use of religious films involving group participation.

The film, "One God," which portrays the religious practices among Protestants, Roman Catholics, and Jews in America, will also be shown Tuesday night.

AIDS IN EDUCATION

"Visual Aids in Education in Schools and Adult Education," will be the theme Wednesday night. A panel discussion on the use of visual aids will be a part of the program. The members of the panel are: Mrs. M. Sweet, Mrs. M. O'Brien, Quirt McKinney, Miss J. McMartin, Walter Dinesen, Mrs. C. Collins and Mrs. J. D. McNabb.

AIDS TO BUSINESS

Thursday evening's theme is "The Use of Films in Business and Industry." The program will demonstrate the proper use of films for skill instruction, for supervisory personnel, fire and accident prevention, advertising, and public relations.

THIS SECTION OF ROME is as popular with tourists today as with visitors to the great capital in Caesar's day. Known as the Via dei Fori Imperiali, it is a magnificent example of the town planning of the old Romans. Here was where the great imperial forums were built, the first by Caesar in 54-44 B.C. Each of the Forums consisted originally of vast areas of monumental aspect and surrounded by magnificent public buildings. Many of the great temples and buildings have been excavated and it is fascinating to get a glimpse of a great empire of centuries ago. Superb and imposing, the great bulk of the Colosseum looms in the background at the end of the street. Here is where the gladiatorial fights used to thrill a capacity crowd of 50,000 Romans. — (ENIT Photograph).

By JEAN E. STENTON

Rome is one of the most fascinating cities in the world. Memories of 25 centuries nudge the visitor on all sides as he spans the years to the glistening modernity which makes it one of the most cosmopolitan spots.

In summer when Romans move outdoors, the tempo and gaiety are like sparkling wine. History and the 20th century way of life combine to keep the traveller guessing in his exciting explorations of the Eternal City. Memories of the great days of Caesar are recorded as prominently as the great palace of the former king—deposed after the war.

To get the most from a trip to the Italian capital, the visitor is compelled before he goes to choose the things he wants to see. There is such a wealth of interest and lovely things that a person is hopelessly lost if he attempts to wander at random as in some cities.

To avoid being overwhelmed by the mass of sightseeing attractions, prospective tourists would be wise to consult their travel agents for suggestions. These agents are well informed. Tem, like many others, has one of their staff in Italy this month brushing up on what will be available for 1953.

THINGS TO SEE

Some of the more popular tourist lures include: the Arch of Titus, Victor Emmanuel's dazzling monument of white and gold; the Pantheon, relic of the Roman Empire built in 27 B.C.; the Tiber's ancient bridge; Il Duce's balcony on Palaz Venezia; Circus Maximus (where the first chariot races (Ben Hur), were run); the Roman Capitol, famous Roman baths of Caracalla, graves of Keats and Shelley; Hadrian's Tomb; hear mass in the deep catacombs as did the early Christians years before Constantine; follow Cicero to the Forum and Colosseum and Caesar along the Appian Way.

There are so many lovely and interesting churches it is difficult to choose. A tourist must see the grandeur of St. Peter's and climb the 700 steps for the spectacular view from the dome. The Basilicas should be visited—St. Paul's for mosaics, beautiful St. Mary Major etc.

The Colosseum is a sight to capture the imagination. Started in 72 AD, the ampitheatre was originally built as an arena for gladiator and wild animal fights. The great stadium is one-third of a mile around and all of 200 feet high. There are 80 entrance arches, all numbered, to take care of the 50,000 spectators of earlier days. Ivory tickets with the number of the gate, row and seat, were issued to those going to see the games, a system still used in our great football and baseball stadiums of today.

There is music everywhere, open air opera in July and August in the Baths of Caracalla and frequent concerts in the Basilica di Massenzio. Rome dresses for the occasion. In summer everyone moves outdoors.

FOOD EXCITING

Italian food is an exciting experiment which most visitors enjoy. Spaghetti is the national staple. There is pasta of all sorts, innumerable risotto or rice dishes mixed with peppers, chicken, meat fish, onions and spices. Pizza is famous. This is a cheese and tomato pie baked in pasta. Antipasto is an Italian hors d'oeuvres, similar to home.

Veal is a favorite meat and scallopine is familiar to everyone. Beef is generally good and fruits excellent. Polenta, a northern Italy dish, is worth trying. It is a porridgey dish of corn flour served in native restaurants in the country. Cafe Expresso is bitter, strong coffee, especially brewed in little drip pots set on counters of bars and coffee shops or in lovely outdoor cafes.

No two Romans agree on restaurants. However a visitor should try Passetto's, the Biblioteca del Valle and Capriccio's with its lovely terrace and outdoor cocktail bar. Dine at the Hosteria dell'-Orso. It is reputed to be the hotel at which Dante stayed in the 13th century. The food is epicurean. Don't miss Alfredo's famous for its noodles. There are countless small restaurants hidden away and worth exploring.

The best time to enjoy the capital is from May to October. Dinner is at a late hour and so are opera and theatre performances. Business closes down at lunch time and commences again at 4 p.m. Offices there remain open till 7:30.

A chaperone is still in good standing. When visiting churches men must wear coats and women must have a head covering. It is wise for women also to wear stockinngs and dresses with sleeves. Never visit a church in slacks.

Tipping is very much in evidance. The normal one is 100 lire (about 16 cents). Everyone from porter to usher is tipped even though the service charge is on the bill.

VISIT HADRIAN'S VILLA

There are some fine one-day trips which can be taken from Rome. A 40-mile jaunt including Tiburtina, Baths of Tivoli, Hadrian's Villa and Tivoli is worth attention.

Hadrian's Villa is the most sumptuous of all Imperial villas. It was built by the Emperor to preserve the memory of places and buildings which struck him most during his long travels across the Empire—especially in Asia, Egypt and Greece. He had the Academy Poikile of Athens; the canopus by the mouth of the Nile; sacred vale of Tempe near Mount Olympus and even the Inferi reproduced. It took only 10 years to build and included stately baths, theatres, libraries and was adorned with works of artists.

In later years it was neglected and used as a building quarry. The ruins are now preserved. Some buildings have only a little left to hint at their past glory while others show clearly the beauty and greatness of the place. The Canopus, one of the best preserved parts, was a city of Egypt famous for the Serapis sanctuary. It was mostly approached by canal. Hadrian had the canal and sanctuary faithfully reproduced. There are also remains of the imperial palace.

BEAUTY SPOT

Another lovely spot is the famous Villa d'Este at Tivoli. It is a Renaissance masterpiece noted for its magnificent gardens which terrace upon terrace down the hillside. It was originally built in the 13th century as a Benedictine monastery. The main drawing room opens on the Loggia dello Scalone del Ligorio—from which there is a panoramic view of the park, avenues and terraces.

Other trips which can be taken from Rome include: Santa Severa, Santa Marinella and Civitavecchia (144 Kilometres return) and to Bracciano, Vicarello, Trevignano Romano (100 Kilometres return). There is also the Castelli Romani area.

Labor Leaders Claim Workers Went Democratic

WASHINGTON (AP) — Spokesmen for both the A.F.L. and C.I.O. claimed yesterday that organized labor voted overwhelming Democratic in Tuesday's United States elections, but the union members were out-voted by the rest of the population.

Union political strategists conceded, however, that many workers' wives probably cast their ballots for Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower.

They claimed that the size of the Democratic voting in large industrial areas indicated that union members supported the Democrats as union leaders had urged them to do. They contended that the Democratic party polled considerably more votes in these areas this year than President Truman received in 1948.

There was no way of telling, however, whether the A.F.L. and C.I.O. claims of success in delivering union member votes were correct. Many politicians outside the labor unions contend that Eisenhower's avalanche of votes must have included those of many union members.

Neither union figures it lost too much ground in congress. Their officials said they figured they hadn't attained many union aims in recent years with the Democrats in power, anyway.

Britain Rejects Offer

LONDON (CP)—Britain's food ministry disclosed last night it has reluctantly rejected an Ontario offer of 10,000,000 pounds of cheese.

A ministry spokesman said Food Minister Gwilym Lloyd-George had decided it was impossible to accept the Canadian overture for the usual reason—not enough dollars

The offer was announced Wednesday by Agriculture Minister T. L. Kennedy of Ontario.

CBC Governors Hear Sudbury Application

OTTAWA (CP)—The nine-member CBC board of governors today met in public session to hear representations on a series of applications.

The first application considered was from Station CHNO in Sudbury, Ont. It applied in September for permission to operate a supplementary transmitter so that it could broadcast simultaneously in English and French. The station has been operating on a bilingual basis since 1947—one third of the time in French and two-thirds in English.

At a September meeting, the board of governors deferred its decision on the application pending further study. It reserved decision today.

Today, F. B. Ricard, representing station CHNO, made a new plea for approval of the application. He said the existing situation is unsatisfactory for everyone and the CBC networks.

The application was opposed by station CKSO of Sudbury, represented by G. M. Miller, the station's president and managing director.

OPPOSES APPLICATION

Mr. Miller said he is an executor of the estate of the late W. E. Mason, former owner of Station CKSO and publisher of the Sudbury Star. The estate holds mortgages on both Sudbury stations. A clause in the mortgages states the estate can take over the assets of the stations if the security of the mortgages is threatened.

Approval of the CHNO application, he said, would threaten the security of the mortgages.

There is no place for two English language stations in Sudbury. Station CHNO should be made to continue operations as a bilingual station.

Mr. Miller said if the application was granted Station CHNO would in effect be two stations—one broadcasting in English and the other in French. The business of Station CKSO, now operated solely in English, would be affected.

Licence for additional facilities should not be granted until the need for additional service is proven.

ASKS OPERATIONS STUDY

Mr. Miller suggested consideration of the application be adjourned for two years. In that time the board could study the operations of station CHNO, which recently was added to the CBC's French network.

Mr. Ricard, in reply, said Station CKSO would not be greatly affected if CHNO was allowed a 30-per-cent increase in its English-language programs.

A. D. Dunton, CBC chairman, said that, when the original licence was granted to CHNO, it was to operate as a bilingual station.

A. Pouliot, member of the board, said the station was allowed to operate partly in English so it could survive.

Mr. Ricard said that since the station started certain programs have been provided. The station now, because of its tie-up with the French network, was in a position where it would have to curtail some programs.

Mr. Dunton said the station had asked the board for affiliation with the French network.

Social Credit and Religion

Premier Ernest Manning of Alberta is making a successful evangelistic tour in Ontario and Quebec, urging his hearers to embrace a simple and primarily emotional type of religion. This tour is not supposed to be connected with his political interests, but as Mr. Manning is the most prominent Social Crediter in Canada we do not believe that many people will be able to keep Mr. Manning the evangelist and Mr. Manning the politician completely separate. Indeed, it seems probable that quite a few people will muddle Mr. Manning's easily understood and unexceptionable religion with his markedly less worthy political views, and that is a development which we should be sorry to see.

* * *

We have a well-founded historical distaste for minglings of religion and politics: first, the strength of the religion cloaks the weakness of the politics; second, a religious tie-up encourages politicians and their followers to believe that what they want is the will of God.

* * *

Canadians would not like it if Mr. St. Laurent were to take a public part in the propagation of his faith, which is that of a Roman Catholic; they would dislike it equally if Mr. Drew and Mr. Coldwell were to appear as lay-preachers in an Anglican crusade. We do not see that the situation is any different in the case of Mr. Manning, fundamentalism and the Social Credit party.

Tobacco And Rural Bliss

Southern Ontario has become so industrialized that one imagines trees can hardly be seen for the smoke stacks and hydro towers. But there is one section, which economic statisticians in Toronto call the Lake Erie Region, where rural bliss prevails and the wealth comes from the soil and not machines. This area comprises the counties of Haldimand and Norfolk.

Neither county has a city and there is only one town in each—Dunnville in Haldimand, with 4,478 people, and Simcoe in Norfolk with 7,269 inhabitants. Haldimand has four villages—Caledonia, Cayuga, Hagersville and Jarvis, and Norfolk has five: Delhi, Long Point Park (45 people), Port Dover, Port Rowan and Waterford. The total population of the entire area is 66,846 and two-thirds is rural.

The district is free from urbanity not because it is scrub country only lately developed. It was one of the first districts settled west of Toronto, (Vittoria the old capital of Norfolk, now a whistle-stop south of Simcoe, had one of the first post offices in Ontario), and it is Canada's richest agricultural area. Norfolk itself has less than one percent. of the total population of Ontario yet produces five percent. of the total farm income. The area has a net farm income of about thirty million dollars a year.

Norfolk and Haldimand have a mild climate, a good rainfall, a fine soil and a topography which makes farming easy. Agricultural conditions were so good that by 1900 much of the district was farmed out, the soil eroded and depleted. This decline was reflected in the population of Norfolk. In 1881 the county had 33,527 people but only 26,366 in 1921. However, the population has again risen, and is now nearly 43,000. Haldimand had less severe fluctuations because it has never been farmed as intensively. Its population today is 700 less than it was eighty years ago (24,851 in 1871). What accounted for the revival of Norfolk was the [illegible] growing in 1923 on the warm, sandy plains of the county.

Tobacco growing in Norfolk is a good example of fitting crops to adapted soils. In the last century wheat, rye, corn and peas were important field crops. However, the light-textured soils could not stand up to this regular cropping. Then the farmers increased their orchards, and canning became important. Yet the soil continued to decline in productivity and the wind erosion to increase. Then tobacco was introduced. It is this that has made Norfolk the richest agricultural county in Ontario.

Last year more than half the province's total acreage of tobacco was planted in Norfolk. From twenty acres of flue-cured tobacco cultivated experimentally in 1923 the acreage has been increased to over a hundred thousand, and the crop last year was valued at $63,544,000, more than the total cash receipts for all grains in the province.

The Lake Erie farmers have studied tobacco growing, and steadily increased the yield of an acre. As a matter of fact, these people conduct all their farming operations skilfully and in specialized ways. Norfolk produces twenty percent. of all the apples grown in Ontario, more than half the strawberries, and well-managed, good paying crops of other fruits and garden vegetables for canning.

The people are now very conscious of the need to preserve and nurture the soil. Reforestation has become an integral part of a plan to conserve the soil and the first Provincial Forestry Station was established in Norfolk as long ago as 1908.

It must not be assumed that agriculture is the sole occupation of the people and the only producer of the district's wealth. Its natural gas and gypsum have an annual value of more than three million dollars. Its limestone production is worth about a million dollars a year, and there is a chance that its known deposits of iron will become commercially useful. The people also fish, for money, in Lake Erie. The catch last year amounted to 4,592,729 pounds, valued at $1,093,960.

Despite the fine record of the people and two countries and their rural wealth, a very marked condition affects them; they are so stable that until recent decades, the population has been receding. Haldimand has fewer people now than it did eighty years ago, and Norfolk has only nine thousand more people than it had in 1881. If this kind of stability is a virtue in a district, the Lake Erie counties of Norfolk and Haldimand are amply virtuous, despite the annual influx of transient tobacco workers.

Waste Not, Want Not Election

People are saying that the Canadian Government must have a worried ear to the American ground, still reverberating that "it's time for a change." The Liberals have been in power in Ottawa nearly as long as Democrats in Washington. We think that this echo from the American elections is less significant than another from both General Eisenhower and Governor Stevenson (for, in changing from a Democratic President to a Republican, Congress did not likewise undergo as decisive a transformation).

Governor Stevenson and General Eisenhower both pledged themselves to eliminate extravagance, especially in defence spending, which now takes the biggest slice of both Canadian and American taxes. Governor Stevenson: "I pledge myself to a tight-fisted, hard-headed administration, to the most rigorous and searching economy." General Eisenhower did not advocate any reduciton in the defence program, but he called for an end to waste in that program of spending.

Canadians were agog about thousands of serving forks and hundreds of thousands of ties which were being bought for the services—when they were paraded in Parliament. General Eisenhower exposed even more lavish spending in Washington: The U.S. air force had bought 26,000 de luxe office chairs at ten dollars more than the standard model which would have done just as well. He told about the American navy buying a fifty-year supply of anchors. He exposed a purchase by the army of enough axle gaskets for jeeps to last a hundred years. General Eisenhower declared that a saving of between six and ten million dollars a year could be made in the sixty billion dollar defence spending, without the slightest impairment of the program. "I know these savings can be made," he said.

As General Eisenhower goes about making these savings, the Canadian Government should look over his shoulder. If the Liberals are not going to lose friends as the Democrats have done, extravagance in defence spending at Ottawa must be eliminated.

How To Play Chicken

We read with interest of a game called Chicken, which has recently been attracting some attention in the U.S.A. It provides thrills and fun for everyone, and almost any number can play. Age, sex and physical strength have nothing to do with success in the game, and to possess either two heads or none is a positive advantage to any player.

Here is how it is done. Divide your party into two laughing groups, and let each group pack itself into a motor car [illegible] wheel. Then let the two cars repair to a highway, and separate by a space of a quarter or an eighth of a mile. Then let them rush directly toward each other, at the highest speed attainable. The object of the game is to hold a direct course, until one or other of the cars swerves out of the way. The driver who thus swerves is deemed to have lost, and is called "Chicken" with good-humoured disparagement by the other players.

Earlier this week one driver was killed, and the other seriously hurt, and two young women were also badly hurt, playing Chicken, though the news item did not say which team was deemed to have won the game. It happened in Florida.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Bermuda's House of Assembly talks of "affiliation" with Canada. Steady, boys, steady! That might mean Income Tax in a land now blessedly free of it.

Two dinosaur tracks, warranted to be at least 175,000,000 years old were recently sold at public auction in England. And if you like antiques, they don't come much older than that.

The Journal of Samuel Marchbanks

SUNDAY: Listened to a family discussion today among some people who were trying to decide the relationship to themselves of the children of a brother of their grandfather's second wife. It was perfectly clear to me, but they made a sad hash of it. The Welsh and the Scots are the only people who really understand the fine points of relationship, and I think that the Welsh have a slight edge on the Scots in this matter. Indeed, I have given some thought to writing a book on the subject with a special Appendix dealing with the Removal of Cousins. The number of people, apparently well-educated and intelligent, who cannot distinguish between a Second Cousin and a First Cousin Once Removed, is staggering and reflects unpleasantly on our educational system. What these poor softies do when they get into the floodtide of genealogy, with Intermarriage of Cousins and Collateral Cousinship In The Second Generation, I dread to imagine.

MONDAY: Had a pleasant chat this evening with Dr. Boyd Neel, the conductor of the celebrated chamber orchestra. I asked him if he meant to play any contemporary music while he was touring Canada. "Oh yes", said he, "I expect we shall play a few new tunes." This reply delighted me, for I am sick of the cloud of mystery and fear which surrounds modern music. It is not all harsh to the ear—to any ear, that is, which does not regard the barrel-organ as the last word in harmony—and much of it is very jolly and enlivening. There are even tunes in some recent pieces, though not tunes that you can whistle. I strongly suspect that it is hard work to write a tune if you set your face against the aids of folk-song and the forthright spirit of the Salvation Army Band. But I admired Dr. Neel because he spoke of modern music without passion. I grow weary of those people who become supercharged at the mention of modern music, or modern poetry, or modern painting; these are topics of great interest, but why must one be expected to take sides, violently for or against? "There is no disputing about tastes", says the old saw. In my experience there is little else.

TUESDAY: As winter draws on I sigh with gratitude, for soon one of the problems of Marchbanks Towers will be out of my hands for a few months. I refer to the condition of what I think of as My Verge. Outside my fence is a section of miserable grass which belongs not to me but to the whole community; and the whole community, when passing, throws candy-wrappers, cellophane, cigarette boxes, used paper handkerchiefs, banana skins, dead cats and soiled undergarments upon it, quite casually and without malice. But if I do not occasionally clean up this community trash-heap the Towers soon begins to look as though it were situated in the middle of a dump. So I stumble brokenly about, with a bag and a nail on the end of a stick, picking up junk, and little children say, "Mummy, shall I give that poor old man a nickel?" when they pass. But with the coming of winter the snow flings its veil of pristine whiteness over My Verge, and conceals the trash, eventually imbedding it in ice. There have been times when I have considered following the example of those citizens of Newfoundland, who have their lawns paved with asphalt, for I notice that few people throw trash on the sidewalks. But I am still a public park-keeper, and will probably continue in my servitude.

WEDNESDAY: I have been pondering about my will. As a literary document it lacks interest and surprise. Recently the wills of a number of notable Canadians have been printed in full in the metropolitan press and I have read them with interest and a degree of envy. Not that I thought much of their style; I am sure I could write a fancier will; but I was impressed by their length and complication. How can I complicate my few miserable bequests? Shall I make them conditional upon the prolonged bad conduct of my heirs? Shall I leave my library—which, at the usual second-hand dealer's price of ten cents a volume, would bring close to $20—to a university, conditional upon their erecting a million-dollar building, with a big statue of me in the rotunda, to house it? Shall I give the Towers, with all its bills for back-taxes, to the community, to be preserved in prepetuity as a memorial to myself? Who is to get my wheelbarrow, which I coated afresh with aluminum paint last week? Shall I leave my silver tray (a splendid piece of electro-plate, nine inches in diameter in all directions) to the Ontario woman to have the greatest number of children within ten years of my demise? My present will simply won't do.

✧ ✧ ✧

THURSDAY: This evening to the movies and saw "Fabiola", an Italian film about the goings-on of Christians under the Caesars—in this case the Emperor Constantine. It concluded with a grand mass martyrdom in which, at a rough guess, eight or ten thousand head of Christians were fed to a total count of six lions. Afterward I consulted Gibbon's Decline and Fall of the Roman Empire, in which he says he can find no record of more than ten Christians beipg turned off at a time, so I dismissed "Fabiola" as what Gibbon himself calls "lively romance." But the [illegible] still bother me, for even the most anti-clerical lion must weary of unrelieved diet of Christians, consumed under circumstances of hustle and bustle.

✧ ✧ ✧

FRIDAY: This being Hallowe'en I carved a pumpkin face for some children of my acquaintance, who are connoisseurs of that art. As I did so I reflected that it is odd, and a meaty topic for rumination, that children nowadays rig themselves up like witches and demons on this grisly old festival, and their wildest iniquity seems to be writing on windows with soap. Yet witchcraft was no joke a few hundred years ago, and considerable numbers of men and women died as martyrs to it. Indeed, Mr. Pennethorne Hughes sets the figure at about three hundred thousand in Europe during the two worst centuries of witch-hunting. It may well be that more witches were slain then than Christians were martyred under the Caesars. But the fanatical faiths of an earlier day become, in time, the superstitions and then the children's amusements of later generations. I thought of mentioning this to some of the infant ghosts and pre-school goblins who came to my door for candy and apples, but they did not appear to be in a receptive mood for such philosophising. Ate a good many Hallowe'en nuts myself, then imprudently drank a glass of beer, and no witch could have improved on the unholy doings in my internals.

SATURDAY: There is an ugly development in the cellars at the Towers. Discovered a few days ago that a jar of brandied peaches which I had prepared against the Christmas festival had popped its seal, and made a mental note to do something about it. Today, when I got around to this chore, I found that a third of the peaches and a third of the brandy were gone, and there were signs about that mice were the culprits. Does this mean that a coven of inebriated mice are at large somewhere in my house, engaged in who can say what excesses? A mouse with a brandy jag might turn ugly, and decide that it wanted my bed. I am not unnerved by mice, as some people are, but they tickle, and what is more, their personal hygiene is of the most elementary sort. A mouse is not the loveable little creature that Disney has presented to the world; it is as much like a rat as a pony is like a horse, and its disposition is unstable. I am rather worried about this situation, for I do not know how many mice have been at the brandy; ten or more could easily take over the proprietorship of the Towers, in a sudden, mutinous rush. I sat all evening with my ears cocked, listening for tiny hiccups, almost too high for the human ear to detect, behind the wainscot.

WHAT DO YOU MAKE OF THIS, WATSON?

The 11-Ton Lanark Cheese

(FAMILY HERALD & WEEKLY STAR)

WE SUGGEST to the advertising experts a study of the publicity received by the famous "Mammoth Cheese" of 1893.

There must be many of the older readers who can actually remember that famous and gigantic cheese and the furore it created. Fifty years after its production, the Cheese Producers' Association of Lanark county, Ontario, organized a celebration of the anniversary in 1943.

That cheese was made under the supervision of the Dairy Branch of the Dominion Department of Agriculture, by a dozen Lanark county cheese factories, which brought the milk to the curd stage in their own factories and then shipped the curd to the Canadian Pacific Railway sheds at Perth, Ont., where a great press had been erected to accommodate it. This casing was made of steel boiler plate, nine feet in diameter and six feet high, which, by itself, weighed 3,000 pounds. The inside of the casing was lined with galvanized wire screen of quarter inch mesh, and that was covered with heavy linen strainer cloth.

About 207,200 pounds of milk were used to make the cheese. The cheese itself was never weighed—it was too big—but it was estimated that the quantity of milk used should have produced 22,000 pounds of cheese.

When the cheese was fully packed, with casing, end covers, timbers and rods to hold the end covers in place, the shipping weight was 26,000 pounds, or 13 tons!

The cheese was designed for exhibition at the World's Columbian Exposition, held at Chicago, Illinois, in the year 1893. The C.P.R. provided a special train to carry the cheese itself, together with many smaller cheeses and other exhibits, to Chicago, and a widely distributed poster was printed, giving particulars of the cheese, and a complete timetable of the run from Perth to Windsor, so that the public could come to the stations and see the Mammoth Cheese pass. The Perth people sent it off with a brass band, and it is said that 5,000 people came to see it at North Toronto.

Due to the stupidity of the men in charge of unloading the Mammoth Cheese, it crashed through the floor of the building while it was being moved from the railway car to the place prepared for it. This made the Exposition authorities very angry, but it proved to be exactly what was wanted, from the publicity point of view, and the incident opened the flood gates of publicity for the Canadian cheese industry, and made the Mammoth Cheese the most talked about exhibit of the Fair; and the one which got most space from the newspapers.

Many of these accounts and illustrations appeared in European papers, and consequently when the cheese was shipped to England, it was extremely effective in publicizing Canadian cheese, and in turning the British consumer to that source of supply.

In spite of a rumor that the cheese had "gone bad", which caused the famous Sir Thomas Lipton, who had bought the cheese for his vast chain of food stores, to repudiate his contract, the cheese actually was good and remained good. It was bought by a famous London caterer, who cut it up with considerable ceremony in the Spring of 1894, with Sir Charles Tupper, the Canadian High Commissioner, present, together with many other notables.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

But there went up a mist from the earth, and watered the whole face of the ground. And the Lord God formed man of the dust of the ground, and breathed into his nostrils the breath of life; and man became a living soul. (Gen. 2: 6, 7.)

And now, Lord, what wait I for? my hope is in thee. (Ps. 39: 4, 5, 7.)

Letter To The Editor

EVIL OF CIGARETTE SMOKING

Sir: I would like to congratulate Dr. Nancy Chenoweth for her courage in striking a blow on that much advertised, socially popular, but nevertheless, pernicious habit—cigarette smoking. Perhaps our leading doctors, ministers and we men generally had better go and hide our red faces, after leaving it to a woman to tell us the truth about this obnoxious weed. Once again I say congratulations.

A Kennedy Beats a Lodge

(Ottawa Journal)

Woodrow Wilson used to quote fondly the limerick:

"Here's to Massachusetts,
The land of the bean and cod,
Where the Cabots speak only to Lodges,
And the Lodges speak only to God."

Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. was not only a grandson of the famous Lodge who was one of the "wilful men" in the downfall of Wilson; he was a "proper Bostonian" who had a knack of getting the Boston Irish vote, who got it twice against politicians with the names of Walsh and Curley, and who was the first Republican leader to sponsor Eisenhower.

On Tuesday, when Eisenhower was carrying Massachusetts, sponsor Henry Cabot Lodge, running for Senator on the same Republican ticket, went down. This time his opponent was a different brand of Boston Irish, a young man also of Harvard, who had had a distinguished war record, who was an author as well as politician, and who could match Lodge's urbanity and charm. He was John F. Kennedy, son of the fabulously wealthy Joe Kennedy, once ambassador to the Court of St. James, and later noted as isolationist.

GOOD BEHAVIOUR

Little Peter went off to Sunday school for the first time. His manners were not always perfect, so his mother lectured him before he departed. When he returned she asked, anxiously, "Did you show the other children how well you can behave, as I told you?"

"Yes, Mummy," Peter replied, confidently. "Why, I even said, 'No, thank you, when the teacher offered me a plate full of money!"

High Power And Passion For Research

By A. J. THOMAS

"Within the memory of living man it (electrical engineering) has quietly revolutionized almost every aspect of national life. At the very heart of this progress is the design engineer."

This statement appears in the current issue of a C.G.E. publication called 'Monogram' and on the cover is a photograph of a "design engineer." The caption of the picture is not the name of the man, but a quotation from Bacon: "a passion for research." For many Peterborough people the photograph does not need a name, since it is the image of Hubert Sills, Peterborough.

As a known quantity about town (and he has been around town for 31 years) Mr. Sills is a tall man who plays golf, talks thoroughly about how to run and how not to run the city, enjoys a convivial evening, has been seen in the Peterborough Club, was an original member of the City Planning Commission, and puts in a working day at the C. G. E.

The Examiner decided to find out, if it could, what sort of man he was to arrive on the cover of a publication, to be labelled "a passion for research" and a "design engineer", and to have his pictured head backed by a montage of cosmic surrealism on that cover, with a burnt-down cigarette in holder pointing to his right shoulder.

NOT JUST AN ENGINEER

You can't get at a man like Hubert Sills in an hour, even with a dram of Grand Marnier hospitably offered in the living-room of his Gilmour street home, for Mr. Sills isn't just an engineer. But some facts and impressions were garnered.

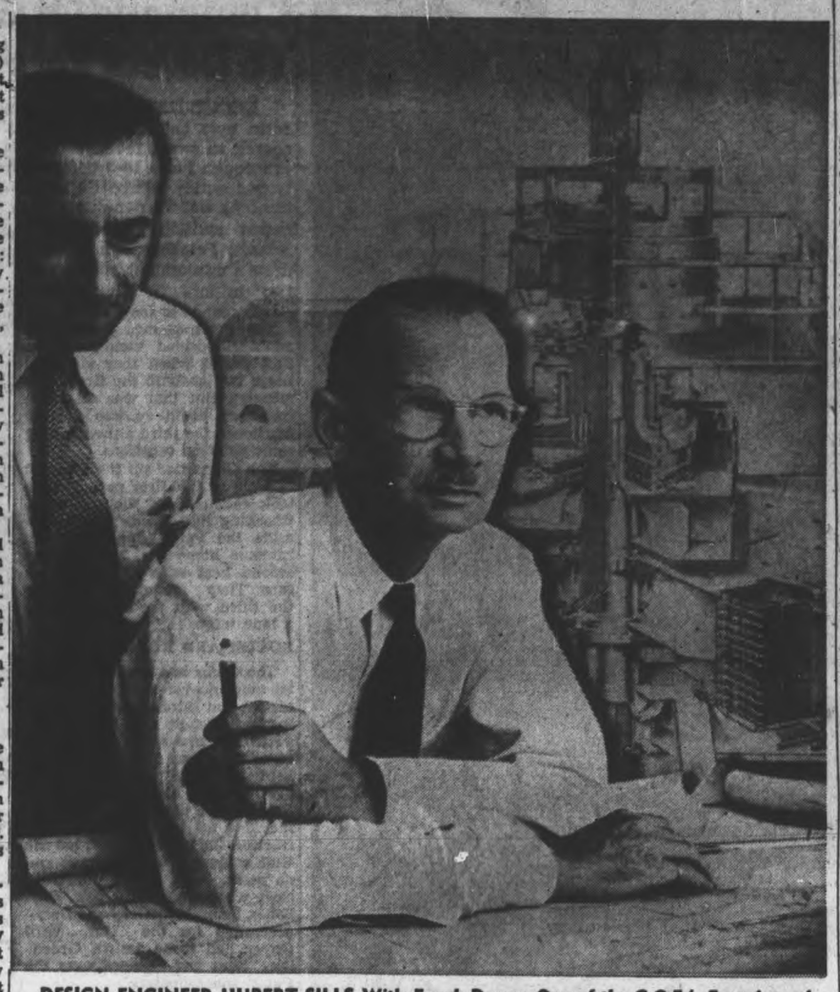
In the testy opinion of this interviewer, engineers as a class have cold fish eyes and minds like an electric clock. This may be an unkind thing to say about our worthy engineers, in a city which is crawling with them, but to simple souls like this writer jumbling through the world without a plumb-line, engineers know too much about too little, and with an exactitude and conviction that frightens ordinary mortals.

Engineers act and talk as if they knew to the second the time of the Second Coming . . . Maybe they do, maybe they are engineering it; that is what is so frightening about engineers. But Hubert Sills is not just an engineer, to be tolerated because, God help us, our society seems to need engineers; and engineers, after all, are God's chillun, just like you and me. . . Hubert Sills does not have the eye of a cold fish, nor the mind of an electric clock.

Mind you, he is an engineer. One of his two band rings prove it—the iron one; the other is gold, symbolizing another sort of attachment. . . He gave an engineer's definition of "apparatus."

APPARATUS!

To you and me apparatus is a thing like a toaster which burns toast and occasionally doesn't cook at all. But to Mr. Sills, apparatus (electric) is 'electrical equipment which is used by manufacturers for the manufacture and distribution of power in large quantities; and is not for the use of individual consumers.'



The eyes. Mr. Sills has one eye which peers on the world as a scientist's eye does: exactly, enquiringly. The other eye looks beyond the world: a visionary's eye, like that of a fanatic or an inventor.

Mr. Sills qualifies as an inventor. He has designed more than 25 things which may properly be called inventions (they have been patented). Some, he says, may not have been worth a tinker's dam; others, in the opinion of experts, may have been worth millions. He has assigned to the company more inventions than any other man in Canada.

PECK AT THE CREASE

"To cover these eyes of scientist and visionary. Mr. Sills wears glasses. These give him a kind of speculative other-worldly professional look, and the mildly unruly receding hair also suggests the professor who is coming and going at the same time. His nervous mannerism (pecking at the crease in his trousers, for instance), indicate a man more concerned with thought processes than with physical appearance.

Another attribute of the scholar or the "passion for research" is his unaging appearance. Whatever his age, it has not wearied him. He could be an experienced 40, although he is a grandfather, three times. He and Mrs. Sills have one son and two daughters. (By the

Invention is a by-product of his designing jobs. Invention is 'something somebody hasn't done before' . . . "Any inventions are largely a matter of desperation—some way to get out of a hole."

The kind of hole he refers to might occur in a machine designed (by and with Hubert Sills—there are 50-60 graduate engineers in the Peterborough plant all doing design) to produce five times as much electrical horse-power as the city of Peterborough uses at its peak load (including power used by industries).

But the Peterborough plant does not turn out these big pieces of equipment imperfectly. Mr. Sills mildly hints that the way he avoids too many trans-continental and trans-ocean trips to inspect the C.G.E. machines on location is to avoid, in the designs, inadequacies which would make his presence on the spot necessary.

BIG STUFF

Mr. Sills is rated by the fraternity of engineers and industrialists as a "famed engineer of hydro generators." He says he came to this type of work because he started with the company on generator design. As the Peterborough works expanded he was pushed into ever more specialized work on large equipment.

Large as it is. The Peterborough plant has recently done orders for Brazil, New Zealand and for major developments in Canada—for instance 150,000 horsepower wheels for ONE machine at the power site Kemano for the Kitimat aluminum development in B.C. Eventually Kitimat will have 16 or 18 such machines. The magnitude of each can be guessed at by the fact that the peak load required in the whole city of Peterborough (homes and factories) is about 20,000 h.p.

Other big works in which Mr. Sills has had a hand as designer have been for the Sir Adam Beck hydro station, the Aluminum Company in its big new Northern Quebec power location, pulp and paper projects and Beauharnois, one of the biggest power plants in the world.

The Peterborough C.G.E. plant manufactures apparatus (see definition above). It has moved out its refrigeration department and most other consumer manufacturies. It now deals chiefly with big stuff, like apparatus for mines, paper companies, hydro plants and electroc-chemistry industries.

PAY FROM THE BIG

Each of the big orders—unlike that sort of money is keeping the Peterborough works in pay cheques.

Mr. Sills dropped a hint that the kind of job which the Peterborough C.G.E. plant takes on is not likely soon to melt away. In the present evaluation of power in Canada, "the most economical is developments which reach up to the 100,000 horsepower class." In other words the big stuff is what is required, and through the production genius of the Peterborough C.G.E. plant and the ability of its engineers like Hubert Sills, the Peterborough plant is equipped to supply the need.

OWN DESIGN

Technical observers come to the plant from the U.S., Britain, and European countries like Italy to study how it does what it does. They are mightily impressed. The Canadian G.E. does not slavishly copy American methods and designs. It is Canadian design for special conditions, and Mr. Sills modestly believes that "our" design in the big equipment can compete with any country in the world.

Mr. Sills is a graduate of Queen's, a member of the American Institute of Electrical Engineers, of the Engineering Institute of Canada (a past counsellor of the Peterborough branch), and is presently chairman of a sub-committee of the national institute. He is also of member of something called C.G.R.E. (whose French name escaped Mr. Sills' memory) with headquarters in Paris.

HORNLESS

To forestall embarrassment in his Peterborough milieu, it should be explained that any of the foregoing information got directly from Hubert Sills and relating to his prowess, was extracted from him by dint of much questioning. Mr. Sills is diffident about his own accomplishments and utterly averse to blowing his own horn. In fact, it is doubtful that, were he presented with such a horn, he would know how to blow it.

1899 Scheme: Wonder Bike To Ride Radial Rails From Chemong To Buckhorn

By RICHARD F. CHOATE

If a cogwheel or gasket, or something, hadn't slipped some fifty years ago, our Peterborough of today would be represented by an ultra-large dot on the map of Jule's Verne's Wonderland of Cosmic Dingbats.

Flying saucers, of course, hadn't been invented in the Gay Nineties —but what of it? If there was a lamentable time-lag in the advent of whirling discs, were the people of fifthy years ago any the poorer for it? Certainly not the people of Peterborough, who stayed on the ground and found their Nineties gay enough without craning their necks to watch the antics of space ships aloft. Space ships—tut, tut! Not for a moment was life in a mauve decade to become dull and insipid—not while Peterborough people had their own—their very own — "Hotchkiss Radial Bicycle."

TRACK TO CHEMONG

Few people among us today have ever heard of this mystifying fabrication of wood and steel which nearly (but not quite) ushered in a new era of rapid transit. Long before Heath Robinson, the renowned "Punch" artist, was making the world laugh with his drawings of intricate mechanical devices, the Peterborough sponsors of the "Hotchkiss Radial Bicycle" were projecting their enterprising plans. The first phase of construction was to be in the form of a track linking Chemong, Burleigh Falls and Buckhorn (some twenty miles in all).

There was only one fly in the ointment. This was the suspicion or fear that the Big, Bad, Predatory Interests of Megalopolis would step in aquisitively and have the Hotchkiss wheels whirring in Toronto before the new level, joy-riding tracks could make an end to the terrors of the rough-surfaced Buckhorn road. (Or is it rough-surfaced? Question referred to the County Council Committee on Highway Disequilibria).

But perhaps Toronto had troubles enough of its own. For it was at about the same time (1899) that its native engineering genius was deeply involved in the unsolved—and never to be solved —problem of how to make Knapp's Roller Boat roll on the more or less limpid waters of Toronto bay, wherein schools of lamprey eels dine prodigally enough on the fatted calves of bathers who forget to put on their puttees. Besides which, let us not forget, the harassed Toronto of 1899 was wearing celluloid collars and detachable cuffs; was looking solemnly at the Battle of Gettysburg in the old Cyclorama building; and was trying to operate its incredible steam-train and trolley-car Belt Lines.

RUDKINS AND FELCHER

So it was that Toronto's Bloated Plutocrats withheld their itching palms and left in Peterborough hands what was Peterborough's. That is to say, they left the "Hotchkiss Radial Bicycle" in the enterprising hands of its promoters, to wit, William Rudkins and Lemuel (Lem) Felcher, both of whom were widely-known and active in the business life of Peterborough in the '90's.

Billy Rudkins in his earlier years was a speedy, skilful lacrosse player and prominent in other sports. For some time he was engaged in business and later became Collector of Inland Revenue.

Lem Felcher, already widely publicized, had come from Toronto and bought the leading George Street saloon, the Palace (east side near Simcoe). He was renowned for the array of large, sparkling diamonds which he wore on his shirt-front as he served his patrons at his long and gleaming bar. Co-licensee was Carise Lebrun Felcher who was, indeed, the masculine counterpart of his contemporary Lillian ("Diamond Lil") Russell, large-hatted theatrical queen, many times wed.

1899 ADVERTISEMENT

Details of the Rudkins and Felcher enterprise were announced in Toronto Saturday Night, May 13, 1899, in the following article which appeared beneath the drawing reproduced at the bottom of this page.

"An invention that promises to quite revolutionize sport at summer resorts and in public parks is about to be introduced in Toronto and other places, and we here give a pen-and-ink drawing that conveys some idea of what it is. The Hotchkiss Radial Bicycle beats all roller-coasters, switchbacks and merry-go-rounds completely, and not only so, but the principle of it applies to larger undertakings, so that lines can connect one park with another. It can be built wherever a board fence can be put up, so that it is exactly the kind of transit necessary in Muskoka and other resorts where the ground is uneven or where woods abound.

"A small model of the invention is on exhibition at Mr. Van Every's ticket office, Yonge Street. The patent for Canada is controlled by Messrs. Felcher and Rudkins of Peterborough, Mr. William Rudkins having bought the patent, and Mr. L. B. Felcher having purchased a half interest in it. The Radial Bicycle is the work of Hotchkiss, the celebrated inventor.

"The principle is similar to that of the bicycle—it runs on a single rail about three feet from the ground, and the rider pedals as on a wheel. No balancing is, however, required, and pleasures of wheeling can be enjoyed by everyone. A brake makes it easy to stop in an instant. The chief advantage is that one man can peddle his whole family, so that elderly people may enjoy a mild exhilaration which no other amusement of the kind can offer.

"Proposals are already made for introducing the invention at various summer resorts. The most important arrangement yet entered into by Messrs. Felcher and Rudkins is the building of a track connecting Chemong Park, Burleigh Falls and Buckhorn, a distance of about 20 miles. This will be got under way very soon, and probably the radial bicycle will be running in Toronto almost as soon. We understand that illustrated circulars explaining the whole matter can be secured by writing to Messrs. Felcher and Rudkins, Peterborough, or to Mr. C. C. Tilley, general agent, 70 Bay Street, Toronto.

"It must not be forgotten that this form of transit is not only suited for circular tracks in parks but for lines connecting distant points, and goes up hill and down with the greatest ease."

"Uphill and downhill with the greatest of ease—
Like the daring young man on the flying trapeze!"

NOTHING BUILT

Fifty years have passed since the Big Scientific Idea of the Gay Nineties flared in the heavens like a guiding star beckoning to those of steadfast faith in the Victorian notion of "progress in a straight line" which led direct to the architectural grandeur of Prince Albert's Crystal Palace. And yet —and yet, there is no sign anywhere of a double track for the Radial Bicycle's Grand Circuit of the Kawartha lakeland— not even a cedar post.

Meanwhile, more and more Letters to the Editor roar them in un-dovelike tones that the ups and downs of travel on certain

Potted Bulbs Liven Up Winter Days

By HENRY PREE (NEA)

Everyone who loves plants should pot a few bulbs for indoor blooming during the winter, or grow a few paper-white narcissus to liven the dull snowy months.

When bulbs are potted up, it is important to put a few pieces of broken pots in the bottom for drainage with a little moss over them and two or three pieces of charcoal embedded in the moss.

The pots can then be filled to within a third of the top. A good potting soil from the nearest seedman or florist may be used, or you can make up your own from rich garden loam and one part of sand.

Hyacinths and daffodils should be planted so that the nose just protrudes when the pot has been filled to within a half inch of the top. Other kinds should be entirely covered, the tops being just below the surface.

Bulbs must be stored away in a dark place until roots are made. Usually it is easiest to place them in a cool cellar. But you can use a cold frame or an insulated trench.

The time required for the making of roots, the bulbs may be forced. The character of the following table may be used as a guide:

Paper white narcissus	4 weeks
Roman hyacinths	8 weeks
Tulips	10 weeks
Daffodils, jonquils and narcissi	10 weeks
Crocus	8 weeks
Snowdrops	6 weeks
Scilla	6 weeks

When you can find a heavy

Forcing is best started in a temperature of about 50, without any direct sunlight. The temperature can be increased gradually. It is important to avoid drafts and the bulbs must not be set too close to a radiator.

Crocuses can be grown in pebbles and water about as easily as paper-white narcissus. Complaints are often made that bulbs forced in pebbles and water decay. This trouble usually arises soon begins to grow rapidly until the flower reaches the normal position. Bulbs should be purchased now and potted at once for bloom after the first of the year.

Gardening Questions

Q—This year our azaleas died. One of them is in a hot dry spot at the corner of the house. What evergreen can we plant in this spot? It gets the afteroon sun for about 4 to 5 hours.—B. M.

A—Azaleas should thrive in a hot dry spot provided the soil is acid and humusy. So make a mixture of equal parts good garden loam, old manure, and peat moss. Add a pound or two of cottonseed meal to the mixture for each plant. Water well once in four or five days.

A—Not unless you have conditions approximating those of a greenhouse. Better take four to six-inch cuttings from the terminal shoots of the best geraniums and dip the base of the cuttings in a root-promoting hormone, and root in constantly moist soil and kept in your sunniest window.

Q—What is the better time to prune trees, winter or summer?

A—Pruning may be done at any season of the year. However, late winter and early spring pruning is not recommended for those trees which bleed, such as maples and birches.

A-F-I-E-L-D with NICK NICKELS

Dear Afield:

I'll bet you are one of those city slickers who have never been out in the woods in your life. Can you prove it?

"SKEPTIC".

Yes, Skeptic, I can and will if you listen to the tale of my annual visit to the deer hunters' front firing line this week.

And to show you how daring I am, I got into the act, costume and all, at the risk of getting shot at. Some old bush clothing from the woodshed that the field mice have been nesting in for the past four years and a three-day beard were the main items of camouflage.

I STOPPED THE CAR beyond the Haultain Tourist Park beside 50 other cars, tossed back a couple of shot glasses of alki from the rad and took my bearings. After reeling over the dead bracken for 300 yards—that's the common measure of distance this time of the year—I was joined by a limping hound that had caught my man smell down wind. The poor thing collapsed at my feet. I slung it around my neck, deer carcass fashion, and plodded on. That was my first mistake.

IT WAS A BROWN HOUND with a white-tipped tail. We had no sooner tramped unsuspectingly along "Slaughter Run" than some trigger-happy hunter on a far ridge bounced a bullet off a rock beside us. That was to be expected. We came upon this hunter eventually who was slapping his thighs and howling with laughter.

"Thought you was a deer," he chortled but sobered up when he recognized the dog on my shoulders as his own animal "Whiz" that had been lost for four days. By now he was in tears and asked me to lug it to camp for him. It was three miles over rocks and swale as a deer bounds.

AT THE CAMP door Whiz's master uncoupled the dog from me, burst in the door and slammed it shut in my face. I could hear great howls of sympathy from deep voices. After 20 minutes or so my pal came out again with Whiz in his arms to chain him in his kennel. "You still here," he asked in surprise but on his return relented, or something, and asked me to come in and get warm.

The great bearded brutes were sitting around telling the wildest hunting stories I had ever heard. They told of giant bucks bounding into their sights, of does diving over ridges and of fawns without number. (The truth of the matter was that no one in that camp had shot an animal so far.)

I STAYED at the camp till well after dark until someone who was detailed to drive to town for more supplies offered to guide me to my car if I would give him a lift.

There is no truth whatever in the story that I arrived back at the office strapped to my own car fender.

A Knock-down Drag-out Affair

Bears are tougher in the Lake St. Peter country of North Hastings County or hunters are too sure of themselves, according to Jack Sprague's experience. He spotted a large bear swimming and gave chase in a boat and pumped eight shots into the animal before it landed on an island. The bear dropped on the shore and Sprague landed, lit a cigarette and sat down beside his trophy. But the bear still had plenty of life in him. It reared up and gave the hunter battle and succeeded in knocking Sprague down twice before it was killed. The hunter received treatment for wounds at the Red Cross Outpost Hospital at Bancroft. The bear, it is said, weighed about 500 pounds.

✧ ✧ ✧ ✧

The Truth Without Frills

All kidding aside, the deer hunting has been poor. Hunters are in the Kawarthas in their usual numbers but they just haven't been knocking down the game.

They offer all sorts of excuses: that the weather is too warm, that wolves are worrying the herds, that road construction along their favourite and closest spots along the Crown Game boundary is scaring the animals, that there are too many hunters.

This condition seems to be prevalent in other hunting areas of the province. Best results seem to be coming from the less-travelled bush areas north of Highway 7 between Norwood and Madoc. Road checking stations manned by conservation officers have not stopped too many deer-toting hunters.

So, if it is an off season, why not let it go at that?

✧ ✧ ✧ ✧

There is a WILDCAT on the loose in some swamp south of Stewart Hall and Art Bromley shot at a WOLF a couple of weeks ago about a mile east of the City limits along Highway 7. Someone saw a LYNX at Kawartha Park. A duck hunter is reported to have shot an "EAGLE" at Pigeon Lake. It was taken to the L-F office in Lindsay where the shooter was taken to task. The excuse that he didn't know what it was was no excuse to the officers.

You don't want to miss next week's issue of LIFE Magazine if you are a hunter or admirer of good photography. A large full-colour section on fall hunting has some beautiful and difficult pictures on pheasant, gray squirrel, ducks, grouse, deer and so forth. Worth 20 cents for a look.

A couple of schools of thought on the new basketball rule whereby a player gets two chances to score when a foul has been committed on him. If his first toss for a point is good, that's it. If he misses, he gets another shot at the hoop. Almost any ordinary cager should sink one of the two, so it means a foul by a team is practically conceding a point to the other. Some officials think this will slow up the game with more whistle-tooting and more time taken on free shots. Others claim that players will try harder to avoid fouls and thus speed up the play. There's also the angle that it might make guys so afraid to draw fouls that their checking suffers—and scores will mount. Well, we'll see what's what ere long.

Two cage conclaves are listed for the Y.M.C.A. this weekend. A school for refs and coaches will be held at four this afternoon, with Myron (Min) Hendricks in charge. He is a basketball authority from Niagara Falls, N.Y., and will discuss interpretation of rules, new regulations, etc. A 1:30 p.m. Sunday meeting also is open to all interested, and O.A.B.A. secretary Pick Leeson will be on hand. The idea is to organize a city and district hoop association as this sport has a lot of teams playing through the winter months around here. We have men's and girls' city loops, Y.M. house activity, and school squads from Collegiate and St. Peter's each season. Plus an entry or two in provincial circuits.

Hold That Pose, Please

Gord Walker of the Globe recently remarked that there's quite a trend in sports toward use of movie cameras. 'Twas started some time ago with the photo-eye to check finishes in horse races, but is used plentifully now in football, hockey and boxing. Not only quite an aid in scouting rivals in action, but also in checking your own club's mistakes. The camera doesn't deceive, as the human eye often does. A news shot in the recent world's series showed an umpire in error on a call at first base. We noted Dr. Chenoweth of the Orfuns taking movie shots of Hamilton plays during their O.R.F.U. final here last Saturday, and these films might help the local gridders in their return match today in Hamilton.

Though a keen Montreal critic of Toronto Leafs in the N.H.L., Baz O'Meara pays them this tribute: "You may not like them, but you can't ignore them. They are the ever eye-holding sweater-holding crew, but a talented troupe withal from Toronto. Don't sneer into your beer or cough into your coffee. As a rule, they are prestige producers with that certain intangible something called class written all over them. They strut when they walk, and they even strut when sitting down, as a baseball writer once said of the great Ed Walsh. Even so, they give quality, substance and competitive fire to hockey. The only thing really wrong with them is that there are not enough like them in the league."

Terriers May Be Tough

Orillia Terriers, who will be seen here in senior "B" puck action this winter, are still building. They lost 4-1 to Stouffville, but earlier took a 5-2 exhibition win o'er Lyndhursts. In that game they used Red Favero, high-scoring forward from the Maritimes. They expect his release from Charlottetown shortly for O.H.A. play. The Terriers also missed Al Shewchuck, and he may or may not be out with them again. Rusty Aitken and Al Marshall are Orillia newcomers, and they seem solid in goal with Gander Ross. A fine sniper up front, too, in Ab Bowen. We hear the Terriers play a rugged game and that they're not likely to be pushovers for any club in the grouping. That'll be seen a little later.

Only a so-so crowd at Civic Arena last eve and those who stayed away sure missed a lively O.H.A. game. A sizzling 9-5 win for Oddfellows o'er Lindsay to open the junior "B" season, and these teams will dish up some dandies ere the schedule ends, we expect. No less than 26 penalties handed out, 14 to the locals, and the total sin sentences could have been higher, at that! These husky youngsters play for keeps, turning it on every minute they're on the ice, and they act pretty chippy when checked hard. One fist fight and several near free-for-alls to keep the excitement high. Only in the third period did Doug Mortimer's men pull away, and then they looked quite a bit better. Bob Gardner was top guy on the scoring totem pole with three goals and an assist for the winners, Clare Ferguson being in on three. Several in on a pair and they all showed a lot of promise for an opener.

"PLEASE MAY I LEAVE?" — That's what I.O.O.F.'s Wingett seems to be saying (top photo) as he raised his arm to stop a shot in the second period of the opening junior "B" game with Lindsay Friday night. But the shot went in for Lindsay's second straight counter as I.O.O.F. players Leo Sullivan (3) and Don Bigford (2) look around while holding checks. Lindsay's Williams (lower photo) appears ready for a small nap as he yawns while resting on the ice beside the Lindsay net in the first period. Actually, he's covering up, but literally, for the puck is under his mitt. He earned a two-minute penalty. The Oddfellows went on to wallop the Lindsay lads 9-5.—(Examiner Photos by Grant).

Peterborough Oddfellows opened their O.H.A. junior "B" schedule here last night with a 9-5 win over Lindsay before a fair crowd in Civic Arena. After a 2-2 first frame, Doug Mortimer's hustling and husky young Links took a 6-5 lead to end the second stanza. The I.O.O.F. outfit really rolled in the third to post three markers without a return, and press most of the period. It was a speedy, exciting and scrappy struggle with a total of 26 penalties being handed out by Referee Calhoun of Oshawa, 14 of them going to the victors. Majors were handed to Jack Graham of Lindsay and Dick McCracken in the third for fighting.

FAST STEPPING

Rolling at top speed all the way, the big youngsters were quite chippy at times and several free-for-alls threatened. A lot of slashing, boarding and cross-checking occurred but the tilt was held fairly well under control. Lindsay iced a big and quite youthful squad, but they were full of fight in every frame and made it a battle before Oddfellows put on their late drive to pull away with a neat showing.

Both goalies Truax and Wingett kicked out a lot of rubber in the open fray, and the rival defencemen labored lustily. But it was the forward lines that caught the eye with a free-wheeling effort going both ways. The game was as close as the score indicates for Each side had a couple of goals scored on them with players in the sin bin, the penalty timers having a busy evening of it.

LED THE WAY

Leading lamp-lighters for Oddfellows were Bob Gardner (son of Jack Gardner of hockey fame) with three markers and Clair Ferguson with two counters. Single goals were notched by Bud McDougall (his dad was Shrimp, a puck star years ago), Paul Doris Gord Coyle and Kenny Floyd. Two assists apiece went to Gord Snape and Bill Twist, as singles were counted by McDougall, Red Robinson, Bill McCracken, Ferguson, Gardner, Don Bigford, Twist, Coyle and Doris.

The spread-around scoring and assisting indicates the team-play dished up, a first-class showing for an opening tilt of the season. Red Robinson was in on but one goal, but he turned in a starry showing, and several others not mentioned in the summary played a healthy part in carving out the triumph. Good back-checking doesn't show in the summary, but coaches and keen fans note it.

LINDSAY GOOD

Lindsay came up with a fine display, too, the team being young and many of the players lacking experience, though this is true of both junior clubs last night—and it is true that both teams are still rebuilding. The Scugog tallies were by Bill Burns, Wimp Packer, Jack Graham, Mac McGill and Tom Hutton, with an assist apiece going to Hutton, Burns Packer, McGill. On their hustle and fight, the visitors showed they would stage some rousing games with [illegible] during the sched[illegible] just starting. Teams:

Lindsay—Goal, R. Truax; defence, McGill and Shetler; centre, Hutton; wings, Burns and J. Truax; alternates, O'Neill, Williams, Chidley, J. Teal, H. Teal, Graham, Packer and Handley.

I.O.O.F.—Goal, Wingett; defence, Wilson and Snape; centre, Robinson; wings, McDougall and Floyd; alternates, Twist, Coyle Ferguson, McCracken, Gardner, Doris, Sullivan and Bigford.

Referee, Calhoun; linesman, Kingdon.

Summary:

First Period

I.O.O.F.—Floyd (McDougall, Robinson)	:17
Lindsay—Burns (Hutton)	2.08
I.O.O.F.—Gardner (Snape)	6.17
Lindsay—Packer (Burns)	11.31

Collis Girls Whip Nurses 28-13

Led by Joan Dunk, Collis girls over-ran the Civic nurses 28-13 Friday night in the first of the weekly City Women's basketball league doubleheader. In the second game Lindsay easily rolled to another victory 19-9 over the C.G.E. lasses.

Collis' cagers rolled to a 17-2 first half lead in their game with the Nurses as Dunk dropped in three field baskets and a foul shot for seven points as practically the whole team counted at least a point. Bev Dawe sank the Nurses' two points in that half.

Nurses rallied in the second half to hold the Collis girls to a 11-all draw. Their 11 points came mostly on foul shots as the Nurses were awarded 13 free throws, scoring [illegible] Dunk's seven-point first half and two foul shot points in the second gave her a nine-point total for top scorer.

From the start in their game with C.G.E., Lindsay rolled to a quick lead in the first half. Marg Owen, B. Green and Shirley Meath worked the hoop for eight points while the best the C.G.E. lasses could do was a single foul shot point.

As in the first game the teams were closer in the second half but again the Lindsay girls maintained a good lead. Owen continued her first half pace for five points while H. Robertson sank four and Ruth Gilson two in that half. Marg. Batley and Pat Nixon were best for the C.G.E. in that half.

Orfuns Carry 15-Point Lead To Hamilton Tilt

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Two Ontario football titles will be decided today and the two-game total-point series for a third championship will start.

Hamilton Panthers meet Peterborough Orfuns in Hamilton in the second and final game of a total- point series to decide the Ontario Rugby Football Union intermediate A title. The Panthers, last year's Ontario intermediate champions, face a 15-point deficit as they lost the first game in Peterborough 25-10.

The winner of the round takes on the Quebec Rugby Football Union champion on the Ontario team's field for the right to go to Winnipeg for the Canadian intermediate final Nov. 22.

The intermediate B Ontario Rugby Football Union crown will be decided at Cobourg where the Galloping Ghosts meet Kitchener-Waterloo Rams in the final game of that two-game total-point series. Cobourg won the first contest 17-12 so have a five-point lead on the round.

It was originally planned to have an All-Ontario intermediate B contest but Sudbury, the team representing the north, is unable to play this season.

The first game of the All-Ontario junior championship series will be played today in Windsor where Windsor A.K.O. O.R.F.U. junior champions meet Toronto [illegible] home-and-home total point series. The Toronto team won the right to represent the Big Four juniors by beating Hamilton junior Tiger-Cats. The second game of the series is in Toronto next Saturday night.

Ban Movies At Final Of Eskimos, Bombers

WINNIPEG (CP)—Ralph Misener, president of the Western Interprovincial Football Union, last night said the Winnipeg football club has ruled that no newsreels will be made of today's western final here other than those taken by the club's photographer, Ken Davies.

Misener said he had been in touch with both Winnipeg Blue Bombers and Edmonton Eskimos, the finalists, regarding requests by eastern companies.

Bombers replied: "No." Eskimos said they "didn't care." The ban was put on.

Belleville Early Takes Command Of Game To Defeat Petes 10 To 3

BELLEVILLE (Special)—Showing a complete reversal of form over their 9-0 defeat last week, the Belleville Glens roared to sweet revenge here last night, defeating the Peterborough Petes 10-3 before 922 fans. It was a rugged, boisterous senior "B" battle with Referee Bill Reason, Kingston, handing out 26 penalties, the teams splitting the "gate". Adams, Peterborough winger, drew a misconduct, major and two minors in the almost [illegible]ady parade to the sinbin.

The Petes seemed headed for another lopsided victory in the first period when they slammed home two goals in the first three minutes. But that was all. The best they could do was another marker in the third although they came close on occasions.

The Glens tied up the game at two-all in the first period, then took command of the situation. Checking like fiends they swept aside the Petes' opposition and rammed home six goals in the second heat with an enemy return. They scored two more in the third with the Petes getting a lone tally.

ROUGH AND RUGGED

The Glens had a clear territorial margin over the Petes in the second and third periods. The going was rough and rugged and fisticuffs broke out on two or three occasions but the officials kept the boys under control. Feeling was high all night but Reason bore down and thumbed the lads off at the slightest infraction. Jackie Wardaugh led the Glen snipers with three goals and an assist with Brian Mulvihill fleet winger getting a pair. Day, Jones, Semark, DeGray and Doran accounted for the rest. Vern Goyer had three assists. Greenlaw, West and Leonard were the Petes' sharpshooters.

The game was scarcely a minute old when the Petes flashed the red light with Greenlaw driving the puck home after McRae, Glen Goalie had kicked our four rapid-fire shots. MacDonald drew a slashing penalty and a minute later West took Floyd's goal mouth pass to beat McRae.

Play roughened and Adams and Henderson drew minors. The Glens roared in and Mulvihill banged home Goyer's pass for the first Glen goal. The play was fast with the checking hard. Goyer and Free were in alone but missed the net. The Glens tied it up after 17 minutes with Duke Doran scoring a neat goal from Goyer.

NEVER AGAIN HEADED

The Glens took over the second. They skated miles and the hard, fierce both-way checking held the Petes in check. Mulvihill ripped home a Macdonald pass after 52 seconds and the Glens never looked back. Wardaugh slapped home Day's pass on a ganging attack and Schreider and Free drew penalties with no damage done. Peter Jones picked up a lose puck and sifted in on Byers in the Petes' nets to score a pretty goal unassited at the halfway mark.

Schreider and Adams drew majors for fighting and two minutes later Doran and Fryia went off for roughing. Jud Semark golfed a pass-out to the blueline and the bouncing puck hopped into the net to give the Glens a 6-2 lead. Ten seconds later as the Glens swarmed around the Petes' net Wardaugh on a neat passing play with Jones scored his second goal of the night. Day added another two minutes later to end the period scoring.

PETES MISSED TWO

The Petes missed two goalmouth passes starting the third and the Glens roared back to the attack. Degray slappd in Doran's passout after two minutes and again the Glens carried the play to the Petes. Two minutes later Leonard scored after a passing foray with Greenlaw and Fryia with Mason and Day in the hoosegow. Wardaugh drew official ire and the Glens played two men short but the solid checking held the Petes off the scoreslist.

Adams got the gate and was hardly in the penalty box when he drew a misconduct. Spiker followed him and Wardaugh teamed up with Day to ram home the Glens final goal.

Semark and Collins drew majors with three minutes to go and that ended the festivities for the evening.

The teams:

Belleville—Goal, McRae; defence, Semark, Schreider; centre, V. Goyer; wings, MacDonald and Mulochell; subs, Strahan, Delsray, Doran, Wardaugh, Day, Jones, Reeves, Free, Plumbey.

Peterborough—Goal, Byers; defence, Leonard, Fennell; centre, Greenlaw; wings, Fryia, Mason; subs, West, Collins, Floyd, Spiker, Henderson, Adams, Wasson, Harding.

Summary:

First Period

Petes—Greenlaw (Mason)	1:01
Petes—West (Floyd)	3:23
Belleville—Mulochell (Goyer)	6:33
Belleville—Doran (Goyer)	17:14

Penalties—MacDonald, Adams, Henderson, Day, Fryia, Mulochell, Fennell, Doran.

Second Period

Belleville—Mulochell (MacDonald)	:52
Belleville—Wardhaugh (Day)	1:38
Belleville—Jones	10:18
Belleville—Semark (Goyer)	15:33
Belleville—Wardaugh (Jones)	15:38
Belleville—Day (Wardhaugh)	17:14

Penalties—Free (2), Schreider (minor, major), Adams (major), Doran, Fryia, Henderson.

Third Period

Belleville—DeGray (Doran)	2:38
Petes—Leonard (Greenlaw, Fryia)	4:11
Belleville—Wardaugh (Day)	10:59

P Of W Captures Semi-Final From Grove, 3-2

Prince of Wales defeated Grove 3-2 in a sudden-death senior public school soccer playoff. It was a semi-final game, and the winners now go against Central for the league title.

A quick breakaway early by McIntosh opened the scoring for Prince of Wales. Grove tied it shortly with Copping hitting the mark. Griffin of Grove accidentally scored for the other side when trying to clear his goal. The second half saw Bowen make it 3-1 on a long kick. Wood of Grove tallied one more to make it real close. For the winners, Dunstan, Bowen, Oliver and McIntosh shone; while Merrett, Copping and Wood played a stalwart game for the losers. Teams:

Grove: Davey, Keene, Hargreaves, Wood Duncan, Heard.

P. of W.: Coombes, Peel Ketcheson, McIntosh, G. Douglas, Jay, Bowen, McFadden Oliver, Kent, Londerville, Park, Dunstan, Barber, B. Douglas, Nurse and Clark.

Referees: McNeil and Watson.

Oshawa Clip Kingston For Second Victory

Oshawa Transporters defeated Kingston 9-4 Friday night in Kingston opening the senior "B" hockey season in the Limestone City. The win was the second straight for the Motor City boys and gives them sole possesion of first place in the loop standing.

Both victories registered by the Transporters have been over Kingston, the Thursday night score being 4-3.

Lou Plummer To Test Chief Big Heart

Lou Plummer, a rough, tough wrestler from Texas, has been matched in the main bout of next Wednesday's mat card at the Brock with Chief Big Heart, sensational Indian matman.

Plummer is a rugged grappler, but he will have to be at his best to take the Chief. Big Heart showed his ability here Wednesday when he polished off Lee Henning in two straight falls. The Chief will be gunning for his second straight win.

Fans got a real kick out of the Chief's pre-match tribal war [illegible]. His father accompanied him for the dance and also seconds him during the match.

Johnny Barend, one of the most popular wrestlers to appear here, takes on Bull Montana in the semi-final. It shapes up a sizzing bout as both boys are fast and aggressive.

Dick Raines will be back in the opener, opposing a newcomer, Tony Lanza. The latter is rate high by the experts.

Ontario Horse Takes First In A.A. Race

Dr. Stanton is owned by Lindy Fraser of Forest, Ont.

In the third spot, sticking close to the pace set by King Pola and Harold Abbe for most of the distance. As they hit the stretch turn, Dr. Stanton came with a burst on the outside. Volto Man, following him, caught the favorite just a stride before they hit the finish line.

Volto Man's time was a creditable 2:05.4 for the mile over the wind-swept oval. King Pola lasted to be third.

St. Mikes, Hawks Blow Chances For First Place

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Galt Black Hawks and Toronto St. Michael's both blew chances to move into first place in the Ontario Hockey Association junior A race last night.

Both have 15 points in the standings and wins would have moved them up with Barrie, now alone in first place with 17 points. Barrie has lost two games this week in the interlocking schedule with Quebec Amateur Hockey Association junior teams. They make their third start at Three Rivers tonight.

St. Michael's were beaten by Toronto Marlboros 3-2 while Galt lost 4-2 to the Biltmores in Guelph. It was the Bilts' third win by an identical score, 4-2.

WIN HOME GAME

St. Catharines TeePees finally won a home game as they downed Windsor Spitfires 5-1.

Gault has an opportunity to catch Barrie tonight as they meet St. Catharines in Galt. Kitchener goes to Oshawa for the only other junior A game.

Galt had a brief first-period lead in Guelph when Jim McBurney scored but Jim Connelly tied it for the Bilts and Bill McCreary and Danny Blair put them up 3-1. Tony Poeta closed the gap in the third period but George Whyte put the Biltmores out of danger with his first goal of the season.

After a scoreless first period St. Michael's opened the scoring in the second. The Dukes replied with two quickies only to have St. Michael's tie it up in the third. Tom McCarthy scored the winner for the Dukes.

Irish scorers were Murray Costello and Jack Caffery. Parker MacDonald and Louis Bendo scored the others for Marlies.

It was 1-1 at the end of the first in St. Catharines when TeePees pulled steadily away. Al Arbour scored the single for Windsor while Hank Ciesla scored two for St. Catharines and Cummy Burton, Brian Cullen and Ken Schinkel scored others.

Guelph plays Marlboros at Toronto Sunday while Oshawa and St. Michael's complete the afternoon doubleheader. Galt play in Windsor Sunday afternoon.

Rangers, Canadiens Face Weekend Games With Unfamiliar Goalies

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Goalies are becoming a worrisome class of individual—ask anyone around the New York and Montreal National Hockey League camps. Time was when the same familiar faces bulged about the pads in the nets game after game—year after year. But at two weekend games not-so-familiar netminders will be defending New York and Montreal nets.

Chuck Rayner, New York Rangers' regular goalie out with a leg injury, who played his first game of the season against Toronto last Sunday, will be replaced again by young Lorne (Gump) Worsley in the Sunday game between the Blueshirts and the Red Wings at Detroit.

At Montreal, the Canadiens' regular goalie, Gerry McNeil, is still not back in action after suffering a fractured cheek bone. General Manager Frank Selke hasn't decided who will be in the Montreal nets tonight against Chicago.

MURPHY MAY GO

Jacques Plante has played the three games allowed under the lend-lease arrangements with the Quebec Senior Hockey League before surrendering his amateur status. If he goes tonight he will become a pro. Another possibility is Hal Murphy of Ste. Therese of the Provincial League.

The standings may be in for a real shuffling with five teams bunched in the two top spots. Chicago, Montreal and Toronto are tied for first place with 15 points each with Detroit and Boston next with 10 and New York trailing with five.

RICHARD STILL TRYING

At Montreal two of Canadiens' stars, Maurice Richard and Elmer Lach, will be out to score. Richard, who equalled Nels Stewart's record of 324 goals more than a week ago, is still trying to break it and Lach is out again for his 200th marker.

The Sunday game at Boston will be a matinee affair.

Noted Football Coach, 'Timmie' Reid Dies

A native of Orangeville, Reid won wide fame as a football coach at Parkdale Collegiate where his teams won nine Senior and seven junior titles. His track and field athletes held a monopoly on Toronto championships for years.

Surviving are two daughters, Mrs. Clara Emory of London, Ont., and Mrs. Lorna Wilson of Ingersoll, wife of speedboat driver Harold Wilson; and three sons, John G. Reid of Toronto; Emerson B. Teid of Ottawa and Kenneth K. Reid of Windsor.

By JACK SULLIVAN

HAMILTON (CP) — Canadian track and field athletes who have watched the rest of the world go by in international competition in recent years today can look for a better break.

Steps have been taken to provide coaches and would-be coaches with the latest know-how on the techniques to train athletes capable of holding their own in Olympic and British Empire Games competition. It will be a tedious job to restore Canada to its once-proud standing with the world's best, but officials are confident the scheme will pay big dividends.

INITIAL MOVE MADE

The initial move was taken by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada last night when it endorsed a recommendation for setting up a national coaching school in Vancouver next March or during the summer. The hope is that a school or schools will be set up in Eastern Canada at the same time.

The 59th annual session of the A.A.U. gave the green light to its British Columbia branch to proceed with its plans for inaugurating the school. The National Track and Field Committee of the A.A.U. will investigate the possibilities of establishing the scheme in the east, probably with financial aid from the Dominion government.

Delegates endorsed the B.C. plan and establishment of a similar school in the east in the hope that the Dominion government will pick up the bill. The National Council of Physical Fitness intimated previously it would set up a national school and this likely will be discussed at a meeting of the Sports-Governing Bodies of Canada at Ottawa Dec. 4-5.

Cost of the Vancouver course has been estimated at $1,500. It will be shared by various amateur organizations, including the A.A.U. of B.C., the B.C. Track and Field Association, the Physical Fitness Division of B.C., and the University of British Columbia.

U.S. INSTRUCTOR

It is expected that Brutus Hamilton, United States Olympic coach from Southern California may conduct the opening session.

The Norton H. Crowe Trophy went to Jerry Gratton of Verdun, Que., as amateur athlete of 1952. Gratton, 25-year-old middleweight wrestler, placed fifth in his class in the 1948 London Olympics and won the B.E.G. title at Auckland in 1950. He was third in last summer's Helsinki's Olympics.

Canada's only gold medal winner in the 1952 games, Georges Genereux, 17, of Saskatoon, won the Viscount Alexander Trophy as the outstanding junior athlete. Genereux won the Olympic trapshooting championship with a brilliant showing after taking the North American Junior and Saskatchewan Open titles.

PANTHERS LOCAL CHAMPS

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Patterson Collegiate Panthers won their second straight Windsor Secondary Schools Association football league championship last night by stopping Kennedy Collegiate Clippers 19-13 in a sudden-death contest.

Victory sent the undefeated Panthers into the W.O.S.S.A. Senior A playdowns. They will meet Sarnia Collegiate Blues here Monday afternoon in a sudden-death semi-final tilt. Winner will face London Central Collegiate in the W.O.S.S.A. Purple Bowl final at London Nov. 15.

Last night's contest was a thriller all the way. Zeno Karcz, Tommy Grant and Bob Fletcher scored touchdowns for Patterson with Karcz booting the extra point on two of the three scores. Fletcher's two singles completed the winner's scoring.

John Lorenzen and Angus Morsison hit pay dirt for Kennedy's major scores. Earl Rosenbaum booted two converts and one single.

WALLACEBURG WINS

WALLACEBURG (CP) — Wallaceburg district high schools eliminated Arthur Voaden vocational school, St. Thomas 24-0 in a fast and wel-played W.O.S.S.A. rugby-football game here yesterday. Wallaceburg won the round by 20 points and will play in the Purple Bowl at the University of Western Ontario Nov. 15.

✦ ✦ ✦

ROYALS GET COBURN

NEW WESTMINSTER, B.C. (CP) —Pat Coburn, husky defenceman, was signed yesterday by New Westminster Royals in the Western Hockey League. He has been playing with Edmonton Flyers.

"It was a two-way deal," said owner Kenny MacKenzie. "Clarence Raglan of Detroit Red Wings goes to Edmonton and we get Coburn."

CATARACTS BUY WRAY

SHAWINIGAN FALLS, Que. (CP) —Shawinigan Falls Cataracts of The Quebec Senior Hockey League yesterday purchased centre Dick Wray from Chicoutimi Sagueneens, also of the Q.S.H.L., for an undisclosed amount.

✦ ✦ ✦

LACROSSE STAR DIES

VANCOUVER (CP)—Robert Lester Dickinson, 61, one-time star of coast lacrosse, died Thursday at his home here. After a starry career with Vancouver teams, he turned coach, developing many top players, especially in junior ranks. He took many championship teams east, the last time as manager of Vancouver Burrard Juniors in 1948.

DOMINION FINAL SET

WINNIPEG (CP)—Ab Petersen, president of the Greater Winnipeg Intermediate Football Leaguel last night announced that "everything is all set" for the dominion intermediate final at Winnipeg Nov. 22. The eastern winner, to be decided Nov. 15, will meet Norwood-St. Boniface Legionaires, 1950 dominion finalists.

✦ ✦ ✦

LIFTS HUNTING BAN

ALBANY, N.Y. (AP)—Governor Thomas Dewey yesterday reopened the forests and reinstated the hunting seasons, effective at once, in all but 15 counties of New York state. The state-wide ban had been in effect since midnight last Sunday because of the growing forest fire hazard. The governor's proclamation said the fire danger had been greatly reduced.

✦ ✦ ✦

JOCKEY'S WRIST INJURED

LINCOLN, R.I. (AP)—After riding one winner to boost his season's total to 332, Tony DeSpirito, leading jockey in the U.S., yesterday cancelled his four remaining mounts to have an injured left wrist examined. DeSpirito was thrown while exercising a horse at Lincoln Downs Thursday.

O'SHEA WINS TROPHY

NEW YORK (CP)—Ireland broke into the international victory-scoring column last night at the 64th National Horse Show when Capt. Colin O'Shea won the West Point Challenge Trophy. The Canadian team captain, W. R. Ballard of Toronto, and United States rider Arthur McCashin also made faultless rides over the 11 obstacles but O'Shea won on the best time—31 4-5 seconds. Ballard was third.

✦ ✦ ✦

MARCUNE WHIPS COMPO

NEW YORK (AP)—Aggressive Pat Marcune of Brooklyn racked up his fifth straight victory by whaling his two-time conqueror, Eddie Compo of New Haven, Conn., in a 10-round fight last night at St. Nicholas Arena. Marcune, a 13-to-5 underdog, weighed 130½ to Compo's 131½.

Tigers Home Free Despite Game Against Ottawa

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Hamilton Tigers of the Big Four Interprovincial Football Union are home free this season though they still have a scheduled game to play with Ottawa Rough Riders this week-end.

Even if the Cats, currently holding down first place, lose to Ottawa today, the best second-place Toronto Argonauts can do is tie them for the top spot by beating Montreal Alouettes in Toronto.

Next Saturday, Nov. 15, will see Toronto and Hamilton start their home-and-home total-point series for the Big Four championship.

EXPECT TOUGH BATTLE

Although the Cats eliminated the Riders from a playoff birth last Saturday by outlasting them 25-23 in Hamilton they are not expecting an easy game in Ottawa. Feeling runs high between the two clubs and it was not improved last Saturday when Ottawa quarterback Tom O'Malley suffered a wrenched back on a tackle by three Hamilton players.

O'Malley was forced to sit out the second half to watch his team lose a 14-0 edge and the ball game. The quarterback is expected to be in the lineup today but Coach Clem Crow has Alex Lawson, formerly with the University of Toronto ready to take over if necessary.

The Big Four games will see Toronto and Hamilton keeping injured stars on the bench for a rest. The Argos have Bill Bass and Al Bruno on the limp with minor injuries and are expected to give Johnny Fedosoff a further chance to show his swuff. Fedosoff, the youthful back, celebrated his first play in a Big Four game by scoring two touchdowns against Montreal last Sunday in Argos' 29-18 win over the Larks.

START ORFU PLAYOFFS

The Ontario Rugby Football Union starts its playoff series Sunday. Toronto Balmy Beach, after losing three out of four starts to first-place Sarnia Imperials, entertain the Imps in the first game of a two-game total-point playoff series. The winner meets the Big Four champion for the Eastern Canada title.

The Beaches improved steadily during the season as playing coach Gerry Tuttle worked hard to mould a blend of youth and experience into a smoothly-working machine. In their last start against the Imperials in Sarnia the Toronto team dropped a close 14-10 decision.

In the Senior Intercollegiate Union the first-place University of Toronto Blues travel to Montreal to play McGill today. Western Mustangs are idle while McMaster plays Queen's at Kingston in an exhibition tilt.

No Tampering In Case Of Brecheen–Frick

NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick last night ruled there was no tampering involved when St. Louis Browns signed Harry Brecheen last week after the Cardinals had asked for and received waivers on the veteran southpaw.

President Fred Saigh of the Cards had filed tampering charges against the Browns last week, declaring the Browns had signed Brecheen who, he claimed, had never been given his unconditional release.

Brecheen had contended that as a 10-year man in the majors, he automatically became a free agent when waivers had been received from the other clubs. Brecheen insisted the Browns had not approached him until after the waiver period expired.

British Ice Cream Offers Jolt To Eater

LONDON (AP)—You can get tipsy in Britain on ice cream. Just step up to a bar and order it in one of four jolting flavors—creme de menthe, brandy, rum or whisky.

"This novel way of eating yourself into a spin now is offered by a few pioneer pubs, restaurants and hotels around the British Isles.

How much does it take?

According to Peter Pioli, whose firm turns out the icy firewater, it depends on your capacity. Twelve pints of whisky-flavored ice cream, a bottle of whisky, he claims.

Matthews Decisions Wills In 10 Rounds

SPOKANE, Wash. (AP)—Harry (Kid) Matthews of Seattle last night won a unanimous 10-round decision over Harry Wills of New York in his attempt to make a comeback into big-time boxing.

Matthews, who suffered a two-round knockout loss to Rocky Marciano last July, came in at 177 pounds, 30 pounds less than Wills' 207. Despite Wills' longer reach, the Kid battered him with a strong left hook.

Wills had Matthews in serious trouble in the fifth, but the Kid came back strong in the sixth.

Kill 75 Terrorists

JAKARTA, Indonesia (AP)—Indonesian army forces killed 75 Darul Islam terrorists in a pitched battle in central Java Thursday, reports reaching here today said. The reports said government forces suffered no losses and captured arms, ammunition and some money from the terrorists.

Sugar Ray Turns To Emcee Work

NEW YORK (AP)—Sugar Ray Robinson now is a night club dancer and master of ceremonies. Whether he goes on being middleweight boxing champion of the world is something he will decide with his manager this month.

Wearing white silk underwear and a weary, happy smile, he eagerly accepted congratulations in his dressing room after his first show last night.

It seemed obvious today that he wants to quit fighting.

"But I'll have to talk it over with (manager) George Gainford," he said.

Much depends on the critics, the crowds and the pay. The first-night reception was extremely warm.

Robinson is unquestionably the world's best tap dancer among championship fighters. Even if his jokes were a bit musty, he made up for them with his poise and personal charm.

Woman Enters Truckers Roadeo

TORONTO (CP)—The sixth national truck roadeo championships start today with one woman and 75 men from all parts of Canada driving for national honors and $3,000 in prizes.

The woman contestant is Mrs. Margaret Elliott of Belleville who has driven a dump truck for the last two years without an accident.

The Ontario finals start Monday followed by the national championships. Competitors will include provincial champions from British Columbia, Alberta and the Maritimes, as well as army and air force representatives. There will also be drivers from commercial firms, the department of highways and other groups.

The roadeo is sponsored by the Automotive Transport Association of Ontario.

Sarnia Tie K-W In Overtime, Chatham Wins

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

It finally happened. There was a tie game in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series.

Sarnia Sailors barely managed to keep their league lead by virtue of a single point picked up from Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen in a 2-2 overtime tie. It was the first deadlock this season with 25 games of the schedule played.

Sarnia has 11 points and Chatham Maroons are close with 10. They took an easy decision from Hamilton Tigers 9-0. The loss left the winless Tigers in the cellar.

TIE FOR SECOND

Stratford Indians pulled into a second-place tie with Chatham as they downed the sixth-place Brantford Redmen 6-3.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior series another 2-2 overtime deadlock left North Bay Trappers in first place by a one-point margin. The Trappers played to the tie with the second-place Sudbury Wolves.

Stratford's Roth - Flanagan-Flick combination scored four goals and seven assists in Brantford. It was wide open play all the way with little body-checking.

Mickey Roth scored two for Stratford while Bill Shill notched a pair for Brantford. Other Stratford goals were by Lloyd Ferguson, Jack White, Dinny Flanagan and Billy Flick. Jack Wade scored the first for Brantford.

Kitchener-Waterloo scored twice in the third period, then held their own through the overtime frame in Sarnia. Pierre Cadieux and Jack McKenzie scored for the Dutchmen after playing coach Vern Gardiner and Skippy Frasell had given Sarnia a first-period lead. Boat Hurley played standout hockey in the Kitchener net.

A fight between Ed Didone and Norm Divinski provided the only interesting moment in the Hamilton-Chatham game. The Tigers were only able to ice nine men.

THREE FOR CARVETH

Smoothie Joe Carveth notched three and had an assist to pace the winners. Didone and George Edwards scored two each while Paul Sironen and Ernie Dick rapped in singles.

Ab Demarco scored first for the Trappers in Sudbury when Yacker Flynn and Andy Milne put the Wolves ahead only to have Vic Jackson tie the score.

Sarnia Sailors will be visitors in Owen Sound tonight while Chatham go to Stratford and Brantford visit Kitchener. In the N.O.H.A. southern group Sudbury Wolves visit Sault Ste. Marie Ontario Greyhounds.

Set Tentative Dates For US-Canadian Golf

CHICAGO (AP)—The Professional Golfers Association last night tentatively agreed to June 4-7 dates for the 1952 United States-Canadian international team matches. A spokesman said the meet probably would be held at the Beaconsfield Country Club, Montreal, scene of the 1951 matches.

Michigan Police Set To Guard Ballot Boxes

DETROIT (AP)—All Michigan's ballot boxes of Tuesday's election were placed under the specific protection of state police yesterday.

State troopers got their orders as a demand for a recount was expected in the close race between Democratic incumbent Governor G. Mennen Williams and Republican Fred M. Alger Jr.

Williams, by-passing consent from the state board of canvassers, ordered the police to check the location and condition of all of the ballot boxes.

Williams, who sought an unparalleled third Democratic term, remained a slender winner over Alger on the basis of partly official tabulations.

With 53 of the state's 83 counties canvassed officially, Williams had a margin of 7,267 votes. The totals:

Democratic Wayne county (Detroit) was not included among the 53. Wayne has 1,831 precincts.

It is uncertain when the state will know for sure the identity of its new governor.

It may not become known until mid-December. The law gives the the board of canvassers that much time to make its final report.

Lutherans Increase

NEW YORK (AP)—The National Lutheran Council said last night membership in Lutheran churches in the United States and Canada climbed to 6,476,601 in 1951, a gain of 174,653 or 2.8 per cent over 1950.

Woman Asks Life Sentence But Not Mercer

COBOURG (ENS)—Louise May West, 43, with a record of 48 convictions, most of them for false pretenses and theft, pleaded for a life sentence anywhere rather than go back to Mercer.

"I spent two years there and when I got out I was bitter and didn't care what happened to me. They were supposed to give me a job as a cook but what they gave me was not fit for a scullery maid. Six other girls couldn't stand it," declared the accused woman tearfully.

"But you have a record of 48 convictions and you have been in several institutions. You work for people and steal from them. For instance you were sentenced at Bowmanville for theft. What is your explanation for that?" asked Magistrate R. B. Baxter.

"They hire you as a housekeeper but they want you to act the wife for them. It is the same old story every time. I have got so that I detest men," she said.

"You have a very long record and it shows that you no sooner get out of jail than you are into trouble again. I am going to sentence you to 12 months definite and six month indefinite in Mercer reformatory on the charge of theft of clothing," said the magistrate.

Crown Attorney Harry Deyman commented that it would likely be only a matter of time before she was sentenced as an habitual offender.

Joan Fontaine To Wed

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Movie actress Joan Fontaine and producer Collier Hudson Young plan to be married next Wednesday in Saratoga, Calif. The couple obtained the licence here Friday. She gave her age as 35 and Young said he is 44. Miss Fontaine, sister of Olivia De Havilland, formerly was married to actor Brian Aherne and producer William Dozier. Young is the former husband of Ida Lupino.

Petitions Given To Judge, Ask For Action

Petitions, circulated by Maurice E. Ketcheson, requesting action in building the Peterborough Memorial Centre, have been submitted to His Honor Judge J. De.N. Kennedy. They contain appreximately 2,500 names of Peterborough residents.

Since then Mr. Ketcheson and Judge Kennedy have discussed the centre problem. Judge Kennedy asked Mr. Ketcheson for a written account on the plans and history of the centre.

Mr. Ketcheson recalled in his letter that in 1944 a committee was formed including Joseph A. Jobson as chairman, Herbert Bradburn, vice-chairman, James J. Dorris, secretary and Charles S. Cummer, treasurer. He added that it would appear the committee "was responsible to the City Council as financial statements signed by the City Treasurer's office would bear this out."

COLLECTION EXPENSES

"An amount of expense seems to have been incurred in the collecting the money from different citizens including factory workers at their place of employment," continues Mr. Ketcheson.

"Temporary receipts were issued for donations and donors were advised a permanent receipt would follow. I have not heard when they were. Donors were promised reduction on income taxes. Donors were promised building operations would get under way at once and the building completed before the soldiers returned."

Mr. Ketcheson said that he found a payment of $750 to the Raymond Concrete Pile Company during a check of the centre's expenditures; these were for testing soil.

"The public have not been told where this took place. Several locations were offered where the building could have been built but it would appear a repellent attitude is present in the City Council and no place has been chosen. I would suggest the citizens be given a chance to decide by a plebiscite."

In the letter Mr. Ketcheson drew to Judge Kennedy's attention to the expense items "which appear to be mounting while the construction of the building has not been started." These, said Mr. Ketcheson, amount to $11,268.98 on January 23, 1951, and to $11,729.93 on December 31, 1951.

Mr. Ketcheson points out grievance six on the petition, saying,

BOUGHT BONDS

"The money was subscribed to build a Memorial Community Centre but instead the money has been used to buy bonds with part of the same and the balance placed in the bank bearing interest."

He added that the Centre committee on October 29, 1951, authorized $25,000 of the cash holding of $27,577.75 in guaranteed short-term bonds.

"I have tried for months to get action by his Worship the Mayor and the aldermen, being loyally supported by the press and I can see no reason why action should not be taken under the Provincial Bill 158, but I realize your Honor must first decide there is a grievance."

Mr. Ketcheson emphasized that the petition "does not hint of any manipulation of funds, but simply that the building must be built and without further delay."

"In my contact with the citizens I find many who will donate again as soon as construction is under way, also those who have not subscribed, anxious to do so, if more money is required."

Again referring to the expenses so far, Mr. Ketcheson refers to the plan costing $9,900, stating, "I do hope the plan costing $9,900 will not be ancient after so many years of delay."

Mr. Ketcheson produces a financial statement which shows total subscriptions of $200,155.26, interest on bond investment and bank account of $40,728.04, which after expenses leaves $240,883.30

Clash With Leftists

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP)—Police clashed yesterday with leftist demonstrators shouting "down with Eisenhower!" Several police were wounded, and five demonstrators were arrested. The occasion for the demonstration was the 35th anniversary of the Russian revolution.

Fenella W.I. Sponsors Supper Dish Course

FENELLA (ENS) — Mrs. Ambrose Fanning opened her home to the Fenella Women's Institute for the course on supper dishes which was held Monday and Tuesday afternoons under the leadership of Miss Elaine Found, from the Ontario Department of Agriculture, Women's Institute Branch and Home Economics Service, Toronto.

A good attendance was on hand for each afternoon, 18 members and two visitors, on Monday and 19 members and nine visitors on Tuesday.

Miss Found, and assistant, Mrs. Eric Sandercock, prepared and cooked a complete supper meal each afternoon. She stressed that the whole day's meal be planned at one time, checking with Canada's food rules to see that all the recommended foods have been included.

Mrs. Fred Ferguson moved a vote of thanks to Miss Found, Mrs. Fanning and others.

Bailieboro Couple Feted On Departure

BAILIEBORO (ENS).—A large number of friends gathered in Centreville hall to bid farewell to Mr. and Mrs. Fred Barnard, Fay and Glee, who have moved to Peterborough from their farm at Rice Lake.

Warden Harry Campbell was chairman for a varied program consisting of piano duet by Shirley and Phyllis Beebe, vocal duet by Sandra and Sylvia Muspratt, vocal solos by Mrs. R. Kidd, Clarence Eagleson, Marion McKinley, readings by Mrs. A. Montgomery and Mrs. W. Smith, selections from the male quartet, Harland Seens, Eldridge White, Harold Buckham and Art Beebe.

The presentation of two pieces of sectional furniture, a table and a lamp, was made by Messrs. Carl Dawson and James Lewis for which Robert Kelley read the accompanying address.

RCAF Jets In Europe Only Match For Reds

MONTREAL (CP) — R.C.A.F. fighters are the only planes in Europe capable of matching Soviet planes for mastery of European skies, Air Marshal W. A. Curtis said last night.

He said R.C.A.F. F-86 Sabres now are the only match for Soviet MiG-15s, although the United States Air Force will send Sabre squadrons in the near future.

Mother Of 2 War Dead To Place Wreath

OTTAWA (CP)—Mrs. Daniel McCann of Ottawa, mother of two sons who died as a result of wartime service, will place the wreath at the National War Memorial during the annual Nov. 11 Remembrance Day ceremonies, the Canadian Legion said yesterday.

One son, PO. Leonard McCann, was lost in an air attack on Berlin in 1944. Another, Wing Cmdr. Daniel McCann, died in 1948 of a blood disease which he contracted in the Middle East in wartime.

Heavy Vote

WASHINGTON (AP)—About 61 per cent of the adult population turned out to vote in Tuesday's election—the biggest percentage in history—a survey indicates. With about 4,000 polling places still to be counted, an unofficial tabulation showed a combined total of 59,545,569 votes for Dwight D. Eisenhower and Adlai E. Stevenson. Counting minor-party candidates and the remaining precincts, the total ballots might reach 60,000,000.

Spirits Import Banned

DAMASCUS (AP)—The Syrian government yesterday banned the import of all alcoholic drinks. The ban, a spokesman explained, was assigned to protect local firms from foreign competition. The decree bans the import of foreign beer, whisky, brandy and wine.

Soviet Prepared For Aggressors

MOSCOW (AP)—Marshal Semeon Timoshenko, in a revolution anniversary speech, asserted yesterday that Russian armed forces have everything they need to repel any invader and are "better able than ever before to answer an aggressor with a strong blow."

This theme was similar to that of the main speaker Thursday night at the Bolshoi Theatre on the eve of this 35th anniversary celebration of the Bolshevik revolution. Premier Stalin was present both Thursday night, when Deputy Prime Minister Mikhail Peruvkhin expressed this idea, and at yesterday's parade ceremonies which Timoshenko reviewed.

Timoshenko denounced "warmongers," accusing the West of intensifying an arms race and "dreaming of a new world war."

"The Soviet people can be confident Soviet armed forces are prepared to fulfill the task of defending the peaceful labor of the Soviet people," the Second World War hero said.

Protestantism, Bible Westwood WMS Topic

WESTWOOD (ENS)—Mrs. Clayton Brackenridge was hostess on Wednesday afternoon to the members of St. Andrew's United Woman's Missionary Society. Mrs. Brackenridge dealt with the business of the meeting which included plans to consider organizing a woman's association.

Mrs. R. Y. Cameron and Mrs. Stephen Elmhirst were joint leaders in the worship service and program under the theme, "The Book Of Life".

Mrs. William Brackenridge gave a reading "Protestanism and The Bible" and the scripture reading from John's gospel was read by Mrs. Clayton Brackenridge. The two great principles of the Protestant Reformation were: (1) Man's salvation is wrought by God's grace alone, through faith; (2) Scripture is the only final rule of faith and life.

Barbers' Closing Bylaw Dropped At Bancroft

BANCROFT (ENS).—November meeting of the Bancroft Municipal Council was held Monday evening. Present at the meeting were: Reeve T. W. Tryon and Councillors Gordon Broughton, D. Easton, Wilfred Maxwell and E. Ellerbeck.

It was moved and seconded that the minutes of the October meeting of council be read and adopted. Proposed grants to the Red Cross hospital and the public library were discussed. It was decided that the hospital receive a cash grant of $200 and the library a grant of $100. These are the same grants as allocated last year.

No discussion was made on the closing hour bylaw affecting barber shops and beauty salons within the village. This matter has been a bone of contention with council members and the majority of proprietors of these establishments for some time now, the latter body having presented a petition demanding action on the issue. The subsequent passing of the by-law resulted in the prosecution of barber James Mackey by Chief Constable F. L. Chapman a short time ago. The chief was forced to withdraw the charge when it was found that the by-law was not properly passed in the first instance.

It is now believed that the issue will be dropped by council and the bylaw will not become valid by reason of the fact that one of the councillors voting on the matter is engaged in the business affected.

It was regularly moved and seconded that the following accounts be paid: McCormick-Smythe, $11.50; H.E.P.C. Ontario, $686.; Northern Electric Co., $29.-08; People's Telegraph and Telephone Co., $10.40; Bancroft Municipal Light and Power Co., $11.38; Village of Bancroft, $40.00.

The assessment of Robert Kellar, appealed during the Court of Revision, held last month, was confirmed.

Parents Told To Pay For Broken Panes

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Parents of three boys who shot 11 holes in a stained glass window at St. James Westminster Anglican Church on Oct. 18 must make restitution totalling $125.

Two of the boys, aged nine and 12, appeared in juvenile court yesterday. Each admitted making two holes in the window with his slingshot.

Police said the third boy, six, was too young to bring to court. His father agreed to pay $25 although his son wasn't charged. The others are to pay $50 each

Cost of repairing the window will be $187.

Laughton Has New Offering For Theatre

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "John Brown's Body," a depiction of the turbulent times in 19th-century America, this week began a tour of the United States.

The production, which features Tyrone Power, Judith Anderson, Raymond Massey and a chorus of 20, was premiered in Santa Barbara with "tremendous impact."

The Santa Barbara News-Press commented:

"This strangely new — and strangely ancient—mingling of the arts of poetry, of speech, of music . . . was one of the most compelling, inspiring theatre events that the present generation has experienced."

The Hollywood reporter called it "wonderful and thrilling. it almost becomes a segment of American history, passing before one's eyes."

SOLD LAUGHTON

"John Brown's Body" is the product of 31-year-old Paul Gregory who collared Charles Laughton in 1949 and persuaded him to read from books on a country-wide tour. This idea was profitable and led to "Don Juan in Hell," which Laughton, Agnes Moorehead, Charles Boyer and Cedric Hardwicke played without scenery and with huge success.

Gregory remembered there were two main books in his Iowa farm home—the Bible and Stephen Vincent Benet's "John Brown's Body." He mentioned the book to Laughton, and they conceived the present production, which Laughton adapted and directed.

Like "Don Juan," "John Brown's Body" is presented before microphones on a bare stage. Power, Massey and Miss Anderson assume voices of many figures of the Civil War era. The chorus provides music, atmosphere and sound effects.

The show will play 77 engagements in 10 weeks, most of them one-night stands.

2 Die In Collision

ROTTERDAM, the Netherlands (AP)—Two workmen were killed and 18 injured last night in a collision of two trains carrying oil-refinery personnel to their homes. The trains were proceeding at slow speed in the harbor district when the first stopped suddenly. The second struck it.

Former Lindsay Man Wins Dismissal In Court Case

LINDSAY —(ENS)—A former resident of Lindsay, now living in North Bay, travelled to his old home today to defend himself in a case of failing to report an accident two months ago, and made a successful job of it.

Merle Dickerson, a former electrician in Lindsay, now the owner of an apartment house in North Bay, appeared charged with failing to report an accident which occurred west of Oakwood on Highway 7 as he drove his family to Lindsay for the Central Exhibition.

Dickerson's car turned over in the ditch on the highway, and damage of $700 was sustained. He pleaded not guilty to the charge and conducted his own defence, cross-examining witnesses and calling some of his own.

Constable John Plumbtree of the Lindsay O.P.P. told of receiving the accident call from Fee Motors in Lindsay, through the Peterborough police radio. On his way to the accident, he was stopped at another five-car collision near Chalmers Corner.

Dickerson claimed, in his defence, and several witnesses bore him out, that he had met the officer at this point, accompanied by his brother, and told him his name and pointed out that he was on his way to the accident. The officer, he said, told he knew of the mishap and urged him to move on, since the traffic was heavy.

Later, Dickerson, claimed, after he had returned to Lindsay, having waited for the police for over an hour, he phoned the provincial police again, and gave the particulars of the accident.

Crown counsel Lorne Jordan argued that the person involved in the accident could not delegate his responsibility to report it to another Magistrate Gee disagreed, however, and accepted Dickerson's testimony of having notified the officer in person while on the way back to the scene of the mishap. He dismissed the charge.

After the case was over Mr. Jordan took the floor to express his feelings on the loss of Chief Art Webster. He remarked on the co-operation and assistance he had received from the chief in the many cases they had tried together, some of them important. He expressed, also the best wishes of the Lindsay Bar Association and the officers of the local and Provincial Police, and bid the chief good luck in his new job, which he stated, the chief could not refuse for the sake of his family and himself but also for the best future. Magistrate Gee also complimented the chief on his new position and remarked that he had always had his cases well prepared and in order for trial. He echoed the sentiments of Mr. Jordan in wishing the chief all the best for the future.

Thirty Pictures Reproduced In Second On TV Broadcast

As thousands of Canadians settle back in easy chairs and watch Canadian TV, a question may vaguely run through their minds.

"Exactly how," asks Mr. I. M. Quizzical, "can an actor's voice and image be carried instantaneously through space and be heard and seen clearly in all the homes around here?"

"Let's imagine ourselves as spectators in a CBC studio in Toronto," says John D. Campbell. "A play is in progress and the camera focuses on the scene."

In this camera is a tube which works something like the human eye. Light from the scene is focused on a sensitized surface in the tube as your eye focuses light on its retina.

The TV image falls on millions of electrons of the sensitized surface which, because it is photo-electric, throws off electric charges whenever light strikes it.

Shaded portions of the image produce but little electric energy on this surface, while lighter portions produce a greater energy. The potential or "charge" over the photoelectric surface varies exactly as do the gradations of light which form the image.

Thus the electrical image is broken down into some 300,000 parts by scanning. The electrical components of the image are scanned or picked off one by one, just as your eye is scanning this article —a letter or word at a time.

186,000 MILES A SECOND

So rapidly does electricity travel —186,000 miles a second—the scanning takes place almost instantaneously, says Mr. Campbell. Thirty complete electronic images, or pictures, a second, are released from the tube and transmitted by the television station.

When the TV electrons reach the antenna of your set, the process of reconverting them into the original image stemmed tube shaped like a funnel. It is the cathode ray tube, commonly referred to as a picture tube. This tube uses the camera tube process in reverse. It receives millions of electrons in the same order as sent from the camera pickup tube.

The electrons enter the receiving tube at its narrow end, where an "electrongun" sprays out a stream of electrons representing the dissected pieces as they left the camera.

Mr. Campbell said "these electrons shoot from the gun toward the large, flat end of the tube, which is covered with a fluorescent material."

The nature of this material is such that, when the electrons strike it, a pinpoint of light appears —a bright dot where they strike with great power, a darker one where they strike with less power.

Coils of wire, carrying electric current, circle the cathode ray tube, too. Just as coils create magnetic force to control the scanning in the camera tube, so they control and aim the electrons shot from the gun in the receiving tube.

Synchronized with the scanning in the camera tube, the gun's stream of electrons projects dot after dot, row after row (525 to each picture) on the fluorescent end of the tube so that the picture appearing on your set's screen is identical with the scene in the studio. A series of 30 pictures are reproduced every second.

TV Talk

CUE OR "Q": Signal or sign for the start of shooting, music, narration, action, etc.—the signal to begin.

CYCLORAMA: Backdrop with a photographic or painted scene on it, or simply a plain sky.

DEAD SPOT: Location where TV signals are received badly or not at all. Also an underlit area taken by the TV camera.

Four Join Coldsprings YPU

COLDSPRINGS —(ENS)—The regular meeting of the Coldsprings Y.P.U. was held Thursday night at the home of Mary and Cecil Jibb. Grace Wilton, missions convener, was in charge of the meeting.

A questionnaire was held on verses of the Bible with Hayden West, David Denny, Bruce McIntosh, Johnny Beedham, Ross Timlin and Neil West, taking part.

Dorothea Bowman led in prayer. Readings on Missions were given by Viva Minifie and Lorene Timlin. Meditation was given by Eunice Minifie.

The topic on "Missions in India" was given by Grace Wilton, whose parents, the Rev. Wilton, and Mrs. Wilton have been missionaries in India since 1948. They expect to return to Canada in 1954.

The Rev. V. M. Gilbert spoke on Youth Week being held at Peterborough from Nov. 16-23.

Four new members joined the group: Margaret Ford, Viva Minifie, Pat Mallory and Ronnie Crawford. Recreation was enjoyed.

Ross Timlin invited the society to his home for the next meeting on Nov. 20.

Refreshments were served and a vote of thanks was given to Mr. and Mrs. Jibb for their hospitality.

Thankoffering Day Of Marmora W.M.S.

MARMORA (ENS).—The annual thankoffering meeting of the Women's Missionary Society of St. Andrew's United Church was held in St. Andrew's hall recently. Mrs. E. C. Prentice welcomed the members after which Mrs. C. Tupper took charge of the devotional period with Mrs. H. C. Barlow officiating at the piano. The theme was Means of Grace — Courts of the Lord. Bible readings were taken by Mrs. Barlow and a reading "Life Work of Christ" brought the period to a close. A film on the life and work of Jesus Christ was shown by the Rev. K. J. Crawford.

The business period followed after which members studied the first chapter of the study book "Look at Africa Along African Trails."

The president, Mrs. Prentice offered her home for the next meeting when Mrs. K. J. Crawford will have charge of the devotional period, assisted by Mrs. T. J. Bateman with the study book.

The thankoffering was received by Mrs. Grace Pack. Mrs. Tupper closed the meeting with prayer, after which a social half hour was spent.

Deloro Group Visits Marmora Ladies Guild

MARMORA (ENS).—November meeting of St. Paul's Ladies' Guild was held at the home of Mrs. Donald McInroy, on Thursday evening with the president, Mrs. Donald Robertson, in the chair. The good attendance included representation from the Deloro group.

Mrs. McInroy reported for the hall additions, chiefly the kitchen, mentioning that such had given general satisfaction to members.

Some letters of thanks were read.

It was decided to hold a bazaar and afternoon tea and evening bridge and euchre in the parish hall on December 5.

The committee for the month served refreshments.

SISTER MISSING—Mrs. Olive Josephine Law, 42, took the midnight boat from Victoria to Vancouver June 13, 1951, and has never been reported seen since. Her brother, Don L. Cavanagh, a farmer from Calgary district, plans a fourth trip this fall to the west coast in an effort to clear up the mystery surrounding her disappearance.

Plans To Continue Search For Woman Missing Year

The woman, Mrs. Oliver Josephine Law, 42, took the midnight boat from Victoria to Vancouver June 13, 1951, and was never reported seen again.

Her brother believes she may be a victim of amnesia or foul play. She was carrying about $2,000 worth of jewelry when she vanished.

Mr. Cavanaugh already has spent eight weeks at the west coast, supplementing police investigation with his own private probe. He has talked to about 50 friends of his sister.

As soon as he had harvested his 1952 crop, he started making preparations again to resume his search.

Mrs. Law is 5' 3" tall, slight of build and weighs about 120 pounds. She has steel-grey hair, blue eyes, a burn scar on her right shoulder and a fair complexion.

US Power Board Sets Date For N.Y. Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Federal Power Commission yesterday set Dec. 9 for a hearing on New York State's application to join with Ontario in construction of a big St. Lawrence River power project.

Construction of the project, which engineers estimate will yield more than 13,000,000,000 kilowatt hours of energy a year, was approved several days ago by the International Joint Commission.

New York's Power Authority, if successful in winning a licence from the power commission, will construct the American half of the project in the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence River, between Massena, N.Y., and Cornwall, Ont.

Canada has already named the Ontario Hydro-Electric Power Commission to undertake the Canadian half of the $500,000,000 project.

A power commission spokesman, announcing the date of the hearing, said these parties had entered petitions of protest or intervention:

Michigan Public Service Commission, St. Lawrence Project Conference, Aluminum Co. of America and a subsidiary, the St. Lawrence River Power Co., the Nation Coal Association, the National Rural and Electric Co-Operative Association (including 15 co-operatives in New York, New England, New Jersey and Pennsylvania), the United Mine Workers jointly with the Anthracite Institute, and the State of Vermont.

A commission official said he could not even guess when a decision might be reached, nor could he estimate how long the hearing itself will take.

Prepare For Election Garson Tells Liberals

"It has never been the practice of Liberal governments, except in the emergency of war, to hold office until the legal time limit of the five-year Parliamentary term has been reached," he said.

The legal deadline for an election is June 27, 1954. Prevailing opinion in Ottawa is that it will come next year.

"Hence, now is the time to begin preparing for the election whenever it may be held," Mr Garson said in an address prepared for a convention called to nominate a Liberal candidate in the riding of Peel.

Three Escape Death In Freak Car Crash

FORT COULONGE, Que. (CP)—Three men from Petawawa military camp narrowly escaped death early yesterday in a freak automobile accident.

The three, who escaped unhurt, were Maj. Alden Leslie, Cpl. Ralph Williams and Pte. Raymond Fazuckerley.

Their car was approaching the Coulonge River, a half mile north of this town 60 miles northwest of Ottawa, when it struck a sand pile. It flew through the air for almost 100 feet and landed in the crib work of a new bridge spanning the river.

Police said the driver missed a construction detour while travelling at high speed. The car almost crossed the river in its flight and landed on its four wheels in a tangle of steel beams and wooden concrete forms on the bridge.

C.C.F. Leader Urges Health Insurance Plan

VANCOUVER (CP)—Canada can afford a comprehensive plan of national health insurance M. J. Coldwell, C.C.F. leader, said last night.

Mr. Coldwell, whose party has been urging health insurance for years, said Canada is one of the few countries without it. Most countries with such plans had resources and natural incomes far below those of Canada.

"Yet in no instance," he said in a prepared speech, "have any of them found the cost more than the country could bear. Nor have any of them, once they instituted comprehensive health plans, reverted to the haphazard, inadequate private coverage such as they had before and such as we have in Canada today."

Pleads Guilty

TILLSONBURG (CP) — Roger Danley of Watford pleaded guilty yesterday to uttering five forged cheques totalling $224, and was remanded in custody for one week for sentence. Danley admitted forging the name of L. W. Wilson, Eden tobacco farmer who employed him for two months.

Gets Seven Years

ANDOVER, N.B. (CP)—Basil Wright, 40, charged with murdering Joseph Ferdinand Soucie, 28, was convicted last night on the lesser count of manslaughter and sentenced by Mr. Justice C. T. Richard to seven years in penitentiary. Soucie was shot July 27 following a quarrel.

Maharajah Agrees

NEW DELHI, India (Reuters)—Maharajah Sir Hari Singh of Kashmir has agreed to constitutional reforms which will reduce him to ruler in name only of the wealthy mountain state, reliable sources said Friday. The Maharajah has told the Indian government he will not contest the abolition of his family's 106-year hereditary rule providing he can keep his title, the sources said.

Howe Joins Industrialists On S. American Trade Tour

OTTAWA (CP)—For the first time in six years, a Canadian cabinet minister will go looking for more trade with Latin America.

The Trade Department announces that Trade Minister Howe will lead a group of Canadian industrialists on a five-week, 15,000-mile barnstorming tour of nine Latin-American countries next January.

Its aim is to consolidate and expand trade with those countries, which since 1938 has increased nearly 15 times. The mission will leave Jan. 5.

By the time it returns Feb. 10 it will have visited Brazil, Argentina, Uruguay, Venezuela, Colombia, the Dominican Republic, Haiti, Cuba and Mexico. An unofficial stop is also planned in Trinidad.

It won't be Mr. Howe's first visit to South America. As a commercial engineer, long before he went into politics 17 years ago, he planned and built some of Argentina's biggest grain elevators.

FIRST SINCE 1946

It will be the first ministerial mission to Latin America since Senator J. A. MacKinnon, then trade minister, visited the continent in 1946.

The Trade Department announcement noted that in the 13 years since 1938, total trade between Canada and the nine countries to be visited increased from $27,000,000 to $404,000,000 last year. Canada's exports jumped to $166,000,000 from $15,000,0 in that period, while imports multiplied to $238,000,000 from $12,000,000.

DISTINGUISHED PARTY

Canadian business men going on the trip include:

James W. Duncan, president of Massey-Harris Company, Toronto, representing also the Canadian Manufacturers' Association; Alex Gray, president of Gray-Bonney Tool Co. Ltd., Toronto, representing also the Canadian Exporters' Association; K. F. Wadsworth, president and general manager of Maple Leaf Milling Co., Limited, Toronto; D. W. Ambridge, president and general manager of Abitibi Power and Paper Co. Ltd., Toronto, and C. B. Davidson, secretary of the Canadian Wheat Board.

Socks Sergeant

FRANKLIN, Ind. (AP)—Judson Hendricks did what a lot of newly-discharged soldiers have dreamed of—he socked his former sergeant on the jaw. Sgt. Jack Meyer of Camp Atterbury thereupon filed assault charges. Judge Oral Barnett Friday fined Hendricks $35.80 and gave him a 30-day suspended sentence.

Ottawa Theatre Stages Four Canadian Plays

OTTAWA (CP)—The Ottawa Little Theatre Workshop, chief booster in a drive to build Canadian playwriting talent, has decided to sponsor a three-night stage run here next week, featuring the plays of four talented Canadian writers.

These are the winners in the workshop's 14th annual playwriting competition, a country-wide contest, carrying $225 in cash awards.

Mr. Harvey and Mr. Murray split the $75 second prize.

Third prize of $50 went to Mrs. Cadogan, with "Rise and Shine," a droll comedy dealing with two tardy humans on judgment day.

Airline Engineers Call Off Wage Strike

NEW YORK (AP)—Some 300 flight engineers yesterday called off their strike against United Airlines and headed back to work while a presidential board looks into the wage dispute.

For two days the strike tied up the company's DC-6s and Stratocruisers in eight cities.

William D. Kent, international president of the A.F.L. Flight Engineers International Association, said the union decided to end its strike because of appointment of the presidential board Thursday.

Jute For Wheat

NEW DELHI (CP)—A barter agreement signed between India and Argentina provided for exchange of 40,000 tons of Indian jute goods for an equivalent value in wheat. The wheat shipments from Argentina are expected to start after the new crop there in January.

Helpfulness And Compassion

By WILLIAM E. GILROY, D.D.

The "helps" in the early Christian Church, to whom the Apostle Paul refers in I. Corinthians 12: 28, were probably some who were particularly helpful toward fellow-Christians, or others, in need of some form of aid or encouragement.

But there is another form of helpfulness with a pronounced social aspect, in which "helps" are as greatly needed in our world of today as they were needed in that ancient day of the Church.

It is clear from various passages in the New Testament that, strange to say, there were two classes, or two attitudes, among those early Christians. To some their allegiance to Christ, and their place in the Church, meant giving all that they had. They were the pure and beautiful souls, that led men to exclaim: "Behold how these Christians love one another!"

But there were others (see II. Thessalonians 3: 10), who were in the Church for what they could get out of it. It seems strange that anyone should have joined a group like those early Christians except from faith and strong convictions, but apparently there were those, who finding Christians full of brotherly love and helpfulness, took advantage of the genuine Christians to loaf and expect others to keep them.

This situation evidently became so acute that Paul, himself a very independent-minded and self-supporting worker, came down with severity upon these grafters. He declared in no uncertain terms that if a man among them did not work, neither should he eat.

It was in the same spirit, and perhaps with a similar situation in mind, that, almost in the same breath, Paul declared (Galatians 6: 2 and 5) that Christians should fulfill the law of Christ by bearing one another's burdens, but also that "every man shall bear his own burden."

Some years ago an Englishman, William Ward, wrote a book entitled, "How Can I Help England?" Mr. Ward was a leader in the P.S.A. (Pleasant Sunday Afternoon) Movement, which held great "brotherhood" meetings for men in various cities of England and Canada. Mr. Ward took his

MAIN STREET TOPICS

CLOSED TUESDAY

All city and district schools and the Public Library will be closed all day Tuesday in observance of Armistice Day.

POPPY DAY TAGGERS

Taggers were on downtown streets early today selling poppies to shoppers and other pedestrians. Money raised from sale of the poppies will go into the welfare fund for needy veterans and their families. Anybody taking part in the Remembrance Day service at All Saints' Church on Sunday or in the parade on Tuesday is advised not to throw away his poppy.

NET RESULTS ON DUCKS

A duck trap set in Stoco Lake, Tweed during late August and early September by Lands and Forests personnel resulted in the catching of 13 specimens—Blacks, Mallards and Blue-winged Teal. It is estimated that 50,000 ducks are trapped, checked for disease by blood sampling and banded throughout Canada each year. Sportsmen are asked to return tags to government agencies so that migrating habits can be logged.

SIDESWIPE COLLISION

When he pulled over to the west side of Rubidge St. early today to let a northbound car go by, Leslie Willis, of 368 Welsh St., sideswiped a parked car, owned by C. A. Bowes of 127 Rubidge St. The right front and rear fenders of the Willis car were dented, and the right rear hub cap and rear fender of the Bowes car.

Labor Council To Hold First Meeting

The inaugural meeting of the Peterborough Trades and Labor Council (A.F.L.) will be in the library auditorium at 8 p.m. Monday.

John Kellythorne of Toronto, Trades and Labor Congress organizer, will present the new labor council with its charter from the Congress. A T.L.C. executive member will also be there for the ceremony.

There are now 14 A.F.L. unions in the council and when the organizational drive is finished the pro-tem officers hope to raise this total to 16 unions, representing some 600 workers in all.

A nominating committee will be elected to bring in a proposed slate of officers. Glenn Price of Local 248, International Typographical Union, is the interim president.

Fast Highway Job On 28 Nears End

One of the fastest construction jobs on the Apsley highway is underway on the Haultain link of Highway 28, with the end of the job expected by year's end. The work is taking place in a hilly, rocky section of the road about 5½ miles long. Harco Construction Co. started the job on July 4. Work is progressing 'round the clock, with superior and adequate equipment. Portable floodlighting gear enables the large machines to keep operating continually. At present 100 men, most of them district workers, are employed. They work two 10-hour shifts with four hours off for meals.

Two quarry drills punch 40-foot holes in stubborn rock cuts for blasting operations. There are seven end dump trucks, four belly dump trucks and two side dumpers on the job which haul 15 yards of earth and rock fill each. Other equipment includes three compressors, three power shovels and two welding machines.

Field office officials have special praise for the jackhammer crews that were drawn from Burleigh labor sources. "They are good men," was the comment.

NEW BRIDGE

The part of the job where most evident changes will occur is the deep valley that crosses Eel's Creek at Haultain Post Office. The sweeping bend to the west is being eliminated and the new roadbed driven across the valley floor. A pile-driven bridge is now being erected 25 feet above the creek bed and a great portion of the 180,000 cubic yards of rock that will eventually be moved will go to fill the large depression.

The highway section job is a small one compared to some that Harco have handled. They moved a million cubic feet of rock at the Des Joachims dam site in six months during its construction period. At the present time their largest commitment is a 150-mile railway line from Sherritt-Gordon to Lynn Lake in Northern Manitoba.

The Harco contract will end near the Haultain Tourist Park and tenders will be called for work on the highway section from there to Apsley, possibly in the spring. A new bridge will cross the creek at the park and will be located west of the present narrow one.

All contractors on highway work of this nature bring their work to the fine-grading stage. The Department of Highways place cold asphalt top to finish the work as they have done on the piece from Burleigh to Haultain and the section from Apsley to Paudash Lake.

Ratepayers Paid $2,494,767 City Treasurer

Nearly 92 per cent of Peterborough's 1952 tax roll was paid into the city treasury up to October 30, City Treasurer A. S. Couper, informed the Examiner today.

Taxpayers' obligation to their own community amounted to $2,712,954.77, and the total paid to the end of October was $2,494,767.22, or 91.96 per cent.

Comparatively with last year, the 1951 tax roll was $2,218,234.03, and collections at the City Hall to the end of October amounted to $2,051,627.34, or 92.49 per cent.

"Considering the increased amount that was due, I think the ratepayers have done pretty well," Mr. Couper remarked.

MUNICIPAL BAROMETER

The treasury statement at the end of the period of instalment payments of taxes is a sort of municipal barometer of results of the planning that was begun by the city council last February. Basis of the tax roll was determined by the assessment department in 1951. Then, the council applied itself to the routine of estimating revenues and expenditure, and from that net the tax rate was simple arithmetic. Time of payment of taxes was also set down in schedule, and from there on, the response was a municipal duty of the citizens.

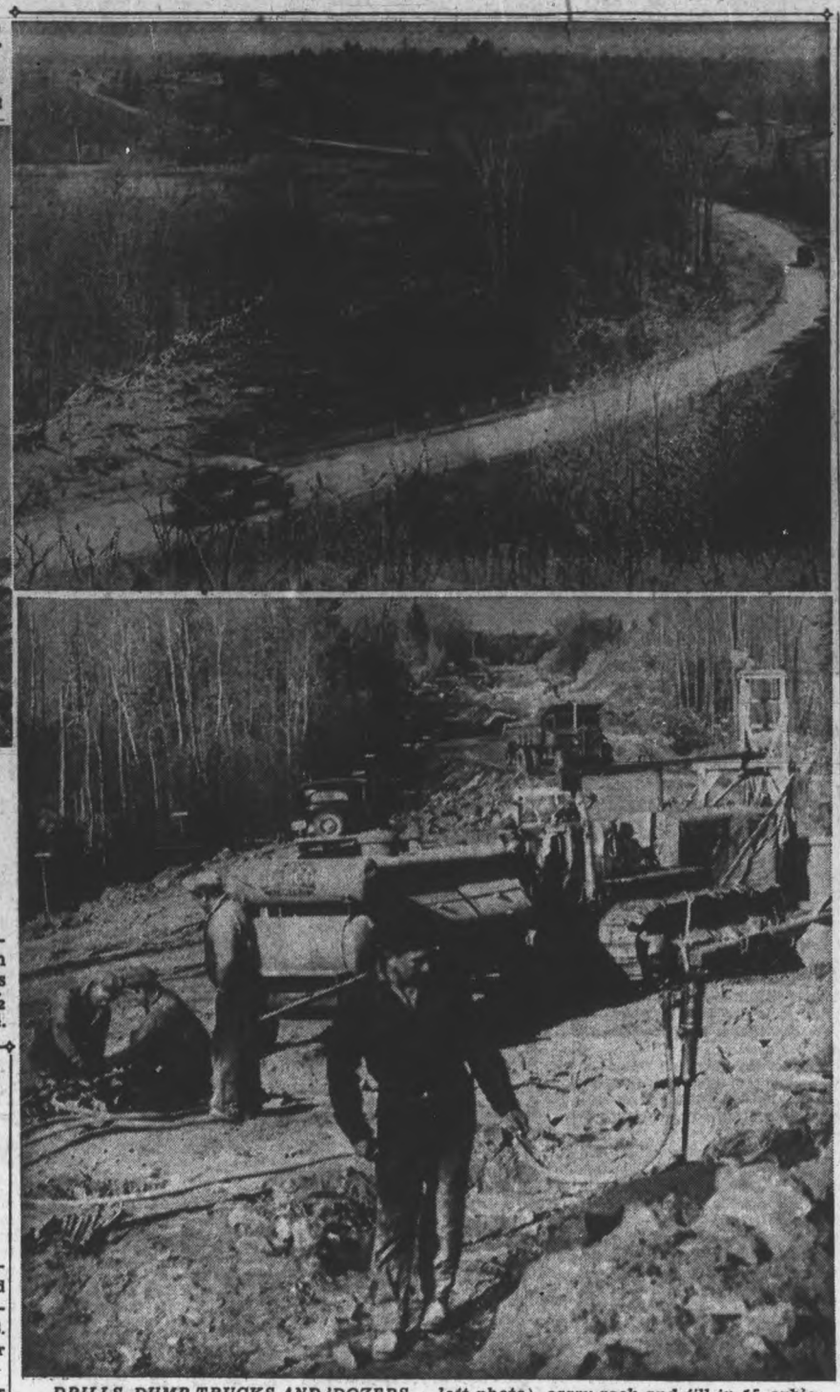
The total of the tax roll, monies due and payable by the property owners and others who are leviable, was $2,712,954.77, which was an increase of $494,720.74 over the total of the 1951 roll of $2,218,234.03.



Total collections by the treasury department amounted to $2,494,767.22 at the end of October this year, an increase of $443,139.88 over the corresponding taxes collected in 1951, amounting to $2,051,627.34.

Post-date payments will continue to be paid into the treasury, and at the end of the year Mr. Couper prepares a statement of this phase of the city's financing for the information of the council.

One fact is that the total payments to the end of October were more was paid.

Incorrect Spelling

CHATHAM, England (CP)—An addition to the naval war memorial, unveiled this month by the Duke of Edinburgh, has the incorrect spelling "Phillipines." The [illegible] sible.

DRILLS, DUMP TRUCKS AND 'DOZERS are being pushed 'round the clock by a 100-man construction crew, most of them of Peterborough district, to complete 5½ miles of road work on Highway 28 in the Haultain-Eel's Creek section. The job will be finished by the end of December, engineers hope. A fleet of mammoth trucks (upper left photo), carry rock and fill in 15-cubic-yard loads. Their greatest job will be to fill the valley floor road bed at Haultain (top right photo), which will eliminate the S-bend over the creek. Drilling and blasting several rock cuts (lower right photo), will straighten the road still more.—(Examiner Staff Photos)

Say It Isn't So

Radio Announcer Trips On Ancient Newspaper Gag

By DAVE WHITE

It was with a sharp pang of disillusionment that I learned that my old friend and boozin' companion, Paul Reid of C.H.E.X., is giving out false information to his listening public.

I don't blame Paul, though. He's not too well acquainted with bathtubs—or for that matter, soap, water and the rest of the impedimenta that goes with them.

What's this hullabaloo all about, you ask?

Well—frankly, Paul has fallen a victim to one of the greatest journalistic hoaxes of all time. That is the "bathtub hoax," a purported history of the bathtub in the United States. It first appeared as a light article in the New York Evening Mail of December 28, 1917.

MADE PUBLIC DENIAL

Time after time, Mencken, laughing fit to kill at the credulity of the human animal, has publicly announced that his history of the bathtub is as phony as a nine-dollar bill. But it doesn't make any difference. Despite periodic exposures the hoax has survived 35 years and it probably will continue to live a vigorous life, long after Mencken — unbeliever that he is — has been snatched to Satan's bosom.

Enter my favorite radio announcer: Uncle Paul.

The other day, while casting about for a suitable question for his "Dialing With Dollars" radio program, he turned to his faithful standby—a dog-eared tome entitled "Ten Thousand Answers to Questions," by one Frederic J. Haskin, who modestly bills himself as the director of the "world's largest information bureau."

"Aha," said Paul. "A perfect question to ask the eager housewives":

"Who was the first man in the United States to instal a bathtub in his home?"

According to the learned Haskin it was Adam Thompson, a Cincinnati grain merchant who made the first tub of sheet lead and Nicaragua mahogany. That was back in 1842 after Thompson had learned the habit from the apparently not-so-dirty British.

The account goes on to tell how Thompson installed the 1,750-pound tub, after first reinforcing the floor, and the water was pumped from a backyard well by six sweating Negroes. Newspapers got hold of the story and a controversy raged.

PURE NONSENSE

The original article from which Haskin borrowed so seriously was 100 per cent Mencken and, of course, 100 per cent nonsense.

Mencken related that "on the one hand (the bathtub) was denounced as an epicurean and obnoxious toy from England, designed to corrupt the democratic simplicity of the Republic, and on the other hand it was attacked by the medical faculty as dangerous to health and a certain inviter of 'phthisic, rheumatic fevers, inflamation of the lungs and the whole category of zymotic diseases'."

The Baltimore sage stuffed the whole account so full of plausible details, irrelevant anecdotes and precise dates that it seemed like a scholarly work of research and a contribution to Americana. And as there were no known records of the first bathtub in the United States, there was nobody to come forward amid the general excitement of 1917 to denounce the Mencken article as a fake.

Thirty-five years later, and still chuckling over the hoax, Mencken says: "It was taken gravely by a great many other newspapers, and presently made its way into medical literature and into standard reference books. It had, of course, no truth in it whatsoever . . . Scarcely a month goes by that I do not find the substance of it reprinted, not as foolishness but as a fact, and not only in newspapers but in official documents and other works of the highest pretensions."

HOAX LIVES ON

So, despite Mencken's confessions that his work is a fraud and [illegible] from [illegible] hoax" lives on. Of such stuff is history made.

In short, then, my old and trusted friend Paul Reid has pulled a bit of a rock. There never was any such Adam Thompson. And the poor housewives, pounding their foreheads with regret that they don't know this pseudo-historical figure and the answer to the $11 question, are doing it all in vain.

Moreover, the answer is pasted on the wall, for all to see, at the Peterborough Public Library (Main Branch). Must we tell Chief Librarian Bill Graff that his honored institution is disseminating false information to the trusting public?

Now why do I go to all this trouble with this story? It's with no meanness of spirit, I assure you.

Some people might say I was only trying to get even with Paul and his C.H.E.X. gang who whipped the Examiner gang 16 to 3 in a shameful baseball game last summer. (I didn't even connect for a loud foul ball.)

Others might say I was trying to get even for another embarassing incident last summer. That was when Paul and I went to his home sometime after midnight—both of us flushed with good

Civic Candidates Outline Plans

Candidates for municipal office will have the opportunity, or the obligation whichever way they look at it, to speak to city voters at a candidates' meeting again this year Nov. 25.

The meeting is being sponsored by the Study Group on Civic Affairs for the third time in the committee room of the city hall during the week before civic elections Dec. 1.

Purpose of the study group in its own words is:

"Our group wishes to give the citizens of Peterborough the opportunity of hearing the candidates for the offices of mayor, council, board of education and utilities commission and, also of asking questions on current municipal problems if they so desire."

Every voter is welcome to attend the meeting to hear or ask questions.

Mayor Hugh Waddell has announced that he will seek a second term. Five men, all of them with experience on the council, have said they will be aldermanic candidates.

Three of them are aldermen just completing terms on the council. They are Harold T. Rehill, Arthur B. Burrows and William J. Beggs. The two other men have had experience on councils before: Norman Graham and Fred T. Tuggey.

[illegible] nounced he will run again and Mrs. Blake Bell is expected to run. Two others, Frank Jobbitt and Dr. Ralph C. Honey have said they are retiring.

Gordon S. Matthews, chairman of the Public Utilities Commission and a commissioner for the past 27 years, said he intends to run again. His three-year term expires this year.

"The work the commission has been doing has been with the view of seeing Peterborough grow to a city of 60,000," he said. "I think it's going to take a big step in that direction during the next three years and I'd like to see it."

ELECTION DAY

That moves the [illegible] of nominations back to F[illegible] November 21, beginning at [illegible]m. in the general committee room at the City Hall.

The expiring terms for which nominations will be received by City Clerk Outram are: for mayor, elected for one year; five aldermen, elected for two years; four trustees of the Board of Education, elected for two years; and one member of the Utilities Commission, elected for three years.

Careless Loggers

At Deputy Forestry Headquarters, Weslemkoon Lake, some beavers did their government protectors a mean trick by dropping a 14-inch poplar tree neatly across the mid-section of a moored boat. The boat was smashed beyond repair.

Icy Pavement Blamed In 2 Accidents

Slippery roads caused by freezing rain and snow are blamed for two car accidents in the Peterborough district early today.

WHEELS TORN OFF

The vehicle then turned over on its left side. Both front wheels were torn away, the roof, fenders, and left side were dented. Damage is estimated at $400.

Dunbar and his three passengers escaped injury.

The accident, which occurred about 5:45 a.m. while it was still snowing, was investigated by O.P.P. Constable John Cawood.

About 1:45 a.m. William McIntosh, 51, of R.R. 3, Peterborough, was driving his 1949-model coupe north on the Buckhorn Rd. He told O.P.P. Constable Wallace Mohns that he was about 4½ miles south of Buckhorn when he was blinded by the lights of an oncoming car.

He pulled over to the right but his car went out of control and rolled over in the east ditch, coming to rest on its right side.

McIntosh was not injured but the car received $350 damage.

T.B. Association Mails 1,500,000 Xmas Seals

More than a million and a half Christmas seals will be sent out by the Peterborough County Tuberculosis Association Nov. 17.

James Heffernan, president of the association said today that the Christmas seal objective for this year had been set at $9,000.

The seals, as in former years, will be sent out with covering letters. The association's mailing list includes 8,000 names. Each letter will contain 200 seals.

Part of the funds from the 1952 seal sales will be used to pay for the mass X-ray survey which is now taking place in the city. The county survey was completed in October.

Bancroft Man Killed Near Brandon

Ross Thompson Rolls Car In Ditch Driving Alone

Ross Thompson, 25, of Bancroft was killed Thursday night in a car accident, 50 miles northwest of Brandon, Manitoba.

Details of the accident are lacking, but Royal Canadian Mounted Police say they believe Thompson was alone in the car when it swerved after striking a ridge of gravel. The car went out of control and rolled into a ditch near Basswood.

THROWN CLEAR

Thompson was apparently thrown clear of the wreckage and he was found later by passing motorists.

There were no witnesses.

Thompson, as was his custom for the past few years, had gone out west to do farm work during the spring and summer. In the autumn he normally returned to Bancroft.

A brother, Elmer Thompson of Peterborough, said it is probable that he was on his way home when the fatal accident occurred.

He was born in Bridgetown, N.J. and was educated in Kirkland Lake. Later the family moved to Bancroft where they farmed.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed.

Bathroom Dates Your House Why Not Rejuvenate It?

No part of the interior of your home dates it so definitely as does the bathroom. In fixtures and arrangement, in decorations and accessories, bathroom styles have changed tremendously in the past few years.

The bathroom of an earlier day had the same walls and floor as the rest of the home, with the fixtures set where the plumbers found it easiest to put them. A modern bathroom on the other hand gives the impression of having been made and installed in one piece. Its relation to each other, its moisture-proof walls and floor are so exposed that every part can be reached for easy cleaning; there is no waste space, and, in addition, the room is as brilliant and colorful as the owner may desire.

In the bathroom of a modern home the tub is so completely built-in that it becomes part of the walls and floor. It is supplemented by a shower, either on a wall at one end of the tub, or in a stall of its own. The tank of the toilet is low and made of porcelain or enamel, the seat is of the modern sanitary type, white or in color; the lavatory has ample space around the bowl, the floor and walls are waterproofed and, as a final touch of modernity, are decorated with quite as much character and taste as the living-room or any part of the home.

COSTLY TO MOVE

In planning a rearrangement of the fixtures, it should be remembered that the toilet must be directly above the wastepipe or nearly so, and that to move it will involve moving the wastepipe also. This is so expensive that the toilet should probably be left where it is. The tub and lavatory on the other hand, can be set where desired, for their wastepipes need so little slope that the depth of the floor beams will be sufficient.

Be sure to change your old toilet seat to one of the sanitary modern type, which is attractive as well. They are surprisingly inexpensive and easy to install. They come in a variety of shades.

You will have a shower, of course, in your rejuvenated bathroom, probably in connection with the tub. If your tub is set into a corner you will need a curtain around its sides. A recessed tub requires this protection only in front. The modern shower has a nozzle which is small and easily adjustable. When set so that the spray strikes no higher than the neck, the hair remains dry.

In the selection of shower curtains you will no longer be confined to the old white duck. Every variety of fabric, from linen and chintz, to taffeta, satin, and crepe de chine, has been made waterproof.

MATERIAL FOR FLOOR

There are many choices in the material for the floor, at a wide range in price. Linoleum, rubber, cork, and similar materials are laid on building felt, which is cemented to the floor and to which they in turn are cemented, waterproof cement being used and heavy pressure applied to insure tight contact. It is always advisable to join the floor to the walls with sections that form a baseboard and are curved at the angle for easy cleaning. If clay tiles are used, the finished floor and the subfloor must be removed to permit laying a cement foundation between the beams. Composition or mastic floorings are laid on metal lath stapled to the finish floor, or if additional thickness is too great, to the subfloor.

The effect of tiling can be had at less cost with wallboard or plasterboard scored in tile size, or an excellent asbestos wainscot "tiling" already enameled, which is cemented in position. This "tiling" can be installed at very small expense by the owner and it is most attractive for your home.

Papered walls for the bathroom, with or without a tile wainscot, are coming back in favour in some homes. There is now a great variety of designs in wallpapers that are waterproofed during manufacture.

It is well to remember that a bathroom can be installed at least expense when it is placed next to existing plumbing or in line with it, upstairs or downstairs, for it can then utilize the same pipes.

HOUSE NO. 717—First appearances are often deceiving—from the street the elevation of this home looks for all the world like a one-storey dwelling. Actually, this fine home boasts two full floors. Built on a sloping site, the architect-owner has packed a wealth of added convenience into the lower level. Grey stock brick was used for the walls, with clapboard gables painted cream and a red roof. Interior basement walls are of concrete block. Numerous built-in features are included—a few: a powder bar in the bedroom, bookshelves in the recreation room, bins and shelving in the fruit storage room, etc. Cubic contents: approximately 19,000 cubic feet. Millbrook Alters Hose Couplings

MILLBROOK (ENS) — Couplings for fire hose in the village have been altered to bring them into line with standards set by the Ontario fire marshal's office.

This would make fire equipment of small and large municipalities uniform and interchangeable. If Millbrook's brigade were called to a fire in a neighboring town or village, their equipment could be used.

The interim subsidy of $867.02 was received from the Department of Highways. This money is for work on the main street in Millbrook (King St.), on which twice that amount plus 20 per cent will be spent. It is also to cover repairs of side streets.

A letter was received by Dr. M. E. Hobbs, Millbrook, member on the Durham Area High School Board. At the first of the year he resigned, but was persuaded to return to finish his term. The letter reminded council that his term expired at the end of this year.

In view of the excellent work Dr. Hobbs has done, council is expected to persuade him to again take on the job.

Accounts totalling $805.18 were ordered paid, major items being: $110.26 to the hydro, and 327.65 for salaries.

Hunter, 51, Stricken At Lake St. Peter Camp

BANCROFT (ENS).—William D. Campbell died suddenly at Lake St. Peter early Wednesday morning. The 51-year-old hunter, a resident of R.R. 3, Stirling, died suddenly in his sleep at his cottage where he was for the annual deer hunt.

The attending physician, Dr. McVicker, Deseronto, pronounced death due to coronary thrombosis. Mrs. Campbell, sleeping beside her husband, was awakened by his cries for help. Luckily Dr. McVicker was at his nearby hunt camp and was summoned to the cottage to treat the sick man. Mr. Campbell was dead when the doctor arrived. The body was removed to Bancroft from where it was taken to Stirling. Funeral arrangements are not known at this time.

Airfield Mutiny In Eastern Germany

BERLIN (AP)—The West Berlin newspaper Der Tag reported today that a mutiny broke out a month ago on a Soviet airfield in East Germany after a drunken captain mistreated a soldier.

Der Tag, which usually has good sources in the Russian zone, said the incident occurred at Finow, about 20 miles north of Berlin, on Oct. 6.

The rioting started when the mistreated soldier shot the captain, Der Tag said. Secret police were called in to stop it, the report said, adding that more than 30 soldiers, including the airfield commander, were arrested.

How To Save Fuel, Provide More Warmth In House

Hints to home owners on how to save fuel and provide more warmth in the house have been provided by the Toronto Better Business Bureau. They are: (1) insulate the attic floor. If snow melts on the roof during real cold weather your fuel helps provide the heat that melts it. (2) Storm windows will save up to 20 per cent. of the fuel bill if they fit snugly. If windows open too easily they probably need weather-stripping. Caulking the space between the brickwork of the house and the window or door frame costs little, but is an important fuel saver. (3) During the evening and night keep shades, venetian blinds and draperies drawn. This will save as much as 10 per cent. of your fuel bill. (4) In mild weather reduce your thermostat at night from 10 to 15 degrees, and in cold weather from five to seven degrees. (Other authorities suggest that the thermonstat should be kept at a constant setting.) (5) Cinders should be used for banking a fire. You may save 15 per cent. of your coal bill. (6) Keeping the house too warm wastes fuel. For every degree over 68° coal consumption is increased three per cent. If a house is kept at 68 degrees instead of 76 degrees, a fuel saving of 24 per cent. can be realized. (7) A thorough cleaning of the heating plant, including removal of scale from heating surfaces and cleaning the chimney and smoke-pipes will mean more heat from the unit.

Know Your Basic Maintenance Duties

By MR. FIX
Distributed by NEA Service

There are a few basic maintenance duties for owners of new and old homes alike. They are mostly of the seasonal persuasion.

Here is an annual check list of things to be done to and for your house:

In the winter repair and paint lawn furniture and screens. Sharpen lawn mower and other yard tools so they'll be in readiness for spring and summer. Then sit by a fire and relax—when you aren't shoveling snow, that is.

In the spring clean gutters and downspouts. Seed and feed the lawn. Examine exterior paint for condensation and other damage. Take down storm doors and windows and install screens for summer.

In the summer check and repair the heating system. Do the necessary interior painting and decorating.

In the fall reseed the lawn if necessary. Take down screens and store them vertically in a dry location. Install storm windows and doors. Plant bulbs for spring blossoms. Rake leaves and save them for compost. Cover perennials for winter protection.

You will need some fundamental tools and supplies for everyday use in keeping your home in tip-top shape.

Home builders recommend that a good kit contains utility wrench, size 16; cards of assorted faucet washers; pair of standard hand pliers; medium-sized screwdriver; claw hammer; good keyhole saw; box of assorted wire nails and brads; sturdy penknife and a roll of friction tape.

You should also have a box of assorted fuses. Note the type and number of fuses now in use in your home and buy the same replacement types. Never use a fuse larger than 30 amps.

A newly planted lawn and recently transplanted shrubs must be watered. Immediate and constant care of any newly transplanted shrubbery is necessary to its successful growth.

Termites are found in many parts of the country, and it is easier to bar termites from new homes than it is to rid an old house of them.

In the spring of the year, look for possible dead remnants of the winged insect, search the side of basement walls and piers for the earthen tubes which termites build as tunnels, and, finally, stick a penknife blade into the wood to see if it penetrates easily. If you suspect the presence of termites, consult a professional exterminator.

If your house has a septic tank for disposal of sewage, have your builder point out the location of the tank and the drainage field.

All septic tank installations are required to meet the standards of the local health official, hence they require little if any maintenance.

Every three to five years the sludge should be removed from the tank and the tank cleaned.

NEW HOME OWNERS must meet and deal with both seasonal and emergency maintenance tasks and should be equipped for them.

Call Parents' Deaths Murder-Suicide

TIMMINS (CP) — The bodies of Mr. and Mrs. George Tartachuck, both 57, were found yesterday in their apartment here. Police described the deaths as murder and suicide.

Police said they believe Tartachuck shot his wife with a rifle and that she fled to the bathroom, locking the door behind her. The man then smashed a hole in the door and shot her a second time before turning the gun on himself, officers added.

The bodies were found by a married daughter when she returned from shopping.

A son Michael lives in Toronto.

Canada To Buy U.S. Jets For New Carrier

OTTAWA (CP)—The navy is expected to turn to the United States for the jet planes to equip Canada's new $30,000,000 aircraft carrier when she comes into service in 1956.

Canada has no plans for producing them herself as she has for the R.C.A.F. Nor has she any plans for trying to adapt the two types of jets being built in Canada to navy use, although a role as a navy fighter has been mentioned as a possibility for the CF-100 Canuck in the past.

A more immediate problem exercising the imaginations of the navy and of the cabinet itself is what to name the new kingpin of the fleet.

WON'T NAME HER CANADA

A flock of suggestions have been made but only one thing looks certain now. She's not likely to be named the Canada, likely as that might seem when the fleet's other two big—but smaller—ships are called the Ontario and Quebec. Both are cruisers.

The reason is that it wouldn't sound very good if melancholy wartime headlines ever proclaimed "Canada sunk."

So it will have to be something else.

The Royal Navy calls her the Powerful even though she is only a skeleton in a shipyard That won't be her Canadian name.

It will be something more Canadian, if the experts now searching their minds and authoritative writings can come up with one the cabinet will buy.

Until the new ship comes into service, the navy will continue to rely on the borrowed British carrier, the Magnificent.

To Tour West

TORONTO (CP)—Health Minister Phillips of Ontario, Harvey Cotnam, provincial auditor, and Dr. R. C. Montgomery, director of the health department's Ontario hospitals division leave Toronto Tuesday for a tour of the western provinces to study health services.

QUEEN ELIZABETH acknowledges the applause of theatregoers as she stands in the flower-bedecked Royal box at the London Palladium, where she attended a Royal Command variety performance this week. In the background are Princess Margaret and the Duke of Edinburgh.

Balmoral Castle Royal Haven For 100 Years

WASHINGTON — One hundred years ago Queen Victoria's Prince Consort, Albert, bought an estate, Balmoral Castle, in Scotland's Central Highlands, and started a royal fashion which continues to this day.

The modest beginning was Victoria's wish for a Scottish home for her family in a stimulating climate. On previous visits she had learned to love the Highlands and Highlanders.

QUEEN GOES NORTH

Five British sovereigns have returned through the years to holiday at Balmoral: Edward VII, George V, Edward VIII, and the late George VI, who said, "A day among the heather is worth all the medicine in the world." This fall, Elizabeth II, a young queen like the first, went north as Balmoral's sixth royal laird.

Situated on the eastern slopes of the Highlands on the River Dee, the country around Balmoral has some of the finest weather and scenery in Scotland. There are streams thick with trout and salmon and superb deer-hunting in the forests.

Prince Albert and his sons became enthusiastic sportsmen. The Prince of Wales, later Edward VII, was especially proud of once shooting a deer which proved larger than any brought down "by dear Papa."

Nobility soon followed royalty to the Highlands and more and more land was sold or rented for sporting estates to people from England, southern Scotland and abroad.

RECTANGULAR KEEP-TOWER

The royal family's first home on their own estate was the old 16th century castle, a simple rectangular keep-tower with a few additions and a long, sometimes rebel Jacobite, history. It was later torn down.

The present Balmoral Castle was built in 1856 and designed in Scots baronial style by Prince Albert himself working with an Aberdeen architect. Rather formidable on the outside with its white granite, castellated walls and 80-foot tower, the castle was destined to become the most comfortable of royal homes.

Money to build it was willed to Queen Victoria by a wealthy subject who, while doubling his inheritance, had slept on the floor of his bare home. He begged Queen Victoria to accept the gift "for her own use and benefit."

Taxes in 1952 do not encourage building of baronial castles or manor houses, but a high proportion of the total area of Scotland is still deer forest, and the "Scottish Season" in late summer is still on British calendars.

Insulation Of Your Home Becomes Modern Essential

For comfortable living, mineral wool insulation to reduce the passage of heat from warmer to cooler spaces is almost as essential in a modern house as heat and ventilation. Many homes built before 1930 were not insulated at all or were provided with only a minimum of protection, in the form of weatherstripping or storm windows and storm doors. Such houses are likely to be unnecessarily cold, drafty, and costly to heat in winter; in summer they may be unpleasantly hot. Properly installed insulation can largely correct these faults.

Winter protection against heat loss for houses involves two groups of materials: the first group includes calking (or caulking), weather stripping, storm windows and storm doors; these materials can be installed in any house, new or old. The second group consists of insulation, usually mineral wool, which can be put in the attic or under the roof and under the floor over unheated spaces of an old house, and also in existing walls.

IMPROVES COMFORT

Insulation not only increases heating economy, it also improves the comfort of a house. People who live in uninsulated houses often find that they are chilly on cold days even though the temperature indoors is a normal 70 to 72 degrees Fahrenheit. This is because the inner surfaces of the uninsulated walls, exposed ceilings, and floors over unheated spaces are likely to be cold on cold days, despite adequate inside air temperatures. Since the body loses heat by radiation to the cold inner surfaces of the room, the feeling of being cold results.

Drafts caused by cold air currents in flimsily built houses are another source of discomfort, as well as a drain on fuel. If the occupants of a house feel cold when the indoor temperature is 70 to 72 degrees, they'll probably push the thermostat setting up until they're comfortable—perhaps until the thermometer reads 78 to 80 degrees.

The average distribution of heat losses in a completely uninsulated house has been estimated to be roughly as follows:

Through walls and ceilings or roofs, 40 to 65 per cent.

Through windows and doors, 20 to 35 per cent.

Through cracks around window and door frames and other air leaks, 10 to 30 per cent.

Through floors over unheated cellars or crawl pipes, 8 to 10 per cent.

Pick 2 Speakers To Compete In District Finals

MILLBROOK (ENS).—At the finals of the Durham county public speaking contest held in Dr. Power's School auditoruim on Wednesday night, the two speakers chosen to go on to the district finals were Malcolm Jordan of Central school, Bowmanville, and Helen Ingham of Millbrook public school.

Malcolm was presented with the Durham Club of Toronto shield by the president, O. J. Henderson, given for first place, and Helen with the Bowmanville Lions Club shield by Russell Osborne for second. Both will compete in Havelock November 14th. All ten contestants, twice winners in their own parts of the county, were given silver cups, presented by Mr. Nicholls of the Port Hope Lions Club.

There were eight girls competing and two boys. Judges were three men teachers from the staff of the Cobourg public schools. The other speakers were: Gladys Ferguson of Welcome (Steel); Gloria Brent, S.S. 10, Darlington (The First Morgan Horse); Stella Bojeczko, S.S. 10, Hope, (Courage); Roy Jones, Boys' Training School, Bowmanville (Tolerance); Muriel Hendsby, S.S. 3 Manvers, (Communication); Helen Marston, Central School, Port Hope (Canada's Place in the British Commonwealth of Nations); Margaret Rankine, S.S. 21, Darlington (Beethoven); Carol Watters, Dr. Power's School, Port Hope, (Sir Ernest MacMillan).

Musical numbers were supplied by pupils of Mr. Stanley, supervisor of music for Port Hope schools. Jane Bird gave a vocal solo, Carl Rowe one on the piano, and there were choruses by Port Hope pupils.

C. R. Carveth of Newcastle acted as chairman. Mr. Carleton, school inspector, explained the system of marking and gave the judges' decision.

Refreshments were served to the contestants, their parents, teachers, and those making presentations.

Bensfort W.A. Hears Report On Conference

BAILIEBORO (ENS). — The Woman's Association of Bensfort United Church held their November meeting at the home of Mrs. Herb. Perrin on Tuesday afternoon.

The devotional part of the program was taken by Mrs. W. C. Dawson and Mrs. Allen Dawson. Readings were given by Mrs. Lorne Harris, Mrs. John Nurse and Mrs. Russell Crews. Mrs. Charles Barnard gave a report on the Bay of Quinte Conference of the Woman's Association held at Foxboro recently. Plans were discussed for the bazaar and supper which are being held on November 21.

It was decided to send $125 to the Women's Missionary Society.

Baby Band, Mothers Visit Roseneath WMS

ROSENEATH (ENS) —Twenty children and their mothers were guests of the United Church W.M.S. on Wednesday afternoon when they entertained members of the Baby Band and their mothers.

Mrs. Isabel Brown, Baby Band Superintendent, welcomed the guests and presided over the meeting with Mrs. C. W. Varcoe as pianist. Children's hymns were sung.

Mrs. Lorne Thackeray gave the scripture reading.

Mrs. J. N. Lovelace, W.M.S. president, told the children a story of missionary work in Africa and also led in prayer.

The Rev. R. J. Wheeler was guest speaker and chose as his subject, "Child's Relationship to the Church".

The following program was presented by the children: A vocal chorus, "Wind the Bobbin" by Bonnie Duff, Audrey Coyle, Gayle Thackeray, Glenn Carew and Martin Carew. Bonnie Duff gave a reading; Karen and Marsha Halstead contributed a vocal duet; Gayle Thackeray recited; A chorus by all the children, "Jesus Loves Me".

Mrs. J. R. Wheeler spoke of the children's work done in their other previous charges

Mrs. Lorne Thackeray, on behalf of the mothers, expressed her appreciation to the members of the W.M.S. for their hospitality.

HMCS Nootka To Dock Home By Christmas

OTTAWA (CP)—Fresh from effective action, the Canadian destroyer Nootka is returning home to her Halifax base and will be there by Christmas.

Naval headquarters announced yesterday that the Nootka, after nearly a year on her second tour of duty in Korea, is due in Halifax Dec. 17. Under Cmdr. R. N. Steele of Rothesay, N. B., she will return by Singapore and the Suez Canal.

The Nootka has been relieved by H.M.C.S. Haida, which will keep the Canadian naval complement in the Korean theatre to three destroyers. The others are the Crusader and the Iroquois.

W. J. Cottrell Heads Marmora Bible Group

MARMORA (ENS)—W. J. Cottrell was re-elected president of Marmora Branch of the Upper Canada Bible Society at their annual meeting held in the town hall Thursday evening before a small attendance.

Also elected were Mrs. J. R. Barton as secretary and Louis Green as treasurer. Completing the executive are the following: Honorary presidents, Canon J. M. Brownie, the Revs. K. J. Crawford, G. H. Bache, A. B. Moffatt and D. Routly. The Rev. H. Egerton Young presided at the election, following which, as field secretary of the society, he gave an address on the growth of the society in the 148 years of its history. He also described the objectives of the Jubilee Advancement Movement which marks the 150th anniversary of the society and showed a sound film, "Bible on the Table."

The executive will be called together in a few days to arrange for the annual canvass of the district.

Galt Congratulated For Paying Taxes

GALT (CP)—Galt residents were congratulated today for early payment of taxes.

W. T. Orr, deputy minister of the provincial department of municipal affairs, said that citizens here have paid 95 per cent of the tax levy. The final instalment was due Nov. 3.

Mr. Orr said it is not the department's policy to single out [illegible] taxes by the due date is indeed an excellent record."

Girls' Mission Circle Discusses Fellowship

BETHANY (ENS)—The Teen Age Girls' Mission Circle of the United Church met at the home of Mrs. T. J. Jackson. The president, Miss Joan Bristow, conducted the worship service, the theme being "Fellowship In Release From Fear". Miss Janet Bigelow read the scripture lesson and Miss Grace Bigelow read the story of an African leper and his christian faith.

Mrs. Jackson was in charge of the study period, telling of the life of Dr. Aggrey, who became a great African educator, later coming to the United States where he did much to help white men and black to understand each other. Dr. Aggrey often said he was glad he was black because he realized that God had something to do through him. Continuing Mrs. Jackson told of the great campaign of Dr. Laubrech against illiteracy; the African thirst for education and through this to learn of Christ and gain their freedom from old fears and superstitions.

Open Fall Helps Farmer, Water Short

The weekly report of the Ontario Department of Agriculture looks like a field after a combine has gone over it. Not much left. Elgin had five inches of snow last week, and more of it fell in Lambton. It melted away, dampening the last fields for plowing.

Open weather this fall has enabled farmers to get a great deal of work done, but the absence of rain has let the wells run dry. In Peel some farmers are drawing water for their livestock.

Halton says: "On many farms the water situation is serious and many folks are purchasing water." Huron reports "a definite shortage of water." Welland's wells "are going dry and plowing has had to be discontinued on most lands."

There are many green fields of fall wheat, but top growth is inclined to be short and light.

Northumberland says: "It has been an excellent fall, and seldom has the work been handled more rapidly."

Fined For Dance

OSHAWA (CP)—Albert Hardie, 32, yesterday was fined $25 and costs or 10 days in jail for operating a dance on Sunday. Hardie, sponsor of the Greater Oshawa Youth Club, told the court at a previous hearing he didn't feel that it was an offence to conduct a dance as other recreational facilities such as golf were available Sundays to Oshawa residents. His father paid the fine. Hardie said he will appeal the judgment and sentence.

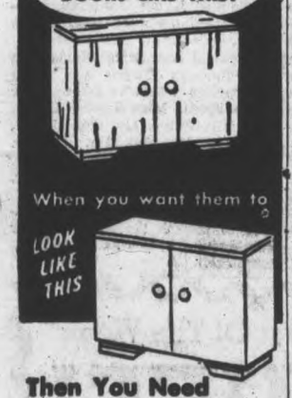
Big Harbor Project

SARNIA (CP)—Tentative plans for a big, long-range harbor installation program that might cost as much as $15,000,000 were approved yesterday by Sarnia Harbor Committee and passed on to the federal department of works for consideration. If the plans are carried out, three concrete piers with a combined length of 4,850 feet would jut into Sarnia bay from the existing government pier.

Traffic Fatality

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. Joseph White, 58, a Crediton district woman who was victim of a city traffic accident four days ago, died yesterday in St. Joseph's Hospital. She was struck by a pickup truck driven by 16-year-old Don Fortey while crossing a street last Monday.

Insulation Brings Comfort To Your Home In Winter



Although it is not generally realized by the average home owner, the inside surfaces of the walls of a house determine the winter comfort of a home. Building experts have developed a simple yardstick in measuring this comfort ratio by comparing the temperatures of the room-side surfaces of outside walls with indoor temperature. The results show how easily a house can be kept warm during the cold winter months. The closer the temperature between the room air and the inside surfaces of the walls, the easier it is to heat a house.

For instance, when the outdoor temperature is zero and the indoor air is 70 degrees, a wall properly insulated with mineral wool will have an inside surface temperature of approximately 67 degrees. In an uninsulated house, however, the inner surface temperature of wall will be around 59 degrees. This means that there is usually a difference of eight degrees between the inside wall temperatures of insulated and uninsulated houses of the same type of construction and heated at the same temperature. This eight degree variation can mean the difference between a comfortable room and one that is constantly chilly.

In a house having mineral wool insulation, the home-owner can economize by keeping the room temperatures even at a constant 65 degrees without too much loss of heat through outside walls. On the other hand, if the home-owner is in an uninsulated house, a 65-degree room temperature will mean an 11-degree difference between temperature of the rooms and the inside surfaces of the main walls. To overcome this cold space around the walls, the home-owner must increase the temperature of the rooms considerably, thereby necessitating the burning of more fuel.

It is for this reason that mineral wool insulation is considered to have the two-fold advantage of comfort plus fuel-saving economy.

JUNIOR TATTLES on Tommy that he borrowed the kitchen knife without asking and cut himself. What is mother to do about the child who "carries tales"?

FOR PARENTS ONLY:

I'll Tell My Mother On You Can Be Perplexing Problem

By NANCY CLEAVER

"Tattle-tale tit!
Your tongue shall split!
And all the dogs in our town
Shall have a bit of it!

How many children have chanted this taunt?

The tale bearer is anything but popular with his friends! They despise him because he renounces his kinship with his own age group and goes over to the side of grown-ups. But they also dislike and fear him. What if his report starts an inquiry which ends up in punishment to the offenders?

"Our teacher doesn't let us do any tattling in our room, and I don't think you should allow Junior to go wailing to you about every little thing. Why don't you stamp on him? What if I did borrow your kitchen knife without asking? I looked after my own cut without bothering you!" Tommy says angrily.

SOUNDS SIMPLE

Mother wonders if this is the thing to do—it sounds like a simple solution. But is it right in every case? What does a parent do when his child comes to him with a story about another's wrong doing? Many mothers and fathers feel uncomfortable and perplexed when this happens.

They are not sure whether they should refuse to listen to the tale-bearer at all and scold him for approaching them as well. Or should they hear the report to its end? Perhaps a brother or sister has been up to some more or less serious mischief which should be attended to at once. Maybe a small boy or girl is being bullied by a larger, stronger child, and "telling" seems to be the only way to seek protection.

Naturally a parent is curious as to whether or not the story is true. Every person colors his recitation of an event to some extent by his own reaction to it. Instead of being true or false, likely it is somewhere in between. By a few skilful questions, by checking on the answers, and by taking time to hear "the other person's version" of the incident a parent can usually discover if the story is correct. Christine may complain that Patty has broken the leg off her dolly . . . but maybe both little girls were having a tug-of-war for possession of it!

If a child is maliciously lying about another child, he should learn that this just "isn't done." To a little child, a regard for "the truth" may not be very clear. Nevertheless, he must accept that he must not make up damaging stories.

SENSE OF HOSTILITY

A child who lies about another in order to get him into hot water likely has a deep sense of hos-

[illegible] from one incident but from a succession of small squabbles, in which the tattling child has been defeated. The tattling child is a child in trouble—in trouble with himself and in trouble with others. A parent will want to find out why there is this antagonism and see if anything can be done to promote a better relationship between the two youngsters.

Parents have to guard against jumping to conclusions or getting "all wrought up." There is no truer proverb than "There are two sides to every question." An "informer" must learn that he is responsible for his own actions, not his brother's, or sister's, or a neighbor's child.

Many families have found that a regular Family Council has greatly diminished tattle-tale activities within the home circle. If a boy or girl has a complaint to make, he must have patience and state it there.

He will be more careful of his facts, if the person against whom he is reporting, is on the other side of the circle ready to defend his actions. The knowledge that wrongdoing will likely be discussed at a Family Council session also strengthens a child's resistance to temptation. It puts a check on bullying, or greediness, or carelessness, or any other small irritations which poison a peaceful atmosphere.

Whether it is at a family council or in a private talk, mother or dad usually manage to "get it across" to the tattling child that everyone has to work towards the goal of happy living together. Constant tale-bearing is no help to happiness. But if a wrong must be told, the parent and the children concerned can together try to see how it happened, what can be done about it and how that particular offense can be avoided in the future.

Billy may tattle that Tom broke the neighbor's garage window — but perhaps Billy refused to go with Tom to play ball at the park! Tom can discover that he takes the sting out of Billy's story if, "on his own steam" he tells the neighbor that he broke the glass and with his dad's help he will repair the damage.

It is easier to repair windows than it is to mend broken relationships! The tattle tale cuts himself off from friendships.

As parents we must encourage our children to face up to their own small troubles themselves. They must learn to "take it on the chin" in minor difficulties. At the same time, if a child is deeply perplexed or terribly upset he should always feel free to go to mother and dad and talk things over. A lot of first steps in juvenile delinquency are avoided if the adolescent trusts mother or dad sufficiently to confide in them.

Sometimes tale-bearing is in self defense! But it's a wise parent who helps a child to resist the urge to tattle with few exceptions. "I'll tell my mother on you!" is the cry of a little child who cannot quite cope with his small world. Our children all want to "grow up." Let us do all we can to encourage them to leave tale-bearing strictly alone.

Mrs. Charlton Grigg, program convener, announced the following numbers on the program: community singing led by Mrs. Clarence Thackeray with Mrs. Edgar Carew at the piano; Mrs. Bart Thackeray presented current events; Mrs. Oscar Adams gave the biography of Steven Foster, at the conclusion of her talk the gathering sang "Jeanie, With the Light Brown Hair"; Mrs. Charles Sandercock read "Poppies Blow"; Miss Joan Grigg conducted a quiz on "Song Titles written by Irving Berlin". This was won by Mrs. Silas Sherwin's group.

The roll call, "Describe Your Wedding Dress or Suit," was responded to by all the married ladies present including 86-year-old Mrs. E. J. Milne and 82-year-old Mrs. William Taylor.

The meeting closed by singing the National Anthem.

The hostess served refreshments.

Teachers, Mothers Tea Guests At King Edward

Teachers and Grade Mothers of King Edward School were entertained at a tea Wednesday afternoon by the executive members of the Home and School Association.

The tea table was covered with a dainty white cut-work cloth, centred with a lovely arrangement of white and blue 'mums. Blue tapers in crystal holders completed the setting, carried out in the school colors of blue and white.

President Mrs. J. Dunkerley welcomed the guests and spoke briefly to the grade mothers, pointing out the important part played by them in the Home and School Association. In outlining their duties, she said that a most important duty is in striving to interest other parents in the work of the Association.

Tea was poured by past president Mrs. V. Reynolds, and Mrs. E. Wellman was in charge of the table arrangement. Mrs. N. Gilders and Mrs. A. Clarke were joint-conveners of the tea.

Teachers present included: Mrs. C. Brickman, Miss M. Nelson, Mrs. S. Morman, Mrs. D. Crawford, Mrs. H. Jefferies, Miss G. Wortman, Miss M. Mutton, Mr. J. Telford, Mr. W. Patterson, and Mr. J. Burns.

Grade mothers included: Mesdames W. McCullough, T. Nurse, R. Lawes, R. Menzies, R. Parnell, G. Johnston, E. Ferren, E. Richey, F. Dafoe, A. Warner, J. Finnie, D. Tushinghan and W. Seabrooke.

570 At IODE Stardust Ball

Stars from the Stardust Ball were taken as souvenirs of a lovely dance Friday evening, at the Brock Ballroom. The I.O.D.E. Col. Agnes Neill Chapter members on the decorating committee had hung these stars—large replicas of the heavenly bodies glittering with tinsel—on the dark curtains in the ballroom for an effect that seemed almost real, and in the centre they hung a big revolving ball that just could have been a full moon.

The Stardust Ball originated as a Sadie Hawkins' dance, the idea being taken from the L'il Abner comic strip and the annual November Sadie Hawkins' day race in Dogpatch. So, life size figures of L'il Abner and Daisy Mae have become symbols of the ball, and though the two staged a surprise wedding during the year the tradition goes on and they again occupied prominent places on the stage.

The patronage of Alderman T. Douglas Miller and Mrs. Miller and of the Hon. Harold R. Scott and Mrs. Scott was enjoyed at this Ball and they were in the receiving line. Chapter regent Mrs. William Durant, and vice regent Mrs. Garry Arden and Miss Mary Medd, regent of the Municipal Chapter welcomed the guests, assisted by Mr. Durant and Mr. Ardern.

And though it was a gentleman's "treat" evening, the ladies received the door favors of miniature lipsticks, perfume cards and match books.

A special door prize winner was Miss Barbara Owens and other door prizes went to Miss Rose Marie Allen, Miss Louise Leslie, Miss Ella Foley, Mr. and Mrs. J. Loveday, Mr. and Mrs. Don G. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. A. Scott, Mr. James Northey, Mr. J. Church, Mr. Roy Gilchrist.

(The Examiner regrets being unable to publish the guest list for this dance as it was largely incomplete.)

Coiffure Ball Attracts 450 Many Win Lovely Prizes

The annual Coiffure Ball of Peterborough Branch of the Ontario Hairdressers' Association on Friday evening attracted to the Club Aragon a crowd of 450 dancers. It was a happy, well ordered affair throughout the evening. Everyone came in formal attire, the ladies displaying some beautiful new gowns as well as very smart coiffures.

The program was spotted liberally with draws for prizes, the supply of gifts from local merchants lasting until the final minutes of the dance. A balloon dance excited the usual scramble and resulting "pops" but out of the balloons 13 lucky ladies took certificates entitling them to free permanent waves.

Special door prizes went to Miss Gladys James and Mr. Doug Davidson. The draw prize winners were Miss Leone Manley, Mrs. E. Ayrheart, Miss Sheila Wilcox, Miss Marie Campbell of Toronto, Miss Ann Hughey, Miss Isabel Bolton, Mrs. Harold Dickson, Miss Hazel Fee, Mrs. Margaret Gibson, Mrs. D. Hatton, Miss Joan Lebarr.

Spot dance winners were Mr. and Mrs. Jack Drysdale and Miss Olive Chretien and Mr. Joe Whibbs.

Among those attending were:

Mr. and Mrs. Don Moore, Mr. and Mrs. V. Marino, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Vaughn, Mrs. B. Desjardins, Mr. and Mrs. Ken Hotston, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Butcher, Mr. and Mrs. B. 4 New Members In Women's Club

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — The Business and Professional Women of Campbellford held a dinner meeting at the Trent House on Thursday night, with president Jean Morrison in the chair.

The membership convener, Eve Spencer, introduced four new members: Flossie Scott, Fanny Peters, Dorothy Herd and Isobel Macey.

Guest speaker for the evening, Mrs. John McKibbin, was introduced by Eileen Linton. She was thanked by Olive McCrae.

Plans are under way to have each member of the club hold two tables of bridge or euchre at their homes in November, with the money raised to go toward the club's objective of furnishing a room in the new Campbellford Memorial Hospital.

A highlight of the evening was the singing of two favorite songs by Ken Vaughn of Toronto who may be heard there at the King Edward Hotel.

Presbytery WA Appoints Leader To Rural Girls

Semi-annual meeting of the Peterborough Presbytery Woman's Association was held Thursday at Fairview United Church. Mrs. Major H. G. Roberts of the Salvation Army, Peterborough, was the guest speaker, and also led group singing.

"In neglect of the church we are striking at the roots of Christianity" stated Mrs. Roberts. "We should feel need of the church and it is our responsibility and example t othe young folk. We should remember the Sabbath as a holy day from every angle and try to live it so as to be an example to others." In conclusion she said: "We cannot expect more of our young people than we are giving."

President Mrs. Carmen Bell presided, opening the morning session with devotions and the afternoon session with singing led by Mrs. Roberts. Mrs. T. E. Rath of Lakefield played quiet music before the opening and also for the hymns.

It was decided to appoint a leader for girls' activities in rural areas where they do not have groups such as C.G.I.T. Mrs. C. Barnard of Bailieboro was appointed.

Report from a convention held at Immanuel College, Toornto, in September was read by Mrs. Bell in absence of the corresponding secretary Mrs. E. McKinstry. Mrs. F. Edworthy reported on the Bay of Quinte Presbytery W.A. held at Foxboro in October. It was decided to invite the Presbytery to Peterborough for the next meeting. Mrs. H. Fee reported on literature. Minutes of the annual meeting at Wesley Church in May were read by Mrs. H. Lowes, also report of an executive meeting at Mrs. Barnard's home in September. The financial report was given by Mrs. G. Pearson.

Noon dinner was served at the church.

CGIT Doings

The George St. C.G.I.T. held its regular meeting Thursday evening.

Devotional period consisted of scripture read by Anna Northey, a story by Eleanor Tolton and prayer by Sylvia Young under direction of Poan Loucks, chairman.

During the business period a discussion was on a tea, movie, and a cabinet meeting. Music during collection was supplied by Margaret Munro.

The girls then broke into three groups under the new executives.

Good-Night Kiss Refuses To Boy By Girl He Loves

DEAR MISS DIX: Isn't a certain amount of love-making in order?

I'm a frequent reader of your column and note how often you caution girls against getting into petting sessions with us fellows. But, heck, there's a limit to that, isn't there?

I've been going with a girl for a year and haven't even gotten to kiss her goodnight. The only time I can get my arms around her is when we're dancing. I'm in love with her and want to marry her when I'm through school, but she doesn't even give me a chance to tell her so. Can't you put in a good word for us boys who have found the girl and want to show her how we feel?

BILL.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: The question of petting from a boy's viewpoint, is very seldom considered for the simple reason that many boys believe that a girl who doesn't pet up to the boy's expectations is not good company. These are the boys against whom I feel it so necessary to warn girls. Petting, of course, can begin very casually and harmlessly and progress to disastrous consequences for the girl. Seldom is a boy involved in the tragic aftermath, unless he willingly accepts the obligations he has incurred.

WHY SOME GIRLS AVOID PETTING

No one expects a couple who are engaged, or going steady, to refrain from caresses. These are natural and normal manifestations of their love. The problem enters when such demonstrations reach the point where they are not easily controlled. Someone, then, must take the responsibility for slowing down. Since the girl has more at stake, it is she who must apply the brakes. Of course, a boy of principle would not give a girl cause for concern; he would be gentlemanly enough to keep the petting within bounds.

Most assuredly, Bill, I think a boy who is in love is entitled to a good-night kiss, at least. Your girl either isn't equally in love with you, or she is afraid to indulge in even elementary petting for fear it will lead to dangerous love-making. It is up to you to put her mind at ease, if this is the case. Your intentions certainly are of the best, and you should have no difficulty convincing her that you are seriously interested. If she's worth having, she's worth a little wooing; don't be too impatient.

After all, you know yourself you'd rather have a girl with self-respect than one who would give in to indiscriminate petting with any boy she dates. The particular girls are the most respected, and in the long run, the most loved.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am now 15, and going with a boy of 17. I know I am in love though you probably think I'm too young. I've been going with boys since I was 13. I am very mature for my age. I have been going with this boy for a year, and feel miserable when I'm away from him. He is going into the Navy next year and I am going to wait for him until he comes out, which will be in about four years. Then we are going to be married. Don't you think that one girl in a hundred can be in love at my age, and that her love will last? I'm sure I'm one in a hundred

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: It is quite possible that one girl out of several hundred might be really in love at 15, with the love that would indeed last. Perhaps you are that one. Let time be the judge. You write very nicely—much better than most of my 15-year-old correspondents. Also, the fact that you plan sensibly to wait until your boy comes out of the Navy to marry is further proof that you may be sensible enough to know your own mind. For your sake, I hope so.

DEAR MISS DIX: My daughter is 14 and likes a man of 28 who is in the Marines. He tells her he loves her. He was married at 19, and later divorced. He admits he still loves his former wife. Can you convince my daughter that she is wrong in thinking about him? I try to tell her he is no good to her, but he keeps insisting he will marry her and she believes him.

R. E.

ANSWER: Your daughter is certainly a stubborn child to be so deaf to warnings as obvious as those you depict. The man is making a fool of her and she'll be the laughing stock of town if she doesn't wake up. You should order him to leave her alone, and, if he doesn't, report the matter to his commanding officer. He may be able to persuade the man to keep away from your child.

FESTIVE GOWNS — Shop windows in London's fashionable West End sparkle with new gowns to herald the opening of the festive season. At left is a ball dress by Worth in printed striped rayon poult of champagne and black. Its easy flowing lines are emphasized by the clever play of the stripes. A cocktail dress in black poult taffeta (right) is another favorite. Its sheath lines are accentuated by a deep shawl collar. Contrast is given by a band of pink satin that swathes the back bodice and slots through the front of the collar.

Curling Club Tea Formally Opens New Season

Afternoon tea at the Curling Club Friday formally opened the '52-'53 season for the ladies. The tea was served following a general business meeting and the introduction by each skip of the members of her rink.

The schedule for 18 rinks is now drawn up and play is to commence next week, following lessons for beginners on Monday and Tuesday. The lessons have been arranged by Mrs. L. Bearne and Mr. R. F. Downey will be lecturer.

Ten ladies new to the club this year are Mrs. B. R. Smyth, Mrs. D. Humber, Mrs. D. Chamberlain, Mrs. W. Beggs, Mrs. C. Vincent, Mrs. G. E. Nyberg, Mrs. Dunham, and Mrs. M. J. Munro of Warsaw, Mrs. Norman from Toronto and Mrs. Geale from Welland.

Highlights of the coming season will be the Warne Bonspiel on January 26, 27 and 28 with Mrs. J. Watts as convener and the Tankard on February 3 and 4 with Mrs. J. Green, convener.

President Mrs. J. D. Fanning presided. Reports of all committees were given, attention being called by the house committee to the new coffee table and chairs added to the furnishings.

Social convener Mrs. Wm. Archibald had charge of the tea arrangements and had set the lace-covered table with a bouquet of bronze 'mums in the centre. Tea pourers were Mrs. R. H. Turner and Mrs. C. B. Westbrook.

Servers were social committee members Mrs. A. Clark, Mrs. John Wocker, Mrs. R. Greene, Mrs. R. Dixon, Mrs. R. Miller and Mrs. Ian MacGillivray, and the last year leads, Mrs. Reg. Perks, Mrs. Clayton Selkirk, Mrs. Dr. Millen, Mrs. D. Marshall, Mrs. Graham Ferguson and Mrs. Cecil Campbell.

Cotton London's Favorite In Moderately Priced Class

By MURIEL NARRAWAY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—As the night lights of London's West End sparkle in shop windows to herald the approach of the Christmas season, the favorite for moderately-priced party wear seems to be cotton.

This fabric, found largely in household cupboards and servants' halls in the days of Queen Victoria, is making a big bid for fashion favor in the coming coronation year.

Shops sport such gay numbers as a ballet-length white cotton evening dress over-printed in gold-and-black florentine design. With three-quarter, wing-cuffed sleeves, high Stuart neckline with black velvet streamers matching the narrow velvet belt, it also makes a smart cocktail outfit.

LACQUERED COTTONS

This is just one of the brightly-lacquered cottons on sale for £10 and under. Many are printed in gold and metal effects that give the look of a rich French brocade. Unlike brocades, however, the most elaborate cottons take to water like ducks—and it's hard to distinguish them from their highly-priced-cloths.

Coronation fashion parades, including the first fashion show to be given in London's Royal Festival Hall, boost cotton to the front line of fashion. At the Royal Festival Show some of the most-applauded coronation numbers, shown to a large audience of smartly-dressed men and women, were in cotton.

FOR YOUNG FOLK

A gay teen-age cotton that also found favor was in white, ever-glaze cotton. The ballet-length dress was spotted in gold, and the scalloped hem and ruffled off-shoulder neckline were outlined in gold.

Even the new lame fabrics, designed to give that pageantry feeling, are merely gold thread through a cotton ground. And many of the rich velvet coats worn with them are of cotton velvets that can be tub-washed as easily as the dresses they cover.

Side by side with cotton for the moderate purse are the latest rayons. A ball gown by worth in black-and-gold rayon poult, its easy flowing lines emphasized by the clever play of the stripes, looked like gleaming satin.

Fraserville News

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Readers' Saturday Column

QUESTION: As we are moving to Mexico shortly I would be very grateful if you would tell me what adjustments in recipes have to be made in baking, cooking, etc., because of elevated altitude. The altitude of Mexico City is over 7,000 Ft. Also, have you a recipe for a meat loaf with (bread) dressing (between 2 layers). I have enjoyed your column and recipes and will miss them very much when we move. Stella G.

ANSWER: One baking rule holds at all altitudes over 3,500 feet: increase baking temperature over the temperature recipe calls for, by 25 degress. Another thing—leavening agents—baking powder and soda—must be reduced the higher up you go. For instance if a recipe calls for 1 teaspoon of baking powder or baking soda at sea level, reduce it to 1-3 teaspoon at 7,000 feet altitude.

If a "high altitude cake" is crumbly and poor in volume or has fallen, next time you make it add extra liquid,—the amount depending upon the degree of failure.

At 3,500 ft. water boils at 200 deg. Fahr. so will boil at lower temperature at 7,000 ft. At sea level soft ball stage in candy making is obtained at 234 deg. Fahr.; at 3,500 at 230 deg. Fehr. so you will have to be equipped with a thermometer for any candy-making projects.

Stuffed Meat Loaf

One and one-half lbs. round steak or shank meat ground, 1 well-beaten egg, ½ cup milk, 1½ teaspoons salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon Worcestershire Sauce, 1 cup soft breadcrumbs, ½ teaspoon sage, 1 tablespoon grated onion, 4 tablespoons melted fat. Combine meat, beaten egg, milk, 1 teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper and the Worcestershire sauce. Line the bottom and sides of loaf pan with this mixture. Make a stuffing by combining breadcrumbs, ½ teaspoon salt, the sage, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, grated onion and melted fat. Fill centre with this stuffing. Cover top with remaining meat. Cook in oven of 400 deg. Fahr. for about 45 minutes. This is delicious served with tomato or mushroom sauce made from condensed canned tomato or mushroom soup. This may be baked longer and slower if desired.

QUESTION: I enjoy your column but I have to contradict you. About one week ago you said peppers cannot be preserved for winter use and remain firm. We have pickled them for years and they are as firm as the day we put them in jars. Method 1: Cut the peppers lengthwise and arrange them in sealers (more go into the jar if cut). Boil 2 parts vinegar, 1 part water, a good tablespoon salt to each quart and a piece of alum (about same as for pickles). Bring the brine to a boil, cool, pour over peppers. Seal jars. About 2 or 3 days later open the jars and place small green tomatoes on top of the peppers. The tomatoes fit under the neck of the jars as the peppers must be kept under the brine. Once the pepper is pushed out of the brine it goes soft. The tomatoes can also be eaten. You will find you will have to pour some of the brine off. Method 2: Place whole or cut peppers in crock with same solution. Put a plate on top with a weight on it to keep peppers under brine. Leave about 1 week. They can be kept in the crock or transferred into jars. Peppers must be exposed to air. These methods have been used since grandmother's time.

P. B.

ANSWER: Thank you for all of your trouble P. B. What I said was they could not be processed—that is, heat could not be used for sterilizing to preserve them. I know they can be pickled, but am grateful for you for these details. Let me know when I can help you. Heat softens peppers.

✧ ✧ ✧

QUESTION: I put up some pickled cauliflower but am not sure whether to use it. I proceeded as follows: I boiled sugar syrup of ½ gal. white vinegar, 1 quart water, 4 cups sugar, 4 tablespoons each mustard seed and celery, 1 teaspoon alum. I poured this over cauliflowerets which were soaked in brine 3 days and drained. As my husband said his aunt's pickles sometimes turned soft and yellow I hesitated to boil the cauliflower. Is it alright to use alum? How long must we wait before using them? Should the jars be inverted? How long will they Keep? Are they safe to eat? Will they ripen in refrigerator? they are still white.

R. G.

ANSWER: I could wish that all pickle makers were as fussy as you are. Yes, they are safe to eat. They will be soaked through (ripened as you name it) in 30 days. If kept cool or cold and if they are sealed they will keep indefinitely. You did right in not cooking the cauliflower. You have achieved what all cauliflower picklers dream of—white flowerets.

What's Right?

You and your husband are invited to a wedding and the reception following it but your young children were not included in the invitation.

WRONG: Take the children with you.

6—In Memoriam

HOLMES—In loving memory of Jessie, beloved daughter of Albert Holmes, who passed away November 8, 1950. She was called from this world of sorrow,
To a home of eternal rest.
—Fondly remembered by Dad and sisters.

NICHOLSON—In loving memory of my dear wife, Mrs. Harry J. Nicholson, who passed away Nov. 9, 1950. What would I give her hand to clasp;
Her patient face to see,
To hear her voice, to see her smile,
As in the days that used to be.
But some sweet day we'll meet again
Beyond the toil and strife,
And clasp each other's hand once more,
In Heaven, that happy life.
—Ever remembered by husband.

PATTERSON—In loving memory of F/S Gerald W. H. Patterson, killed in England with his crew, Nov. 8, 1944.
To the world he was but one,
To us he was all the world.
...ways remembered by mother, dad, sisters Eleanor, Peggy and Margaret, and brother Marwood.

THOMPSON—In loving memory of A. E. Thompson (Ned), beloved nephew of Albert Holmes, who passed away Oct. 26th, 1949.
He died as he lived, beloved by all.
—Sadly missed by Uncle Albert.

7—Card of Thanks

TOWNSHIP OF NORTH MONAGHAN, ONTARIO

ROMAN CATHOLIC SEPARATE SCHOOL BOARD, SECTION 2

BY-LAW NUMBER FOUR

WHEREAS the Board of Trustees of the Roman Catholic Separate Schools for School Section No. 2 in the Township of North Monaghan, requires to borrow the sum of $200,000 for the construction of a school building and the purchase of school equipment.

AND WHEREAS under Chapter 362 of the Revised Statutes of Ontario 1937 —"The Separate Schools Act," the said Board of Trustees of the Roman Catholic Separate Schools for School Section No. 2 in the Township of North Monaghan have power to make mortgages and other instruments for the security of and payment of such borrowed money upon school property and premises and any other real or personal property vested in the Board or upon the Separate School rates:

THEREFORE, the Board of Trustees of the Roman Catholic Separate Schools for School Section No. 2 in the Township of North Monaghan enacts as follows:

1. THAT the whole debt or obligation to be issued under this By-law shall not exceed the sum of $200,000.00 and interest yearly at the rate of 5½% and it shall be lawful for the said Board of Trustees of the Roman Catholic Separate Schools for School Section No. 2 in the Township of North Monaghan and they are hereby authorized to borrow from any person or persons, body or bodies corporate who may be willing to advance the same the sum of $200,000.00 for the purpose aforesaid.

2. AND THAT for the security and payment of the money borrowed it shall be lawful for the said Board of Trustees of the Roman Catholic Separate Schools for School Section No. 2 in the Township of North Monaghan to cause any number of debentures to be made, not exceeding in all the sum of $200,000.00 but for not less than $500.00 each and that the said debentures shall be sealed with the Corporate Seal of the Board of Trustees of the Roman Catholic Separate Schools for School Section No. 2 in the Township of North Monaghan and signed by the Chairman and Treasurer of the said Board.

3. THE debentures shall be all dated November 15th, 1952, and shall be payable within twenty years from the date and shall bear interest at 5½% payable yearly in twenty annual instalments during the twenty years next after the date. The currency of the said debentures shall be as in the annexed Schedule "A".

4. THE debentures as to both principal and interest may be expressed in Canadian currency and shall be payable at the Bank of Nova Scotia, ePterborough, Ontario, or at the branch of any other chartered Bank in Peterborough.

5. DURING the currency of the Debentures there shall be raised in each year the amount of the instalment of principal and interest, payable in that year.

6. THAT the said debentures be and they are hereby made a charge on the school houses, properties and premises and on the real and personal property vested in the said Board of Trustees of the Roman Catholic Separate Schools for School Section No. 2 in the Township of North Monaghan and upon all the Separate School rates of the said Board hereinafter imposed until the said debentures shall each and every one of them be fully paid, and settled.

7. THE said debentures shall be payable to bearer or to Order and the Coupons shall be signed by the Chairman and Treasurer or the signatures may be engraved or stamped thereon and be as valid as their own proper signatures.

THIS BY-LAW SHALL take effect on the 7th day of November, 1952.

Read a first and second time this 7th day of November, 1952.

Duties Of Parish Guild Outlined At Meeting

LAKEFIELD (ENS).—Mrs. L. J. Delaney was hostess to members of the Guild of the Church of St. John the Baptist at the rectory on Thursday afternoon. The president, Mrs. H. E. Gastle, presided for the meeting. The secretary's report was given by Mrs. Harold Deeth.

It was decided to change the date of the annual Christmas bazaar from December 4th to November 27th owing to a conflicting event. Suggestions and ideas were discussed regarding this event.

The group then adjourned to the church where Mr. Delaney outlined the duties of the parish Guild. Tea was then served by Mrs. Delaney at the rectory.

"Cavemen" Build Warehouse In Hill

By MARY C. FLYNN

COLDSPUR, Kans. (NEA) — A couple of modern "cavemen" have teamed up with a railroad to establish the world's largest commercial underground cold storage warehouse.

Five years ago Guy E. Stanley, Jr., of Kansas City, Kans., and E. P. "Pat" Conlon, of Attleboro, Mass., were quarrying the lower portion of a 100-foot-high bluff of solid limestone facing the Union Pacific's line near Loring, Kans., when they realized the proximity of the tracks and the hollowed ledge added up to an ideal natural storage cave site.

Since then Stanley and Conlon, who met while serving in the Navy Air Corps, have mined more than two million tons of limestone from the hill and developed the cavern into a $2,000,000 natural storage warehouse with 4,500,000 cubic feet of storage space.

The Union Pacific has spent approximately $90,000 building a rail yard, Coldspur, at the cave. As many as 12 refrigerated cars can enter the warehouse grotto at one time on a railroad spur for unloading at car floor level in the 55-degree normal, year-round cave temperature.

Currently, 1200 carloads of potatoes, fresh frozen orange juice, prunes, dehydrated alfalfa for use in making chlorophyll, apples, grapes and other products are stored in the new warehouse. Most of the items were shipped from the west and are destined for eastern points.

As more limestone is quarried, the storage capacity for perishable and other foods will be increased to more than 10 million cubic feet of space. Products from over the nation can be stored in transit in the big cooler until needed at the consumer point.

The great mass of limestone which encloses the warehouse area serves as a reservoir which stores refrigeration, providing a safety factor against unforeseen shutdown. New refrigeration equipment has been installed to maintain uniform temperatures in the 12 rooms of the cave, where temperatures range from the natural reading of 55 to 10 degrees below zero.

Ceilings are from 14 to 35 feet above the floor. The natural limestone walls and ceilings provide absorption of odors and neutralization plus maximum sanitation.

There's another important "natural" advantage at the cave, officials point out. Mice literally are up against a stone wall.

The new Coldspur warehouse not only is the largest "commercial" cave in the world but it also is the only cave of its kind and size currently in operation. A similar facility was built by the U.S. government at Atchison, Kans., in 1943 and was successfully used to store perishable commodities by the Commodity Credit Corporation until August, 1951, when the cave was shut down. The Atchison cave was in many ways inferior to the new one.

Eisenhower Arranges To Name Conference Representatives

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower went ahead today with arrangements to name his representatives for a series of briefing conferences, which may begin early next week at defence headquarters and the state department.

The names of the men who will act as liaison officers for him have not been announced.

He has been in touch by telephone with his advisors, however, and members of his staff here indicated they believe the talks in Washington can start Monday or Tuesday. Eisenhower is sending a representative to meet with the director of the budget.

Eisenhower appears to be under some pressure from President Truman to act quickly. Truman sent a message to Augusta, where Eisenhower is on holiday, asking the president-elect to send representatives to the defence and state department "at the earliest possible moment."

Eisenhower himself will go to the White House for a conference Nov. 17, Truman said.

All three of the government branches mentioned deal more or less directly with foreign affairs. A message from Truman Thursday, delivered personally by Col Albert L. Cox, contained several paragraphs relating to "foreign matters" which have not been published, James C. Hagerty, Eisenhower's press secretary, said.

He was still working today to answer the thousands of messages that have come to him from all parts of the world congratulating him on his election.

Eisenhower planned another attack today on the National Golf club course, where, so far, he has been running into rough going. Club professional Ed Dudley said Eisenhower turned in a card of 93 Friday and shot par golf on only four holes.

Election Will Not Effect Seaway Project—Chevrier

COBOURG — (ENS)—Lionel Chevrier, Canadian Minister of Transport, expressed the belief last night that this week's election in the United States would not in any way affect the naming of that country's agency which would act with the Ontario Hydro in the power development in the St. Lawrence Seaway project.

"I think the naming of the entity by the United States is the logical and right step to take, no matter who is in office," he said, "and I believe the naming of the entity will come soon, so that we may begin construction in 1953."

Addressing the local Y.W.C.A. public affairs forum Mr. Chevrier reviewed the most recent developments in the negotiations to advance the St. Lawrence Seaway project. These he itemized as the order of approval issued by the International Joint Commission conditions under which the order of approval was granted and announcement that the 1941 agreement had been superceded by the order of approval.

The only step yet to be taken before work could commence on the power and navigation developments was the naming of the agency by the United States with authority to act along with the Ontario Hydro in the power development he said.

PROTECT INTERESTS

Other conditions imposed by the order of approval isued by the International Joint Commission were discussed by the minister of transport. These provided for adequate protection and indemnity for persons adversely affected by the flooding of lands and construction work and the safeguarding of upriver and downriver interest.

He said a joint board of engineers would be set up to review and co-ordinate and approve plans and specifications while a board of control would be set up to give effect to ensure that conditions of the order pertaining to water levels were strictly adhered to by the Canadian and U.S. entities.

The minister of transport stated that joint applications had been made to the International Joint Commission on June 30th last by Canada and the United States and that body had delivered its decision on October 29 approving the construction of the necessary power works. With that decision the 1941 agreement is now superceded by the order of approval, explained the minister.

There remains only the naming of an entity in the United States to make the St. Lawrence seaway project a reality, said the minister.

"We are most grateful for the co-operation we have received and continue to receive from the administration in Washington. We have every reason to expect the same co-operation from the new administration soon to take over and so I am more hopeful than ever that an early start will be made on both the power and the seaway projects."

New Plastic Provides Rainproof Material

LONDON (CP)—A new, non-transparent heavyweight plastic sheeting is making rainproof fashion news.

Since the end of the Second World War, British women have been groaning over prices of smartly-styled coats in rainproofed satins and grosgrains. Many women found a £10 average too high a budget for rain wear.

Now, the new plastic provides coats with grosgrain or satin finish at upwards of £2, in the latest coat styles.

Ask Director Of Recreation

COBOURG (ENS)—Expansion of Cobourg's recreational facilities with a recreational director in charge was discussed at a meeting Friday night of members of the town council, the recreational commission and other interested parties. Two government representatives were present to outline the extent of government assistance.

A recreational programme envisoned by Mr. Thompson and Mr. Weir of the department was estimated to cost about one dollar per capita, which would work out to about $8,000 annual outlay from the town of which about 25% would come from the government. However there was no great enthusiasm shown for a programme that costly and before it would be instituted it would have to be authorized by a vote of the people, Mayor Jack Burnet said.

The government representatives made it clear that there was no intention to pay a grant on any recreational programme which would be devised to bring in costly player talent. One suggestion which appeared to cause a favourable reaction at the meeting was a proposal that the present recreational centre manager, Ross Drew, do part time work in the summer as recreational director. The first requisite would be completion of a course i nthat work, approved by the department.

There was no definite decision arrived at by the meeting but out of the discussion is expected to emerge a plan which will provide some kind of recreational direction next summer.

sprits. Unknown to me it was supposed to be his wife's night off and he was supposed to babysit. (I can still see her angry face and hear her wildcat scream as we light-heartedly stepped in the front door. Me? Well, I just started running.)

No. Cast any such unkind suspicions aside. I'm an honest little chap when watched, and I'm a bit of a seeker-after-Truth as well as an amateur theologian. That's my only reason for exposing the "bathtub hoax" once again.

My advice to Paul is not to abandon radio. It may be here to stay, though this latest incident has assuredly shaken it. Above all, don't jump over Hunter St. bridge or turn on the gas jet.

Just put it down to experience. Even President Truman pulled a rock on that one. He quoted Mencken's account of how the first bathtub was installed in the White House. Though told it was fiction, he refused to believe it, and he has even improved on the tale according to Time of October 29.

Anything Truman does you can do better, Paul boy. Don't be discouraged: you can't be wrong all the time.

My advice, Paul, is to forget all about bathtubs and consign Prof. Haskin's "Ten Thousand Answers to Questions," compiled by the director of the "world's largest information bureau," to the flames.

Two Bangs, Spiral Cloud Baffle U.K. A-Bomb Expert

LONDON (CP)—Even if you designed the thing, you never can tell what may happen when an atom bomb blows up.

Penney thought he heard two blasts. There was only one bomb.

He described the scene of the explosion last night to listeners in Canada, Britain, the United States, Australia, New Zealand and South Africa. The six-country hookup was arranged by the British Broadcasting Corp.

"There was an intense flash. . . A great sandstorm suddenly sprang up over the island," he said. "It seemed ages before we heard the big bang."

The bang was promptly followed by another—just as loud. But it turned out to be an echo from a layer of warm air high in the sky.

Penney also explained the Z-shaped cloud which formed instead of the more usual mushroom cloud. It was not really a "Z" at all, but a giant spiral caused by winds blowing in different directions at different heights.

Choir Members Honor Miss Joyce Hutt

LAKEFIELD (ENS).—The parish hall of the Church of St. John the Baptist was the scene of a happy event on Thursday evening when members of the junior choir and the regular choir of that church met to honor Miss Joyce Hutt, whose marriage to Mr. Murray Paterson takes place on Saturday. Miss Hutt is a member of the choir and leader of the junior choir.

A mock wedding by members of the junior choir was enacted. Those taking part were: bride, Paul O'Brien; groom, Sandra Spargo; maid of honor, John Deeth; bridesmaid, Jack Rogers; best man, Isobel Coons; usher, Irene Edwards; minister, Anne Gariepy; soloist, Fraser Dunford, who sang "O Promise Me." He was accompanied by organist Mrs. Neal. The bride's mother was David Butterworth and her father, Anne Junkin. The toast to the bride was proposed by Annabeth Batten during which a presentation was made on behalf of the choir to the bride-elect.

Mrs. L. J. Delaney and Mrs. Alfred Hudson also made a presentation to Miss Hutt from members of the senior choir.

U.S. Navy Blimp Falls Into Atlantic Ocean

BRUNSWICK, Ga. (AP)—A freak accident yesterday dumped a Navy blimp into the Atlantic Ocean 55 miles east of here but the 11-man crew was rescued quickly by the submarine Seadog, summoned by a companion airship.

The blimp was on a routine anti-submarine training patrol with another lighter-than-air ship when a window blew out of the cab.

A propellor knocked the window through the fabric of the gas bag, freeing the helium so rapidly that the blimp settled into the ocean in a few minutes from an altitude of 500 feet.

Hospital Report Scores Doctor

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Dr. P. J. G. Morgan, medical superintendent of the East Windsor Hospital for Incurables, who was described as "dictatorial" in a Royal Commission report on the hospital's operation, said yesterday he had no comment to make on the report.

The document was submitted to the provincial government by Gordon L. Fraser, Windsor lawyer who conducted a 58-day inquiry into the hospital's affairs early this year.

Mrs. Elsie Morley, 26, described by Mr. Fraser as having been "wrongfully dismissed" after six years as Dr. Morgan's secretary, said she is pleased to be vindicated but would not consider returning to the hospital while Dr. Morgan is superintendent.

Put Belief Into Use Young Anglicans Told

KITCHENER (CP)—Young Anglicans must put their belief into practice and not be content with mere lip service, Very Rev. R. C. Brown, dean of Huron, said last night.

Addressing some 500 delegates to the opening meeting of the three-day Ontario Anglican Young People's Association conference, Dean Brown said freedom to choose brings obligations and responsibility.

"No one can make us choose but we must pay the consequences once we have made the choice."

Carson Neill School Caretaker

LAKEFIELD (ENS). — Carson Neill was appointed caretaker of the new Lakefield District High School when members of the board met on Wednesday evening at the school. Eighteen applications were received and discussed. Annual salary will be $2,800.

J. G. Sackville of Peterborough discussed with the board insurance details regarding the new school. Frank A. Payne also addressed the board with regard to the renewal of insurance on temporary classrooms and the new school. As a result of these discussions it was decided to renew the fire insurance policy on the temporary classroom building until such time as it is disposed of.

F. A. Payne was appointed insurance broker for the board and he was asked to meet with them at their next meeting to complete the insurance business. The considered plan was to have Mr. Payne take half the risk and the other half to be divided between Clarence Duff and W. J. Morrison of Lakefield and Mr. Sackville of Peterborough.

Kenneth Morris discussed with the board the quality of coal needed for the new school and also the price of same. This matter was shelved for a further meeting.

Principal J. E. Stephens reported attendance for October at Lakefield as being 192 students and Apsley as 33 with percentage attendance of 95.4. He and Mr. C. Sisson, a member of the teaching staff, had accompanied 18 senior cadets to Cobourg to participate in the Strathcona competition.

He further stated that the high school had played soccer with the Grove School and were successful by a 1-0 score. Several forms had been purchased to increase the efficiency of school organization and these were explained in detail by Mr. Stephens. He also requested that several needed supplies be purchased.

Transportation costs for the month were as follows: Roy Brown, $508.20; F. S. Colye, $440; C. Dudney, $84.; S. Pearson, $1,166.; M. Reddick, $325. C. Hilker, $132.; T. S. A. Burleigh and Anstruther $233.50. Further accounts totalling $1,272.92 were authorized for payment also.

Toronto Exchange Fails To Show Expected Change

By HARRY KINGDON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The big change on the Toronto stock market that was expected to follow the United States election hasn't shown up—yet.

Many observers suggested that recent unsteadiness in the market was due partly to uncertainty about the election outcome. They felt that once the vote was counted a general trend would be likely to set in.

There was nothing this week to prove their theory. The market bounced up and down a little, but ended much as it started. A general slowness in trading suggested that investors are still trying to assess the election results.

Before the election there was general agreement among many market analysts that the picture for at least six months looked bright. After that, some were non-committal or pessimistic.

Iron Age, the magazine of the United States steel industry, predicted good steel business at least until the second quarter of 1953. Other comments added up to about the same opinion for business generally, but also advised business men to brush up on their sales techniques to cope with a buyers' market.

DOWNWARD TREND?

Dr. Jules Blackman, Professor of Economics at New York University, has suggested that the next major change in business activity will be downward. He foresees a possible decline in U. S. national income.

Increasing U. S. interest in Canada, increased buying of Canadian stocks and the important U.S.-Canadian trade make it certain that events on the other side of the border will eventually affect the Canadian market.

The Toronto market started this week with a small rise, while Montreal prices were mixed. Both centres reported moderate rises Tuesday but prices turned mixed in post-election trading. On Thursday, both centres reported losses which were part [illegible] Friday's rise.

STEADY RISE

The New York market started with a small rise and then shut down for Election Day. Prices thereafter moved slowly upward for the rest of the week.

From Friday to Friday, the Toronto Stock Exchange indices showed industrials up 1.03 at 316.45, golds up 2.38 at 85.17, base metals up .27 at 173.58 and western oils up .43 at 119.08.

In the Montreal averages, banks were up .10 at 31.61, utilities up .8 at 88.8, industrials down .8 at 201.6, combined down .2 at 164.0, papers up .06 at 673.69 and golds up 1.24 at 62.78.

Chinese Poured Mortar Fire On Canadians For 21 Days

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP)—The reactions of men crowded into dugouts under enemy shell fire for 21 days were described frankly by Major Bob Richards of Montreal, commander of "Dog" company of the Royal Canadian Regiment's 1st Battalion, recently.

His company suffered the relentless pressure of Chinese mortar and artillery fire as the enemy attempted to soften up Little Gibraltar Spur before their Oct. 23 attack. They were relieved the night of Oct. 22 but were recalled from their rest to recapture the spur seven hours after the Chinese swept "Baker" company from it.

"Its bunkeritis, that's what gets you," Richards said.

BIG PROBLEM

"It's knowing that you can't walk around or you'll get hit. It gets so that even when there's almost no shelling at all you still get nervous. And when they pour in 1,275 a day you've got a problem.

"The odd man breaks, and then you risk getting a run of it. They all were getting a bit starey-eyed toward the end, but they all came out with their weapons. . . .

"Another thing is the knowledge that you're not going anywhere. You can take five days—or more—of shelling if you know that at the end you're going somewhere. But here there's no end to it. You just go on and on and on until relieved.

SEEING IS BELIEVING

"It's good for our chaps' morale to see air strikes on the Chinese, to see stuff actually falling on the other side. It doesn't do our fellows' feelings much good to be told that people 10 miles behind the man who's shooting at them are getting it. It's got to burst 100 yards from them if you want them to believe it.

"Casualties weren't so heavy though. That was due to the discipline. The only casualties were from direct hits on bunkers and trenches and you can't control that.

"But reactions got slower all the time. At the beginning you'd give an order and they'd jump to it. Later they got to looking for shelter on the way. They'd get there all right, but it would take longer."

Similar frank reports came from two of Richards' platoon leaders, Lieuts. M. F. Goldie of Pembroke, Ont., and F. H. Sykes of Toronto.

HEAVY SHELLING

During the two days preceding the company's relief it had received as many shells as formerly fell during a week.

"That did lots of damage, but nobody was hurt other than being knocked a bit silly," said Goldie.

"Life there is very primitive indeed. You can't move an eyebrow without being hit. You just lie all day with your face in the dirt.

Sykes said that during those 21 days every man got out once—for six hours in which to have a bath and change clothes. They shaved daily until water became a problem toward the end.

Millbrook Guild Officers Returned

MILLBROOK— (ENS) — The guild of St. Thomas Anglican Church met on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. Percy Hamilton for their nominating meeting.

It was moved and carried that the same slate of officers as last year should be re-elected.

They are: president, Mrs. Percy Hamilton; vice-president, Miss Ellen Kent; secretary, Mrs. H. A. Turner; treasurer, Mrs. T. A. Campbell; executive committee, Mrs. Fred Lowrey; Mrs. Charles Brackenridge; Mrs. William Hutchison and Mrs. Howard Lancashire.

The opening prayers were taken by the prisident, Mrs. Campbell treasurer, reported a profit of $140.35 from the bazaar, and tea held in the waiting room on Oct. 25, and that there was a satisfactory bank balance.

It was announced that the cards distributed to each family of the congregation at the beginning of the year with the request that 10c be placed in it for each of the 12 holidays of the year, would be collected at the December meeting.

Names were drawn for an exchange of gifts at the Christmas meeting. Final plans were made for a rummage sale to be held in the waiting room on November 8th.

Supper hostesses were Mrs. J. O. Medd and Mrs. Howard Lancashire. The December meeting is to be held at the homeof Mrs. D. R. Fowler.

Breaks Out of Pen

MONTREAL (CP)—Quebec provincial police reported today that Frank Klare, 19, of Montreal, broke out of St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary last night while serving a two-year term for burglary. No details of the escape were made known.

To Meet In Montreal

HAMILTON (CP)—The 60th annual meeting of the Amateur Athletic Union will be held in Montreal next November, it was decided today. Request for the diamond jubilee meeting by the Quebec branch was granted at A.A.U.'s 59th annual meeting but no dates have yet been set.

No Damage Reported In Sarnia Area

SARNIA (CP)—Despite near gale winds which swept this area yesterday and last night, no damage was reported here.

Northwest winds averaged 25 miles per hour with gusts ranging up to 40 m.p.h.

The U. S. Coast Guard station at neighboring Port Huron, Mich., reported storm warnings went up at 5:45 a.m. Wednesday but no distress calls were received.

Helpfulness

The poet, at sea and desperately sick, nevertheless wished to be carried on deck as the ship neared Gibraltar, and "full in face Trafalgar lay." In the poem as he surveys the scene of Britin's great naval victories is the line: "Here and here did England help me; how can I help England?—say,

"Whoso turns as I, this evening, turn to God to praise and pray.'"

Surely it might be a fitting question and prayer translated by every man into his own particular land and situation, who feels a debt to his heritage, and who would be a giver rather than a getter in a world in need.

Bethany W.A. Gives $100 To Church Board

BETHANY (ENS)—There were 21 in attendance at the meeting of the Women's Association of the United Church, held at the home of Mrs. Walter Rowland, with Mrs. Harvey Wallis presiding in the absence, through illness, of Mrs. Mansell Finney.

The secretary read the minutes and correspondence which included thanks from Mansell Wright for a Sunshine box.

Treasurer Mrs. Wellington Fallis reported the receipts of the turkey dinner held in connection with the anniversary services, showing a net profit of $192. On motion it was decided to donate a thankoffering of $100 to the Church Board.

Mrs. G. Waddell read the scripture lesson, with Mrs. Gervin Mulligan giving the lesson thoughts. As the December meeting will be the annual election of officers, Mrs. G. Mulligan, Miss L. Thompson and Mrs. R. Carr were appointed as the nominating committee.

Mrs. H. L. Challice had charge of the program and conducted a contest on Famous Personalities. The Rev. Jamese Hampson gave the topic on Self Discipline.

"Most of us have dual personalities . We must discipline ourselves in our every day way of living, so that the good in each of us is always uppermost."

Mrs. Harvey Fallis and Mrs. Wellington Fallis sang "Nearer To Thee."

During the social hour, lunch was served by the hostess assisted by Mrs. James McKinnon, Mrs. Frank Bigelow and Mrs. H. L. Challice.

3,280 Students Visit Public, Branch Library

Approximately 3,280 students of public and separate schools in the city visited the Public Library and Branch Library during October.

The children come to the library with their teachers in a class-visit program that has been conducted in Peterborough since 1947.

Miss Lillian Wesley, Boys' and Girls' Department librarian, said today that the purpose of these visits is to introduce the children to books suitable to their grades at school.

There will be four series of class visits during the school year. The next one will take place in November and December and there will be two series of visits in the spring.

Baptists' General Secretary To Preach At Murray Street

The Rev. T. B. McDormand, general secretary of the Baptist Convention of Ontario and Quebec, will be guest minister at Murray St. Baptist Church on Sunday.

A preacher who has an outstanding record of service across Canada, Dr. McDormand is a native of the Maritime provinces.

He graduated from Acadia University and served as a minsister in Nova Scotia. Later, he went to Alberta as minister of the Strathcona Baptist Church, Edmonton. He then became secretary of Christian education for the four western provinces.

More recently he has been joint editor of the Canadian Baptist and United Church Sunday School publications and editor of The Canadian Baptist.

During his term as general secretary, Dr. McDormand has given outstanding leadership in a program of church extension that has included the erection of 30 new church buildings.

He has recently been presented with his Doctor of Theology degree from Emmanuel College, University of Toronto and McMaster University, Hamilton, conferred on him the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity.

Dr. McDormand is greatly in demand as a preacher in both Canada and the United States. He will preach at both services at Murray St. Church on Sunday.

Heads A.Y.P.A.

KITCHENER (CP) — Gerald Kileeg of Toronto yesterday was elected president of the Ontario conference of the Anglican Young People's Association. He succeeds Bernice Baird of Ottawa. New African Riots Kill 28 In 2 Major Cities

DURBAN, South Africa (AP)—A new clash here between Negroes and police and a one-day strike threatened more violence today in race-divided South Africa, where 23 persons died in weekend riots in two major cities. A strong police force of armored cars and trucks patrolled in Johannesburg as a general one-day walkout called by the African National Congress started in eastern Cape Province. Few natives were seen on the streets. Following the riots at Durban and Kimberley, the Congress—spearhead of the native opposition to Prime Minister Daniel F. Malan's white-supremacy laws—called on all natives to be calm and avoid further violent outbreaks at all cost.

Two white persons, one a Roman Catholic nun, and at least eight Negroes were killed Sunday in skirmishes between police and Negro demonstrators in East London, a seaport about 275 miles south of Durban. Six government and mission buildings were burned.

Police fire from Saturday killed 13 Negroes and wounded 78 in the diamond mining centre of Kimberley.

Police opened fire again here this morning as demonstrators attempted to fire another building and stoned a fire brigade that had gone to the scene under police protection.

Police would not say how many negroes had been killed and wounded, but as firing could be heard in cordoned-off East London section from about 4 p.m. until about midnight, it was thought casualties were high. An early report said at least eight natives were dead.

Communities Ask Larger Grants For Gold Mining

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's gold mining communities today appealed to the federal government for bigger gold-mining subsidies to avert what they called a "perilous" economic situation threatening the future of 132,000 Canadians in mining areas.

"Pioneers we are, but we have no inclination to become nomads," a delegation said in a joint brief submitted to Prime Minister St. Laurent and his cabinet.

The 32 representatives from mining towns in British Columbia, Yukon, Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec said the rigid official price for gold and the climbing Canadian dollar is threatening to close many gold mines.

Under federal emergency gold mining assistance, gold mines selling to the official market receive subsidies averaging about $2.80 a fine ounce. The representatives emphasized that the formula was worked out when the Canadian dollar was at a discount to the American dollar.

But now with the Canadian dollar at a premium, the $35-an-ounce official price for gold drops below that figure when translated into Canadian funds.

The industry, with a capital investment of some $200,000,000, now is in a critical position, the representatives said.

They said they realized that Canada, as a member of the International Monetary Fund, has agreed to certain commitments, such as support of the official world price. They added:

"All international understandings that are contrary to our national economy should be immediately modified."

They suggested the government might encourage freer circulation and ownership of fine gold but even this type of policy was not without its dangers.

"Such a premium market is not without its own dangers and it will not solve the gold crisis. The marginal producers would be at the mercy of the speculators."

But the government could rescue the jeopardized industry by simplifying and revising the formula for making the subsidies and having the rate of assistance "greatly increased."

As an indication of the plight of the gold mining industry, the representatives said the communities need schools, hospitals, churches and other buildings.

NEW YORK (CP) — The New York Times today says Canada's development of its North Atlantic Treaty air base in France could well be a lesson to the United States.

In a dispatch from Gros Tenquin, the Times says Canadian liaison with French government officials and construction services made for speedy and efficient establishment of a base for its jet

The 2nd [illegible] wing, composed of 60 Canadian-built F-86E jets, now is housed in a 1,000-acre base which a few months ago was little more than a runway and a few hangars. French builders, working with Canadian plans, have erected 60 aluminum-sheathed buildings to house the 1,000-odd Canadians on the Moselle Valley tableland.

The Times says this progress seems to be due to close co-operation with the French "before the earth is turned." A delegation of real authority from Ottawa to Canadian officials on the job and diplomacy in dealing with Frenchmen from the government down to the local contractor.

Dances Highland Fling As Flak Bursts Above

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA, (AP) —The pipe band of the Scots Black Watch marched calmly in review today for the United States Marines' 177th birthday while Chinese flak chased Allied planes buzzing overhead.

Since it resembled no species of waltz, fox trot or jitterbug, the Marines were puzzled. So were Koreans who watched in amazement.

Probe $250,000 Cheque Fraud On Bank Of N.S.

MONTREAL (CP) — The Herald in a newspage story today says Montreal and Toronto insurance investigators are checking a $250,000 cheque fraud on the Bank of Nova Scotia.

The story says a Toronto spokesman for the bank early today confirmed the net take involved but refused further comment.

The fraud was reported to have been made from a series of falsely-certified cheques and originated in Toronto, national headquarters for the bank.

A Montreal executive of one of several companies the Herald says are faced with claims as a result of the fraud, indicated that investigation, under way for more than a week, has not progressed well.

He said he had "no idea" how many persons are involved in the reported fraud.

Both Montreal and Toronto police said they had not been called in on the case.

The story says there is no indication how much of the loss will be charged against the bank itself. The greatest loss would be to various insurance companies who share the "dishonesty" risk policy on the bank.

Legion Leaders To Ask For Higher Allowances

OTTAWA (CP) — Leaders of the Canadian Legion met here today to draft a demand for higher war [illegible] veterans allowances for needy and aged overseas veterans.

Legion headquarters said the improvements made in the allowances legislation by Parliament this year are "far from adequate."

The maximum rates now are $50 a month for single, $90 for married recipients.

The legion will present a brief to the cabinet Wednesday demanding higher allowances.

Shot At Flash Disarms Man In Dark

City Detective's Aim Helped By Luck; Three Suspects Jailed

Firing at a pistol flash, after a shot had barely missed him Saturday night, Detective Sgt. Clarke shot three times at one of two men he had surprised in the Beaver Lumber Co. yard.

One of those shots apparently found its mark, because a 9 millimetre German Luger was found on the ground. The exchange touched off a search that ended in the arrest of three men in Lindsay shortly after the brief gun battle.

Michael Metrunitz, 39, Jackson's Point summer resort owner, William Knutson, 22, also of Jackson's Point, and Walter Johnston, 227A Ossington Ave., Toronto, were brought to Peterborough for questioning and later turned over to Belleville police.

They face charges of shopbreaking, possessing stolen goods, and shopbreaking with intent, in connection with a break-in at the Belleville office of Trinidad Leaseholds where the safe was blown and more than $1,000 taken Saturday night.

BILLS IN CAR

After the trio were stopped in a late model Oldsmobile in front of Lindsay Town Hall, $1,031 in bills was found stuffed behind the rear seat of the car.

The men were brought to Peterborough and turned over to Inspector J. Clair Hayes of Belleville on Sunday.

Detective Clarke was driving along Crescent St., about 11.30 p.m. on his way to the police station when he saw two men disappearing over the east fence at the north end of the Beaver Lumber Co. yard, he believed they were intending to steal some lumber.

He drove around to George St., switched off the lights on the police cruiser and let it roll to a stop against the fence. Then, he climbed from the fender over the fence and walked toward the east.

U.N. Infantry Wins Two Hills

SEOUL (AP)—Allied infantry in 11 hours of close-quarter fighting today drove 1,300 North Korean Communists off two strategic hills on Korea's eastern front.

The Reds attacked in waves Sunday night behind a curtain of 4,000 rounds of artillery and mortar fire. They captured the crest of Anchor Hill at 6 a. m. and smashed to the top of another hill to the south at 6:25.

The United Nations troops counter-attacked and stormed back to the top of the second hill in just 15 minutes.

The Reds fought with bitter de- [illegible] at 8 a. m. and closed with the Reds.

CREST REGAINED

The United States Eighth Army said Anchor's crest was secured at 9:30 a. m.

ONTARIO CHAMPIONS ! ! !— Until Saturday, Peterborough's last O.R.F.U. championship was in 1907. But the Orfuns defeated Hamilton Panthers 28-23 in Hamilton for the intermediate "A" championship Saturday. The team will now meet Montreal in the Eastern Canada title game Saturday at Morrow Park. Fascists Gain In W. Germany

FRANKFURT (CP)—Rightist and Fascist forces scored sharp gains and Chancellor Konrad Adenauer's middle-of-the-road Christian Democrat party lost ground yesterday in local elections in three West German states. In lower Saxony, British-zone birthplace of the outlawed Nazi-like Socialist Reich party, two former Nazi officials were named to public office. Adenauer's chief opposition, the Social Democrats, held their own and gained slightly in some areas. The voting was for 96,000 local and district offices—mayors and city and district councilmen—in the British-occupied states of North Rhine — Westphalia, Rhineland Palatinate and lower Saxony.

Though issues were largely local, observers watched the results for indications of what lies in store for Adenaur's government in next summer's national elections.

Voting trends were the swing to the right, losses for the Christian Democrats and some gains by the Socialists.

Communists lost ground everywhere.

Radical right-wingers had burst out the day before the elections, with Swastika-stamped leaflets asking the voters to boycott the polls and "patiently" await the return of Nazism.

FREE DEMOCRATS GAIN

Provisional figures showed the Free Democrats gained 102 seats in the Rhineland - Palatinate for a total of 252 seats. The Christian Democrats led with 645 seats, a loss of 66 seats. The Socialists gained 24 seats for a total of 547. The Communists lost 59 seats [illegible] a total of [illegible].

Preliminary results from the states of North Rhine-Westphalia and lower Saxony indicated the Communists lost, there, too, while the Free Democrats scored further impressive gains.

The reorganized Free Democratic party, headed by Vice-Chancellor Franz Bleucher, supports private enterprise, private property and centralized government. One of its leading members to gain a seat yesterday was former Panzer Gen. Hasso von Manteuffel, who commanded the armored forces in Germany's Ardennes counter - offensive.

Almost 75 per cent of the 15,000,000 Germans entitled to vote went to the polls. They walked past huge Swastika-festooned billboards urging them: "Do not vote, but wait, we shall be back." The billboard campaign was conducted by the banned Socialist Reichs party.

$500 Orpen Cup Stolen In Toronto

TORONTO (CP) — The Orpen gold cup and saucer, made of 14-carat gold and worth $500, was stolen Saturday night from the home of industrialist E.P. Taylor in suburban North York. Mr. Taylor won the trophy at Long Branch race track with his horse Canadiana less than two months ago.

Police said they believe the trophy will be melted down and sold on the underworld gold market.

The cup and saucer was first presented in 1937 to honor the diamond wedding anniversary of the late Mr. and Mrs. A.M. Orpen, former owners of Dufferin race track here. A new cup is presented each year.

The Taylor home is the third mansion in the district to be robbed in the last two months. Jewels valued at about $50,000 were stolen recently from the homes of Col. Eric Phillips and J.S. McLean.

Officer Uses Necktie To Bind Girl's Leg

TRENTON (CP) — An off-duty police officer yesterday used his necktie to bind the leg of seven- [illegible] her right foot had been severed above the ankle by a train. A doctor later said the officer's action saved her life.

Sgt. Jean Paul Paquette was playing cribbage in his kitchen some distance from the railroad tracks near this town 10 miles west of Belleville when he saw a group of children leap from a moving freight train as it picked up speed.

C.I.O. LEADER Philip Murray, 66, died of a heart attack Sunday in San Francisco. Born in Scotland, he came to the United States when he was 16 when his parents came to the coalfields of Western Pennsylvania. This year he came close to reaching one of his dreams—a union shop for his steelworkers.

Court Hears Appeal From Jackson, Suchan

TORONTO (CP) — The appeals of Steve Suchan and Leonard Jackson against a murder conviction started today in Ontario Court of Appeal.

Convicted Sept. 29 of murder in the shooting of Det. Sgt. Edmund Tong last March, the two were sentenced to be hanged Dec. 16.

Evidence at the trial was that Tong was shot when he walked over to question two men in an automobile [illegible] and a fellow officer had halted at a west-end intersection.

Nehru Talks With Reds

NEW DELHI (Reuters) — Prime Minister Nehru has been in communication with the Communist Chinese premier and foreign minister, Chou En Lai, over the deadlock in the Korean Peace talks, it was learned here tonight.

Fatally Injured

BARRIE (CP) — Stanley Krol, 35, of Angus, was fatally injured last night when his automobile struck a cement culvert.

Autos Hit Head-On After Skid On Patch Of Ice

MARMORA (ENS)—Robert Norman Booth, 54, of Toronto, was instantly killed late Saturday afternoon in a two-car accident on Highway 7 which also caused serious injuries to three others, two requiring attention in Belleville General Hospital. The accident occurred on a hill seven miles west of Madoc. Injured were: Ronald Jenkins, 21, of Toronto, cuts requiring 48 stitches; John Rumisek, Toronto, fractured knee cap and face lacerations; Mrs. John Rumisek, injured arms and severe lacerations on right cheek.

O.P.P. Constable Arthur Belyea who investigated said that the Rumisek car, proceeding west, had passed two cars on the brow of the hill and was halfway down when it struck an icy patch on the highway. The Rumisek car went out-of-control and crashed into the eastbound Booth car.

KILLED INSTANTLY

The injured, Jenkins, a passenger in the Booth car, and the Rumiseks were taken to Dr. H. G. Parkin's office in Madoc. There Jenkins was treated, his cuts requiring 48 stitches. The Rumiseks were rushed to Belleville Hospital for further treatment.

Labor Restless In States With Wage Bars

WASHINGTON (AP) — There were indications today that organized labor in the United States is growing restive under continued wage controls and may soon be willing to join those who think the wage-price program is outdated.

No decisions have been made yet by top officials of the C. I. O. and the A. F. L. But the C. I. O. is expected to outline its views at its convention next week in Los Angeles.

Some top labor figures now are believed to feel that if the whole program were scuttled organized labor would profit.

High government officials were known to be examining the possible effects of eliminating wage and price controls despite the fact they do not yet feel that inflationary pressures have disappeared.

STUDYING APPEAL

Economic Stabilizer Roger Putnam now is studying an appeal from the soft-coal industry and John L. Lewis, president of the United Mine Workers, to overrule the Wage Stabilization Board and approve the full $1.90 daily wage boost the industry agreed to give Lewis' 375,000 bituminous miners. Lewis has now won a similar increase from hard-coal operators.

The W. S. B. cut the bituminous [illegible] to expire April 30.

Consumer's Revenge

BARI, Italy —(Reuters)— Because the loaf he had bought was burned, Sepastiano Lepore yesterday pushed the baker into the oven. Lepore, 31, was trying to slam the door on 45-year-old Griolamo de Nicolo when three policemen came to the baker's rescue.

C.I.O. President Philip Murray Dies In Sleep

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—Philip Murray, who rose from an immigrant Scots mine boy to become head of the C.I.O., died Sunday of a heart attack.

At 66 a veteran of half a century's work in labor's cause, he was stricken in his sleep at the Mark Hopkins hotel here. His wife, Elizabeth, awoke to find him sprawled on the floor beside his bed. Twenty minutes later a physician pronounced him dead.

Telegrams of condolence poured in from all sections of the country . . .from President Truman and high-ranking government officials . . .from William Green of the A.F.L. and John L. Lewis of the United Mine Workers. . .from Ben Fairless of U.S. Steel.

A thin, white-thatched man who never lost a faint Scots burr from his voice, Murray likewise never lost the ardor of trade unionism from his heart.

AT STEEL MEETING

A mine worker at the age of 10, he spent the night before his death at a meeting of his United Steel Workers, whose presidency he held concurrently with the presidency of the parent C.I.O.

There, he spoke of labor's gains, promised "wholesome support to any administration that has in mind constructive measures for the common people," and defied "special groups" to take away labor's gains.

While his advocacy of Roosevelt New Deal and Truman Fair Deal policies was well known, death sealed his position on future C.I.O. politics.

An early backer of Adlai Stevenson for the presidency of the United States, Murray declined comment

Vishinsky Asks UN Truce Agency

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky called today for creation of a U.N. commission on which Russia, the United States and Communist China would be included to settle the Korean war.

Other countries Vishinsky suggested for the commission were Britain, France, India, Burma, Switzerland, Czechoslovakia, North Korea and South Korea.

In a two-hour, 32-minute speech [illegible] political [illegible] all compromise proposals for settling the prisoner-of-war deadlock at Panmunjom and warned that adoption of an American resolution backing up the U.N. negotiators would wreck the talks and lead to protraction of the war.

Vishinsky warned that the Soviet Union "would not budge" from its insistence that all prisoners be sent home.

He urged the U. N. to instruct the commission to "take immediate measures for the settlement of the Korean question. . .including the extending of all possible assistance to the repatriation of all prisoners of war by both sides."

"Reasonable" Competition

Chevrier Announces New Airlines Policy

MONTEBELLO, Que. (CP)—The Canadian government has adopted a new policy to permit a "reasonable amount" of competition among scheduled regional air services, Transport Minister Chevrier said today.

Trans-Canada Air Lines, however, will continue to have exclusive operations in its present transcontinental air services, he told the opening luncheon of the three-day convention of the Air Industries and Transport Association of Canada.

Mr. Chevrier said that following the Second World War competition had to be "virtually eliminated" to allow operators to build up regional businesses.

GRADUAL BUILD UP

"However, with the substantial growth of traffic within Canada, it is no longer necessary to insist on monopoly conditions with regard to regional scheduled services, and government policy will not forbid the gradual development on a regional basis of a reasonable amount of competition between scheduled air services."

Government policy would also continue to support development of non-scheduled services, particularly in the development of the north.

"In the Atlantic area generally these will be provided by Trans-Canada Air Lines and within the Pacific area generally they will be provided by Canadian Pacific Air Lines."

Recent extension of services by the government-owned T. C. A. to Germany "by no means represents the end of T. C. A. expansion abroad." establishment of new routes abroad, however, would be slow.

SERIOUS DELAYS

"In some cases our plans for extension of Canadian routes may well be seriously delayed if not actually prevented by inability to make arrangements with other governments."

Mr. Chevrier listed recent fiscal changes by the government, lifting tariffs on certain types of imported aircraft, permitting operators to obtain loans from the Industrial development Bank and allowing them faster depreciation on aircraft for income tax purposes.

These changes would strengthen the financial position of Canada's commercial aviation.

Painless Parker Dies, Mixed Showmanship and Dentistry

Dr. Parker had his name changed in court in 1915 from Edgar Randolph Parker to Painless Parker.

In his 60 years in what he called "the noble tooth-plumbing profession," Dr. Parker made millions but lost much of his fortune in other ventures.

A native of New Brunswick, Parker started out on a theological career, then switched to dentistry.

He decided to mix showmanship with his profession. Dr. Parker hired a brightly-painted wagon and a cornet. He offered $5 to any one who suffered any pain when he extracted a tooth.

Detractors said the extractor blew so vigorously into his cornet while pulling teeth one-handed that nobody could hear the cries of his customers. The dental profession disapproved and Dr. Parker left for greener fields.

He tried his medicine-show tactics in Maine, Quebec, Michigan, Alberta, British Columbia and Alaska before moving operations to California.

Serious Drought Hits York County Lands

TORONTO (CP)—A serious drought is affecting land in York county and nearby districts. in some areas the ground is so cracked and hard that farmers are refusing to plow.

Fall wheat planted in September is suffering from the dry spell and farmers whose land is not near a creek are hauling water to their properties. Private wells are drying up and many households are buying thousands of gallons of water.

The meteorological office at Malton reported that rainfall during the last three months was "way short of normal."

Israel Founder C. Weizmann Dies Of Stroke

REHOVOT, Israel (AP)—Dr. Chaim Weizmann, 77 -year- old father of Israel, will be buried tomorrow near his home here in the promised land he helped build and led as its first president.

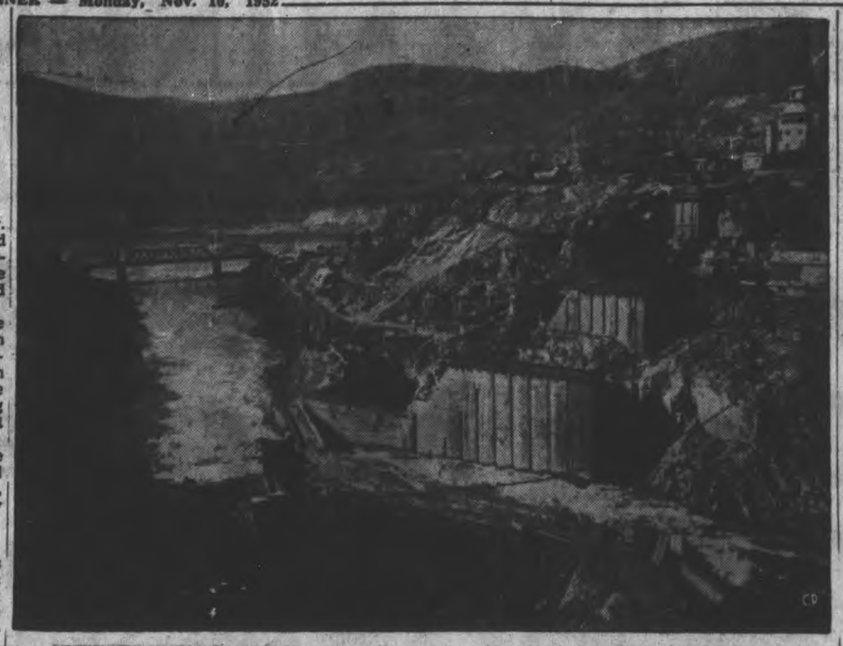
Messages of sympathy for the sorrowing young country poured in from world leaders, including President Truman, Queen Elizabeth and Secretary-General Trygve Lie of the United Nations, following Dr. Weizmann's death from a heart attack Sunday.

The president's mansion, on the coastal plain 10 miles from Tel Aviv, was open today to Israelites, some crying and some quietly chanting Hebrew prayers.

MOURNING WIDESPREAD

Special trains brought pilgrims to pay their last respects. Across Israel, all places of entertainment were closed in mourning. Premier David Ben-Gurion called his cabinet together Sunday for a memorial session.

Among the first to express condolences to the president's wife, Mrs. Vera Weizmann, was acting president, Joseph Sprinzak, speaker of the Israel Knesset (Parliament). A leading member of the Social Democrat Labor party (Mapai), he is a possible successor to the presidency.



Official bulletins said Weizmann suffered a severe heart attack at 1:30 a. m. Sunday and then another at 4:30 a. m. He died less than two hours later.

JEWISH HOMELAND DREAM

The homeland for the wandering Jews that Weizmann nurtured and saw grow in the middle-eastern desert was a dream of his boyhood near Pinsk, in Russia. He studied in Russia and Germany and taught in European universities. He became a naturalized British citizen in 1910.

In Britain during the First World War, he discovered a way to produce synthetic acetone for explosives. This and other services that aided the Allies in the war were said to have helped bring about the Balfour declaration of 1917, by which Foreign Secretary Arthur J. Balfour pledged his country's support to establishment of a national home for the Jewish people.

Dr. Weizmann spearheaded the drive for a Jewish nation as president of the World Zionist organization. Soon after Israel became a reality in 1948, he was chosen its first president.

GIANT DAM—At the confluence of the Pond d'Oreille and Columbia rivers, 13 miles south of Trail, B.C., the $30,000,000 Waneta power plant being built for the Consolidated Mining and Smelting Company is expected to be in production early in 1954. Overall height of the dam is 250 feet with a spillway drop of 200 feet. Top length is 900 feet. The two rivers meet near the bridge in the background.

North Bay Man, 35, Lost In Timagami Bush

NORTH BAY (CP) — Arthur Barbe, about 35, of North Bay last night was reported missing in woods in Law township, south of Timagami.

His brother, Robert Barbe, said they were to meet yesterday noon after hunting in an area about two miles square. He said he waited until dark before calling police. He said his brother suffered from a weak heart.

Obituary

ALLEN EARL DEEN

He was the son of John Deen, and the late Agnes Nelson, and the husband of the former Annie Barrens.

Born in Douro township, Mr. Deen farmed all his life on his lot 22, concession 2, Otonabee farm. He was a member of the Westwood Presbyterian Church.

Besides his wife and father surviving are: sons, Thomas and Jack at home; a sister, Mrs. Donald Wilson of North Monaghan, and a brother, William, at home.

The body is resting at the Mather funeral home, Keene, until noon today, then to Belleghem's funeral home, Peterborough, for service Tuesday at 2 p.m. The Rev. R. D. Duncanson of Norwood Presbyterian Church will conduct the service.

Atom Spy Waits For Jail Release

LONDON (AP)—The Western world's first atom spy is due for release from jail in a few weeks—and Britain doesn't quite know what to do about him.

When Dr. Alan Nunn May gets out he'll be freer to move around than an ordinary tourist in Britain. Foreigners here must keep the police posted on their whereabouts. May, an admitted Communist, will have no strings attached to him.

The shy, 41-year-old scientist has never publicly repented for passing vital atomic secrets to the Russians. A one-time scientific worker in Canada, he was arrested as a result of Canada's 1946 spy probe. All May would say when he was caught was that he did it for the safety of mankind.

Under British judicial custom—for spy or milk-bottle thief—May is entitled to time off for good behavior. This means his 10-year sentence will be cut to 6½ years, setting him free in December.

The specific charge against May was communicating official secrets to an unknown person which might be useful to an enemy.

Toronto Baptist Church May Take Associates

TORONTO (CP) — A suggestion that a Baptist church here take associate members has been made by a special committee of that church.

The report to members of Park Road Baptist church proposes (1) establishment of associate membership, with limited privileges, for non-immersed believers, or, as an alternative, (2) open membership.

As each Baptist church is self-governing, Park Road Church could adopt either innovation for itself without affecting any other church. Another Toronto church, Yorkminster, has adopted associate membership.

last week when Stevenson went down to defeat at the polls.

The union's national convention in Los Angeles was to open a week from today, but there were indications it would be postponed.

As for Murray's successor, much of the speculation is centred on two men—Allan S. Haywood, veteran C.I.O. executive vice-president, and Walter Reuther, United Automobile Workers' president.

Haywood, long a stalwart in the C.I.O.'s organizational campaigns, is a veteran administrator. But his age, 64, could work against him.

Reuther, 45, head of the powerful auto workers' union, is popular and energetic. But he may not want the responsibility of both jobs.

Red Celebration Starts U.K. Brawl

LONDON (AP)—A Red revolution celebration attended by the Red Dean of Canterbury and a counter-demonstration by the British Union Movement touched off a street brawl in London Saturday night.

The Union Movement is the post-war revival of the Hitler-loving organization founded by Sir Oswald Mosley.

Top iron curtain country diplomats assigned to London were at the rally celebrating the Russian revolution anniversay, along with the Red Dean, who was loudly applauded for his pro-Soviet speech.

Communists and anti-Fascist Britons clashed with Union Movement members for about 15 min-[illegible] the counter-rally, but heck-[illegible] The factions fought with rotten apples, stones, fireworks and fists before the battle was brought control. No serious injuries were reported.

Stock Prices Weaken, Toronto Trading Slow

Volume for the first three hours totalled 799,000 shares.

Base metals recorded a balance of gains and losses although leading issues rose. Steep Rock gained 60 cents in the first three hours in a turnover of about 12,000 shares and Silver Miller dropped pennies in a 64,000-share turnover. Cassiar and United Keno gained.

Price changes were generally small in western oils although Britalta dropped more than 25 cents in the first three hours and Western Leasehold gained a similar amount. New Continental slipped.

Papers were one of the few firm spots in the industrials list as banks and refining oils slipped. Most issues were mixed.

Senior golds were mixed. Giant Yellowknife added 35 cents but junior producers showed more losses than gains. Hard rock added pennies in active trading but Broulan Reef slipped. Conwest and Gunnar gained.

Van Fleet To Get New Assignment

SEOUL (AP)—Gen. James A. Van Fleet will leave his post as commander of the U.S. Eighth Army in Korea within 60 days, The Associated Press learned on good authority last night.

The future assignment of the 60-year-old four-star general probably will hinge on conversations with president-elect Eisenhower, when the latter visits Korea, possibly late this month or in December.

There have been recurrent rumors since last summer that Van Fleet would retire from active duty early next year. He has been in Korea almost 19 months.

It could not be learned here who Van Fleet's successor would be. Among those prominently mentioned for the post was Lt.-Gen. Maxwell Taylor, former commandant at West Point.

Fallen Are Honored At Alderville Service

ROSENEATH (ENS)—A special Remembrance Day service was held at Alderville United Church and Cenotaph on Sunday afternoon.

The service was conducted by the pastor, Rev. J. N. Lovelace. The guest speaker was Mr. H. Lander, Cold Springs, a former pastor and veteran of World War I. He chose as his subject "Blessed are the Peacemakers."

Alderville mixed choir was in charge of the music, with Mrs. Norman Marsden at the organ. The choir sang two anthems, "On the Victory Side" and "Hallelujah Praise Jehovah."

Cobourg Branch of the Canadian Legion in command of A. MacIvor and headed by the 33rd Med. Regiment Band with Bandmaster Archie Bassenger attended the worship service and later marched to the Cenotaph with H. Hilliard and Kingsley Cockburn as color bearers.

Wreaths were placed on the cenotaph by Mrs. Ernest Crowe for Wm. Hagaar; Mrs. Samuel Beaver for her son, Arthur Beaver; Mrs. Albert Crowe for her brother, Smith Comego; Alfred Simpson for his brother, Archibald Simpson; Mrs. Moses Smoke for Robert Tobico.

Reveille and Last Post were sounded by Bugler Sidney Merry.

CCF Condemns Ruling On Quebec Margarine

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec section of the C.C.F. party in a resolution adopted Saturday at the annual convention, protested against Premier Duplessis' announcement that an individual obtaining a conviction of a person violating margarine laws will receive half the fine imposed.

The premier at a press conference Friday said new steps to curb illegal sale will be introduced as amendments to the present law at the next session of the legislature. The steps will include confiscation of vehicles transporting margarine and will also authorize individuals to take court action against violators.

The C.C.F. resolution said the law "will encourage the citizens of Quebec to act as informers on their neighbors."

Safe Found In Canal Containing $45,000

WELLAND (CP) — A safe containing some $5,000 and $40,000 in stamps and money order forms was recovered today from the Welland Ship Canal two miles north of here. The safe was stolen Oct. 15 from the post office here.

A truck police said they believed was used to take the safe to the canal was discovered Friday under water in the canal.

"But in the last year, with the future of the gold mining industry so dark, we have often been unable to complete the sale of the necessary debenture bonds for these necessities, even when we have offered as much as 5½ per cent in interest."

In Ontario, employment in the industry during 11 years had dropped sharply to 12,860 in 1952 from [illegible] the gold mines continues in the present way, there will be thousands and thousands of citizens with investments in homes, schools, churches and public utilities stranded with no future, no hope.

"Our people have contributed much to the national economy. We feel we must have some measure of economic stability and security in return.

An indication of the industry's plight was the situation facing communities in the Bridge River Valley of British Columbia, the spokesman said.

"The 2,500 persons in these communities are completely dependent on gold mining for their living. Because the valley is 50 miles west of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway all freight, supplies and personnel must be transported 50 miles over a mountainous road.

"The lowered value of gold has placed the mines maintaining these people in difficulties. Closure of these mines would neceessitate the mass evacuation of the people in the valley to some other centre.

"It is certain that many of them could not pay their way out of the valley, and for those who own their own homes, their investment would be a total loss. Many of the people have lived in these communities for 20 years."

The situation in that B. C area, said the representatives, is acute but it is typical of the situation facing most other mining communities across the country.

Shot At Flash

As he came into the lumber yard, he saw a man running east, along a shed on the north side.

CHASED MAN

When the man failed to heed his order to stop, Detective Clarke ran around after him. Just then, the detective was silhoutted by the reflection from lights along George St., and someone who appeared to be at the north gate fired at him. A bullet whined past, barely missing him.

Detective Clarke then fired three times in the direction of the pistol flash. One bullet apparently knocked the gun from the man's hand, as Detective Clarke and Patrol Sergeant Harold Mesley later found a Luger with a bullet imprint on it on the ground near the gate. After the shots were fired, both the man he had been chasing and the other one who did the shooting were last seen by Detective Clarke as they ran south.

DISAPPEARED

By the time Detective Clarke got over the fence, the men had disappeared and so had a car he had seen parked near the gate with its lights out, when he first spotted the two men going over the lumber yard fence.

He asked a passerby to phone for help, circled the vicinity to see if there were any suspicious looking men on nearby streets and radioed Sgt. Leo Murphy at the police station.

Sgt. Murphy alerted provincial police, and gave them the brief description Detective Clarke had of the car.

A roadblock was set up at the junction of Highways 35 and 7 just south of Lindsay.

When a car answering the description was spotted by provincial constables Tom Fitzpatrick and George Mount-Stephen of the Lindsay detachment, they followed it into Lindsay and stopped it in front of the Lindsay town hall and police station.

Metrunitz, Johnston and Knutson were in the car. None of them were armed.

Metrunitz is well known around Jackson's Point as a sportsman and owner of Sunnybrook Lodge, and the former Liberty Hotel at Jackson's Point. He owns three autos and a station wagon and frequently drives Jackson's Point residents to out-of-town hockey games. He is married and has three children.

It was decided to hold the christmas turkey draw and dance.

Bro. H. Sissons of Carmen Manitoba a native of these parts who has been away for over fifty years was a welcome visitor to the lodge.

Before the lodge meeting the members enjoyed a fowl supper prepared by the members wives, and served in the Anglican Church basement. The following ladies Mrs. E. Lewis, Mrs. A. Nelson, Mrs. R. Eagleson and Mrs. R. Kidd were in charge of the arrangements.

Bancroft News

Friends will be happy to learn that Mrs. Joseph O'Brien is recovering nicely from major surgery at St. Joseph's Hospital in Toronto.

There is a noticeable absence of members of the male population of the village these days, the men being away for the hunt. More than one business is closed for the deer season. Many "Hunters' balls" are planned and the season should prove to be quite festive despite the comparative lack of game.

A recent visitor with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Johnson, Bird's Creek, was L.A.C. Don Johnson, of the R.C.A.F. station at Trenton.

LeansOnShotgun Megary Boy Seriously Hurt

BANCROFT (ENS) —Fifteen-year-old Harry Grant was wounded in the shoulder when the shotgun on which he was leaning accidentally discharged and blasted through his armpit and out behind his right shoulder.

Grant, son of Mr. and Mrs. Alexander Grant, of Megary, five miles south of Maynooth, was out Sunday morning with his father, only a short distance from his home.

It is believed the boy had stopped and was leaning with the muzle of his 16 gauge shotgun under his right arm pit and the butt on the ground.

MISSES BOY'S LUNG

His father, about 300 yards away, heard the shot and then his son's scream. He ran to the boy and found him kneeling with the wound on his shoulder.

Mr. Grant ran to a neighbor's house for help and another neighbor, Frank Peever, drove to Bancroft for help.

In the meantime, the boy was put in a half-ton truck and was being brought to Bancroft. About three miles south of Megary, the half-ton truck was met by a police cruiser and an ambulance and the boy was transferred.

He was given a blood transfusion from high school teacher Bill Morrison by Dr. S. S. Lumb.

Constable George Lloyd is investigating the accident.

Anti-Picketing Ban Extended

TORONTO (CP) — An anti-picketing injunction granted Sarnia contractors was extended indefinitely today.

However, Mr. Justice F.H. Barlow ruled that it would be reconsidered on two days' notice.

Picketing started Oct. 29 when some 3,000 construction workers left their jobs to protest hiring of non-union labor and sub-standard wages.

Most of the men returned to work Nov. 3 but "flying squads" of unemployed members picketed a different project each day.

The seven companies involved were granted an eight-day injunction to halt picketing Nov. 5 and W.A. Donohue, counsel for the contractors, said application would be made to have it extended.

Death Toll Hits 18 On Weekend In East Canada

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Highway accidents, drownings, burns and electrocution were among the causes of death for 18 persons in Eastern Canada during the week-end. Eleven died in traffic accidents, three from drowning and four from other causes.

Highest toll, a survey today showed, was in Quebec where eight died, six in traffic, one by drowning and one other. Ontario, with two in traffic, one by drowning and one other, and Prince Edward Island, with three in traffic and one other, followed with four each. Newfoundland had one drowning and one other.

Three persons were killed at New Perth, P.E.I., when a half-ton truck overturned. They were Cecil Naddy, 23, of Greenfield, Gerald Dunn, 17, of Victoria Cross, and Edith MacKinnon, 17, of Milltown Cross.

The other P.E.I. death was that of Linda Fay Palmer, 3, who was burned in her Summerside home. It was believed she had been playing with matches.

At Kingston, Lieut. W. G. Tivy, 20, of Kingston, a Reserve Army officer, was electrocuted when the radio antenna he was removing touched high tension wires.

Ontario traffic deaths: William Venn, 21, of Box Grove, when the car he was riding in crashed into a ditch; Robert N. Booth, 54, of Toronto, in a two-car crash two miles east of Marmora.

Donald Scott, 9, was drowned when he slipped from a dock into the Detroit River at Windsor.

Two Small Boats Remove 68 Cattle From Island

By WILLIAM W. REID

CAMPBELLFORD— (ENS) — It was back to civilization on Saturday for 68 head of cattle and two horses, when the animals were removed from their summer pasture on Wight's Island in Rice Lake and taken by boat back to the mainland at Sandercock's Point.

Every fall, the cattle are taken from their summer home on the island and placed in winter quarters on the mainland. The job of bringing the cattle from the island each fall, and also of placing them on the island about the first of May each year, has become an event in the lives of people of the district. The operation has been going as long as residents of the area can remember.

Charles Brown and Frank Parker, both of Roseneath, formerly owned the island and these men used it to pasture cattle. A number of years ago the island was sold to George Ward of Peterborough and Clarke Sandercock of Roseneath. Pasture land in the area is at a premium, so the owners decided to place the cattle on the island in the spring, and leave them there all summer.

SCOW ONCE USED

Several years ago, a large scow was used to transport the animals to and from the island, but the march of time and the damage done through the elements and the cattle eventually rendered the barge useless and its life as a cattle transport ended.

When Mr. Ward of Peterborough bought an interest in the island pasture, he built two large rowboats. On these he built a platform to carry a fenced-in area about four feet wide and twelve feet long. It is in this enclosure that the cattle are carried. The two bats with the platform are towed by a third boat, powered by a 5 horsepower outboard motor, operated by Clarke Sandercock. One or two motor failures in mid-stream has taught Mr. Sandercock to carry a spare motor in his boat. The craft makes about four knots with its load of cattle and a half dozen men.

On the island, which contains about 300 acres and is the largest in Rice Lake, a corral has been built, and each year about the first week of November, the cattle are rounded up and placed in the enclosure. Rounding up the cattle can sometimes be quite a chore, and sometimes proves to be a greater task than the one involved in getting the animals to the mainland. They become quite wild during their summer 'vacation' on the island, and appear to have no desire to return to life in a barn.

Sometimes during the trip to the mainland, the animals become frightened and kick the sides out of the corral on the improvised ferry. At other times the cattle jump into the water and have to swim to shore. They can usually be coaxed along by the crew, but once in a while an animal has to be towed in. Often, another boat is used to round up swimming cattle.

On the first trip from the island on Saturday four cattle were brought over. The trip was made without accident until the men started to unload the cattle. Two heifers went over the side of the boat into about ten feet of water. They bobbed to the surface and immediately started swimming, not for the nearby shore, but directly back to the island. They were soon rounded up and taken ashore.

BREAK WAY THROUGH ICE

The operation this year was not as difficult a task as that of last fall. The cattle were removed from the island on November 6 last year, and the crew had to break their way through an inch of ice on the lake. After a narrow channel was broken the ferry shuttled back and forth, and several cattle jumped off the boat into the icy water and had to swim or be towed ashore. They seemed none the worst for their experience.

The spot where the cattle are unloaded is now known as Sandercock's Resort, but was formerly known as Dunnitt's Landing.

It was a dawn to dusk project on Saturday, with about 20 trips necessary to remove the cattle.

Mrs. Sandercock told The Examiner that it takes more trips to bring the cattle back than it does to take them over. They grow considerably during the summer on the island. Holsteins, Durhams and one Jersey were among the animals moved. Twenty men working in shifts were required to complete the job. Extra men had to be taken to the island to help round up a couple of strays that broke out of the corral.

After the cattle are landed on the mainland, the various owners sort them out and move their animals to winter quarters.

Small Child Suffers Burns From Coffee

ROSENEATH (ENS) — Joane Coyle, 15-months-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Coyle, was severely burned on Saturday evening when she reached up to the supper table and upset a cup of hot coffee. She suffered burns under her chin, neck, shoulders and chest.

Her parents rushed her to the office of Dr. Blackwell, Cobourg, and she was later removed to Cobourg General Hospital, where her condition is reported favourable.

Fractured Back Man Recovering

BANCROFT (ENS) —Word has been received from Toronto, that Harold Bloom, 22, seriously injured in a motor accident on the Lake St. Peter road on November, and is out of danger. He is suffering a broken back in addition to the skull injuries sustained in the accident.

Bloom was hurled 50 feet through the air when the car in which he was a passenger rolled over after leaving the Maynooth-Lake St. Peter highway. The injured man was rushed to Toronto by ambulance after treatment by Dr. M. L. Mador at Bancroft hospital suffering undetermined injuries.

It is reported that the well known Maynooth garage employee will face long months of hospital confinement. Driver of the car, Arthur Breach, Belleville, has been charged with careless driving under the Highway Traffic Act.

Quebec Planning Abolition Of 103-Year-Old Courts

QUEBEC (CP) — Abolition of one of Quebec's oldest law courts will be proposed by the Quebec Government during the session of the legislature opening Nov 12.

Premier Duplessis announced Friday that a bill will be introduced to abolish the Montreal district circuit court.

The court, organized in Montreal in 1893 after some bickering between federal and Quebec authorities, has not had a new case since 1945.

A provincial court has had equivalent jurisdiction since then and today Montreal's circuit court exists only in principle. Vacant judgeships have not been filled by the federal government which appointed and paid circuit court judges.

Since 1945 circuit court work had been confined to hearing naturalization applications. This work presumably will be carried out in Montreal by magistrate's court as now is the case in Quebec's other judicial districts.

District circuit courts were established in 1849 to hear civil suits involving small amounts. However, superior court judges served in these courts and the large number of minor cases gradually clogged judicial activity in superior and circuit courts.

In 1869, magistrate's court was established by the Quebec government to relieve this situation. The new court was given jurisdiction in civil suits involving amounts of $25 or less.

In 1888, the Quebec government abolished Montreal's Circuit Court, and set up a magistrate's court.

There ensued a constitutional tangle between federal and provincial authorities resulting in abolition of magistrate's court in Montreal four years later. Magistrates in office were promoted to the revived circuit court which began operating as such in 1893.

When magistrate's court was reorganized by the Liberal administration of Premier Taschereau in 1922 no attempt was made to abolish the Montreal court.

WIDER POWERS

Since Premier Duplessis' first Union Nationale administration, the Provincial Court's jurisdiction has been extended steadily and in 1945 it was established in Montreal without disturbing, theoretically at least, the Circuit Court's powers.

Today, Magistrate's court has jurisdiction in all civil suits up to $200 and in school, municipal and many provincial matters.

During the forthcoming session, wider powers will be given Magistrate's court and while its name will not change, its magistrates will be given the title of district judges.

Labelling The Candidates

The Select Committee of the Ontario Legislature studying election procedure with a view to amending the Election Act of the Province has recommended several good changes; for instance, the appointment of permanent returning officers. Two recommendations which have appeared do not seem as good or to be necessary. One is that the minimum election campaign time be extended; the other that the ballot papers give the party affiliation of the candidates.

* * *

At present the minimum time between calling an election and the voting is 37 days in summer, 44 days in winter. The committee has recommended that this period be extended to 55 days, whatever the time of year. This seems odd, for travel and communication throughout the constituencies and Province have never been easier or quicker. A longer period should not be needed, even to provide for the soldier vote. We note that the purpose is to regulate the minimum, not the maximum time permitted, but a legal extension of the minimum time will encourage longer electioneering and a longer period when the Province has no Assembly. Neither is desirable.

* * *

The proposal to label candidates on the ballot as Liberal, Conservative, C.C.F., or whatever else their party affiliation may be, is nothing less than a further attempt to centralize political control. People would be invited to vote for a party, rather than a candidate, and the party is controlled from Toronto. The party and not the man, the headquarters' policy and not what the candidate stands for, are emphasized on ballots bearing party names. Such ballots may be helpful and necessary to servicemen voting far away, but within a constituency the candidate should be sufficiently well known not to need a party label on the ballot, and the voters should be sufficiently informed about his policies and party principles not to require direction at the polls.

* * *

The essence of parliamentary democracy is that people of a community (the constituency) elect one of their number whose good sense they esteem and whose character they admire, to be their representative and spokesman. He is not sent to the Legislature to represent a party or to be a thread in the party line. So the ballot papers have listed the candidates' names and occupations, and not their parties. Let it continue to be so.

General Eisenhower's Trip To Korea

President-elect Eisenhower has announced that he will fulfil a campaign pledge by taking a trip to Korea to see "what may be done about ending the conflict there". Almost as soon as the news reached Britain, a Labour member of Parliament gave notice that he would urge Prime Minister Churchill to appoint Lord Alexander, Defence Minister, to accompany General Eisenhower. The member's query, it is said, will be made in the House of Commons tomorrow.

If the presence of a British observer on this forthcoming visit were considered proper and necessary, no better choice than Lord Alexander could be made. He ranks with the greatest generals of his [illegible] are former colleagues and friends. It is on the record that they enjoyed working together; each has expressed admiration of the other's abilities. However, if General Eisenhower's trip and its expected sequel are governed by proper procedure, it is doubtful if a British observer is necessary. It is also doubtful if Prime Minister Churchill has the power to order Lord Alexander to accompany a United States mission; he could order a British mission, but that would be another matter.

Presumably, President-elect Eisenhower will go to Korea to consult United States officers who are also United Nations commanders, and to appraise the entire situation with the view of suggesting a solution to the United Nations command. If that is the case, the suggested solution will be submitted to the British Government, and other governments participating in the Korean conflict, and their approval asked. That would be proper procedure, despite the fact that the United States is bearing by far the greatest portion of the burden in Korea. Admittedly, United States commanders have not always followed that procedure, but General Eisenhower's record in two supreme command posts has been characterized by scrupulous observance of the rules of military diplomacy. It would be surprising if he were to disregard those rules now.

Nevertheless, it is not difficult to understand the feelings which prompted the British Labour member's statement. General MacArthur's dramatic attempt to subjugate all Northern Korea and "have the boys home for Christmas" collapsed with a sickening crash, and the bare possibility of another dramatic attempt is enough to arouse apprehension. The question of peace in Korea, however, is already before the United Nations; there is some indication of progress made toward agreement on the lone issue on which the combatants now differ, the repatriation of prisoners of war. Any attempt to ignore these proceedings, or to ignore the other nations participating in Korea, would be one of the most damaging blunders conceivable.

Bermudans are annoyed by the British suction of their earned tourist dollars into the sterling pool. They look longingly at Canada, a Commonwealth dollar country quite flush with the dollars. In the Bermuda House of Assembly recently two members openly courted Canada. One said:

"The time has arrived when we should approach the Canadian Government and, on some basis, link up with Canada. I believe that is our place under the Crown today. I feel that a sensible step would be to make an official approach to Ottawa. Canada is our proper place."

Canadians should not take too seriously these Bermudian huffs; it is unlikely that the majority of the Islanders resent their present colonial ties with Britain sufficiently to want to break them and set up others with Canada and the Canadian income tax. However, a warm wind is blowing this way and the Assembly member may have been putting up a trial balloon.

Suppose Bermuda were to seek some sort of direct affiliation with Canada. How would Canada respond to the proposal? Do they want a winter playground of their own, a dependency whose natives are racially far different from them, a province 700 miles out in the sea and a thousand from the Canadian mainland? We think that as things now are, any kind of union, federal or colonial, between Bermuda and Canada would be attended by so many difficulties that it had better not occur.

Canada is not a colonial power. It has had no experience in administering colonies. Canada is not a great sea power. It could certainly not defend Bermuda. And Canada is not semi-tropical; it has had only a fleeting and fascinatingly foreign acquaintance with palms and dark-skinned people, through its touring citizens. We think that the fragrance of Bermuda can best be appreciated in Canada if there are no strings attached.

Apart from these considerations there is the matter of cost. It costs money to afford the luxury of a colony. It costs money to add another Province, as we are finding out from the Newfoundland experience. Newfoundland's entry into Canada may have been the finger of manifest destiny; affiliation of Bermuda with Canada is neither destined nor manifest. The Ottawa Journal says that Canada has an "inescapable moral obligation" towards the British West Indies colonies. We feel no such obligation, moral, immoral; and suggest that if there were one Canada might justifiably make it her business to escape it.

Small Chinatowns

Every city of metropolitan status on this continent has a section known as "Chinatown". Sometimes it is only a couple of blocks, sometimes it is extensive. Until Chinese food became a vogue, most occidental residents of these cities knew their Chinatowns only as dingy streets of curious signs, little shops whose windows were as inscrutable as the proverbial Chinaman, and crowds of odd-looking Orientals, nearly all men. Chinatown was somehow disreputable and a quarter to be avoided at night. [illegible] sort of reputation made the Chinatowns of the continent loom larger than they were.

Now that Chinese food is considered to be a gourmet's delight, the Chinatowns have changed their faces, if not their back rooms. The dingy shops are painted, neon signs in Chinese and English seek to attract customers, and sleek cars are to be found parked along the streets in and around Chinatown. The section again looms large in Occidental citizens' minds.

It is rather surprising therefore, to note that in the great city of Montreal which has one of the largest Chinatowns in Canada east of the Rockies, Chinatown's population is less than five hundred. This fact was called to our attention by an account of the fifteenth annual convention of the Chinese Free Masons of Canada, being held this week in Montreal's Chinatown. The population, the report said, was swollen to 650 over the week-end because 150 Chinese Masons from all parts of Canada had come into it for their convention.

In some parts of Africa, we read, bagpes are completely consumed by ants. o watch a tiny ant consuming one of he large drones must be the most exciting spectacle since Jonah swallowed he whale.

Musical Notes

By PETER PIPER

AN INTERESTING instance of changing tastes is the vogue for duo-piano recitals. There are numerous excellent teams, and wherever they go they are well received. Fifty years ago this type of music was much rarer, especially in the concert hall. This accounts for the fact that the literature of works originally written for this combination is rather small unless one includes present-day composers, who have devoted considerable attention to it. There are, however, arrangements in plenty of works that were originally conceived in another medium, and they vary considerably in quality. Some arrangers cannot resist the temptation to put in too many notes: four hands can play twice as many notes as two, and some arrangers evidently feel obliged to keep them busy all the time under the principle that Satan finds some mischief still for idle hands to do! Consequently some scores sound overloaded with niggly detail. Good piano duo music is not only satisfying for the listener, it is also fascinating and exhiliarating to the performer. The pianist is all too often faced with the dilemma of working out his own salvation in solos or else submerging his personality as an accompanist There are of course other courses open to him, such as playing in a trio or a piano quartet or even being invited to take the solo part in a piano concerto, but these opportunities occur all too seldom, whereas there are usually more possibilities of teaming up with another pianist.

THE MAIN stumbling block in the way of aspiring duo pianists is the difficulty of acquiring a practice room with two pianos. Such rooms are usually in demand for teaching or other purposes, and the rooms in the average house are too small to accommodate a couple of instruments. Quite often pianos have to be moved from one room to another, round awkward corners and obstacles, and have to be replaced after use. But there is another way in which two pianists can get together and make music. The four-hand piano duet, once so popular, is at present overshadowed by the two piano duet. This is a pity, as there is a good deal of interesting material written in this medium. Mozart wrote five sonatas; the one in F major is one of those "forgotten masterpieces". In addition he wrote a Fugue and an Andante with variations, both of which are very rewarding. Beethoven's single essay in this field, variations on a theme of Count Waldstein, is an insignificant chip from his workshop, but on the other hand Schubert made a large and significant contribution of numerous pieces. They must have been in great demand in the intimate circle of his gay Viennese friends. In conformance possibly with the law of supply and demand modern composers have written very little expressly for four-hand duets except of a frankly educational nature. There are a few exceptions, such as Ravel's "Mother Goose" suite, which appeared in the forms of piano duet and orchestral suite and are equally effective. There are plenty of arrangements to choose from, both new and old. Before gramophone records were introduced the piano duet arrangements of symphonies, quartets, overtures and other works by standard composers were the only way for the enthusiastic amateur in outlying districts to get to know his Beethoven and Brahms. It is true that miniature scores were available, but score reading is a somewhat more advanced art. The Brahms symphonies sound very well in piano duet arrangement, and in fact some of the interesting detail that tends to get lost in the rich wash of orchestral colour stands out more clearly in the keyboard version. Beethoven's orchestral works survive the sea-change less well on the whole. They were conceived in more idiomatic terms, and many of the orchestral devices that he uses so freely fail to "come off" on the piano.

AN ASSOCIATION of musicians which has done much to raise the standard of church music in this country is the Canadian College of Organists. Unlike the Royal College of Organists in England, which is purely an examining body the C.C.O. has branches all over the country which meet periodically. At their annual convention, held in St. Catharines in the last week of August a resolution was approved that a motion be presented to the General Council of Churches expressing the regret of the C.C.O. that the choice of music at weddings is too often of a secular and inappropriate type. The C.C.O. hopes that the Council of Churches will take the matter up for serious discussion and the College will be most happy to co-operate in any way. Moreover a list of suitable numbers is being prepared by a committee. This is indeed a sore topic with many organists. Naturally the bridal couple's wishes in the matter of music should be met wherever possible, but the inclusion of unworthy music should be gently but firmly discouraged. Where the proposed number is of a frankly secular nature it should be pointed out that the church is the wrong place for it. This would exclude such a song as "Where'er You Walk", which in spite of its dignified and appropriate melody has not the remotest connection with Christian marriage. As a matter of fact there is a great scarcity of solos that are both musically worthy (and that does not mean that they need be difficult) and appropriate to the occasion. In this respect the outcome of the deliberations of the committee of the C.C.O. will be awaited with interest by many organists. It is one thing to condemn "Because", "I'll Walk Beside You" and the rest and another to make positive suggestions. One way of avoiding the dilemma is to dispense with the soloist and to adopt the custom followed in many English churches of having a hymn for the congregation to sing. But all the resolutions of the C.C.O. and the General Council of Churches will be of no effect whatsoever without the co-operation and support of the minister and the officials of the individual church. Without the support the only course of the organist is to wait until the next convention of the C.C.O. when another recolution will be duly submitted, with the same results. There is one ray of hope: the more publicity this matter is given the more should it cause the general public to give serious thought to it. The C.C.O. is to be congratulated for having raised this topic and setting to work to make constructive suggestions.

TO CLOSE on a more frivolous note a friend of mine drew my attention to an advertisement inserted in a newspaper recently by a prominent Toronto church which shall remain nameless. Amongst the functions listed was "Music Recital by J. S. Bach"! Apart from the fact that if he were alive today he would be 267 years old it is generally agreed in books of referenee that he died in 1750. As my friend remarked, it is surprising that the musical world has not made more of this event!

THE REALISTS WITH THEIR FEET ON THE GROUND

Senior Reptiles

(TIME MAGAZINE)

THREE U.S. zoos, in New York, Chicago and San Diego, will soon have live reptiles that were already old-fashioned when the dinosaurs were still young. Tuataras (Sphenodon punctatus), which look like 2½-ft. lizards but are far more primitive, were plentiful round the world 200 million years ago. Now, almost unchanged, they are found only in New Zealand, that ultimate storehouse for discontinued zoological models.

When white men came to New Zealand, there were tuataras all over the place, but man's pets and camp followers (dogs, cats, rats, etc.) almost wiped them out. Only on a few small islands did they survive. Even there the cats harried them until the New Zealand government curbed the cats. Then tuataras multiplied and they are now just plentiful enough to be shared with a few foreign zoos.

Reptile Curator James Oliver of New York's Bronx Zoo is impatiently awaiting his tuatara. The scaly, sluggish beasts are so ancient a breed, he says, that their forebears flourished when the sea was full of icthyosaurs. They were stepped on by dinosaurs, and their young were probably snatched by flying, reptilian pterodactyls. Some experts believe that all modern snakes and lizards are descended from the tuatara's order (Rhynchocephalia).

Tuataras are not only ancient, but odd. They have three eyes, one in the middle of the forehead. In humans, who may be descended, like the lizards and snakes, from something very like a tuatara, this third "pineal" eye has become the pineal gland deep inside the head. The tuatara still wears his outside, complete with a lens and an optic nerve. It may see a few dim glimmers with its third eye.

The tuatara is not outstandingly intelligent; its brain, only about the size of a green pea, is hardly a brain at all. When strolling leisurely, it drags its belly and tail slowly over the ground. When chasing a spider or a grasshopper, it rears up on all four legs, like an optional four-wheel drive, and makes better speed. Most of the time tuataras are silent, but during the mating season they speak to one another with froglike croaks. Their eggs, laid in petrel burrows (tuataras eat young petrels), take a year to hatch.

Curator Oliver would like to breed tuataras in the Bronx Zoo, but they have no external sexual characteristics. The only way to distinguish males from females is to wait for the mating season, when the tuataras, croaking, make their own decisions. New Zealand is not yet ready to release enough tuataras for this auto-selection experiment.

A Gentleman In The Old Tradition

(MONTREAL GAZETTE)

SIR MATHIAS TELLIER died in the way he would have wished to die. Though he had attained the great age of 91, he was active to the last. In the streets of Joliette over whose administration he had once presided as mayor he was a familiar figure, always dignified and courteous in his old-fashioned way—a man who stood for the gracious ways and the decorous formalities of living. He was on his way to the post office to collect his mail when death came to him, and in a moment his life of more than nine decades was at its end.

Sir Mathias had liked the political world. But he belonged to an older generation which took even its politics somewhat ceremoniously. He had represented Joliette in the provincial legislature, and had become the leader of the Conservative Opposition.

His was not a time of promise for his party—a time in opposition under the long Liberal ascendancy. Some of his supporters said that he was not the man to press an advantage. Perhaps there was some truth to the charge and it may be that he was not unwilling to make a graceful departure for the bench. There he served with distinction, rising to be Chief Justice of the Court of King's Bench (Appeal Side).

No man was more at home in the dignities and rituals of the court room. And his knowledge of the law, and of the constitution, was outstanding. Only last April, though in his 91st year, he and Mr. Arthur Beauchesne, the former clerk of the House of Commons in Ottawa, were appointed as advisors to the Quebec government on constitutional questions.

Sir Mathias enjoyed throughout his life the tributes that are won only by character. They came to him from all parties. Premier Maurice Duplessis described him as "one of Quebec's most eminent Canadians." And back in 1934 when his name appeared in the King's Honor List, the Liberal Premier of Quebec, Hon. L. A. Taschereau, said that "the Chief Justice truly merits the distinction and the choice made is a happy one."

Like so many of the old French Canadian stock, Sir Mathias had the marvellous inheritance of active longevity. And he had another inheritance that enriched the life of many another of his race—he remained loyal in his heart to the place near which he was born, which he had served as mayor and in the legislature, to which he had returned to spend his last years and, while walking whose streets, he died.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of him the bringeth good tidings, that publisheth peace; that bringeth good tidings of good, the publisheth salvation; that saith unto Zion, They God reigneth! . . .

Break forth into joy, sing together, ye waste places of Jerusalem: for the Lord hath comforted his people, he hath redeemed Jerusalem. The Lord hath made bare his holy arm in the eyes of all the nations; and all the ends of the earth shall see the salvation of our God. (Isa. 52: 7, 9, 10.)

Hardy Sheep For Newfoundland

(St. John's (Nfld.) News)

During the past half century successive Newfoundland governments have considered various schemes for raising sheep on a profitable basis.

None of the schemes ever materialized, however, for various reasons, one of them being the belief that our severe Winters made a large scale operation impracticable.

Now it appears a hardy breed has been found which it is believed will survive not only in Newfoundland but in Labrador.

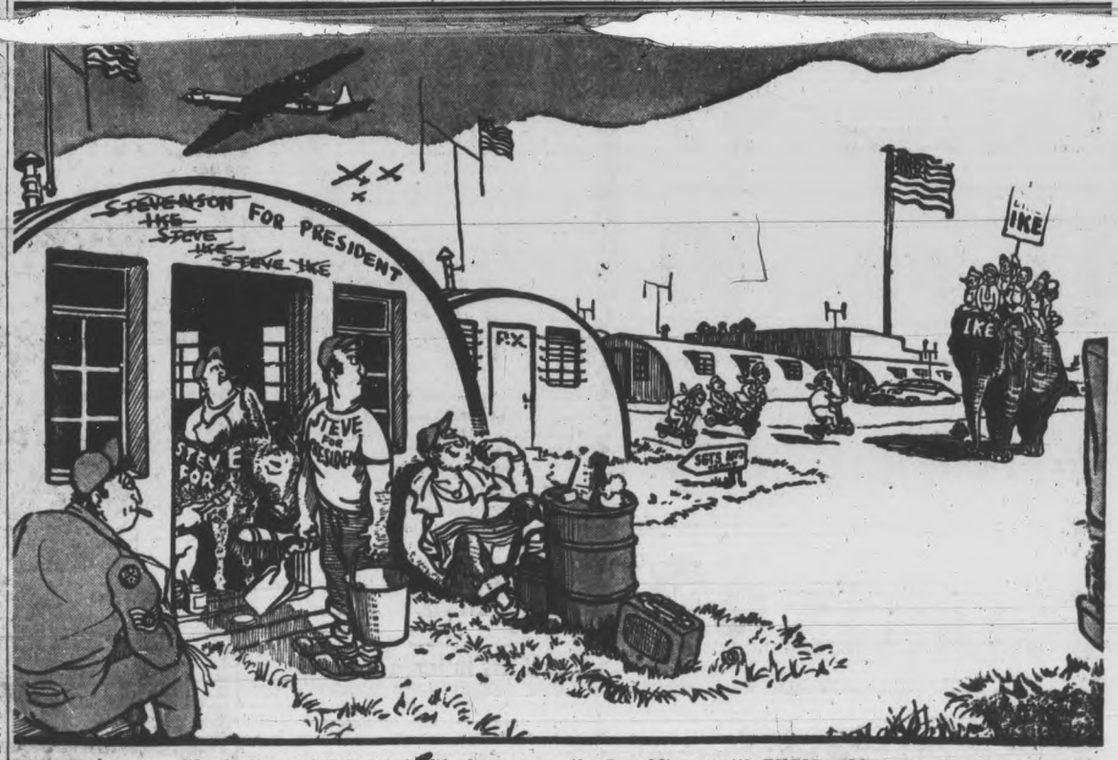
A small number of these sheep have been sent to Northern Labrador and if they survive the coming Winter it is not unlikely that an experiment on a larger scale will be carried out next year.

Closer home the Government have decided to encourage large scale sheep raising on the Cape Shore of Placentia. They believe that it is possible to maintain at least 5,000 animals on the plains in that area.

A Costly Case

(Lethbridge Herald)

The U.S. government estimates that it paid out $500,000 in legal fees to dismiss a $4,900-a-year printer. The printer, who was dismissed from his job in June of 1949 for "misconduct extending over a period of 2½ years", took his case to numerous courts. He finally lost his appeal on Oct. 13 of this year, more than three years after his dismissal, when the Supreme Court ended the battle in favor of the government.



The long fight, according to the dismissed printer, was aimed at clarifying the status of war veterans in government jobs.

We hestitate to think what might happen to a nation's economy if every civil servant dismissed from his job took his case to court. Fortunately, few could afford to do so.

Every Goal By The Rocket To Set Tough NHL Record

MONTREAL (CP) — Every goal that Maurice (The Rocket) Richard scores from now to the end of his career will set a record— a record that will be harder and harder to beat.

Saturday night, in a blaze of glory and amid an uproar such as is seldom heard in the Montreal Forum, the flashing Rocket scored the 325th goal of his career, beating the old mark of 324 set by Nels (Ole Poison) Stewart.

The record-book tally came from a backhand at 10:01 of the second period and gave the Canadiens a 4-2 lead over Chicago Black Hawks which they later stretched to 6-4.

The only other players now in the N.H.L. who have 200 or more tallies to their credit are Max Bentley of Toronto Leafs, Bill Mosienko of the Hawks and Woody Dumart and Milt Schmidt of Boston Bruins.

HOWE WAY BEHIND

They are all far behind the Rocket and even if Gordie Howe of Detroit, who isn't in that select group yet, keeps going at the pace he has been, he will have a tough time catching up to and passing the Rocket who, most experts believe, has a few more good years ahead of him, barring injuries.

The Rocket's goal came exactly 10 years to the day after he, as a raw rookie, scored his first N. H. L. goal.

On Nov. 8, 1942, he scored against Steve Buzinski, then goalie for New York Rangers. That game, too, was in Montreal — The Rocket's third after joining Canadiens — and it, too, came in the second period, at 9:11, only 50 seconds off the time of his record-breaker.

Stewart toiled through 15 seasons to get his 324 total, but the seasons were shorter then. Richard now is in his 11th N. H. L. campaign. Stewart played with the old Montreal Maroons, Boston Bruins and New York Americans.

Coach Dick Irvin of the Canadiens said he thought Richard looked as if he would faint after the feat. He tied the mark Oct. 29 against Toropto and he says himself he felt as nervous as a rookie ever since, the pressure was so tough.

QUEEN TO GET PUCK

After the game, Montreal managing director Frank Selke said the puck would be gold plated and sent to Queen Elizabeth who, as Princess Elizabeth, watched a regular Canadiens game with her husband, Prince Philip.

The puck will carry the likeness of the Queen and Prince Philip on one side; Richard on the other; and likenesses of his teammates around the edges.

Stratford Moves Into First In OHA Sr. Race

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Standings were shuffled in the Ontario Hockey Association senior A series during the week-end as Stratford Indians moved into first place with a one-point margin.

Sarnia Sailors moved into second with 11 points and Chatham Maroons dropped to third with 10.

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association southern group senior series North Bay Trappers and Sudbury Wolves are tied for top spot. Sudbury played to a 6-6 overtime tie with Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians Sunday. Saturday night the Wolves were crushed 8-0 by Sault (Ont.) Greyhounds at the Sault.

All the action in the O.H.A. senior was Saturday night Billy Flick led Stratford to a 6-2 victory over Chatham, Jack Ingoldsby scored three as Owen Sound drubbed Sarnia 10-3 and Kitchener-Waterloo squeezed past Brantford 6-5.

THREE FOR FLICK

Though Flick provided most of the punch with three goals in the Stratford win, his teammates Ferguson, White and Schultz each notched one. George Edwards and Joe Carveth scored for Chatham in a game in which Stratford led all the way.

Ingolsby rapped in his three goals in Owen Sound in 25 seconds as the Mercurys pulled away from a 2-2 tie early in the third period. Mike Bukacheski and Buck Forslund scored two each for Mercurys with Bill McComb, Tom Burlington and Doug Gillespie getting the others. Sarnia snipers were Skip Frezell, Roly Beauchamp and Jim Wilson.

Brantford came from behind four times in Kitchener before they finally bowed to the Dutchmen. Harvey Jacklin scored the winner. Bill Mitchell tallied two others for Kitchener and Bill Cupola, Jack McKenzie and Maurice Leveque each scored once. Bill Shill led Brantford with two and Don Oberholtzer, Jack Wade and Jack Taylor scored singles.

COACH GETS INTO ACT

Coach Johnny Horeck of the Sault Indians Sunday scored a goal in his team's tie with Sudbury. Other scorers for Indians were Jim Farelli, Jackie Heon, Ron Rubic, Vip Palladino and Laurie Peterson. Nick Tomiuk scored two for Sudbury while Mauno Kauphi, Johnny Mestan, Gordie Heale and Tatter McLellan had singles.

Saturday night the Wolves took the worst whitewashing of any team in the group this year when the Greyhounds scored eight goals. Terry Biochi netted two while the rest were spread among Matt Mesich, Dave Whalen, Joe Bumbacco, Don Johnston, Doug Towers and Hec Pozzo.

Barrie Flyers Drop Third To Three Rivers, Spits Win

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Losers became winners and winners continued to be losers in the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A League during the week-end.

The league-leading Barrie Flyers lost their third straight game with Quebec junior teams in the interlocking schedule, bowing to Three River Reds 3-2. The Flyers finish their Quebec tour tomorrow against Montreal Royals.

The cellar-dwelling Windsor Spitfires scored their first victory of the season by trouncing Galt Black Hawks 6-1 Sunday. Previously they had lost 11 and tied one.

FLYERS STILL ON TOP

Barrie remains the leader because of the Sunday doubleheader in Toronto which resulted in two ties. Any one of Toronto St. Michael's, Guelph Biltmores and Toronto Marlboros could have joined Barrie in top spot but since each gained only one point they remained in a tie for second place.

Guelph and the Marlies and Oshawa and St. Mike's both tied 3-3. In Saturday play St. Catharines defeated Galt 5-3 and Oshawa downed Kitchener 7-2.

The tie for first place in the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association junior race was unbroken Sunday as both league-leaders won their games. Quebec Citadelles nosed out the last-place Montreal Royals 3-2 in overtime while Montreal Canadiens blasted Three Rivers 11-2. The Reds are in third place.

NEVER IN TROUBLE

Oshawa Generals were never in trouble against Kitchener Saturday night. Fred Etcher paced the Oshawa attack with three goals. Jack Armstrong netted two and Marcel Maisonneuve and Bob Attersley scored singles. Orv Tessier and Glen Tessier scored for Kitchener-Waterloo.

Brian Cullen scored three goals to lead St. Catharines to victory in Galt Saturday. Freddie Haas and Joe Kastelic rapped in the others. Ed Switzer netted two for the Black Hawks and Peter Kowalachuk scored the third.

Windsor were never shaded as they took advantage of the absence of Galt's star centre Ken Wharram. Elmer Skov and Bob Brown each scored two for the Spitfires while Baston Marcotte and Ted Reid, who arrived from Marlboros, scored the others. Neil McDonald tallied for Galt.

Marlies held off a third-period rally to tie the Biltmores. Toronto led 3-1 after the second period on goals by Dave Reid, Billy Harris and Parker MacDonald. Billy McCreary scored the first and last for Biltmores while Chuck Henderson notched the other.

St. Michael's staged a third-period rally against Oshawa. Bill Stewart, Harry Siden and Bob Attersley gave the Generals a 3-0 lead early in the third. Then the Irish came back with goals by Ed Piata, who scored two, and Paul Knox.

PENALTY-FILLED GAME

It was a penalty-studded battle with several fights Saturday in Three Rivers. Raymond St. Cyr scored two for the Reds and Jean-Guy Gendron rapped in the winner. Skip Teal and Doug Mohns were Barrie goal-getters.

An overtime goal by Michel Labadie gave the Citadelles their edge over the Royals. Bert Lapage and Roland Leclerc scored the other two. Ed Swartzack scored both Montreal goals.

In the other Sunday game Montreal Canadiens had a scoring field day. Henri Richard and Guy Rousseau each scored three with Roy Boileau, Phil Gouette, Les Lilley, Claude Provost and Brian MacKay netting one each.

No junior games are scheduled tonight. Tuesday, besides the Barrie-Montreal Royals interlocking schedule clash, St. Mike's is at Galt and St. Catharines at Kitchener. In the Quebec League Three Rivers visits Montreal Canadiens.

Come-Back Kids From Edmonton Trip Winnipeg

By AL VICKERY

WINNIPEG (CP) — The "come-back Kids" from Edmonton have done it again.

Four-to-one underdogs, a sharp Edmonton Eskimo club upset predictions Saturday by walloping Winnipeg Blue Bombers 18-12 in the second game of their best-of-three western football final before a stunned partisan crowd of 9,600 at Osborne Stadium.

And Coach Frank Filchock of the Eskimos is predicting a victory for his club in the deciding game here Tuesday. He also said Edmonton will win the Grey Cup at Toronto, Nov. 29.

Bombers, favored on the strength of an impressive 28-12 win in the first game, crumbled as the determined Eskimos came up with an amazing reversal of form.

The performance was similar to the comeback which lifted them into the western final when they overcame a 19-point deficit to whip Calgary Stampeders 42-38 in a two-game, total-point semi-final.

SNYDER LEADS ESKS

Import, Wilbur (Bill) Snyder, formerly with the University of Utah and Los Angeles Rams, was Saturday's scoring hero, with 13 points on a touchdown, two field goals and two converts. Mike King scored the other Eskimo major.

Fullback Lorne Benson, rookie award winner and a graduate of Winnipeg junior ranks, plunged for one Bomber touchdown. Outside Keith Pearce, also a local, scored the other on a pass from quarter Jack Jacobs, who converted both.

Underdogs Cross Experts Take Weekend's Grid Games

By JACK SULLIVAN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

The next guy who tries to expert big-league football games in Eastern or Western Canada should have his head read. The game is slightly cockeyed.

Anything can—and does—happen as the experts know by now after taking a clobbering practically all season by the goings on of hot-and-cold clubs. Consider the weekend:

In the West, Winnipeg Blue Bombers were called to take the championship in two straight over Edmonton Eskimos following a clear-cut 28-12 triumph in the first game of their best-of-three finals. So Eskimos force a sudden-death game by crossing the sideline quarterbacks and winning 18-12.

The third game will be played at Winnipeg tomorrow afternoon.

Sarnia Imperials were expected to open the home-and-home total-point Ontario Rugby Football Union final series against Toronto Balmy Beach with a slight point edge. They mauled Beaches all over Maple Leaf Stadium at Toronto to win 41-12.

Toronto Argonauts, although assured of a playoff spot, were picked to wind up the Big Four schedule by handing Montreal Alouettes their 11th defeat in the 12-game schedule. The Als played like champions, walloped Argonauts 25-11 at Toronto and some of them may have earned 1953 contracts on their 1952 swan act.

TIGERS SAVE DOPESTERS

However, Hamilton Tiger-Cats, who meet Argonauts in the home-and-home total-point Big Four finals, made the experts look good. They defeated the Rough Riders 13-4 at Ottawa.

The Edmonton-Winnipeg game was a dilly. Bombers players received the western union's rookie-award-of-the-year (Lorne Benson) and most valuable player trophy (Indian Jack Jacobs) in a pre-game presentation. They should ave given Eskimo coach Frankie Filchock some kind of citation after the 60 minutes.

Filchock has set some kind of record for correct prognostications. He called the Eskimos to defeat Calgary Stampeders in the semi-finals after the Stamps opened up a 19-point lead in the first game of the total-point series.

All last week he called Eskimos to take the Bombers at Winnipeg on Saturday after Winnipeg won the opener 28-12 at Edmonton Now, says Filchock, Eskimos will win the Western Conference and the Grey Cup at Toronto, Nov. 29.

If nothing else, Montreal Alouettes can boast that they defeated the Big Four finalists this so-sad season. A couple of weeks ago they knocked over the Tiger-Cats.

ARGOS WEREN'T AFIRE

The Als went out with a flourish that might sway the front-office men when it comes time to talk about contracts. Argonauts weren't fired up for this one, but they would have had to reach the heights to match the Als' performance.

The last-place club roared from behind with three fourth-quarter touchdowns by some nifty running of backfield men and outsides while the fellows up front apparently were settling some old scores. The rough play netted the league $200 in fines.

Ed Salem was one of the big noises with a 15-point afternoon on two touchdowns, four converts and a single.

Sarnia and Balmy Beach finish their series at Sarnia Saturday, the winner to meet the Big Four champion for the Eastern Canada title. Beaches, steadily improving throughout the season, lost out 14-10 to the Imps in the last game of the regular schedule and supporters figured they could give the defending O.R.F.U. champions a big battle.

But Imperials made it apparent early that they were out to take a big lead into the second game. They led 7-0 at the end of the first quarter, 19-6 at the half and trampled Beaches in a 23-point second-half splurge.

World's Fastest Swimmer Furuhashi Quits Sports

By VIPOOR SUZUKI

TOKYO (AP)—Hironoshin Furuhashi, once the world's fastest swimmer, said today he has traded the thrills and headlines of sports for "a firm, steady job in a firm, steady company."

Furuhashi, 23, announced at a committee meeting of the Japan Swimming Federation his decision to retire from competitive swimming.

"I have done my best during the last seven years and I exerted my utmost at the Olympic Games this year," Furuhashi said. "I have finally come to the decision that I must now exert all my efforts to my job."

Furuhashi first attracted world attention in September, 1946, when he swam the 400-metre free-style in 4:46.2. He swam the same distance in 4:38.4 in 1947 and chalked up a world record.

In 1948 he had to his credit 10 world and 18 Japanese records.

But 1949—the year he went to the United States—was his greatest year. He swam 1,500 metres in 18:19.0 minutes; 800 in 9:35.2 minutes and 400 in 4:33.3 minutes, all world records.

He was, however, a miserable failure at the Olympic Games this year.

"I am not making any excuses," he said in an interview. "I have no excuses and no regrets. I am completely satisfied with my past —even my failure at the Olympic Games—because I know it was the best I could have done."

SUPPORTED FAMILY

Asked why he had failed in the Olympic Games, he said:

"When the chances are with you, you win. When they're not, you don't."

"I feel confident," he added, that "I could have won every race if the Olympics had been two years ago."

He said also there is a difference between a professional and an amateur. Furuhashi has never been what is known as a professional. His world records were gained when he was a college student.

Furuhashi was supporting five sisters, one brother and a sick father when he represented Japan at the Olympic Games at Helsinki this year. His mother died in 1946, the year his name was splashed over the sports pages of the world's newspapers.

His company gave him time off to practice and train in the pool of his alma mater, but "the two just don't go together," he said.

ONLY TAKE SO MUCH

Physical exertion under privation and lack of nourishment experienced by the entire nation during the few years following Japan's surrender began to tell on Furuhashi after seven years. He was an old champion when the Olympic Games rolled around.

"The body can take just so much, and no more," he said.

Furuhashi said he felt the height of human exertion and power had been about reached in swimming speed. What is going to count now are facilities and modern accommodations which will enable swimmers to achieve maximum practice during the winter months, he said.

"The world is catching up with us and surpassing us and we can never keep abreast unless Japanese swimmers are given better modern accommodations," Furuhashi concluded.

TITLE GOES TO WINDSOR

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Windsor AKO won the 1952 All-Ontario junior football championship Saturday by defeating Toronto Parkdale Lions 22-16 in a hard-fought sudden-death final game.

AKO will go to Montreal next Saturday to meet the Quebec junior champions in the Eastern Canada final. Winner of that game will play host to the Western Canada champion in the dominion final.

Toronto touchdowns were scored by Nayland Moll and Frank Chew. Pete Maik booted the convert and Rom Potter tackled Vernes behind the Windsor goal-line in the dying seconds of the game for a safety. Potter and Orville Scott scored singles.

The visitors tied up things in the last quarter and after a huddle of team mangers and officials, it was decided to play two 10-minute halves to decide the winner. It was very cold by the time the game ended in the late afternoon but every fan stuck to the last thrilling second.

Play was close in the first quarter but Jack Reeves of the Ghosts stirred things up with a long run from mid-territory to the Kitchener 15 yard line but went down before he could head into an opening to reach the goal line. On the next two downs the locals were stopped on the Kitchener five yard line. Neither team was able to score in the second quarter as the play was evenly matched. In the third quarter the first score of the game came when Hatt booted a single for the Ghosts. Brodie was a Cobourg casualty, getting a boot in the face during a tackle.

GOT A MAJOR

Kitchener turned on the steam in the last quarter and worked the ball deep into Cobourg territory where Fitzgerald took the ball across for five points. Crouse made the convert. Kitchener's major made the game score 6-1 and the score on the round was 18-all.

Neither team was able to break the tie in the first 10-minute half of overtime but in the second half McGee made a spectacular run to Kitchener's 17-yard line and took the ball again at the 10-yard line to go over for a touchdown that was converted. Pagnan, Kitchener end, took the ball at centre and ran along the side line, evading tacklers to cross the goal line for what appeared to be a touchdown [illegible] official declared that he had run over the side line. Kitchener didn't threaten after that and the locals were able to hang on to their six-point lead.

PETERBOROUGH ORFUNS TAKE ONTARIO GRID TITLE

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

Apsley is a busy spot these days with hundreds of brightly-hued hunters in and out of the village. We always try to make it for a few days when the hunt is on, and it's real outdoor fun—with plenty of work attached to it, too! Lot of folks say there aren't many deer being shot this fall, but dozens of car bumpers were decorated with bucks and does coming south from the village this past weekend. The odd bear and wolf have been shot, also. Ideal weather lately to stand on the watches as hounds bay in the distance, with the occasional crackle and crash through the underbrush and the roar of a high-powered rifle to tell the tale of the hunt. It's relaxing, as well, there in the autumn woods. As Mayor Waddell says: "No phones!"

* * * * * *

With the day's hunt over and a big feed of venison in one, you sit by the fire and talk over the kills and the ones that got away. Your host, who was up at five a.m. on the eve of his 75th birthday, and away for the day—he always gets a nice one within the first few days of the season—swings out gay tunes on the violin till midnight. There's singing and dancing and fun. The hunt in the Kawarthas is a bigger event each year. It's become quite an outdoor sport for two November weeks, and one who has ever sighted along a rifle at a deer can't keep away from it. And, as an afterthought, it's always nice to bring home some venison!

Orfuns Came Through

As expected by local grid fans, our Orfuns came through in top fashion Saturday in Hamilton. Toting a 15-point lead into the return game, Tony Kotowski's classy crew beat the Panthers 28-23 in their own lair to wrap up the O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" title by a round score of 53-33 right in Hamilton. We had no doubt they could knock off Tony Golab's good squad, after seeing Orfuns win 25-10 here a week ago. It wasn't that Hamilton didn't have a first-rate football club, as they won the Canadian crown in '51—but simply a case of Peterborough showing a better all-round team. Orfuns are worthy intermediate "A" champions of Ontario in 1952.

* * * * * *

They go after bigger game now. Montreal Lakeshores surprised Ottawa yesterday and handed the Riders' farm club a 13-7 setback in a sudden-death game at Verdun for the Q.R.F.U. title. That puts the Montrealers in against Orfuns for the Eastern Canada championship here this coming Saturday. A game which might set a new grid attendance record in Peter Robinson's busy borough. Winner of that one goes west to play Winnipeg Nov. 22 for the Canadian pennant. Yes, our Orfuns have come a long way this year, these Peterborough huskies and the Orillia aces in the lineup losing but one game so far this season. Swept Cobourg aside for group honors, ousted Hamilton and are ready now for Montreal. Tony Kotowski, Wally Farr, Jerry McGillis and Clive Naismith scouted the Montrealers in their Sunday scrap.

Played Like Champions

Orfuns played a solid game Saturday, getting some great work again from that big line to give the smart backfielders elbow room. It was a hard-fought fray, rough enough in spots, but Orfuns don't bruise easily. Panthers were strong in spurts but Orfuns had 'em over the route with real team play of championship calibre. No particular stars—just a chore well done by a team going places. Pass defence foiled the '51 champs and they couldn't even win at home, let alone whittle down that 15-point lead. No argument at all, and they congratulated Orfuns after a hard tilt. The winners had a large time afterward, but they'll settle down to hard drilling for the big one coming up on home terrain this weekend. They have every intention of bringing Peterborough its second Canadian sports' title in one year.

THESE TOUCHDOWNS HELPED — Tony Kotowski's Orfuns brought the O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" football championship to Peterborough. Defeat Hamilton By 28-23 To Sweep Round 53-33 For Intermediate Honors

By DON GRANT

It's been a long, long time (in fact it's been 45 years) since Peterborough won an O.R.F.U. championship. But it has one now, the O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" championship. Tony Kotowski's Peterborough Orfuns brought the O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" championship to the city Saturday by sweeping the second game of the two-game series with Hamilton Panthers 28-23 in the Ambitious City. It's been a long, long time but an Ontario football title is here.

The Orfuns downed the Tony Golab-coached Panthers for the second time to win the points-to-count series 53-33, winning a week ago in the first game 25-10. That 15-point advantage was never threatened in Saturday's game. It was Orfuns all the way.

Now the Orfuns will prepare to bring two other championships to town, the Eastern Canada and Dominion titles. The first they'll tackle at Morrow Park when they meet the Quebec champions in a sudden-death game.

The Orfuns Saturday played football and won the championship; the Panthers resorted to rough tactics and lost the championship. That's the way the game went.

STARTED ROUGH

In the first minute, game officials and the Orfuns could see what was going to happen. Roughing, holding, piling on and clipping penalties were handed out, mostly to Hamilton; the boys later in the quarter were grumbling and pushing each other; several threatened blows.

Finally, in the second quarter, Referee Charlie Rowntree called the teams together and warned that any players fighting would be thrown out. The rough play ended until midway through the third and it resulted then in Orfuns' star end, Clive Naismith, being thrown out.

Tempers still remained hot and in the final minute both teams traded punches. Police, referees and some players, not fighting, tried to separate the teams as they battled along the sidelines. But after the game players of both teams exchanged congratulations on the series; grievances were forgotten.

The Orfuns' superior line spelled doom for the Panthers, especially in the first half, when Orfuns added to their 15-point lead. Gord Beatty, Frank Fitzgerald, Floyd Ouelette, Ken Newark, Joe Berthelot, Bill Trimm and Clive Naismith, along with the others, ripped holes in the Panthers' lines for plungers and provided steady blocking for Jim Milligan on passes. Defensively, the Orfuns' line was strong; they drove in, rushing passing and kicking plays as well as stopping plunges for short gains.

SMART CALLING

The play-calling by Jim Milligan was excellent; he mixed passing and running plays well, always keeping the Panthers guessing. The Orillia-imported quarter outshone Panthers' quarter Ed Farr in every quarter.

Milligan shone especially in the passing department, although he didn't over-exercise his arm. He tossed two touchdown passes while completing five of nine thrown to Clive Naismith, Jim Wilde and Bill Trimm. His long deliveries to Naismith shook the Panthers particularly in the first half.

Meanwhile Farr was having trouble finding receivers without greasy fingers. He began to connect with short, snap passes in the second half when the Panthers opened with a desperation drive. Then he completed most of his seven out of 13.

But the major difference was in the plunging and running. Bus Jensen, Roy Armstrong, Bob White and Bill Huntley were playing their usual hard game while twice Ontario Champion Lou Nickle was outstanding on runbacks and statue-of-liberty plays.

Steve Fouchuk, who received an award as the Panthers' most valuable player this year, was held to short gains, but still was Hamilton's best. Steve Morelli and Reg Lewington with lengthy plunges in the second half nearly put the Panthers back in the game.

A LITTLE EDGE

The Panthers held a slim edge in the punting department. There Steve Fouchuk added more honors by out-distancing the kicks of Ron Hodson who was punting in the absence of Grove School teacher Jack Matthews. The edge was particularly noticeable in the final quarter.

Steve Morelli started the first score off by intercepting a Milligan pass midway through the first on the Orfuns' 43, running to the 31-yard line. There a Farr pass was ruled complete to the 10-yard

Curling Season Begins Tonight

Tonight 112 curlers commence the 1952-53 curling season and tomorrow night another 112 do likewise. They are all starting even but each hope to win their group and then have a chance to play in the final rounds for the Harry Foote Memorial Trophy.

So the curlers will know when they play schedule for the first three days is shown:

Tuesday, Nov. 11—7 p.m.—Group No. 3; 9 p.m.—Group No. 4.

Wednesday, Nov. 12—7 p.m.—Group No. 5; 9 p.m.—Group No. 1.

Have you decided to enter in this new competitive schedule? It will be played each Friday evening on the 9 o'clock draw. It runs through until the end of January. The idea is to try and bring out the best curlers we have and to promote real stiff opposition—but don't enter a rink just for the fun of the thing. This is [illegible] for Wednesday, Nov. 26. It's for mixed rinks and all the prizes will be turkeys.

The winning skips in the first Saturday afternoon bonspiel were: B. Jeffries; B. Harrison; D. Carr; G. Green and H. Baptie.

P.C.V.S. Seniors Capture Grid Win Over Oakwood

Who's the better, North Toronto Collegiate, winners of the Red Feather tournament, or P.C.V.S.' Garnet and Greys? That's the question P.C.V.S. students have been asking of the tournament two weeks ago and now they're wondering more than ever. Coach Bev Goulding's charges raced through Oakwood Collegiate's team 13-0 Saturday at Riverside Park in an exhibition game. This game was in preparation for the C.O.S.S.A. final next Saturday.

But the game also renewed the tournament question. It's happened this way. Oakwood lost 11-10 to Humberside who in turn Friday lost by one point to North Toronto in overtime, meaning there's not more than a couple of points difference between the teams.

Coach Goulding said after the game "that's proof that they are not much stronger, if at all." He added that if the Garnet and Greys played against North Toronto like they did against Woodstock "there wouldn't be much difference between the clubs, perhaps a touchdown either way depending on the breaks."

SATISFIED

At any rate Coach Goulding was thoroughly satisfied with the workout in the exhibition, saying, "they gave us a good game; we had a chance to use everyone; we could have scored more."

The next and final game of the season will be Saturday's C.O.S.S.A.. championship game. Their opponents surprisingly enough will be either Oakville or Port Colborne. The tie for first place in the Niagara district never materialized between Stamford, last year's representatives and the 1952 Red Feather representatives, and Port Colborne. The Ports won out. Oakville and the Niagara representatives decide a winner today.

Emphasizing the passing during the first quarter, the Garnet and Greys completed only one out of seven and therefore lost chances for any major scores. But they did score a single, a kick to deadline by Jack Corbett.

SCORED MAJOR

They switched from passing to a steady ground attack in the second quarter and the change paid off. Starting from their 45-yard line the Garnet and Grey plunged to the goal-line where Murray Grafstein plunged over and Dave Langhorne converted for a 7-0 half-time score.

Another march, in the third quarter, was halted by Oakwood on the 25-yard line and again Corbett punted to deadline.

The Garnet and Greys controlled the play throughout the fourth quarter. Then a couple of passes, Spin Hope to Ted Sanders and Dave Langhorne to Dan Griffin, set up the touchdown play, Grafstein's plunge.

NEW YORK (AP)—France yesterday won the final event of the low score competition challenge trophy at the National Horse Show at Madison Square Garden, but the United States took the trophy with the lowest number of faults for the three days.

In the three days of competition, France was second with 20½ faults, Mexico third with 24, Canada fourth with 37, and the Irish army team fifth with 37¼. The U.S. was charged with only 12.

Montreal Team To Meet Orfuns

MONTREAL (CP) — Lakeshore Flyers, junior and senior, won their respective championships in the Quebec Rugby Football Union this week-end, the juniors defeating Verdun Shamcats 1-0 Saturday and the seniors outlasting Ottawa Seconds 13-12 yesterday.

The juniors now meet Windsor in an Eastern Canadian final at suburban Valoid, probably next Saturday, while the seniors travel to Ontario to meet Peterborough Orfuns for Eastern intermediate honors.

Saturday's win for the junior Flyers was a compete reversal of form shown by both teams during the season. Coach Gus MacFarlane's Shamcats whipped all comers in nine scheduled games—beating Lakeshore twice. Cliff McClay's junior Flyers won but four of nine games during season play.

It was Bob Urquart, their limping quarterback, who came through for Lakeshore. After his towering punts had set the Shamcats back in their own zone throughout the game, Urquart [illegible] two minutes to go in the fourth quarter.

Kicking made all the difference, too, for the seniors in their game against Ottawa. Gerry Hecklinger made good on both his tries for what proved to be the margin of victory over the Seconds.

Rocket Scores 325th Goal As Habs Trim Hawks; Bentley Line Ties Detroit

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

They probably had a real old shindig around Montreal at the weekend. The Forum at least rocked with the whoop-de-do of more than 14,000 wildly-cheering fans. Maurice Rocket Richard sent the place rocking with his record-breaking 325th National Hockey League goal, veteran centre Elmer Lach ran up his 200th, Canadiens whipped Chicago Black Hawks 6-4 and the two points sent them into the top spot where they remain today.

What else would a hockey-crazy city need as an excuse for a bust-up?

The second-place Toronto Maple Leafs also had cause for some quiet celebrating as they matched goal for goal with Detroit Red Wings Saturday and settled for a 3-3 tie. The Wings went home Sunday and whipped the cellar-dwelling New York Rangers 3-1 to post their first victory in four games.

HAWKS TO THIRD

And the Hawks finished off the five-game N. H. L. week-end with a 4-1 Sunday loss to the Bruins at Boston. The two defeats left the early-season leaders in third place, two behind Canadiens, one in arrears of the Leafs and two up on the Wings.

Richard's goal beat the record of Nels (Ole Poison) Stewart and came exactly 10 years to the night after he scored his first N. H. L. record. It was incidental to the cheering mob that Dick Gamble scored twice for the Montrealers and Floyd Curry and Paul Meger once each.

BENTLEY STILL GOING

Max Bentley and his Wings — George Armstrong and Gordie Hannigan — took care of the Toronto scoring while Red Kelly Johnny Wilson and Alex Delvecchio were the Detroit marksmen.

Sunday night another Red Wing trio picked up the points. Rookie Lou Jankowski, veteran Ted Lindsay and sophomore Glen Skov scored for the Wings on a goal-a-period clip. Ed Kullman notched the Rangers' lone tally.

Fleming Mackell, aggressive Boston centre, scored three goals to lead Bruins to their victory over the Hawks. Jack McIntyre netted the final midway through the last session.

Hot Redmen Nip Varsity, 17-14

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The underdogs flexed their muscles in the Senior Intercollegiate Football Union Saturday, coming up with a pair of surprising victories.

Down in Montreal, Vic Obeck's hot and cold McGill Redmen astounded the college loop by upending the defending champion University of Toronto Blues 17-14 while at Kingston, Queen's Golden Gaels came through with a convincing 21-9 exhibition win over the intermediate McMaster Marauders.

The McGill upset brought defeat to the Toronto camp for the first time since 1950 and ended Varsity's unbeaten string at 12 league games. Queen's victory provided the Gaels with the circuit's best showing against McMaster, who seek entry into the four-team set-up.

Varsity's loss leaves the Blues and Western deadlocked atop the standings with three victories and a loss each while their single meeting at London resulted in a tie. McGill is alone in the runner-up slot with two wins, both at the expense of the league leaders. Queen's has beaten the Redmen once.

The Varsity-Western clash next Saturday in Toronto will decide the Senior Intercollegiate title.

Colts Trounce Aggies For First Loop Win

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Western Colts finished out their intermediate intercollegiate schedule by handing Guelph O.A.C. Aggies an 11-0 whitewashing here Saturday at the J. W. Little Memorial Stadium.

The victory—the Colts' first league decision—gave Jack Fair's team a one and three record, the same as the Aggies. Toronto Baby Blues took the title, easily winning all four contests.

Providence Reds Hold A.H.L. Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

The top-place Providence Reds were handed a 6-3 setback Sunday night, but maintained their place at the head of the American Hockey League by a single point.

In Sunday's only other scheduled game, Vern Kaiser drove Buffalo Bisons to a 4-3 victory over St. Louis Flyers.

Eddie Olson and Armand Delmonte paced the Cleveland attack with two goals each. Frank Kubasek and Steve Wochy provided the two other markers.

At St. Louis, after the Flyers went into an early lead on a goal by Guyle Fielder, the Bisons scored three straight, the last two while the Flyers were shorthanded. Frankie Eddolls, Bob Fryday and Calum MacKay were the scorers.

Saturday, Pittsburgh shaded Hershey 3-2, St. Louis nosed Syracuse 2-1 and Cleveland defeated Buffalo 8-2.

ALL ALONE—A police search has failed to find any relative of this three-year-old girl, believed to be Mildred Hall, who has been in hospital in Ottawa since October 8. The girl was brought to the hospital by her father, who gave his address as R.R. 2, Cornwall, Ont., and said he worked for C.N.R. The father can't be traced, and C.N.R. said it never heard of him. Now the girl is cured and ready to leave hospital—but she has nowhere to go.

Atom Spy May Be Free By December

By PHILIP CLARKE

LONDON (AP) — The western world's first atom spy is due for release from jail in a few weeks—and Britain doesn't quite know what to do about him.

When Dr. Alan Nunn May gets out he'll be freer to move around than an ordinary tourist in Britain. Foreigners here must keep the police posted on their whereabouts.

May, an admitted Communist, will have no strings attached to him.

The shy little 41-year-old scientist has never publicly repented for passing vital atomic secrets to the Russians. A one-time scientific worker in Canada, he was arrested as a result of Canada's 1946 spy probe.

All May would say when he was caught was that he did it for the "safety of mankind." He refused to say anything more.

CUT TO 6½ YEARS

Under British judicial custom—for spy or milk bottle thief—May is entitled to time off for "good behavior." This means his 10-year sentence will be cut to 6½ years—setting him free in December.

The home office, which deals with criminals, says only that May "probably will be released in December." The office declines further comment.

What embarrasses most Britons is that May got off with a lighter sentence than is sometimes handed out for armed robbery—even when the robbers got away without a cent.

The specific charge against May in 1946 was communicating official secrets to an unknown person which "might be useful to an enemy."

It was under the same charge that the world's most notorious atom spy, Dr. Klaus Fuchs, was given a 14-year sentence four years later.

British officials explain that under British law there was no way to charge either May or Fuchs with high treason, punishable by death.

May has been described as a "model prisoner" at Wormwood Scrubs prison.

BROKE UP SPY RING

A brilliant physicist, he joined Britain's super-secret atomic program in April, 1942. In January, 1943, he went to Canada to work in the Canadian-British-U.S. atomic program. He made four trips to the Chicago atomic laboratory in 1944 and learned some of the steps that led to construction of the first atom bomb.

May had returned to England in September, 1945, to take a teaching job at King's College in London when a young Soviet embassy clerk at the Russian embassy in Ottawa, Igor Gouzenko, went over to the west, carrying with him an armload of secret Soviet documents. The documents proved May's complicity in an amazing Russian plot to steal the vital atomic secrets.

May, who had the Soviet code name "Alex," delivered to Russian agents tiny samples of uranium isotopes—vital materials in atomic bomb construction.

The Soviet records showed that May got at least $700 and two bottles of whisky for his services. But it was clear that money was not May's object. He did it because he believed that Russia should share in the west's atomic developments—and because he was a Communist.

May was arrested March 4, 1946, in London. He pleaded guilty at his trial on May 1, 1946.

The spy cases did much toward fouling up what had been a mutually profitable atomic partnership between the U.S. and Britain.

BRITAIN'S DILEMMA

London's Conservative Sunday Dispatch, in a recent editorial pointed up Britain's dilemma over the May case. The newspaper asked:

"Can we afford, in the interests of this country which he betrayed, to release this Communist atom scientist?

"It is not impossible for men to get out of this country secretly and to cross the Iron Curtain. So why give him the opportunity?

"Ten years is little enough for the grievous injury that he did to the democratic cause. Let him serve it in full. And in the next three and a half years the world situation may change greatly."

Judges Offered 60,000 Pints Of Best Beer

LONDON (CP)—For 28 special guests at this month's Brewers' and Allied Traders' Exhibition in London there will be beer galore to generate several lost week-ends.

They will be offered more than 60,000 pints of Britain's best beer and some 16,000 bottles of the country's finest ale. But there's a catch in it.

They will smell it, look at it and taste it, but that's all.

The 28 men will be engaged on a special task. They are Britain's foremost judges of beer and their job will be to decide on championship brews in several beer competitions.

During the three-days' exhibition the judges will examine thousands of gallons of beer, but by a technique they have developed their sensitive palates will be as fresh at the close of the tests as when they began.

Severely Injured

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Clinton Maccoubrey, 38, of Sarnia is in Strathroy General Hospital with multiple injuries, including possible fractures of the skull, jaw, left elbow and left leg. Provincial Constable William McGregor of Watford said Maccoubrey was southbound through Watford Saturday when his car crashed into the centre abutment of an overhead bridge. The car was demolished.

WOUNDED BACK—ROK soldiers bear their dead and wounded back down the hill in Korea's fierce battle zones as displaced persons and wounded watch the line of war.

NEPHELINE PROFIT DOWN

Estimated operating profit of American Nepheline Ltd. to the end of September this year was $144,630 before income taxes, depreciation and deferred development were taken off. This amount compares with $293,932 for the first months of 1951. Sales tonnage for the period was down 7 per cent.

NO CHILD HEALTH CLINICS

Due to some reorganization being worked out in the city health department, M.O.H. Dr. J. P. Wells said today there will be no child health clinics held this week. Mothers who are accustomed to bringing their children to the clinics will be able to bring them to one of the three clinics at the same time and place next week, Dr. Wells said.

Boys Suspected Of Shooting Collie

Several teenage boys are suspected of shooting a collie dog owned by Archie Knott of North Monaghan, Saturday afternoon. He lives in the vicinity of the Whitfield-Morrison dairy, on the river road.

The dog was let out about the middle of the afternoon Saturday. Search was made for it that night when the collie had not returned at dark. Sunday morning it was found near the C.N.R. railway, located by its whining.

Veterinary examination indicated that the animal's spinal cord was severed, and recovery was impossible. It was believed by Mr. Knott that boys walking out the railway track might have shot the dog. Several with guns and bi cycles were seen at midafternoon in that neighborhood. Mr. Knott said it was a wanton shooting, and is offering a reward for information identifying the gun-man.

Small Quantity Of Drugs Stolen

A small quantity of narcotics—heroin, codine and morphine—was stolen from the General Medical Clinic at Romaine and Aylmer Sts. some time Saturday night.

The breakin was discovered early Sunday morning. Entry was gained by breaking a small window on the west side of the building.

Detective Sgt. John Stevenson of the city police and R.C.M.P. Cpl. George Pickering of Cobourg are investigating.

Suspend OPP Inspector Price Morris

Former Sergeant Here Charged With Breach Of Dep't Discipline

Former sergeant with O.P.P. headquarters in Peterborough, Inspector Price Morris, now in charge of the Sudbury detachment, has been suspended for a breach of discipline. There will be a full-scale investigation into the case.

A bootlegging situation in the Sudbury district lies behind the suspension of Inspector Price Morris as officer in charge of the provincial police detachment in that area, it was learned today at

INSPECTOR PRICE MORRIS

Queen's Park.

Inspector Morris was placed in charge of the detachment in April, 1951, with orders to clean up bootlegging that was reported widespread.

"General liquor control administration is at the root of the matter," a high official said today.

Commissioner W.H. Stringer announced the suspension for what he described as "a breach of discipline." The commissioner personally investigated the situation, suspended Inspector Morris a week ago and placed Inspector A. McDougall of Belleville in charge temporarily at Sudbury.

The case is being investigated by Staff Inspectors Trimble and Bartlett after which an inquiry under the Police Act will be held under Deputy Commissioner McNeill in Sudbury.

Inspector Morris is the second former Peterborough O.P.P. now under suspension. In August Sgt. Lloyd McClure who was also transferred to Sudbury was suspended. A hearing into that case has been held.

Regarding Sgt McClure, Deputy Commissioner Arthur Moss, Toronto, said today that he has submitted a report on the inquiry, and that any information would have to come from Commissioner Stringer. Stringer was not then available for comment.

Dedicate Memorial Building Cairn Unveiled At Grove

LAKEFIELD (Staff) — The Grove School's Memorial Building—classrooms and junior dormitory—was dedicated at an impressive ceremony on Sunday and a cairn commemorating Old Boys who had fallen in two World Wars was unveiled. More than 100 parents of students and former members of the school gathered before the white wooden structure to witness the service. A guard of honor, color party and student body formed a hollow square about the cairn and faced the distinguished guest who performed the services.

Chairman of the board of governors W. M. Pearce, of Toronto, requested that the officials present dedicate the new building.

This was performed by the Rev. F. H. Cosgrave, D.D., former Provost of Trinity College, Toronto, and a personal friend of the school's late headmaster, Dr. A. W. Mackenzie.

The stone memorial cairn of simple structure embodies a brass plate on its west face and a sundial on top. It was unveiled by the most senior Old Boy present, Col. A. T. LeFevre, D.S.O., Croix de Guerre, Order of Merit, who is a resident of the village near the school.

MORNING SERVICE

Following the outside ceremonies the school body and visitors attended morning [illegible] the school chapel which was conducted by Chaplain Edgar Moore. He read the names of the following students who fell in the two World Wars:

Mr. Cosgrave preached the sermon.

Hasn't Decided To Run For Council—Rehill

Inclusion of the name of Ald. Harold Rehill among the prospective candidates for the municipal elections hadn't his approval, he reminded the Examiner today.

Ald. Rehill was away hunting early last week when several announcements were reported. His name was mentioned by several members of the council, in his absence, who apparently were drawing a long bow of expectation that he would offer his services again.

"I told several of the members that I hadn't made up my mind, one way or the other." Ald. Rehill said today. "Now if I say I'm not standing again, people will think I don't know where I'm at. And the fact is that I have said nothing positive to anybody, but one of the fellows of our party brought a copy of the Examiner back to the camp with the news that I have announced myself."

That corrective paragraph in[illegible] woods again and accessible.

Three Shaken Up In Morning Crash

Three people were severely shaken up but not injured seriously and extensive damage resulted to both vehicles when a car and truck collided at George and Romaine Sts., early Sunday morning.

Dave White, George St., and Stewart Allan, 141 Galt Ave., Toronto, passengers in the truck driven by J. Frank Allan, 1220 Simcoe St., Oshawa, were shaken up but did not require medical attention.

E. Leonard, 135 Carlaw Ave., a passenger in the car, driven by Morley Small, 4 Endean Ave., Toronto, complained of soreness in his left side annd chest. He was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital and released after X-rays and outpatient treatment.

The truck driven by Allan was going east on Romaine St. The car, driven by Small, was travelling north on George St.

Constable William A. Scott investigated.

Fear Inspires Desire For World Peace

Man's desire for peace comes from fear, not from any great wish for brotherhood, the Rev. Maurice P. Poole told a remembrance service Sunday at All Saints' Anglican Church.

Speaking to more than 100 members of the Canadian Legion, the Legion Auxiliary, and a group of Silver Cross Mothers, he told his congregation that "our reason for wanting peace is . . . fear of the atomic bomb and the consequences of modern war."

EVENTUAL PEACE

The rector's remarks on war and peace were an aside in his sermon, titled: "The Great Disturber." Theme of the sermon was that by disturbing men's minds, Jesus would bring about an eventual peace.

In support of the title, Mr. Poole quoted from St. Luke: "Suppose ye that I am come to bring peace to the earth? I tell you nay, but rather division."

"The Prince of Peace . . . was and is the most disturbing personality on earth. The man who puts human values first is always a disturber."

Mr. Poole cited the case of the Gadarene swine, in which Christ drove the "devils" from a lunatic's mind and the devils entered the minds of a herd of swine, which ran to the sea and were drowned. The villagers were incensed at the thought of a man who would put a lunatic higher in value than a herd of fine hogs.

There were three reasons for Christ disturbing a man's mind today:

By comparison with Christ, who was most virtuous among men, man is an extremely sinful creature and feels his sin. Morally, physically and spiritually, man felt his inferiority to Christ.

FALSE SENSE OF PEACE

Third reason was that Christ purposely disturbs man by robbing him of his false sense of peace. This false peace, however, was replaced with one that is real.

Man must surrender unconditionally to God, said Mr. Poole, "for until we admit the mess we have made of the world and our lives, I'm afraid we're going to have Remembrance Days for many years to come."

Claire H. Stewart read the scripture as representative of the Legion. Prayer was led by Archdeacon C. W. Balfour.

Deer Hunting Has Improved

From southbound hunters' cars that came to and went through Peterborough on the weekend it would seem that deer hunting has taken an upswing. A mixture of deer, bear, Christmas trees and weary hunters loaded down cars returning from the woods.

The weather may have had more to do with the brighter picture than an increase of game killed. Much cooler weather in northern sections made it possible to preserve deer long enough for the first week's exodus of hunting parties.

Reports from nearly all sections as far north as the southern boundary of Algonquin Park are all the same. Few deer and many wolves. Although no figures will be released for some time by the Lands and Forests department on their road checking stations, it will possibly be found that average parties of six hunters shot an average of two deer.

The weather was still not frosty enough to drive bears to winter dens. They were seen, and shot, in greater numbers this year on that account. No reports have been received to date of anyone shooting an elk from the herd of about 20 animals that frequent the north-west section of Oregon Trail-Highway [illegible]

Man's Ribs Fractured In Car-Truck Crash

Durwood McLaw, 30, 560 Donegal St., injured Saturday afternoon in a car-truck collision at Donegal and Murray Sts., is in Civic Hospital recovering from fractured ribs.

An estimated $1150 damage resulted when a car driven by McLaw and a truck driven by Wil[illegible] was travelling west on Murray St., escaped with a bump on his head.

Both Young and McLaw, who was going north on Donegal St., told constable William G. Scott who investigated, they did not see the other vehicle until it was too late to avoid a collision.

Fire Levels General Store At Fenella; Hamlet Loses Telephone Exchange

Switchboard, Post Office In Store Destroyed With Supplies, Household Belongings; Cobourg Firemen End Threat To Other Houses

FENELLA (ENS)—A $30,000 fire of undetermined orgin Sunday morning destroyed the combination general store, post office, telephone exchange and home of Mr. and Mrs. George Kemp, in Fenella, about three miles southwest of Roseneath. Mr. and Mrs. Kemp were unable to reach the telephone switchboard to broadcast their plight, but a group of men in a passing car saw the flames and drove about 10 miles south to Baltimore and there phoned the Cobourg fire department.

Department of Lands and Forests conservation officer Leslie Campbell of Baltimore, was also notified of the fire and he drove to the scene with his portable fire fighting equipment.

HOMES THREATENED

But both the conservation officer and the Cobourg fire department which quickly responded could do little more than keep the fire from spreading to nearby homes that were threatened.

Mr. and Mrs. Kemp and their fourteen-year-old son were awakened by an explosion below them. When they investigated the fire already was blazing fiercely and they had time only to grab some clothing and get out.

On the way, they picked up a couple of boxes and a coffee table and it is believed the cash register in the store was rescued.

Mrs. Kemp went back into the building to get a coat and as she was escaping again through the front screened porch, part of the wall in the dining room behind her caved in.

BELONGINGS LOST

New rugs that the family had bought but had not yet laid down were lost as well as jewellery and all their belongings and stock in the store.

The $30,000 loss was partly covered by insurance. The Kemps, originally from Toronto bought the business two years ago from Bruce Griffith.

The greatest inconvenience to the hamlet was the destruction of the telephone switchboard in the store. Men of the community with telephone linemen worked all day Sunday to re-string phone wires and assist in installing a temporary switchboard in the home of Charlie Childs near the Kemp store.

At press time today, the phone was still not in operation but officials expect that service will be normal by evening.

Stove Explodes, Flames Destroy House

LINDSAY—(ENS) — Wilfred Miller of Cambray lost all his possessions and those of his family, Sunday when an oil stove he was lighting exploded and the flames demolished the house.

The Millers are tenants on the ranch farm, owned by Royce Naylor, six miles north of Lindsay and at present he is unemployed.

Mr. Miller was lighting the fire in the stove when it exploded in his face, causing slight burns to his face and hands. In a few seconds, the flames had begun to engulf the frame building.

The Millers with their five children were able to escape from the building with only the clothes they had on their backs. Since some of the children were just rising, they had no chance to obtain even their shoes and socks.

Up to a short time ago, Mrs. Miller was employed at the Canadian Arsenals Ltd. in Lindsay. An alarm brought neighbors to the scene but nothing could be saved.

Newest Starlet Despair Of Press Agents

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Starlet Lori Nelson is the despair of her studio's press agents. She tells the truth.

Lori, 19, refuses to go along with the usual nonsense. A prompter inquired: "Didn't the studio head discover you while you were playing in a little theatre?"

"Nope," she replied blandly.

"Then didn't he see your picture in a San Fernando valley newspaper?" "Don't be ridiculous," she chided. "I did some little theatre work, but not very much. I got an agent, and he brought me to the studio. The talent man sent me over to see the dramatic coach. She showed me how to read some lines. The executives evidently liked it and I was signed."

TRUE TALE

Lori is an expert rifle shot and whiz at jujitsu. Did she learn to shoot in her early days in New Mexico? Does the jujitsu come in handy with Hollywood wolves?

She punctured these myths, too. "I left my home town of Santa Fe when I was 5," she explained. "So I couldn't have learned there. The truth is that my father is an auxiliary sheriff's deputy. Since he doesn't have a son, he took me along when he went to rifle practice. And he also practised his jujitsu with me."

As for throwing Hollywood wolves over her shoulder, Lori was frank to admit she hadn't dated any.

Lori so far has appeared in a few films in her two-year stay there, including the Ma and Pa Kettle series. But a great deal of her time has been devoted to huckstering pictures on a tour for Compo, the industry's public relations drive.

1st Batt. Pats On Way Home

By BILL BOSS

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP)—The 1st Battalion, Princess Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry, hauled down its battle flag yesterday and within seconds the pennant of the P.P.C.L.I.'s 3rd Battalion replaced it at the masthead. The brief ceremony symbolized the turnover of responsibility from the homeward-bound 1st Battalion to the 3rd, newly arrived in Korea.

Maj.-Gen. M. A. R. West, commander of the Commonwealth Division, witnessed the parade and stayed to attend the impressive playing of retreat by a composite band from both battalions under Drum-Major Jock Mackie of Calgary.

Final ceremony by the 1st Battalion before departure from Korea will be a memorial service Nov. 12 for their comrades buried in the United Nations cemetery at Pusan.

Canadian soldiers throughout Korea held special church parades yesterday in observance of Remembrance Day.

Reds Kidnap More Than 500 From Berlin

BERLIN (Reuters)—since Berlin became a divided city in 1948, more than 500 persons are known to have been abducted from Western sectors into East Berlin or the surrounding Sovite Zone, all for political reasons.

And the kidnappings are continuing at the rate of 10 to 15 a month.

In addition to known victims, thousands of others are believed to have been taken in the first post-war years.

At that time all four occupation authorities made arrests, often on denunciation of other Germans, on suspicion of war crimes. How many of these remained in Soviet prisons will probably never be known.

In Vienna also, a four-power island in Soviet-controlled territory, 916 are known to have been kidnapped since the end of the war. But many more have shared their fate.

Some recorded cases became known when the victims' relatives or friends unexpectedly received letters from Soviet prison camps.

NET SMALL FRY

Kidnappings in Vienna and Berlin have much in common. Most victims are small-time government officials, anti-Communist authors and journalists, political refugees and even schoolboys.

Also commen are the abduction methods—generally a combination of bold, brute force and "thriller" story tricks. The comparative ease with which kidnappings succeed is due to the extraordinary conditions in the two four-power cities.

East-West sector boundaries in both are arbitrarily drawn lines, often along a street-car line, a curbstone or an imaginary division down the centre of lane.

In both cities it is almost a hopeless task to establish the facts of an abduction and trace the kidnappers. In West Berlin, investigation is hampered by the presence of more than 100,000 unregistered refugees from East Germany, and by the refusal of East Berlin police to co-operate.

In Vienna, the police force is not divided, but police inquiries are scotched as soon as it is established that Soviet officers or agents are involved, almost always the case.

The unending series of Communist kidnappings in Berlin began with a young West Berlin journalist, Dieter Friede, lured into East Germany by a telephone call in 1949 and later sentenced to 25 years' imprisonment for seeking information about East Germany.

SCHOOLBOY TAKEN

In Vienna, Communist abductions have decreased steadily since 1945. Then the known total was 374. This year to date only just over 30 have been reported.

Typical examples show that, unlike West Berlin where Soviet authorities have no say, Viennese are carried off quite openly by Soviet officials in authority in the city.

Anton Marek, an interior ministry inspector, was asked to meet with Soviet officers on June 17, 1948. He entered the car they sent and was never seen again. A few days later the Soviet High Commission announced he was suspected of espionage. Three years later Austria was informed that he had been sentenced to 25 years' imprisonment.

Schoolboy Johann Schlossnicki, then 16, was standing outside his school in the morning of June 21, 1947, waiting for the doors to open, when a car with a Soviet licence plate drove up and the boy was dragged inside.

Bystanders tried to intervene, but were powerless against pistols waved in their faces. The boy has not been heard of since, in spite of vigorous Austrian protests. Nor has anyone found out why he was kidnapped.

Most Of Cabinet To Be Overseas

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada's international obligations and aspirations are throwing their shadow over the session of Parliament due to start Nov. 20.

Most of the cabinet's top men will be abroad at one time or another during the session.

Prime Minister St. Laurent, Trade Minister Howe, Finance Minister Abbott, External Affairs Minister Pearson, Defence Minister Claxton and Health Minister Martin all have dates outside the country that will keep them away for varying periods.

Mr. Claxton will attend the December meeting of the North Atlantic Council in Paris. Mr. Pearson may forsake the United Nations long enough to go, too.

Mr. St. Laurent and Mr. Abbott are due to be in London for a week or two for the Commonwealth economic conference which starts Nov. 27.

Mr. Howe is scheduled to leave Jan. 5 for a five-week swing through nine South American countries in search of greater markets for Canadian products.

Both Mr. Pearson and Mr. Martin currently are occupied with the New York meeting of the United Nations General Assembly. The former is president of the Assembly and Mr. Martin heads the Canadian delegation.

Hope Gen. Eisenhower To Increase U.N. Army

TOKYO (AP)—U.S. military men here hope that, after one look at the Korean stalemate, president-elect Eisenhower will decide to end it by increasing the Allied forces and whipping the Reds.

These military leaders acknowledge that such a course would be costly. But they hope for an increase in the United Nations forces with soldiers available close at hand.

The months of haggling over the prisoner-of-war exchange have allowed the Chinese and North Korean Communists to dig in so deeply and move up so many supplies that the forces Gen. Mark W. Clark now commands would not be able to break through their lines.

But by increasing that force and flushing the enemy out into the open where planes could get in their best licks, the present stalemate could be turned into a war of manoeuvre.

Britain To Remove Bermuda Garrison

LONDON (AP)—The War Office announced "with regret" last night that Britain will start pulling her small army garrison out of Bermuda sometime this month.

Withdrawal of the 154 officers and men will be finished by May 1, 1953, the announcement said, although a small "British permanent staff will remain to assist in training of the Bermuda forces."

Western Educator Dies Founded Alta. College

CARLETON PLACE (CP)—Rev. John Henry Riddell, 89, identified with educational work in Western Canada for more than 40 years, died here yesterday. He was founder of Alberta College, Edmonton.

Dr. Riddell was born on a farm in Peel county, Ontario, was graduated from Victoria College in 1889 and received his bachelor of divinity degree two years later.

He established Alberta College in Edmonton in 1903 and left after 14 years when the enrolment had expanded to 1,000 and the property was worth $500,000. He accepted the principalship of Wesley College in Winnipeg in 1917 and gradually pulled the school out of wartime financial difficulties. He retired in 1938.

Another reason why more people buy
than any other make!

When you buy a truck, whatever you're hauling, you buy it for one reason and one only—to make money. And, in the long run the truck that saves you the most is the truck that's going to make the most. And that, without frills or fancy talk, is one of the biggest basic reasons why more people buy and drive Chevrolet trucks than any other make.

Look at it any way you want. You save because Chevrolet's economical, dependable Valve-in-Head engines, famous for power and stamina, keep fuel consumption low. You save because Chevrolet's husky hypoid rear-axles, deep channel-type frames, Flexi-Mounted cabs, Recirculating Ball-Steering and other Advance-Design features keep maintenance costs down. And you keep on saving while you earn because these extra values are built in to stay in, to protect your truck investment.

But seeing is better than saying, so come in and look these versatile, money-making Chevrolet trucks over from top to bottom. Check the comparative values of Chevrolet trucks and prove to yourself that Chevrolet does save you money all along the line.

Send Austrian Reds Back To Re-Learn Marxist Ways

By HUBERT HARRISON

VIENNA (Reuters)—More than 45,000 Austrian Communists are going back to school to re-learn Marxist techniques and discover the best selling methods for Communism.

Despite unlimited financial help from Moscow, Austrian Reds have made virtually no head-way during seven years of four-power occupation in convincing Austrians that Communism is the thing for them.

In the western provinces of Austria, the Reds have lost ground while in the eastern (Soviet-occupied) provinces they have failed to get more than 5 per cent of the total vote.

WOULD ASSUME POWER

The Russians had ideas of building up the Austrian Communist Party to a position strong enough to assume power at least in Eastern Austria, as it did in Eastern Germany, Hungary and Czechoslovakia.

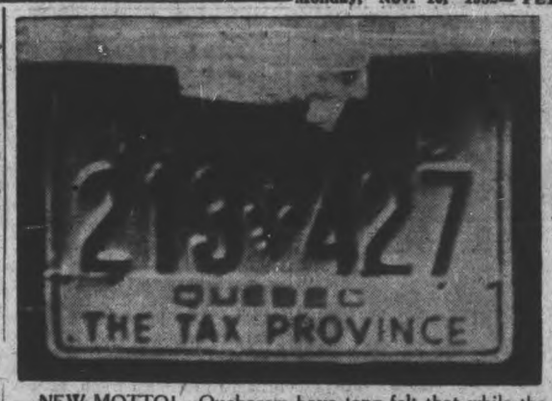
Now, the Russian's have insisted on a large-scale country-wide propaganda drive as a final effort to increase the party's power and influence.

To this end, some 2,000 training "circles" have been set up in various parts of the country to give "basic Communist training" and "practical indoctrination."

In connection with these special courses, the local Communist headquarters have opened "circle rooms" decorated with banners reading: "Communist—Learn for Victory."

The complete overhaul of party members' "basic training" also has been planned in preparation for parliamentary elections, at the latest a year from now, but probably next April or May.

PROPAGANDA CAMPAIGN



A new propaganda campaign also has been begun for the Federation of Austrian Youths and certain other "camouflaged" Communist organizations.

Important Communist organizers will tour the country in connection with this new drive in trucks belonging to the factories administered by the Russians as "former German assets."

To try to spread Communist ideas in Austria's most western provinces, stores will be opened to sell goods produced in Russian-controlled factories or goods brought in duty free from satellite states to the east.

Another point in the campaign is to be the training of apprentices in factories all over the western zones.

Skilled workers imbued with Communist ideas are to be sent to the western provinces to preach Communist doctrines.

NEW MOTTO!—Quebecers have long felt that while the province has a flag, admittedly its lack of a motto is serious. A possible answer to the lack is displayed above on the back of an automobile.

Members Split On Organization

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Members of the board of East Windsor Hospital Saturday expressed conflicting opinions on the report of a royal commissioner which recommended an administrative reorganization.

Three said they concurred with the recommendations of Gordon L. Fraser, Windsor lawyer who conducted a 58-day inquiry into the hospital's affairs earlier this year, that a new hospital board should be appointed.

Five thought the old board could carry out a reorganizational job along lines recommended by Mr. Fraser, three made noncommital replies and four could not be reached for comment.

Dr. P. J. G. Morgan, medical superintendent of the hospital, whom Mr. Fraser said conducted a "one-man rule" of the hospital, would not comment.

Concurring with Mr. Fraser were Controller Hugh Simpson, Alderman Archie Munro and William Stewardson. Joseph Hennin, Controller W. Ernest Atkinson, E. D. Poisson, Mrs. Frank Dowell and Frank Best thought the board could best conduct a reorganization.

Loss of Pipe Irritating

Captain Didn't Mind Burial Alive

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP)—Capt. David Harrison of Halifax said he didn't mind so much being buried alive. What really irked him was losing his pipe.

And the sergeant-major who was buried with him said the experience cured him of the shakes.

During the 21 days that "Dog" company of the 1st Battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment, occupied a spur forward of Little Gibraltar Hill the Chinese pounded the position unremittingly with artillery and mortars. At times, 1,250 shells and bombs fell on the hill in 24 hours. The Chinese could see onto it from three directions.

HEAVY CASUALTIES

The day after "Dog" company left the spur the Chinese followed their shelling with an attack that dislodged "Baker" company with heavy casualties. "Dog" company was recalled from reserve and recaptured the spur seven hours later.

"Dog" company officers said the constant blasting during the softening-up shelling wrecked their diggings faster than they could restore them. Ammunition and rations stores were scattered and buried. Trenches and bunkers and dugouts were caved in.

Capt. Harrison, company second-in-command, during one shelling was sitting in at the command post bunker of Maj. Bob Richards of Montreal, while the company commander was at battalion headquarters.

With him there was CSM. Richard McNally of Petawawa, Ont.

ROOF FELL IN

Progressively the shells tore away the sides of the bunker until finally the front fell out. Its props gone, part of the roof fell, one heavy beam landing on McNally's chest. The beam had been broken in the blast and was not pressing hard.

When the situation permitted, soldiers from nearby bunkers dug the two out.

While Harrison moaned the loss of his pipe, McNally said:

"I don't mind admitting that I had been pretty shaky until then. But I guess that happened to tell me the good Lord was with me so there's no use in worrying. They say 'Turn to the Lord in time of trouble' and believe me, I did."

Another bunker caved in on Privates Wilfred Main of Branchton, Ont., and Wilfred Mangeon of Windsor, Ont. They, too, were buried alive. They managed to make air holes, which kept them from smothering, and dug their own way out with their bare hands. Chinese mortars followed them up the communication trench as they made their way to the next bunker.

LOST HIS BOOTS

Main lost his boots in the cave-in and for 48 hours manned an observation post in stockinged feet.

L. Cpl. Bill Roushorn of Fort William, Ont., was hit in the head by a shell fragment.

Said Harrison:

"The fragment dented Roushorn's tin hat and stunned him slightly. His only trouble was a headache for a couple of days. This is our first instance of a man's life being saved by his steel helmet, but since then there's been no trouble getting the men to wear them."

Rats and mice try to keep the men company in the bunkers and vast quantities of rat poison are used up. The rats occasionally reach the size of small puppies. The mice are thought to be bearers of the tick that causes haemorrhaegic (or "Manchurian") fever.

West German Army Has 80,000 Men

BONN, Germany (AP)—West Germany's 500,000-man defence force in the projected European army will include 22,000 officers and a professional core of 80,000 men, Defence Commissioner Teheodor Blank said last night.

Blank said in a radio address this force will have 40 generals but he renewed assurances there will be no German general staff.

"This will be a citizens' army in uniform," he said, declaring that the old Prussian-type militarism is a thing of the past.

Fatal Contact

KINGSTON (CP)—Lieut. W. G. Tivy, 20, of Kingston, a reserve army officer, was electrocuted Saturday when a radio antenna he was removing touched high-tension wires. Lieut. Tivy and Lieut. John Chevalier, 24, both of the Prince of Wales Own Regiment, had set up a mobile radio transmitter but because of proximity to the high-tension wires it worked poorly. The fatal contact occurred when they decided to move it.

PUSAN, Korea (AP) — The Welsh 1st Battalion of the British Commonwealth Division in Korea sailed yesterday for a new two-year tour of duty at Hong Kong. Also aboard the troopship Devonshire were British units from Japan and Korea returning home.

Belleville Woman Out In Truckers' Contest

TORONTO (CP)—Mrs. Margaret Elliott of Belleville, first woman truck driver ever to enter the National Truck Roadeo, was eliminated Saturday in the Ontario preliminaries of the straight truck competition.

Mrs. Elliott, 33, mother of two children, was one of 35 contestants in this division of the roadeo. Sponsored by the Automotive Association of Ontario, the roadeo emphasizes road safety.

Contestants come from all over Canada to try for national truck driving honors and some $3,000 in prizes.

Physician Dies

MONTREAL (CP)—Dr. Arthur George Morphy, 87, practising physician here for more than 50 years, died in hospital Saturday. Born in London, Ont., he practised in suburban Lachine until 1914 and in Montreal until his retirement in 1945. He was one of the founders of the Lovatt Hall Sanatarium in Lancaster, Ont. in 1928.

Tugs Free Freighter Stalled In St. Lawrence

CLAYTON, N. Y. (CP)—Tugs early yesterday pulled a Canadian freighter off Beckwith Island in the St. Lawrence River where she had been aground since Friday afternoon.

The ship, the J. N. McWalter of Colonial Steamship Lines, was loaded with grain and bound from Port Weller, Ont., to Montreal when she ran aground.

She was towed to drydock at nearby Kingston, Ont., where officials said damage was not serious.

Man Released
from laxative habit

"I suffered from constipation for years until I started to eat ALL-BRAN regularly," confesses Orillia, Ontario, man. "I have since stopped taking laxative drugs—feel like my old self again, thanks to ALL-BRAN!" This crisp, toasty cereal has helped thousands regain youthful regularity. NEWLYWEDS—Just as happy as newlyweds a third their age, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Gier, of Lethbridge, Alta., hold hands after their wedding. Mr. Gier, 78, met Mrs. Minnie Rogers, 82, a few months ago when an old-age pensioners' association got Mr Gier a room in Mrs. Rogers' home.

Woman 82, Weds Man 78

But when the "just married" sign on the car carries the numbers "82" and "78"—well, it's worth noting.

Just married were Mrs. Minnie Rogers and Jacob Manly Gier, both of Lethbridge, in a quiet afternoon ceremony. The "82" stood for the age of Mrs. Rogers, while the "78" represented Mr. Gier's span of years.

The Gier romance began in the spring. The Old Age Pensioners' Association got Mr. Gier a room in Mrs. Rogers' home when he wanted room and board after being released from hospital.

This fall, members of the elderly people's group were surprised to hear that the landlady and tenant arrangement was going to become a partnership.

Both the bride and groom are grandparents. The new Mrs. Gier has two grandchildren, while in his family of four sons and three daughters, Mr. Gier has 19 grandchildren.

RHEUMATIC PAIN
Can Be Costly!

"This winter I had to quit work because of rheumatic pain," writes Mr. T. Glofcheskie, Wilno, Ont. "I became fearful of being laid up as on a previous occasion with rheumatic pain. My pain became increasingly severe and spread from hip to ankle. Out of bed, the leg felt cold as though in cold water, so I stayed in bed. A friend persuaded me to take T-R-C's and I'm glad I did. In a short while I was relieved of my pain and was soon on the job again."

High Officials Find Security Tough To Break

LONDON (CP)—High ranking government officials have discovered it is no easy matter to break through security measures of their own making.

They found that out when the Prime Minister's staff at 10 Downing Street was instructed to advise Dr. William Penney, designer of Britain's first atom bomb, he was about to receive a knighthood from the Queen.

The honor was conferred shortly after he returned to London from successful atom bomb tests at Monte Bello, off the northwestern coast of Australia.

When the Prime Minister's secretaries sought to reach Dr. Penney they learned his name had been removed from the telephone director and that the only way to reach him was through a secret, unlisted number. No record of it was kept at No. 10.

The staff got in touch with the Ministry of Supply, where Dr. Penney is chief superintendent of armament research. The secret number was unknown to those still on duty.

A bit shaken by now, the staff tried Harwell, the atomic research headquarters, but to no avail.

As a last resort a call was put through to officials of the post office which controls the phone system. But they had been strictly briefed and resolutely refused to disclose the secret number.

Dr. Penney learned of his knighthood while listening at home to a radio news broadcast.

William McLaren

NORWOOD (ENS) — The funeral of William McLaren was held Friday afternoon at 2 p.m. from the McConnell - Warner funeral home, with Mr. W. C. G. Parrington, of Peterborough, conducting the service. Burial was in Norwood cemetery.

Mr. McLaren died Tuesday following a lengthy illness. He was born 81 years ago in Peterborough, son of the late John McLaren and Elizabeth Widdis.

During the service, Miss Lila Kirk sang "Will the Circle Be Unbroken."

Duke Of Windsor Helps Remodel French Home

By GODFREY ANDERSON

GIF-SUR-YVETTE, France (AP) —The Duke of Windsor, in shirt-sleeves and wearing a pair of business-like ski boots, is working with blue-overalled French workmen from this village in preparing the new country home he will occupy next spring.

Every fine day he drives out 25 miles from Paris in his Buick station wagon to work on the 200-year-old millhouse he is converting into a week-end hide-out for himself and the Duchess when in France.

The Duchess seldom comes with him, but she is known to be taking a keen interest in the plans for furnishing the house when that stage is reached.

A HELPING HAND

Hatless and with a pipe in his mouth, the Duke plods around the piles of planks and mounds of upturned earth in the mill grounds. From time to time he steps in to give orders in French to the masons and the gardeners When help is needed, he is ready to lend a hand himself. Two dogs keep close to his heels.

The Duke has rented the old watermill and the pink-tiled house which stands beside it from French painter Andrien Drian. He is having extensive alterations made to its half-dozen rooms. Changes are being made in the studio-windowed salon and library. Modern bathrooms are being installed. Central heating will add warmth to log fires in the outsize chimney places.

STREAM RUNS BY

Outside, flowers are being planted in freshly-dug beds where a huge weeping willow overhangs a tiny bubbling stream.

The local mayor has already been to call and a government engineer was sent to see that the Windsor week-end home—The Moulin Aubert—would not suffer if the river burst its banks in winter.

Defeat Hamilton By 28-23

line on illegal interference. Re Lewington skirted the end for five before Fouchuk plunged over. Art Faguy converted for a 6-0 score.

An illegal interference penalty to Hamilton a minute later helped the Orfuns' march. Nickle romped for a first down, followed by Armstrong, White and then Armstrong again for yards. Finally Milligan tossed to Jim Wilde to the 15-yard line and Wilde went over. Armstrong tied the score on the convert.

Early in the second, Hamilton's Fochock was forced to kick and Nickle grabbed the ball on the run. Tacklers hit Nickle within the five-yard limit and Panthers were penalized 15 yards. Nickle plunged, was roughed by Hamilton and again they were penalized 15 yards. White plunged to the 15-yard line and after Nickle on the statue-of-liberty play whistled to the five, Referee Rowntree issued his roughing warning. Armstrong promptly plunged to the one-yard line and then White ran the ball over for the second TD which went unconverted.

MADE IT 17-6

On the kick-off the Panthers were charged with illegal interference and the Orfuns awarded the ball at centre. Milligan looped a long pass to Clive Naismith for 45 yards. White went to the one where Milligan sneaked over. Armstrong made the score 17-6 on the convert.

The Panthers opened the second half with a touchdown drive, featuring Fouchuk, Fitzgerald and Morelli, with Morelli scoring. Orfuns promptly grabbed a fumble by Fouchuk at the Panther 25 and were helped with a 15-yard roughing penalty to Hamilton. Jensen plunged to the one but on the next play White fumbled and the Panthers recovered. A fist fight broke out and Naismith was thumbed out of the game.

The Panthers deep in defensive territory gambled on a third down and Fouchuk passed, but incomplete. The Orfuns took over at the Hamilton 25, Milligan passing first incomplete to Groves and then for a touchdown to Bill Trimm for a 22-11 score.

Barthelot's after - touchdown placement soared over the Hamilton goal-line but Lewington just managed to squeeze to the one-yard line. Farr attempted a pass but the Orfuns' line charged in, knocked down the ball and Frank Fitzgerald picked it up. Fitzgerald managed to get to the two-yard line. That ended the third quarter.

Taking over from there in the fourth, the Orfuns sent Bus Jensen over on the first play of the final quarter and Armstrong converted for the 28th point.

The Panthers then started to drive. Helped by a 15-yard roughing penalty to the Orfuns, Hamilton minutes later were on the Orfuns' 25. Morelli and Fouchuk pounded out yardage before Morelli scored and Faguy converted.

Fouchuk repeated Berthelot's kick after touchdown over the goal line; Jensen just managed to squeeze out to the one. A high short punt by Hodson was taken by Fouchuk who galloped to the five-yard line. In two plunges Fouchuk scored again. Lewington added the final point on the convert. Lineups:

Hamilton—Flying wing, Hudaci; halves, Fouchuk, Lewington, Faguy; quarter, E. Irate Citizens Protest Phone Service

BANCROFT (ENS)—Scores of irate citizens from the village and district, summoned to a special meeting by Reeve T. W. Tryon, to discuss the telephone situation, gathered in the Community Hall on Friday evening.

The local system has been a long-time source of inconvenience to subscribers, and the reeve had indicated that he was more than dissatisfied with conditions as they are.

The session proved to be a hot and stormy one, with many voicing their opinions.

The 47-year-old system, known as the People's Telephone and Telegraph System, is owned by stockholders and under the control of Walter Wiggins, Bancroft.

Mr. Wiggins was not present at the meeting, although personally invited by the reeve, neither was there a member of the company in attendance.

Of course, when a new bridge or highway is completed, it's traditional for some prominent citizen or government official to cut the ribbon in the opening ceremony. And yet . . .

Often this honour might be awarded with good reason to any one of the nation's life insurance policyholders.

Why should they deserve this distinction?

Because it is their premium money, part of which is invested for them by life insurance companies, which makes it possible to build many such useful public works. Not only roads and bridges, but electrical power stations, waterworks, stores, homes, office buildings and industrial plants are built with the help of life insurance dollars.

So here's to the life insurance policyholders! While they provide financial security for their families and themselves, they also help to make Canada a better land to live in!

Say Eisenhower Plans Top GOP Conference

WASHINGTON (AP)—President-elect Eisenhower today was reported planning a conference, before going to Korea, with Republican legislative leaders in an effort to line up a Republican program for early action in Congress.

Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio said during the week-end he expects to meet with Eisenhower "on the legislative program" before the general takes off on a Korea inspection trip.

Taft has headed the Senate Republican policy committee and it has been the assumption that Representative Joseph Martin of Massachusetts will become Speaker of the House, as he was in the Republican 80th Congress of 1947-48.

But friends have been talking about booming Representative majority leader of the 80th congress, for the Speakership. Halleck was an Eisenhower support before the Chicago nominating convention while Martin preferred Gen Douglas MacArthur.

WOULD USE NATIONALISTS

In any conference of the general with the leaders, Taft and Martin may be found on the side of those urging Eisenhower to use strong measures in Korea — including the employment of Chinese Nationalist troops from Formosa.

President Truman was reported to be offering Eisenhower a major voice in long-range foreign-policy decisions which the administration feels must be made between now and the time the new President takes over.

Eisenhower, however, has made it clear he will not assume responsibility for any decisions by the state and defence departments until he takes office.

Norwood Auxiliary Plans For Bazaar

NORWOOD (ENS).—The Afternoon Auxiliary of the Norwood United Church Woman's Missionary Society met in the Sunday school room on Thursday with Mrs. John Starke in charge.

Army Decorates Three RCR's For Bravery At Little Gib

SEOUL (Reuters)—Two officers and a sergeant of the Royal Canadian Regiment have been decorated for their action Oct. 23 when the Chinese assaulted Little Gibraltar Hill, the British Commonwealth Division announced last night.

They are Capt. Herbert George Cloutier of Barrie, Ont., and Lieut. John Clark of Beebe, Que., both of whom won the Military Cross; and Sgt. Gerald Emerson Peter Enright of Billing's Bridge, Ont., who won the Military Medal.

Clark was commander of a platoon in B company which took the Communist attack. Enright was his sergeant. Cloutier was commander of E company, which held B company's flank.

The citation said Clark assisted casualties over open ground during a Communist barrage and then returned to fight, throwing grenades and manning a rifle and machine-gun until the ammunition was expended.

When he realized annihilation or surrender was imminent, he reorganized the remainder of his platoon and successfully withdrew, bringing with him one wounded man.

REORGANIZED PLATOONS

He came across a disorganized platoon of another company and welded the two platoons into an effective fighting unit to stop further enemy advances.

Enright, the citation said, fought his way through Communist infiltrators to carry reliable information about the attack to a neighboring company. On the way back he brought a new radio set and ammunition to his own platoon so it could continue fighting.

Cloutier's citation said he placed himself in a position from which he reported the progress of battle to his commanding officer despite heavy artillery fire. He organized two groups from his company to probe an area which had been overrun, and information obtained was credited with being responsible for the success of a counter-attack which restored Allied positions.

Bill Boss, Canadian Press staff writer with the Canadians in Korea, in a story Nov. 5 told of the part played by Clark and Enright in the Gibraltar action. Boss' account said the Chinese rained 3,000 mortar bombs and shells onto Little Gibraltar Spur for half an hour, then attacked in force. Soldiers fought to their last round.

Clark and Enright organized groups from the chaos and brought them into the lines of neighboring companies, Boss said.

Choice Of Dodge, Lodge As Liaison Men Hints At Cabinet Jobs Under Eisenhower

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP) — President-elect Dwight D. Eisenhower's choice of Senator Henry Cabot Lodge and Detroit banker Joseph M. Dodge for key pre-inauguration assignments appeared today to assure them major posts in the new Republican administration.

Eisenhower Sunday named the Massachusetts senator his liaison man to work with the expiring Truman administration in all federal agencies except one.

To the budget bureau as his personal representative the general appointed Dodge, a Republican with a long record of fiscal and other service in the outgoing regime.

START THIS WEEK

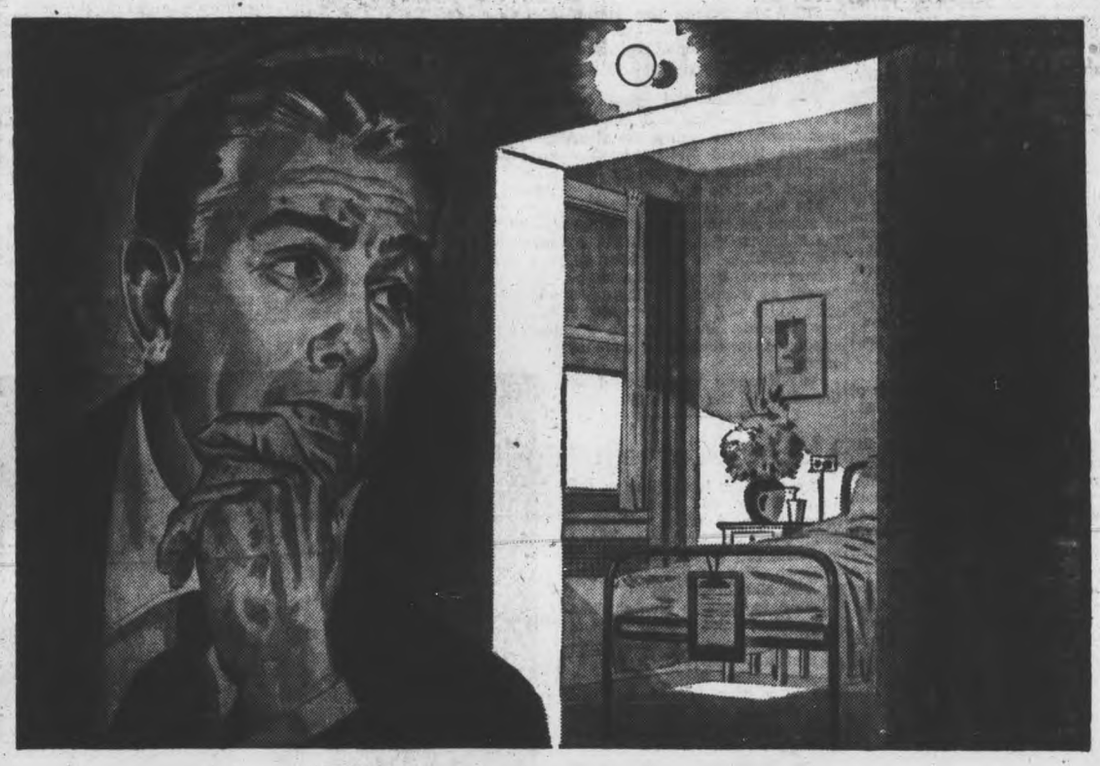
Lodge said he will start his liaison assignment Friday. Dodge reports to the budget bureau Wednesday.

Both told press conferences they hope to have preliminary reports ready for Eisenhower when he confers at the White House next week with President Truman. That session, suggested by Truman, will deal with international and domestic problems as they relate to the forthcoming change in administrations.

Truman also had urged Eisenhower to name liaison men. The president singled out the defence and state departments and the budget bureau, but Eisenhower designated Lodge to work with all federal agencies "where such liaison may prove useful in facilitating the transfer of public business from the old to the new administration."

MAY ENTER CABINET

Lodge, defeated last Tuesday in his bid for a new Senate term, is regarded as a likely Eisenhower choice for a cabinet post. He has been mentioned for secretary of defence or secretary of state.



Eisenhower associates said there are strong indications Dodge will be named director of the budget.

Both Lodge and Dodge will serve as liaison men until Jan. 20, inauguration day.

At Eisenhower's vacation retreat at the Augusta National Golf Club was Senator Eugene Millikin of Colorado, who supported Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio for the Republican presidential nomination. Millikin was on hand as chairman of the conference of all Republican senators, and as incoming chairman of the tax-writing senate finance committee.

THESE [illegible] DRUGS
COST TOO MUCH!
You hear talk, these days, about the high cost of some new "wonder" drugs. Little is said about the high cost of sickness. Yet, the cost of the most expensive prescription is but a fraction of the cost of weeks in a hospital.
Recently, in Cosmopolitan magazine, Ernest Lehman wrote: "A few years ago the average case of pneumonia was at best a long drawn out affair involving weeks in the hospital, weeks of convalescence, hundreds of dollars in hospital and doctor bills, and time lost on the job."
Today, remedies are available which increase the rate of recovery and reduce the period of sickness. Many other illnesses are minor matters today due solely to the new and potent weapons at your doctor's command. Remember when you think about the cost of a prescription, years of research were required to develop the components involved—and that this research is continually changing the cost of long-term illness into short-term treatment. Remember, too, that your druggist is continually studying these modern miracles for your own and your family's welfare.
you can depend on your DRUG STORE
DANGER LURKS
That cluttered-up medicine cabinet of yours can really be a source of danger—not only from the long unused medicines that gain in strength but also the ones that lose their potency over a period of time. Why don't you have a "house-cleaning" right now and avoid any dangers from unlabelled bottles, uncapped tubes—and prescriptions that were right for you a year ago but may not apply now. See your druggist—he'll gladly help you make out a list of your basic requirements.

Ornamental Swim Clubs Celebrate Their Birthdays

A first and a ninth birthday were celebrated at a dinner party Saturday evening: the ninth birthday of the Peterborough Ornamental Swimming Club, now of international fame, and the first birthday of the Junior Ornamental Swimming Club which already has sent one of its youngest members across the U.S. border to demonstrate.

For the 20 junior swimmers it was probably their first banquet and also probably the first time they have been waited upon by their mothers. Shortly after formation of this new club by Coach Mrs. Pansy Forbes, the mothers organized themselves as an auxiliary and it was they who prepared and served the meal to members of the two clubs and their guests, in the dining hall of the Y.M.C.A.

Special guest for the occasion was Mr Myron Hendricks, recreation commissioner of Niagara Falls, N.Y. His acquaintance with the senior club began when he brought someone else to a swimming clinic in Peterborough and accidentally became interested himself. He has since studied every angle of synchronized swimming and has a club in his city that is progressing rapidly.

Mr. Henrdicks stated the Peterborough club were pioneers in the field. He called ornamental swimming a form of sport but not exactly classified as a sport because it embodies so much more. He pointed out that it is an activity which appeals to girls and is being pushed by recreationists for this reason.

He paid tribute to Mrs. Forbes as the guiding spirit behind the senior club and for her foresight in starting junior girls in their footsteps and then mentioned her most commendable plan to have both clubs end their year by attending a church service together. (The club members and the Mothers' Auxiliary attended All Saints' Church for the Sunday evening service.)

Presentation of sportsmanship medals won in Florida by eight of the senior club was made by Alderman P. J. Anglesey who promised the swimmers any assistance possible from the city council. The medals were presented to Beverley Rumary, Isabel Crary, Joan Lynch, Joan Monks, Elaine Humphreys, Nancy Doubt and Sally Hartman. June Storey was absent.

Surprise presentations of trophies ornamented with the club crest were made to junior and senior swimmers by Mrs. Forbes and business manager Mr. N. C. Munro.

The first was to two pre-school age juniors who are now duettists Janice Crary and Margaret Murduff. Margaret is the junior who went to Niagara Falls, N.Y., this summer to demonstrate technique. Second junior award was to Donna Goodson for her ballet work. Annabelle Morley received a prize for progress and Mary Russelle for almost perfect attendance.

Miss Donna Bristow won a trophy for her progress in the senior club. Attendance and sportsmanship were recognized in an award to Miss Elain Humphreys. President Betty Welch received a gift in appreciation of her guidance through a difficult club year.

Promoted to the senior club are Marjorie and Geraldine Vinette and Carol Howe and they received bracelets as promotion gifts.

Lovely corsages were the gifts from the junior club to their coach, Mrs. Forbes, and seniors who have been teaching them, Isabel Crary, Beverley Rumary and Norma Douglas. These presentations were made by Rosemary Epston, Annabelle Morley, Judy Doughty and Donna Goodson.

The senior club presented a corsage of gardenias to Mrs. N. C. Munro and a gift to Mr. Munro who is retiring after six and a half years as their manager. Also, the club had gifts to show their appreciation to coach Mrs. Forbes and to wardrobe mistresses Mrs. F. Gant and Mrs. J. L. Young. Further appreciation was shown Mrs. Gant and Mrs. Young when they received gifts from Mrs. Forbes.

Mrs. C. R. Sellers, of Montreal, another special guest at the party, performed the installation of a new slate of officers for the senior club. In foregoing remarks, she exuberantly announced the acceptance of synchronized swimming on the Olympics program of 1956.

The president for the '52-'53 season is Mrs. Isabel Crary; first vice-president is Miss Beverley Rumary; second vice-president, Miss Elaine Humphreys; treasurer Mrs. Joan Craig; corresponding secretary, Miss Donna Bristow, and recording secretary, Mrs. Norma Douglas.

A toast to the clubs was drunk by the guests after a glowing tribute to their success was voiced by Mr. Charles Forsythe, of the Y.M.C.A. staff. He was thanked by Miss Jean Russelle.

Introduction of Mr. Hendricks was made by Mr. Alex Sinclair, recreation commission director, and the guest speaker was thanked by Mrs. Shirley Moldaver. Head table guests were introduced by Mrs. Crary.

The evening concluded with dancing.

IN DEMAND — This picture of Queen Elizabeth II, taken as she drove to the House of Lords in the Irish State coach, to open Parliament this week, has created a stir in London. The photographer, who describes this exceptionally good picture as "just luck," has been showered with congratulations. Prime Minister Churchill has ordered two enlargements, and public demand for reproductions of the picture is growing daily.

M. Jean Armstrong Bride Of Hugh W. Neilson

The wedding of Margaret Jean, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. P. Armstrong of Indian River, to Hugh William Neilson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Neilson of Westwood, took place on Saturday afternoon in the Keene United Church.

The Rev. H. B. Herrington performed the ceremony in a setting of pink and white chrysanthemums at the altar. Organist Mr. Walter Morrow played the wedding music.

The bride wore a lovely gown of white French net over taffeta, made in ballerina length with a strapless bodice, topped with a page boy jacket trimmed with pearl buttons. Her veil of silk illusion was in shoulder length and was caught to a headband of taffeta and pearls. She carried a bouquet of white 'mums and a gardenia centre.

Mrs. William Warr, as matron of honor, was frocked in pink nylon over taffeta, also in the ballerina length, and she wore a matching headdress and nylon mittens. She carried a bouquet of baby blue 'mums. Mr. Warr was the groom's attendant.

After the ceremony the bride and groom left on a wedding trip to United States, the bride travelling in a dress of green velveteen with matching hat and purse trimmed with rust and yellow.

Mr. and Mrs. Neilson will live in Westwood Village on return.

Societies Hold Joint Meeting

PLAINVILLE (ENS)—The annual thankoffering service of the Plainville Women's Missionary Society was held as an evening meeting at the church with members from the neighboring societies of Gore's Landing United and Gore's Landing Anglican, Bethesda (Harwood) and Coldsprings. The gentlemen of the congregation had also been invited and a number were present.

The president, Mrs. Clifford Manley, welcomed the guests and called on the different numbers on the program. A very lovely worship period was presented by the Bethesda W.M.S. with a theme of "Prayer". Mrs. Donald Herriott, Mrs. Ellis Isaac and Mrs. George Isaac taking part and Mrs. Garnet Isaac singing a solo. From Coldsprings Society, a duet was rendered by Mrs. Cliff Timlin and Mrs. Cliff Minifie with Mrs. E. Houskin accompanying. In the absence of the organist, Mrs. R. Meggs of Gore's Landing presided at the organ.

The guest speaker was Mrs. Luffman of Baltimore. She chose as her topic, "Building Material". She likened talents and personal qualities to building materials. "No one", she said, "can reasonably use this excuse of not having received an education in this day with all the available adult education material and literature there is."

At the close of the meeting all were invited to the basement where a salad plate lunch was served at small tables by the Plainville ladies.

Date Changed PCVS Open House

Date of the annual "open house" at P.C.V.S. has been changed to the fall for this year and will take place Wednesday afternoon, Nov. 19. This change makes it possible for the parents to make their inspection of the school after receiving the first progress report on the students and they can then discuss the situation with their children's teachers.

Students will be conducting tours of the building from two until five o'clock and the teachers will be in the classrooms. Tea will be served in the gymnasium.

The finance committee of the Home and School Association is in charge of arrangements and the members will wear garnet and grey ribbons for identification.

IODE Remembrance Tea Emphasizes Significance

Fifty-seventh Regiment Chapter of the I.O.D.E., being the only regimental chapter in this city, each year holds a Remembrance Day tea which serves to emphasize to its members and friends the full significance of Remembrance Day, November 11th. The tea was held Saturday afternoon in the Y.W.C.A. Green Room.

Red poppies have been the symbol of Remembrance since they were planted on the graves of First World War dead in France. Poppies and flags decorated the tea room and the table bouquet combined poppies and white 'mums. Highlights of the table setting were white tapers and silver tea things on a fine white linen cloth.

Hostesses made a particularly friendly atmosphere in the tea room. They were Mrs. W. G. Hall, Mrs. W. Hughes, Mrs. G. Stewart, Mrs. T. Skinner and Mrs. U. E. Waterman.

Tea was poured by Mrs. F. C. Haggart, Mrs. Claire Stuart, Mrs. E. Graham, Mrs. R. G. Cottrell, Mrs. Hurrell Dodds and Mrs. James McLeod in turn. Serving were Mrs. W. Westran, Mrs. W. Masters, Mrs. R. Asselstine, Mrs. W. E. Franks, Mrs. A. E. Chalmers, Mrs. W. G. Howden, Mrs. W. J. Davies, Mrs. R. E. Clarke, Mrs. A. B. Burrows, Mrs. E. Killingbeck, Mrs. J. Black, Mrs. J. D. Rowlandson, Mrs. R. A. Ford, Mrs. V. Thraves, Mrs. R. Reid, Mrs. L. Groombridge, and Miss Maud Rush. The table was replenished by Mrs. H. Burrows, Mrs. P. Brown, Mrs. C. Heintzman and Mrs. E. A. Adams.

The draw was made at close of the tea on a set of matched luggage on which tickets have been selling in past weeks. Mrs. Lloyd Gilders was in charge of the tickets and the winner, picked by regent Mrs. M. E. Clarke, was Mrs. J. Wade of 532 Rose Ave.

A table of home cooking was convened by Mrs. G. H. Moore and she was assisted by Mrs. Dodds and Mrs. Graham during the afternoon.

Mrs. Cy Whatley and Mrs. H. Willis convened the tea. The decorations were done by Mrs. A. G. Stock with a committee of Mrs. P. J. Latchford, Mrs. T. Griffin, Mrs. T. Stanley and Mrs. R. McWilliams.

Regent Mrs. Clarke was assisted in receiving by vice-regent Mrs. C. E. Newman and by Miss Mary Medd, regent of Municipal Chapter. Mrs. D. Miller and Mrs. P. Martyn were taking tickets at the door.

DOROTHY DIX

Teaching Cruel Children Kindness

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband, our 8½-year-old son and I are recently arrived immigrants. At present we live in the home of a widower, have the use of a furnished flat and in return I take care of the old gentleman's home and prepare his meals. We are quiet people, more interested in family life than outside affairs.

My problem is my son. He is a neat boy, well behaved, and I have had many compliments about him. However, there is one family next door, with three children, and for some reason they cannot bear the sight of my child. He can't play with their children and I don't know what to tell him. My husband and I are not young, being 50 and 40 respectively. We go to church, and that about ends our connection with the neighbours. Now, all the other children in the street are following the lead of the three next door and refuse to play with my boy. Perhaps it is because, in their eyes, I am just a housekeeper.

MRS. W. H.

ANSWER: For a person who has been here just a few months you write a beautiful letter—in fact, much better than many people I know who were born and educated in this country. I regretted having to shorten it.

There are, unfortunately, people in this world who are convinced that anyone not exactly like themselves is queer and therefore should be shunned. The mere fact that you come from across the ocean puts you outside the pale of their acquaintanceship. Such ignorance and intolerance is one of the great stumbling blocks to human advancement.

You can be like your neighbors in many ways—go to the same church, send your child to the same school, but if you speak with an accent, that is sufficient reason, according to their puny minds, to ostracize you and your family. Not much can be done with neighbors like this; just pray that sometime they will see the light of true charity, which has been given to us in the eighteenth verse of the nineteenth chapter of Leviticus.

YOU'RE NOT AT FAULT

Don't feel that you are at fault because you are acting as housekeeper. The women who shun you probably don't even know how to keep their own houses in order. I suggest a talk with your clergyman, or one of the teachers at the boy's school. They may have activities to suggest that would get the boy away from your immediate neighborhood during his playtime, and give him a chance to make friends among folks who will appreciate his fine qualities. It might also be a good idea for you to engage in some church work, getting yourself known among a wider circle and also helping to pave the way for your son's activities.

The saddest part of your story is that the boy's contempararies—the children in the neighborhood—are the cruelest to him. Children are born conformists and to them anything they don't comprehend is cause for scorn. Good home training would make kinder citizens of them, and it's too bad so many parents neglect their responsibility in this matter. A kind family creates a kind child; it's a sad commentary on our people when they not only condone, but actually encourage, at lease by example, cruelty in their children.

I certainly hope someone can help solve your problem locally, for I'd hate to believe that a few careless people would give you an unfair picture of our country. I'd like to hear from you again.

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I have been going with a very nice boy for the past six months. He is planning a trip to take a friend back to college, about 200 miles from here. It would be necessary to stay in the college town overnight, and I'd like to know if it would be all right for me to go with him.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Most emphatically no. I'm sure your parents would object vociferously, too. A girl's reputation is much too precious to be risked for the pleasure of one trip.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: Your advice may help us out of a very touchy situation. We know a young couple who come to our house often, and sometimes at very late hours. Recently the lady came about 10 p.m. I was feeling very tired, and since she and my wife were engaged in a typically feminine conversation, I excused myself and went to bed. I certainly had no intention of slighting the lady, but my wife accused me of flagrantly insulting her guest.

H.P.

ANSWER: My sympathy is with you. Since the call was an unplanned one, and intended more for your wife than you, there's no reason why you should have stayed up until midnight listening to the latest neighborhood gossip. You might have been more tactful by asking the ladies' permission to leave, which might have flattered them. Bluntly retiring was rather rude, but then a 10 p.m. casual visitor isn't exactly too considerate, either.

I'm one of your good friends here in town — the man who brings a whole store to your door every day! Yes, every day, I've got my wagon packed with tempting, nourishing oven-fresh cakes, pies, buns and breads — family favourites your folks will eat up to the last crumb! And everything I carry is baked FRESH every day — really oven-fresh, and full of real old-time home-made goodness. For instance, tomorrow, I'd like you to try

DATE AND NUT LOAF CAKE. Delicious old-fashioned nut loaf cake — just like mother used to make! A rich dark loaf with a wonderful flavour, full of dates and nuts.

Ask me about the other good things in my basket, too. Your family will really enjoy anything you get from my Store-At-Your-Door! See you tomorrow!

Hospital Work Described At Smoky Lake

OMEMEE (ENS)—Miss V. Endicot, a nurse from the United Church hospital at Smoky Lake, Alberta, addressed the W.M.S. of Trinity United Church at the home of Miss Jessie Lamb.

The business was conducted by the president, Mrs. T. A. McConnell. The treasurer reported $83.80 still to be raised to meet the allocation. Miss C. Connell, treasurer of the Omemee and Bethel fund for the United Church Training School for Women, reported sending $333.65. Mrs. V. Lang reporting for the corresponding secretary, read messages of thanks from Lady Eaton, from Mr. and Mrs. I. Connell and from Mr. and Mrs. O. Grandy for sympathy extended in bereavement.

The worship, in charge of Miss Lamb, was centred around the theme, "The Book of Life." She was assisted by Mrs. C. R. Vaughan and Miss Connell who read selection from "The Book" and by Mrs. T. J. Pogue and Mrs. A. N. Weir who sang two duets in which they were accompanied by Mrs. Les. Casey.

Miss Endicott, who is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Endicott of this village, gave an interesting account of hospital work in Smoky Lake. A former teacher, Miss Endicott received her nurse's training in the Church hospital at Lamont, Alberta.

The George McDougal Hospital at Smoky Lake, originally a W.M.S. project, was recenlty taken over by the church, at which time she was transferred from Lamont. There was but one doctor, who was also subject to call to country points, which left the nurses on their own in some critical moments. It was difficult to keep staffed she said as nurses preferred to work in larger hospitals. However, she found the doctor and his wife very congenial, and the situation offered a broad experience in administrative work. But like the others she too is quitting for a position in a larger hospital.

What's Right?

Your school-age daughter wears jeans for out-door play.

WRONG: Let her wear them to the dinner table.

RIGHT: Have her change into a dress before coming to dinner—as the habit of making an effort to look presentable at the dinner table is one that should be cultivated early in children.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Boiled Dinner With Added Attraction

Escape literature. That's what this is. I thought of it as bread-and-butter stuff—for me that is—but no, it seems I'm wrong. A relative in a distant city wrote to the home folks and said "I read Mary's column every night. It's escape literature for me for I seldom have time to cook now."

I can understand the escape part—but literature. Golly—I belong to the literati and didn't even know it. "Benjie, find me that manuscript on Pliny the Elder's stream-of-consciousness. I must mull over it for I have a detestable habit of splitting hairs and infinitives."

If it's literature I shall wax poetic over a Boiled Dinner — for that's what is on the agenda —and the stove.

BOILED DINNER

It seems too bad when I'm feeling so soulfully poetic that this doesn't call for some such exotic ingredient as breast of lark. A hefty piece of corned beef is what you need—about 3 pounds, tied securely into shape. Barely cover meat with cold water. Do not add salt.

Bring to boiling point, boil 5 minutes, remove scum, cover, reduce heat and simmer 3 hours. Now you have to make a decision. Vegetables may be cooked with the meat OR meat removed and vegetables cooked in meat liquor, OR vegetables cooked separately. Flavor is better if they are cooked in the meat liquor with the meat. Appearance is better if they are cooked separately. I cook them with the meat and try to retain their shapes by careful handling. Add 1 wedge-shaped piece from a medium-small cabbage for each person to be served. Cut the cabbage in 6, leaving a piece of the core in each wedge to hold it together; add 2 medium whole carrots for each person to be served, 1 whole medium-small potato, about ½ cup yellow turnip. The traditional New England boiled dinner includes beets, and these are cooked separately, but I don't fancy them with stew so omit them, but I do cook whole small onions separately and join them up with the dinner when it is being arranged—ever so artistically— on your large hot platter. Add freshly ground pepper to this stew with a generous hand, and serve mustard pickles or horseradish sauce with it (see below).

If you can make a stew when all about you
Are hung-er-y and blaming it on you,
If you can serve a stew when all friends doubt you
And think it's going to taste of leather shoe,
If you can flavor it from Nature's bounty
And beautiful as flowers at the dawn,
Then you're a cook, your fame will spread from town to country,
What's more you'll keep your man, my girl. What fun!

HORSERADISH SAUCE

No. 1: Good with beef —especially when boiled. 1 teaspoon dry mustard, 1 tablespoon vinegar, 3 tablespoons heavy cream, 1 teaspoon sugar if desired. Mix together very well. This should be of consistency of thick cream. If bottled horseradish is used, drain it well and omit vinegar.

No. 2: 2 tablepsoons each grated horseradish, currant jelly, lemon juice, 2 teaspoons grated lemon rind, one-eighth teaspoon dry mustard. Beat the jelly with a fork until perfectly smooth then beat in remaining ingredients. If desired orange rind may be used in place of lemon — but add double the quantity.

BEET SALAD MOULD

Soften in ¼ cup cold water 1 tablespoon gelatin for 5 minutes then add 1 cup boiling water and stir until gelatin dissolves. Add 2 tablespoons sugar, ¼ cup vinegar, 1 teaspoon salt, ½ cup each finely shredded cabbage, drained canned beet dice. The vegetables should be added when liquid is cool. Turn into small moinstened moulds to chill and set. Turn out on lettuce cups to serve. Lemon-y mayonnaise is good with this.

6—In Memoriam

BRAULT—In loving memory of Albert Arthur Brault, who passed away Nov. 10, 1951.
He is gone, but not forgotten,
And, as dawns another year,
In our lonely hours of thinking
Thoughts of him are always near.
Days of sadness still come o'er us,
Friends may think the wound is healed
But they little know the sorrow
That lies within the heart concealed.
—Lovingly remembered by his wife and son Donald.

CROUTER—Luella who passed away November 10, 1947.
In life loved and honoured,
In death remembered.
—Remembered by daughter, sons, daughter-in-law and grandchildren.

TROTTER — In loving memory of Teddy Wallace Trotter, who passed away five years ago Nov. 9, 1947.
He was a flower too sweet for earth,
Sent here but for a while
God marked him when He gave him birth
And took him with a smile.
—Sadly missed by mother, dad, brothers Terry and Donnie.

YOUNG—In loving memory of dad, Walter H. Young, who passed away Nov. 10, 1951.
Oh God, what a weight of sorrow
Must we, the lonely ones bear,
A lonely home, a silent voice
And only his vacant chair.
—Lovingly remembered by Eletha and family.

YOUNG—In loving memory of a dear husband and father, Mr. Walter Henry Young, who passed away Nov. 10, 1951.
We are sad within our memory,
Lonely are our hearts today,
For the one we loved so dearly
Has forever been called away.
We think of him in silence,
No eye can see us weep,
But many silent tears are shed
When others are asleep.
—Lovingly remembered by wife and family.

Find Eskimos Cautious Incurring Debts

EDMONTON (CP)—A woman who spent almost a year among the Eskimos says they were cautious at first about accepting dental services, but when they found they were free and not compulsory, the Eskimos flocked to have their teeth examined.

Mrs. J. T. Hunt, the former Bonnie Kinneard, went north with her husband who is employed by the federal government to perform dental work among northern natives.

She has just returned after nine months in the Northwest Territories. She found that while life in the unsettled wilds is rugged, it is also filled with adventure and excitement.

Dr. and Mrs. Hunt visited about 15 villages, spending about three weeks in each settlement.

"We generally stayed just wherever we could set up our equipment," Mrs. Hunt said in an interview.

GOOD FOR TEETH

Dr. Hunt found that Indians and Eskimos who subsist exclusively on native foods have much better teeth than those whose diets are varied with white man's food. He said the natives are very fond of candy.

"Over 5,000 pounds of candy have been purchased by native inhabitants of the Aklavik district during the last year," he said.

Trips from outpost to outpost usually were made by plane but Mrs. Hunt made one 20-mile journey by dogsled from Fort McPherson to an Indian camp.

300 Pickets Parade At Hamilton Plant

HAMILTON (CP) — Some 300 pickets, members of the American Federation of Labor, paraded before the strike-bound Hamilton Cotton Mills here last night as reports circulated that members of the Textile Workers Union of America (C.I.O.-C.C.L.), would attempt to return to the plant for work.

Jack Robinson, area director for the United Textile Workers of America (A.F.L.-T.L.C.), called out the pickets. He said there would be a "minor revolution" if C.I.O. members attempted to reopen the plant.

Extra pickets were sent in at 6:30 a.m. today when it was believed C.I.O. members would attempt to go back to work, but to that time no one from the C.I.O. union had appeared.

Two Keene Girls Demonstrate Salads

Miss Marlene Stewart and Miss Eileen Davidson, both of Keene, represented Peterborough county in the junior program of the Toronto Area Women's Institute Convention held in Toronto last week.

The two members of the Keene junior homemaking club gave a demonstration entitled "Salad in the Menu."

Miss Jean Noble, home economist for Peterborough, Victoria, Durham and Northumberland counties, was chairman of the convention's junior program. Seven counties participated.

Life-Saving Ball

CUXHAVEN, West Germany (Reuters) — [illegible] and river [illegible] constructed a "life-saving ball" here for ship disasters. If a ship is sinking, passengers and crew can get into the ball while still on board ship, avoiding the dangers of taking to lifeboats. The ball, accommodating 25 persons, then can be dropped or rolled into the water.

Grave Of Girl In Toronto's Business Area

TORONTO (CP) — There is a small piece of ground in the crowded heart of the city untouched by the giant commercial buildings that surround it.

The plot, 12 by 14 feet, is dominated by the 34-storey Bank of Commerce, tallest building in the Commonwealth, and lies next to the Toronto General Trusts building.

Beneath the pavement of the courtyard of the Trusts building is the grave of a girl, Stella Vanzant, daughter of one of Toronto's pioneers, John Vanzant, who came from New York about 1778.

As was the custom in those days, the child was buried in the garden. First record of the grave appeared in a deed registered in 1815, but there has been no apparent transfer of the land in which it lies from the Vanzant family to other owners.

The grave is protected by an honorable agreement. In 1911, when the first part of the Toronto General Trusts building was erected, the company agreed to hold the plot containing the grave inviolate and in 1928, when an addition was made, the agreement was observed.

Mrs. Gerald Johnson of Toronto, a descendant of John Vanzant, says the pioneer was of Dutch extraction. He arrived when Toronto was a fur-trading post. Later he established a tannery at the corner of the present Adelaide and Yonge streets.

New $108,000 Ferry Link With Soo Island

HILTON BEACH (CP) — A new ferry to give St. Joseph's Island a year-round link with the mainland reached this village on the island 30 miles southeast of Sault Ste. Marie yesterday after being towed up Lake Huron.

The $108,000 ferry, built for the Ontario department of highways at Erieau, has a steel hull and is propeller-driven. It will replace two cable-operated wooden ferries in use for about 30 years.

The cable ferries could not cope with heavy ice in the channel and discontinued operations in winter.

The new craft, known as the St. Joseph Islander, will be docked here until an approach to its dock at Humbug Point is completed. When it goes into operation shortly it will serve 2,500 residents of the island.

Lake Huron storms last week delayed its arrival here. It left Sarnia Wednesday.

Abandoned Child Deaf, Maybe Blind

OTTAWA (CP) — An official of the Children's Aid Society said today a psychologist's examination has shown that Mildred Hall, three year-old child abandoned at the Ottawa Civic hospital, is "apparently blind and perhaps deaf."

"The child has never spoken a word in her life and perhaps never will," said the official.

The child was also given a mental examination.

The Children's Aid Society took custody of the child Friday, removing her from hospital where she was left Oct. 8 by a man who gave his name as Raymond P. Hall of R.R. 2, Cornwall, Ont.

Police said the report of the psychologist may help them to locate the parents. The child has been cured of the ailment for which she was admitted to hospital.

Letters sent to the Cornwall address given by the father have been returned "Addressee unknown." The man had said he worked for the Canadian National Railways. The C. N. R. has said it never heard of him.

CBC Rejects Requests For French Broadcasts

OTTAWA (CP) — The CBC Board of Governors today rejected an application by radio station CHNO of Sudbury for permission to broadcast simultaneously in French and in English. The station now broadcasts 70 per cent of the time in English and 30 per cent in French.

The board also turned down a [illegible] Quebec City's English-language radio station to a French-language station.

The application was made to the nine-member board by owers of the station — Senator H. Bouffard of Quebec, Senator J.M. Dessureault, also of Quebec, and Jean Paul St. Laurent, son of the Prime Minister.

Mrs. Rene Jacquier

Funeral services for Mrs. Rene Jacquier, the former Margaret Fitzgerald, of Fort Erie, and Indian River, who died suddenly Thursday, were held Saturday from the home of her brother, Emmett Fitzgerald, Indian River.

The Rev. J. J. McCarthy said mass at 9 a.m. in St. Joseph's Church, Douro. Burial was in St. Joseph's cemetery.

Pallbearers were Charles and Gus Whibbs, Leo O'Brien, James Murray, Frank Sullivan and Kevin Fitzgerald.

Drought Hits District Surrounding Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP) — —A drought described by some farmers as the most serious in several years is affecting the rural area surrounding this city. Wells and cisterns are reported to be going dry, and the land is so hard that farmers are unable to plow.

In the last 40 days, the rainfall here has been 75 per cent below normal, according to D. G. McCormick, meteorologist at the Hamilton weather office. Normal rainfall for October is 2.60 inches, but only .53 inches was recorded. Normal for the first 10 days of November is .85 inches, and the amount that fell was only .27 inches.

Rural residents who haven't bought water for as long as 18 years, it was learned, are having tank loads hauled to replenish their cisterns.

Fall wheat is being hard hit by the lack of rain, said W. G. Marritt, agricultural representative for Wentworth county.

Light Rainfall Eases 3-Year Texas Drought

DALLAS (AP(—Light rains fell in south Texas and along the Gulf coast today as a wet-weather front made a welcome but inadequate effort to ease Texas' three-year drought.

The rainfall was mostly a teaser to parched farm lands and dried-up pastures. However, it offered encouragement to grain growers with unsprouted seed and was expected to check widespread grass and timber fires in east and central Texas.

Ran Car Into Ditch Driver Charged

BANCROFT (ENS)—A charge of drunk driving has been laid against Joshua Baumhour, 32, of Highland Grove, following an accident Saturday evening on Highway 62 just outside the southern limits of the town.

Baumhour, police, drove into the ditch, [illegible]s appreciable damage to his car. Both he and his passenger, Mr. Shirley Couvert, 29, were unhurt.

Ottawa Parish Priest Rev. Cunningham Dies

OTTAWA (CP) — Canon John Cunningham of Almonte, 77, oldest active English-speaking rural parish priest of the Roman Catholic archdiocese of Ottawa, died in hospital here last night.

Canon Cunningham was the rector of St. Mary's Church at Almonte, 35 miles southwest of here, a post he took 17 years ago. He was ordained 39 years ago and had served in various parishes in this district. He was made a canon in 1932.

Teacher-Hero Purged

LIMOGES, France (Reuters) — The French Communist party today extended its purge of "deviationists" to Georges Guingouin, a former school teacher who led 15,000 Maquis during the war. The wartime hero, who won the title "liberator of Limoges," was rapped in a party statement for not falling in with the party line.

Bobby-Soxers' Idol Found Dazed In N.J.

HOBOKEN, N.J. (AP)—Al Martini, idol of the bobby-soxers for his record "Here in my Heart," is in Hoboken hospital after being missing for five days.

His manager, Jimmy Ceres, says he hasn't yet been able to find out where the singer had been since he disappeared last Monday night or what he has been doing.

Ceres said he found Martino in Manchester, N.H., Saturday in a dazed condition.

Roy Thompson To Buy 1 British Newspaper

TORONTO (CP)—Roy H. Thomson, head of Thomson dailies, said today on his return from a trip to Britain that he plans to buy at least one British newspaper.

Mr. Thomson, who also is president of the Canadian Press, said in an interview he is interested in several British papers and is "going to buy something."

Car's Exhaust Gases Kill Tottenham Man

NOBLETON (CP) — George Westover, 21, of nearby Tottenham yesterday was found dead in his car on a highway two miles south of this community 25 miles northwest of Toronto.

Sarnia Plumber Dies In Crash At Watford

WATFORD (CP) — Clinton MacCoubrey, 38, of Sarnia and formerly of Toronto, died today of injuries suffered yesterday when his car crashed into a steel traffic partition in a railway overpass on Watford's main street.

A plumber with Imperial Oil limited here, he is survived by his mother, Mrs. C. Bentley of Toronto and a brother, Rexford, of Cobourg.

T. E. Barrie

The funeral for Thomas Edward Barrie, 300 Wolfe St., who died Wednesday, was held Saturday from the Comstock funeral home.

The Rev. C. G. Boyd of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church conducted the service.

Memorial Service

COLDSPRINGS — (ENS) — A Remembrance Day service was held in St. Paul's United Church on Sunday. The Rev. V. M. Gilbert chose for his address, "A Sacrifice of Peaceoffering". The choir rendered the anthem, "God of our Fathers" with Miss E. Hoskin, organist.

"Honor" for Adlai

LONDON (Reuters) — The Daily Mirror today calls upon President-elect Eisenhower to "honor" Britain by naming Adlai E. Stevenson as United States ambassador to this country. A New York dispatch to the mass circulation newspaper says "surely this is the most suitable post" for the Democrats' presidential candidate, who retires as governor of Illinois in January.

Patch U.S. Carrier

VALETTA, Malta (Reuters) — Repair crews today boarded the United States cruiser Des Moines outside Valetta harbor and patched up her steering gear, damaged during Mediterranean manoeuvres. The Des Moines made Malta after battling heavy seas.

Windsor To Build Low-Rental Housing Project

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Letters patent have been received establishing a limited dividend housing company which will begin work immediately on a $500,000 project involving construction of a 100-unit low-rental apartment building to house approximately 175 of Windsor's older residents.

Ground is expected to be broken early in 1953. The company will be known as the City of Windsor Housing Company Ltd., City Solicitor James E. Watson announced today.

S.A. Tarleton, city property manager, said one large structure will be erected. Plans are not definite in this regard.

The city's share in the project will be 10 per cent, or approximately $50,000. Of this sum to be provided by the city, $25,000 will be included as value of the city property, leaving only $25,000 in cash to be supplied by Windsor, Mr. Watson said.

In addition, under new provincial legislation, it is expected the province will make a grant of approximately $25,000 to the city, meaning, in the last analysis, the city will provide only the land for the project.

The remaining 90 per cent, or $450,000 is expected to be provided by a 50-year loan from the federally-owned Central Mortgage and Housing corporation.

Low rents to be charged for the units are expected to make the project self-liquidating by providing funds for repayment of the C.M.H.C. loan.

The project will be designed especially for senior citizens of low fixed incomes, such as pensioners. While exact rents have not yet been decided upon, it is hoped they will not be far above those charged for similar housing in Owen Sound — approximately $22 to $27 a month.

Present plans call for some of the units to be for single residence while others will house elderly couples.

Multiple Bruises Suffered In Crash

Mrs. Rose Dwyer, 688 Chamberlan St., was injured in a two-car accident at Park and Romaine Sts., Saturday evening. She was taken to St. Joseph's Hospital, suffering from multiple bruises and shock and released on Sunday.

She was a passenger in a car driven by her husband, Garnet Dwyer, which had been going east on Charlotte St., and was making a left-hand turn to go north on Park St.

The other car, driven by Robert Clark, R.R. 3, Peterborough, was going west on Charlotte St. Both drivers told police they did not see the other car in time to avoid an accident.

OBITUARIES

ROBERT SMITHSON NURSE

Robert Smithson Nurse, 83, of Fowler's Corners, was stricken with a heart attack when he came into the city on business today and died a few minutes later.

A blacksmith by trade, Mr. Nurse went into the garage business at Fowler's Corners when motor cars began replacing horses and he has remained active in the business, although he has been in poor health in recent months.

He is survived by his wife, the former Harriet Shouldice, and four children, two daughters, Mrs. Frank Sherwood (Beatrice), of Toronto, and Mrs. K. D. Sisson (Louella), of Peterborough; and two sons, Kenneth, of Fowler's Corners, and Smithson Nurse, of Omemee.

Also surviving are two sisters, Mrs. Thomas Franks and Mrs. Hanna Nurse, both of Bridgenorth.

He was a son of the late John Jackson Nurse and Marget Smithson. Mr. Nurse was born in Ennismore township and spent his entire life in this district.

He was a member of St. James' Anglican Church, Emily.

The body is resting at the Comstock funeral home until 2 p.m. Wednesday, where funeral services will be held, with the Rev. Charles Richmond, of Omemee, officiating.

Burial will be in Emily cemetery.

LAKEFIELD (ENS). — James Francis McCarthy, 69, Bridge St., Lakefield, died in a Peterborough hospital Saturday, following a lengthy illness.

Mr. McCarthy was born in Hastings, son of the late Mathew McCarthy and Catherine Gallagher and has lived in Lakefield for the past 13 years, Formerly he lived in Hastings.

While in Hastings, Mr. McCarthy owned and operated a drygoods store for 20 years. Later he was a salesman for a drygood's firm.

He was a member of St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church, Lakefield and a member of the Commercial Travellers' Association.

He leaves one daughter, Miss Adele McCarthy, Lakefield; three sons, Jerome, Lakefield; Bernard, Ottawa; Jack, Fort Erie; two sisters, Mrs. M. A. O'Shea (Kathleen), Hastings; Sister Mary Adele, Toronto; and two brothers, the Rev. J. J. McCarthy, Douro, and Joseph McCarthy, Toledo, Ohio. His wife, the former Margaret Mary Walsh, predeceased him in 1951.

The funeral will be held Tuesday from the Hendren Funeral Home, Lekefield, to St. Paul's Roman Catholic Church for requiem mass at 9 a.m. Burial will be in Our Lady of Mount Carmel cemetery, Hastings.

Youth Of 15 Champion Shot Of Campbellford Hunt Party

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS) — Four black bears and one deer is the record chalked up last week by Aleric (Duffy) Cochrane, 15, of Campbellford. The boy and his father were members of a hunting party with a camp north of Marmora.

Aleric Sr. and Aleric Jr., whom everybody calls Duffy, are both ardent hunters and fishermen. This is the first year Duffy has had a license to hunt, and he wanted to make the most of it.

Within a half hour after he had started to hunt, the lad had killed four bear and a deer. It all happened this way: The first morning the hunters started out in different directions. Duffy had been out only a short time when he noticed the first bear. He shot it. Along came another bear and he shot it, too. A few minutes later, a third bear came into sight, so Duffy shot that one. About this time, Duffy heard something else plodding through the woods, and fearing he would run out of ammunition before he ran out of bears, he began calling for help.

The noise he had heard turned out to be another and this time much larger bear. The bear inspected the bodies of the other three bears, then started in the direction of Duffy. Duffy took aim with his 12-gauge pump gun and bowled the bear over. Duffy's father, Aleric Cochrane, and another member of the party, were by this time coming at top speed through the bush, wondering what all the shooting was about in Duffy's area. While they were hurrying to the scene, they heard another shot from Duffy's pump gun, and soon came to a small clearing where the lad was standing beside a fairly large buck he had brought down with the last shot.

WOODS FULL OF BEARS

The two men gasped in amazement when they saw the dead animals. "Gosh dad—I'm glad you got here, the woods is full of bears" said Duffy when his dad arrived. While the men were piling up the dead bears and hanging the carcass of the deer up in a tree, Duffy spotted a fifth bear. Aleric Senior shot this one, which proved to be the daddy of them all.

A little later on, Wesley Mechetuk, a third member of the party, shot a deer, which ended the hunting, Duffy could hardly wait to get his trophies back to Campbellford so he could display them to his friends. Saturday, five black bears and one deer were strung up in the back yard at the Cochrane home on Garry street. People came from all over town to view the animals, and Duffy was on hand to tell how each was shot.

"Dad got that bear over there", he would tell the visitors, then add nonchalantly "I got the other four, and the deer".

It was while Duffy was standing, somewhat bewildered, beside the four bears he had shot, that the deer ran through the clearing and stopped to sniff the wind. That sniff cost the buck his life, because Duffy shot it before it had a chance to take off again. Now, he is talking about next year, hoping he will see more deer and fewer bears. "It sure was a hectic few minutes," he said. The five animals were all bagged during the first half hour of the hunt.

Order Examination After 'Heil Hitler' Cry

LONDON (Reuters) — John Battersby, 45, who cried "Heil Hitler" during a two-minute silence at a solemn service of commemoration for Britain's war dead, was ordered by a magistrate today to undergo a mental examination

He broke the stillness yesterday at the war memorial in central London where thousands--including the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh — were standing with bowed heads. Bystanders shouted threats as police took him away.

The magistrate remanded him for a week for a physical and mental check-up.

Battersby, who described himself as an author, had five photographers of Hitler on his person. He said his words were:

"This is the day of judgment. Take the children out of London. Praise God and the eternal Christ. Heil Hitler."

Lord Mayor's London Show Brilliant Street Parade

As it has been for a century, it was a brilliant parade over yellow sand strewn across a dozen streets.

A dozen bands and detachments of 32 military, naval and air force units escorted the new Lord Mayor 59-year-old Sir Rupert de la Bere, on his triumphalt procession from the Guildhall, historic building which is the seat of his authority, to the law courts, and back again.

Pageantry dating back to the Middle Ages was unfolded The Lord Mayor, wearing his black tricorne hat and scarlet robes, rode in the magnificent red-and-gold state coach drawn by six frisky horses.

The purpose of the procession was to give the new Lord Mayor an official opportunity to announce to the high court judges that he has been elected. A Conservative Member of Parliament for Worcestershire, he is a wealthy director of several companies.

The City of London, now the financial and business centre of the capital, represents London within its ancient boundaries. Its head is traditionally the senior of London's 29 borough mayors and takes the title "Lord Mayor."

The first mayor was appointed by King John in 1191. Since 1215 the Lord Mayor has been chosen by the aldermen and councillors of the city.

Robert Smith

The funeral for Robert Smith, 639 Lillian St., who died Thursday, was held Saturday from the Kaye funeral home.

The Rev. A. A. Mathews of George St. United Church conducted the service.

Pallbearers were Larry Parton, George Duncan, Arthur Duncan, Jack Pollock, Harry Jones, Jack Parnaby. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Before 1801 there was no official census of either England or Scotland.

time, gives service from 8 a.m. to 10 p.m. on weekdays and from 2 to 4 p.m. on Sundays and holidays. Any calls made after these hours, when possible, result in a service charge of 25 cents being made to the caller. Outsiders, it was claimed, wishing to call into the village find the exchange listed as closed and their calls are either refused or discouraged.

This service proved to be the target of much criticism by the reeve, who, with the unanimous vote of those present, demanded that Mr. Wiggins either sell the business to someone competent to maintain it, or ask the Bell Telephone Co., to take over.

He stated that a great majority of ratepayers were paying for telephones which did not work at all most of the time and were in poor condition the balance of the time. Full charges continued to be made by the telephone company during this time, he said.

Views were expressed by Maynooth citizens who have been unable to communicate with Bancroft since early spring. These people were definitely in favor of discontinuing business with the present organization. They were warned by the reeve that this would constitute an unlawful boycott. Since last spring the best means of communication between the two centres has been by automobile, a distance of 15 miles.

William Carswell, a former telephone commissioner at Maynooth, voiced the views of citizens of that village. He informed the meeting that quite some time ago he had told the company at Maynooth that he would not be responsible for any further charges in connection with his telephone. It is still in his home against his wishes, he said.

Several other angles were discussed during the meeting. A doctor's wife, Mrs. O. W. Anderson, told of calls for medical assistance, and of persons having to walk from the hospital to the residence for the services of the doctor during late hours when unable to reach him by telephone. The police and fire departments and the need for their immediate response was also brought up. While these calls will be answered normally, for the service charge, quite often the line is out of order.

Councillor G. E. Broughton said the matter was one being undertaken by the reeve independently and had not yet been discussed by the council. He intimated that he felt the question should be referred to the people in the usual way, preferably during the coming elections, three weeks hence. Then it could be dealt with by council in the proper manner should the voters so desire. Mr. Broughton was told by the reeve that he enjoyed full authority to call a meeting to discuss the situation and that he was acting on that authority without the advice of council members. The only other councillor present, Wilfred Maxwell, made no comment.

Mr. McDonald, superintendent of Rural Telephone Systems, Ontario Municipal [illegible] reeve's request, addressed the meeting and spoke of the difficulties encountered by independent systems operating in rural areas. He referred to the new switchboard installed by the Bancroft exchange a short time ago and voiced the opinion that a person with experience, in charge of the system could satisfy the subscribers. Larger companies such as the Bell Telephone Co., he warned, were reluctant, due to their heavy backlog, to take over such companies unless assured of a sufficient number of subscribers.

The official was emphatic that his purpose was not to discourage those at the meeting and believed that a growing community such as this should have 24-hour service. He felt that the only solution was in the acquisition by the municipality of the holdings of the company.

WILL TAKE VOTE

Reeve Tyron, after thanking the speaker, resumed the discussion period and it was decided that the municipality enter into negotiations with the owner, provided the public vote to be in the affirmative. If the asking price be to high, then, if need be, the municipality would expropriate the business. The matter will be put to a public vote as soon as possible.

Congregation Urged To Build Southend Church

The theme, Venturing With Christ in Canada, was used Sunday morning in a message of encouragement to a capacity congregation in Grace United Church.

The Rev. E. W. Rowland of George St. United Church and formerly of Grace United Church was the guest minister at the morning anniversary service. He strongly urged the congregation to go ahead with their plans to build a new church.

The Rev. I. G. Pollock, minister of Grace United Church, announced that plans are progressing to build a new church premises in 1953.

BE PIONEERS

"Accept God's challenge as Abraham, Moses, Paul and other great men of the church did," Mr. Rowland told the congregation. "Be pioneers so that here there may be created a suitable building to the glory of God and accommodation for a large congregation."

The minister pointed to the misgivings that had arisen in people's minds before Church Union in Canada in 1925. He explained that union had gone ahead despite these misgivings and what had resulted was not only a United Church but a uniting church. It was accomplished because believers gambled for God and the right.

"God is marching on," Mr. Rowland concluded. "We can't stand still. We can't even mark time. We must march on with Him. It is only in venturing with Christ that we will develop here in this southern part of a flourishing city, a place where God is honored and revered."

Jack Gibson was soloist at the morning service. The choir, under the direction of Mrs. William Turner, sang two anthems.

Mr. Pollock conducted the evening service. His sermon theme was Church Leadership in a Challenging World.

Special music for the evening service was provided by the choir and a male quartet. The members of the quartet were Wilbert Harrison, George Sage, Douglas Montgomery and T. Goudie.

NEW AMBASSADOR — Edmond Turcotte, 54-year-old former editor-in-chief of the Montreal newspaper Le Canada, is the first Canadian ambassador to the South American country of Colombia. Mr. Turcotte was a controversial figure five years ago when he was named consul-general in Chicago and the United States protested that his writings had shown anti-American bias and Canada stood by the posting. The appointment gives Canada 25 embassies abroad.

F. W. Bate

The funeral for Frederick William Bate, 563 Walnut St., who died Wednesday, was held Saturday from the Kaye funeral home.

The Rev. E. W. Rowland of George St. United Church, conducted the service.

Pallbearers were Cecil Forsyth, Jack Forsyth, Jack McMahon, Murray McMann, Hal Baker, Roy Swait. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Woman Dies On Day Of Housewarming

The same day there was to be a housewarming after members of her husband's former congregation had winterized their cottage at Young's Point, Mrs. Edgar C. Moore collapsed Saturday afternoon while shopping and died on the way to hospital.

Wife of the Rev. E. C. Moore, former minister of St. George's Anglican Church in Peterborough, Mrs. Moore was shopping in a Peterborough chain store about five p.m. when she collapsed. She died while being taken in an ambulance to hospital.

Recently members of St. George's Church had insulated the Moores' cottage at Young's Point so that it would be suitable for year-round living. Mr. Moore was minister of the church for several years.

Mrs. Moore was born in Fenelon Falls, daughter of the late James Lamb and Elizabeth Patton and has lived in Young's Point for the past year. Formerly she lived in Peterborough and previous to that in Young's Point.

She was a member of St. Aidan's Anglican Church, Young's Point.

Besides her husband, she leaves one daughter, Mrs. W. S. Jaques (Matilda) of Hamilton; and two sons, Godfrey of Niagara-on-the-lake and Edgar of Lakefield.

The funeral will be held Tuesday at 2 p.m. from the Comstock funeral home to St. Aidan's Anglican Church, Young's Point. The Rev. P. Mouland Lamb of St. Cuthbert's Anglican Church, Leaside, will conduct the service. Burial will be in Hillside Cemetery, Lakefield.

Increase Scotch Flow

LONDON (Reuters)—The Scotch Whisky Association, exporters, plans to increase the flow of Scotch across the Atlantic next year. The whisky trade aims to export 11,000,000 proof gallons in 1953, an increase of 650,000 over the 1952 target.

On Remembrance Day . . .
We Rededicate Ourselves
To the Cause of Freedom

A busy nation pauses Tuesday to honor the dead of World War I, and celebrate that day of Armistice, November 11, 1918, that ended that terrible war—a war that failed to end all wars. We have since faced other threats to our freedom, and that of other nations, and fought still another war . . . World War II. The liberty that we possess has been most dearly paid for—and, on Remembrance Day, 1952, we are more determined than ever to hold on to our liberty for ever and ever more.

Bigger National Production Seen For '53, Despite Record

By The Canadian Press

Canada's record national production is exceeding all estimates this year, but trade forecasters predict even bigger things next year.

The 1953 gross national product—sum total of all goods and services produced—is expected to exceed this year's output, now estimated at a peak $22,750,000,000. The orginal government forecast for 1952, made early this year, was $22,500,000,000.

Capital investment—at a peak $5,200,000,000 in 1952—is expected to go even higher in 1953.

Consumer spending, strong now after sagging in the first half of 1952, is likely to make new gains.

EXPORTS TO U.S.

And 1953 exports to the United States, Canada's top customer, are expected to be buoyant, offsetting a less reassuring outlook for sales to other parts of the world.

Summing up, says Dr. O. J. Firestone, the trade department's economic adviser, "prospects for 1953 are for a continuation of a high level of economic activity and a gross national product exceeding that of 1952."

Dr. Firestone did some crystal-gazing when he spoke recently before the Montreal Institute of Investment Analysts. He mixed optimism with caution and with a touch of unpleasant realism—somewhere along the line, Canada's spectacular post-war expansion may lose momentum.

The first sign, he says, will be on contractors' drawing boards. And some of those drawing boards are not so busy as they once were.

"... New large-scale resources development and industrial projects are not being planned on the scale that we have become accustomed to in recent years," he notes.

"True, there are some major projects in the offing, such as the St. Lawrence Seaway and the Bersimis River hydro project in eastern Quebec announced recently.

"Then, ther will be new developments that we do not know about today. The point I want to make is that we cannot assume a continuous expansion of our economy at the rapid rate of the post-war years—at some future date the expansion may slow down.

Say Mistake Possible In Plane Crash Report

OSWEGO, N.Y (AP)—The Coast Guard yesterday said a search for a plane reported down Saturday in Lake Ontario had been halted.

Boats from the Coast Guard station here along with two tugs and three airplanes scoured the lake in the area where a plane was believed to have plunged.

Kenneth T. Outten, in charge of the Coast Guard station here, said it was possible that exhaust from a jet plane had been mistaken for smoke.

The R.C.A.F. at Trenton Saturday reported no planes missing.

Marmora Legion Church Parade

MARMORA (ENS)—With Sgt. R. Gray in charge, members of Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion and of its Ladies' Auxiliary paraded to St. Paul's Anglican Church on Sunday evening for the annual Remembrance Day service.

Canon J. M. Brownlie, past chaplain of the Legion, conducted the service and delivered a sermon on "These are they which came out of great tribulation." The lesson was read by W. J. Cottrell. Mrs. P. Gray sang "In Flanders Fields." Last Post and Reveille were sounded by Comrade B. Courtney.

Australia's Aborigines Get New Deal

By JEFFREY SMITH

CANBERRA, Australia (Reuters)—Australia's aborigines, original inhabitants of the great island-continent and among the most primitive in the world, are going to get a new deal.

For the first time since the coming of the white man, aborigines and part aborigines are to receive full citizenship rights.

FULL CITIZENSHIP

Under a law to be passed by the Northern Territory legislative council it will be assumed that, along with all British subjects, aborigines have full citizenship as a birthright and enjoyment of that right will be withheld only if a person stands in need of special assistance.

Previously aborigines gained citizenship rights only if they could prove they did not need special assistance.

A native welfare council, composed of Federal Minister for Territories Paul Hasluck, and state representatives, has been formed for the advancement of the aborigines.

Medical and hospital facilities for aborigines are being extended and plans are under way to provide every population centre with a radio transmitter and receiver so contact can be kept with the flying-doctor service which brings medical aid by plane to remote and isolated areas. Schools and education centres have been established.

The federal government is directly responsible for about 13,000 of Australia's 47,000 full-blooded aborigines. The rest come under the supervision of the state governments.

Of the 13,000 full-bloods in the Northern Territory, only some 600 are completely out of touch with civilization, while 3,720 are gainfully employed in "outback" towns, or as stockmen on cattle ranches. Less than a third live as nomads—chiefly in the Northern Territory, northern Western Australia and Northern Queensland.

Most aborigines have forgotten their old native customs but those 600 or so continue to practice stone-age cutoms.

The live in caves and rock holes and, except for crude nagas of leaves or cast-off cloth, go naked.

They exist on a marine diet of fish and crocodiles.

Adam And Fallen Man Lesson Sermon Subject

"Adam and Fallen Man" was the subject of the lesson sermon which was read in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, throughout the world, including First Church of Christ, Scientist, Peterborough, on Sunday.

The golden text was: "If by one man's offence death reigned by one; much more they which receive abundance of grace and of the gift of righteousness shall reign in life by one, Jesus Christ" (Romans 5: 17).

Selections from the Bible included the following from Genesis 1: 26, 27. "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness: and let them have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the fowl of the air, and over the cattle, and over all the earth, and over every creeping thing that creepeth upon the earth. So God created man in his own image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them."

Correlative citations from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," included the following: "God fashions all things, after His own likeness. Man, made in His likeness, possesses and reflects God's dominion over all the earth. Man and woman as coexistent and eternal with God forever reflect in glorified quality, the infinite Father-Mother God. Genesis 1: 27. "So God created man in His own image, in the image of God created He him; male and female created He them." "To emphasize this momentous thought, it is repeated that God made man in His own image, to reflect the divine Spirit. It follows that man is a generic terms. Masculine, feminine, and neuter genders are human concepts."

Aussie Firms To Expand

By JEFFREY SMITH

MELBOURNE, Australia (Reuters) — Oil companies, eager to avoid the danger of nationalization of expensive plants and machinery in less stable areas, plan to spend nearly £82,000,000 in the next four years expanding refinery capacity here.

When completed the program will make Australia virtually self-sufficient in refined oil products.

Refined petroleum output in Australia is expected to be increased from the present production of about 80,000 tons a year to 6,-250,000 tons a year by 1956. Demand by then is expected to be 7,500,000 tons a year.

Present consumption of petroleum products in Australia is between 5,000,000 and 5,500,000 tons a year and all products not refined here have to be imported.

TO STEP UP OUTPUT

Four companies planning to step up refining production are the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company, Caltex Oil (Australia), Vacuum Oil Company and Shell Oil Company.

The biggest project is the £40,-000,000 refinery to be built by Anglo-Iranian at Kwinana, on Cockburn Sound, just south of Fremantle in Western Australia.

Work on the new refinery began officially on Oct. 1 and under present plans, it should be completed by 1955. It will have a yearly output of 3,000,000 tons a year

The refinery will be the biggest in Australia and is expected to provide 40 per cent of the country's oil requirements.

The Shell company is building a modern refinery on the shores of Corio bay, near Geelong, in Victoria State. Spending about £4,000,-000, it expects to have a plant with a capacity of 1,000,000 tons operating by 1954. Its aim is a daily production of about 600,000 gallons of gasoline.

The Vacuum Oil Company will spend £13,000,000 on extending its present plant at Altona, near Melbourne. Extensions should be completed by 1954 when production will be about 1,000,000 tons a year.

PAPUA SEEN SOURCE

Crude oil [illegible] will come from the Middle East and Dutch New Guinea and eventually from Papua if the search for oil there is successful.

Caltex Oil Company has announced plans to build a refinery with a yearly output of 1,250,000 tons by 1955. The plant, which will probably be erected near Sydney, is expected to cost £25,000,000.

Crude oil for the refinery, 55 per cent of whose production is expected to be gasoline, will come chiefly from Bahrein and Saudi Arabia.

Driver Reports Giving Ride To Missing Lad

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Late Sunday night, Danny Parkinson, crippled 13-year-old Bryanston schoolboy, was still listed as missing.

But Saturday night an unidentified motorist told London township police he had given a ride last Wednesday to a boy answering Danny's description.

The motorist said he drove the lad north from Bryanston to No. 7 highway. He said the boy got out there and started to hitch-hike west.

Danny left home for school Wednesday but didn't arrive.

Lion In Cockpit

BERLIN (AP)—A lion in the cockpit caused a British commercial airliner to log a flight an hour late yesterday. The lion, a six-months-old cub consigned as freight, popped out of its crate on the Berlin-Hannover run, stalked into the pilot's cabin and squatted. The crew, avoiding any sudden motions to frighten the cat, swung around a half hour west of Berlin and returned to Tempelhof Field, where the cub was taken off and the flight resumed.

Drew Urges Need For Faith, Vision

KELOWNA, B.C. (CP)—A challenge to Canadians to face the second Elizabethan era with faith, vision and a spirit of adventure was made here Saturday by George Drew, national Progressive Conservative leader.

Mr. Drew stopped at this British Columbia apple capital during the course of his western tour.

In Trail, Friday night, he said a "wise immigration policy" is essential to the development of Canada's resources.

Canada has "the wealth and resources to eventually maintain 150,000,000 people," he added.

Strike Settlement

DETROIT (CP)—Agreement in the 17-day Edison Company strike which threatened to deprive 3,500,-000 consumers in southeastern Michigan of electric power came at midnight Saturday after 12 hours of bargaining. Four thousand men are affected. Officials of local 223, the Utility Workers of America (C.I.O.), accepted the company offer of six cents on an hourly basic wage rate of $1.72 plus four cents in fringe benefits and an automatic four-cent boost in June, 1953. Union officials said the agreement must be ratified today by a membership vote.

Drowning Caused Death

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—An autopsy last night showed that Douglas Strong, 48, of the Perth district died from drowning. His body was found in the Welland River Saturday. The body was discovered by Earl Murchie of Niagara Falls and identified by David Parks of Perth, Strong's son-in-law. Strong had been missing two weeks.

Eden Offers 4-Point Plan To Settle P.O.W. Dispute

Churchill Blasts Russian Block Of Peace In Korea

By MICHAEL NEWMARCH

LONDON (AP)—Prime Minister Churchill, blasting with all his old wartime vigor, last night accused Russia of blocking the peace in Korea in an attempt to disperse the strength of the free world and cripple the buildup of European defences. Speaking in London's ancient bomb-scarred Guildhall, the 77-year-old prime minister also hailed the election of Dwight D. Eisenhower as new president of the United States and urged France and Germany to get together for the cause of European unity.

Churchill said "there has been no doubt that thus far it has been the policy of Moscow—for reasons which are obvious——to prevent an agreement from being reached" in Korea.

Saying that the Communist world gained an advantage in tying down large proportions of U.S. and United Nations resources in the Far East, he added:

WHY TALKS DRAGGED

"That is why the Kremlin ordered the original aggression to begin and that was why, after President Truman had effectively marshalled the United Nations to repel it, so-called truce talks have dragged out over more than a year.

"It is a convenient way of dispersing the strength of the free world and preventing or at least delaying the building up of a secure defence against the subjugation of western Europe.

The British leader voiced unqualified support for the U.S. refusal to force U.N. prisoners of war in Korea to return to their Communist - ruled homelands. Churchill said he was anxious for peace in Korea, but not "at the price of dishonor."

"It would be a dishonor to send thousands of helpless prisoners of war back by force to be massacred by the Chinese government, which boasts it has actually rid itself of 2,000,000 of its own people."

Churchill spoke at a banquet ending the inauguration of Sir Rupert De la Bere as new lord mayor of the City of London.

WORK WITH EISENHOWER

In his salute to President-elect Eisenhower, Churchill assured him that Britain would work with him "to the utmost limit of our strength for those great causes which we have guarded and cherished in ever greater unity as generations have rolled by."

Raising his voice and holding his clenched fists above his head, the prime minister appealed to France and West Germany to co-operate in rebuilding the strength of western Europe.

"France should take Germany by the hand and lead her back into the family of nations and thus end the 1,000-year quarrel which has torn Europe to pieces," he said.

Among his other points:

EVEN AS WE REMEMBER the men who fought and died in two world wars, another generation of young Canadians are fighting with U.N. forces and dying to stamp out a new threat to our way of life. These were probably the thoughts of Gunner Clarence McFarland today, as he saluted the War Memorial banked with floral wreaths after laying a wreath among the dozens of others at the Remembrance Day service. Rejects Proposal Of Russians For Return Of All

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Anthony Eden laid down today four principles for settling the dead-locked prisoner-of-war issue and asked Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky if he would accept them. In a broad policy speech before the U.N. Assembly, the British Foreign Secretary turned down Vishinsky's proposal for a new commission to end the Korean war as of "no help over our present difficulty." Vishinsky told the political committee yesterday he would "not budge" on the Communist demand that all prisoners be repatriated.

"Mr. Vishinsky said that he believed in the unconditional repatriation of prisoners of war without screening and, to quote his words, without excess," said Eden.

"He did not, however, say whether in his view those who genuinely fear for their lives should be forced back at the point of the bayonet.

"I am encouraged by his lack of precision on that point. I hope, therefore that he will examine my four principles and consider carefully whether or not they are acceptable."

USE NO FORCE

The four principles advanced by Eden were:

1. All prisoners have the right to be released under an armistice.
2. Prisoners have the right to be speedily repatriated.
3. There is a duty on the detaining side to provide facilities for such repatriation.
4. The detaining side has no right to use force in connection with the disposal of prisoners.

Eden said he does not dispute that at a "later stage" there might be scope for a commission such as Vishinsky had suggested.

He added, however, that "our immediate purpose is to get this sole remaining issue of the prisoners of war settled. Only then can we proceed to the political conference which has already been accepted, in paragraph 60 of the armistice agreement."

Eden's address outlining Britain's position presumably had the support of the other two major western powers — the United States and France.

The Assembly, meanwhile, buzzed over Trygve Lie's surprise resignation as secretary-general Monday. Lie, opposed by the Russians ever since he supported U. N. action in Korea, said he hoped his step-down would speed up a peaceful settlement of the war.

Eden revised his address this morning outlining Britain's general policy, in order to lash back at the Soviet foreign minister's rejection of all compromises for ending the deadlocked Korean prisoner-of-war issue which is holding up an armistice.

Chinese Smash U.N. Forces Off Sniper Ridge

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — A smashing Chinese infantry and artillery attack drove South Korean defenders from the main Allied position in Sniper Ridge tonight.

It was the 13th time United Nations forces have been driven off Pinpoint Hill since the battle for the Kumhwa ridges began Oct. 14.

The South Koreans fell back at 9 p.m. after a five-hour battle with 1,500 Chinese. It began with one of the heaviest Communist artillery barrages of the war.

John Randolph, Associated Press war correspondent, reporting from the scene on the central front, said the Communists hurled 1,000 rounds of mixed mortar and artillery fire in the first few minutes of the hour-long kickoff barrage.

Less than an hour after the first gun opened up, the Reds lashed out in a three-pronged attack that hit the ridge on the north, east and west.

The South Koreans began withdrawing to their base positions on the outlying spurs of Sniper Ridge. These are the positions they have been able to hold in the 12 previous withdrawals from Pinpoint.

Earlier today United Nations infantry threw back Red attacks on both the eastern and western ends of the rainswept Korean battleline as well as a company size — 150 to 175 men — attack on Sniper Ridge.

On the western front, Allied infantry repulsed a second attack by 350 Chinese Reds on Pork Chop Hill. Only four hours earlier the

Claim Jackson, Suchan Given Unfair Hearings

TORONTO (CP) — Counsel for convicted murderers Steve Suchan and Leonard Jackson yesterday argued before the Ontario Supreme Court that their clients did not get a fair trial.

The convicted men were sentenced by Chief Justice J. C. McRuer to be hanged Dec. 16 for the fatal shooting of Det. Sgt. Edmund Tong last March 6. Suchan fired the shots and Jackson was found guilty of forming a common intention with Suchan to resist arrest by violence.

The five appellate justices, including Chief Justice J. W. Pickup, adjourned the hearing until tomorrow when they will hear the rest of the case for the defence and the crown's submission.

ASK NEW TRIALS

Arthur Maloney appeared for Jackson and J. J. Robinette for Suchan. Both asked for a new trial. Crown counsel is W. B. Common.

Mr. Maloney submitted that the jury had been allowed to hear inadmissible evidence and had been misdirected by the trial judge.

Mr. Robinette said evidence about Suchan's capture in Montreal after a gun battle with police should not have been allowed and was "so prejudicial that on that ground alone there should be a new trial."

Mr. Maloney said he had been asked by the trial judge to act in the case five days before the trial started. He had asked for a two- or three-day delay because he had no knowledge of most of the crown's case, but this was refused.

Mr. Robinette said he had joined Mr. Maloney in asking for an adjournment, and said the trial judge's denial "was a denial of natural justice, having regard to the circumstances of the case."

Western World Honors Fallen

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Countries of the western world honored their war dead today in solemn ceremonies observing the 34th anniversary of the signing of the armistice that ended the First World War — but did not bring world peace.

It was Remembrance Day in Canada, in Britain, in the United States, in France. But it was hardly noticed at the Korean front.

Financial and commodity markets in Canada and the United States were closed.

Kitchener Group Asks Council Decontrol Rent

KITCHENER (CP) — The Kitchener-Waterloo Property Owners Association last night decided to ask city council to make every effort to decontrol rents. It also nominated three of its members to run in the coming civic elections in Kitchener and Waterloo.

Arthur King and Emmanueal Bean were nominated for the Kitchener council and Delman Reichert for Waterloo.

TRYGVE LIE, secretary-general of the United Nations, submitted his resignation Monday to the U.N. He told the General Assembly he was stepping aside in the hope that his move would help bring peace to Korea.

Eden Urges Lie Reconsider U.N. Resignation

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP) — Anthony Eden, British Foreign Secretary, today urged U. N. Secretary-general Trygve Lie to reconsider his decision to resign.

Speaking in the General Assembly debate, Eden said: "It would indeed be a misfortune if at this critical time in our affairs we were to lose the devoted service of our secretary-general. I hope that Mr. Lie can yet be persuaded to reconsider his decision."

Lie, who was present on the president's dais when Edene spoke, plunged the U.N. into a new east-west struggle with his "save the peace" resignation yesteray.

"I am stepping aside now because I hope this may help the United Nations to save the peace."

He told a reporter today he thinks his resignation will be accepted and that the Russians will agree to someone else to get him out.

Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky told The Associated Press that the Soviet Union will wait to see what candidates emerge before taking a stand.

But what Lie exchanged for a known situation was another sharper issue over man and policy. It

Fear "Disastrous Burden" If C.P.R. Granted Increase

OTTAWA (CP)—Provincial government freight rate counsel yesterday expressed fears concerning the effect of a railway proposal for a radical change in the system of setting Canada's freight rates. Arguing procedure in hearing the application, various provincial lawyers told the Board of Transport Commissioners that the proposed method would be a cause of serious public concern and would result in a "disastrous burden" of higher freight rates.

Declaring it would send up rates by as much as 33 per cent, they said they will resist it with every resource. The lawyers represented eight provinces—all except Ontario and Quebec.

Counsel for the Canadian Pacific Railway, chief advocate of the charge, said it wants revenue "relief" through the application and that delay before the board—sought by the provinces—would be "tantamount to a denial of justice" to the railways.

The views were expressed during discussion of procedure to be followed in hearing the case. This was settled late in the day and today the C.P.R. is to begin submission of evidence in support of the change.

That company, with the concurrence of the other railways, has asked the board for the proposed new system. Rates now are set on the basis of the current [illegible] requirements of the C.P.R. as determined by the board from time to time.

The railways now ask that the board determine the net rail investment of the C.P.R. and allow it to earn a "fair return" on this amount. The C.P.R. itself considers as fair a return of 6½ per cent on an investment base of $1,146,000,000, which would allow it rail earnings of $74,000,000 a year. The board now allows it a top earnings figure of $46,600,000.

Vet Slays Three, Then Suicides

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — The bullet-punctured bodies of four persons, including a six-year-old boy, were found in a suburban home yesterday.

Sheriff James Thompson called it murder-suicide and said the dead were:

Dr. J. W. Scheibler, 58-year-old veterinarian; his wife, Ruby, 52; Mrs. Scheibler's daughter by a previous marriage, Mrs. Doris Miller, 31; Mrs. Miller's son, Craig.

Thompson said Scheibler shot his wife and the boy in the back with a .38-calibre pistol as they slept in adjoining rooms.

The mother fled from the room she shared with her son into the living room where she was shot and killed, Thompson said.

The sheriff said Scheibler then shot himself.

Nye Bevan Fails In Bid To Be Aide To Attlee

LONDON (Reuters) — Aneurin Bevan, leader of the Labor party's left-wing rebels, today lost a bid to become deputy party leader but revealed surprising support for himself among Socialist members of Parliament.

Publication of a postal ballot showed that Herbert Morrison had been re-elected to the post by a vote of 194 to 82.

This was the biggest parliamentary support so far disclosed for Bevan in an open test of strength with the moderates of the party. Heretofore he has averaged about 50 supporters.

Bevan decided to seek the deputy leadership after his successes at the party's annual convention, where he and five followers won election to the party executive at the expense of the moderates, including Morrison.

Bevan draws support from those who share his view that Britain is attempting too much in her rearmament program, and being too subservient to the United States.

HAS STRONG SUPPORT

The result of the vote indicates that some Labor M.P.s favor Bevan even though they don't advertise the fact in public.

A recent open vote at a party meeting [illegible] disband as a separate group. On that occasion they collected only 51 votes, with 188 votes against.

Employment Outlook Same As Year Ago

TORONTO (CP)—Current employment in Ontario manufacturing concerns is about the same as last year at this time, the national employment service reports. The outlook in Toronto and Hamilton is more favorable than a year ago.

The agency notes trends that include greater willingness of employers to give jobs to older workers, greater placement of handicapped persons, and increased opportunities for youths.

One of the few dark spots this year has been the layoff of auto workers, part of which is due to model changeovers.

The employment agency said textiles continue to improve and the boom in television has brought increased activity among Kitchener furniture manufacturers turning out TV cabinets.

The marshal, Louis Kaplan, first hailed the freighter Buckeye at the Wabash ave. bridge. The Buckeye was heading for Lake Michigan, via the Chicago River. The ship's captain failed to hear Kaplan's shouts and continued. Kaplan ran to the next bridge at Michigan [illegible] docked.

Sailor Writes Of H-Bomb Blast

The Michigan City News-Dispatch printed parts of the letter today but did not identify the sailor or his parents. Other eye-witness accounts have been published in Los Angeles and Lima, O.

The sailor wrote that the bomb was hauled from San Francisco to the Marshall Islands aboard his ship with extraordinary precautions. While it was in port, he said, small boats circled it continuously.

His report of the big blast was much like the earlier ones

"We were anchored in the bay just off Kwajalein," he wrote. "The bomb went off at 7:15 a m our time Nov. 1. We were cruising out 35 miles from the test island

"I didn't get to see the actual blast. I was standing there with my eyes shut and my face pushed into my arms, and still I saw the [illegible] a hot iron on your back for a split-second.

"Ten seconds later we turned around. I can't begin to describe it. Orange-red clouds shot about halfway up the mushroom. It blew the top off a building 18 miles away. . ."

Commission Studies B.C. Liquor Changes

VANCOUVER (CP) — All-night liquor stores, free lunches in beer parlors and the customer's privilege of pouring his own shot of whisky at a bar are among the proposals offered by British Columbia citizens to a commission of inquiry that wants to know how they would prefer to do their drinking.

The three - man commission, which will present its findings to the spring session of the B. C. legislature, was set up by the Social Credit government after a plebiscite last June favored sale of liquor by the glass on a local-option basis by a 3-to-2 margin. The commission was asked to look into the best methods of establishing more liquor outlets.

Under present B. C. law beer is sold in taverns and liquor only in a few private clubs. Both can be purchased in government-operated stores for home consumption.

Members of the commission are H. H. Stevens, a federal cabinet minister in two Conservative administrations and president of the Vancouver Board of Trade, chairman; Dean Cecil Swanson of Christ Church Anglican Cathedral, Vancouver, and George Home, secretary of the B. C. Federation of Labor.

Since its appointment in September, the commission has held sittings at Vancouver, on Vancouver Island and at Prince George.

The hearings brought out sharp divisions between wets and drys. Several dry groups insisted there should be no change in present liquor laws, but were reminded that the plebiscite approved a change and that the commission's job was to determine how it was to be put into effect.

The B. C. Synod of the Anglican Church suggested the liquor be made more available in all ridings, including those which voted against liquor by the glass. The Synod said that otherwise minority rights would be denied.

Most of the recommendations from the wets have been for cocktail bars, all-night liquor stores and sale of beer and wine with meals in restaurants. Some have urged restoration of the free lunch in beer parlors.

"REFRESHING" VIEWS

One individual who appeared before the commission was Patrick Gibson. His views were termed "very refreshing" by Mr. Stevens.

Mr. Gibson said he had learned about liquor in Belfast and that the "ordinary guy" should have the right to pour his own drinks in bars.

"A man should be able to buy his drink, have the bottle set up on the bar and pour it himself. Then he can see what he's getting."

20 Chesterfields Daily Thrown In York Dump

TORONTO (CP)—Reeve Nelson Boylen of North York needs an idea man—someone who can tell him what to do with a large number of chesterfields.

The pieces of furniture are collecting at the rate of 20 a day. Everybody seems to be buying new chesterfields and throwing their old ones in the garbage, the reeve told the Humber Valley Conservation Authority last night.

Two Women's Faces Slashed In Grisly Mau Mau Rites

NAIROBI, Kenya (Reuters) — Police smashed in the door of a private home today and broke up a secret Mau Mau ceremony in which two women's faces had been slashed and the arms of a tiny girl tied behind her back.

Twenty African men participating in the grisly rites were arrested. The raid took place in the Fort Hall district, 45 miles north of Nairobi.

Police gave no explanation for the attack on the native women. They were not members of the Kikuyu tribe from which the anti-white Mau Mau cult draws its membership. There was no accounting either for action against the girl.

Mau Mau notices pinned to dead dogs have warned African men, women and children against cooperating with white men in the British drive to crush terrorism in this colony.

Another Mau Mau ceremony has broken up near the Fort Hall railroad station and 11 Africans arrested. The ringleader was caught in the act of stripping necklaces and other native jewelry from Africans as their contribution to the cult.

In a third incident at Fort Hall, an African was shot in the shoulder while resisting arrest.

Police spotter planes today made wide sweeps over the thick jungles in search of Kikuyu tribesmen who have vanished by the thousands from their reserves since the emergency was declared 22 days ago.

Across the Tanganyika border about 135 miles south of Nairobi police rounded up 120 Kikuyu tribesmen yesterday. Of the group 31 were on the Kenya "black list" of Mau Mau suspects.

Howe Forecasts Era Of Wealth For Canada

BROCKVILLE (CP)—Canada can look forward to a considerable period of prosperity, Production Minister Howe said last night.

He told a nomination convention of the Leeds Liberal Association that the volume of export and the volume of capital investment, two pillars upon which the country's prosperity depends, are both expanding.

"While Canada's economy has been shocked by the defence effort and the foot and mouth disease. . . one calamity we can't stand is the election of George Drew as prime minister." He did not know when a federal election would come but assumed it would be next year.

Ottawa Aims To Cut Reds From Airlines

Cabinet Makes Use Of Special Act; Chevrier Given Power

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government has armed itself with power to clean out Communists and Red sympathizers from among civilian fliers and radio operators.

Under an order-in-council it gave Transport Minister Chevrier power to cancel the licences of civilian pilots and radio operators if they are linked with subversive organizations. He can also refuse to issue licences under the same conditions.

A Transport Department spokesman said the move tightens present regulations which provided no way of cancelling pilot licences except for aeronautical reasons, such as inability or inadequate equipment.

The spokesman said it was felt that pilots or radio operators with subversive aims would be in a strategic position in time of war.

SECURITY MEASURE

The order-in-council said it was necessary to keep pilot and radio licences out of the hands of "persons whose holding of them might prejudice the security of Canada."

It empowers the transport minister to refuse to certify a pilot or radio operator and to revoke existing licences in any case where the individual is found to be linked, now or in the past, with any body "concerning which there are reasonable grounds for believing that it promotes or advocates subversion by force or other means of democratic government, institutions or processes as they are understood in Canada."

Child Opposes Father In Suit For Custody

DETROIT (CP)—Richard McClure, 37, of Tillsonburg, Ont., was vigorously opposed yesterday by his nine-year-old daughter in a legal battle for the child's custody.

Sharon Louise McClure told a circuit court jury that her father beat her and was often "mean" to her.

She asked to remain with Mrs. Norma Davis of Detroit to whom her mother awarded her in writing in a deathbed statement Dec. 29, 1949, and with whom she has been living since her mother's death.

Mrs. Davis was appointed the child's guardian and McClure, who has remarried, is trying to obtain custody of his daughter.

The hearing is continuing.

Jailed 9 Years For Don Bribe

TORONTO (CP)—Frank Watson, 34, yesterday was sentenced to a total of 12 years in jail on charges of possessing counterfeit money and bribing a peace officer.

Watson was convicted of bribing Don jail guard James Morrison to effect the release of Leonard Jackson who with Steve Suchan was convicted of the murder of Toronto detective Edmund Tong.

Before passing sentence Mr. Justice G. A. Gale told Watson: "You're a bad actor, there's no doubt of that."

Watson was sentenced to nine years for bribing and three for possession of the counterfeit money.

Lapointe Dedicates New Veterans' Bldg.

OTTAWA (CP) — While a Remembrance Day gathering of former servicemen looked on Veterans Minister Lapointe today laid the cornerstone of the government's $5,000,000 veterans' affairs building. It has been under consideration for more than two years.

The five-storey structure, construction of which had been held up until recently because of materials shortages, will house headquarters personnel of the department, now scattered through Ottawa. It faces the Supreme Court building, a couple of hundred yards off Parliament Hill.

In dedicating the building, Mr. Lapointe said it will perpetuate the memory of those who died for freedom and will be used to discharge more efficiently the country's obligation to their widows and orphans and to their comrades who have returned from war.

After Vishinsky Monday returned to the political committee to restate the Communist position, Eden conferred with his chief delegates, Selwyn Lloyd and Sir Gladwyn Jebb, on revisions incorporating a direct reply to the Russians.

REDS WON'T BUDGE

Vishinsky said the Communists would "not budge" from their insistence that all prisoners be repatriated whether they want to go back to their Communist homelands or not. He warned the West that its continued refusal to repatriate prisoners by force would wreck the truce talks at Panmumjom and protract the conflict.

Eden's boss, Prime Minister Churchill, last night declared that forcible repatriation would be a "dishonor" to the U.N. Churchill spoke at the annual lord mayor's banquet in London.

SUPPORT FROM FRANCE

This western stand also got the full support Monday of Foreign Minister Robert Schuman of France, who told the Assembly that all prisoners must be liberated as soon as hostilities cease in Korea and that they must neither be forcibly retained nor forcibly repatriated.

This was obviously intended to assure the Communists that the West does not — as Vishinsky charged Monday—want to keep prisoners and induct them either into military or subversive forces against the Soviet Union and Red China.

Speculation ran high among U.N. delegates as to the unannounced reasons that caused Lie to give up his $40,000-a-year job. Close associates said he had been overwhelmed by buffeting from both sides of the divided world.

Lie would not enlarge on the statement he read at the assembly opening Monday in which he said—his voice choked with emotion—that he was "stepping aside now because I hope this may help the United Nations to save the peace."

Many delegates began talking about a successor, naming most prominently the present General Assembly president, L. B. Pearson of Canada, and three past presidents, Gen. Carlos P. Romulo of the Philippines, Luis Padilla Nervo of Mexico and Nasrollah Entezam of Iran.

Charge Revolutionist With Stabbing Man

TORONTO (CP) — Karol Barduer, 42, has been charged with attempted murder in connection with a wild knife attack last night on a house detective in a downtown hotel.

Chris Forrest, 56, was stabbed once under the heart and once in the groin with an eight-inch splicing knife.

Police said Barduer was making "revolutionary speeches" in the hotel lobby and insulting people and Forrest told him to leave. Instead, police charge, Barduer swung with a knife.

Barduer tried to flee through a revolving door but an unidentified man stopped the doors.

CMA Scores U.S. As Fickle Market

SHAWINIGAN FALLS, Que. (CP) —The United States market was described last night as "fickle" by G. K. Sheils, president of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association.

Addressing the annual dinner of the Shawinigan Falls branch of the C.M.A., Mr. Sheils said in part:

"We are not at all happy about Canada's undue dependence upon the fickle United States market for our exports.

"I say 'fickle' because we have learned, from sad experience, how quickly the U.S. customs authorities, without waiting for 'orders-in-council', new 'legislation', or any such 'red tape', can and do step in and prevent our shipments from entering their country, and how speedily their government can and does move to set up additional barriers to protect any U.S. manufacturer who may feel that his business is being adversely affected by imports from Canada."

MORE SOUTH KOREANS

Meanwhile, the Eighth Army commander, Gen. James A. Van Fleet, announced that two additional divisions of South Korean troops soon would be ready for combat.

Van Fleet said the two new divisions and six new South Korean infantry regiments put on an active basis Saturday meant a 55,000-man increase in the U. N. fighting forces.

A three-pronged Red attack sparked the fighting on the eastern front. A company of North Koreans attacked a height south of Anchor Hill. Two platoons hit a second hill nearby. Two more drove at a third. Allied defenders rolled back all three attacks.

Three Of Family Stick Together

PONTIAC, Mich. (CP) — One year after an automobile accident made orphans of 11 brothers and sisters, only the three oldest remain together.

A year ago today Mr. and Mrs. Murray J. Moore were killed in an auto collision.

At that time the oldest of their children, Jerry, now 16, said:

"Dear God, please let us stay together. If we had to lose our father and mother, surely the rest of us belong together."

Today only Jerry, 14-year-old Ann and 13-year-old Tom are together. New separate homes have been found for Sharon, 12, Jean, 10, Barbara, 8, Janet 7, Jim, 6, Jeff, 5, Shirley, 3, and Michael, 1.

Both Jerry and Ann, regarded as too old to be adopted, are under the care of Judge Arthur Moore. They are not related. Tom will soon be adopted by a family in Royal Oak, Mich.

All are reported adjusting to their new life.

Retiring Air Marshal Curtis Cousin Of Havelock Man

Air Marshal Wilfred Austin Curtis, chief of Canada's air staff, who is retiring from the service January 31, 1953, is a first cousin of Bruce Curtis, of Havelock.

Born in Havelock, he was a son of Colin Curtis and his wife, Margaret Sherwin, of Alnwick township, Northumberland county, both members of families that have been well known in the vicinity of Roseneath. On his maternal side, Air Marshal Curtis has many relatives in the Roseneath-Fenella section of Alnwick.

On the paternal side, his grandfather was Samuel Curtis, whose home was adjacent to the south side of Rice Lake. For many years Curtis Landing has been a point of local geography on Rice Lake. It was a port of call for boats in the early days of navigation on the lake, from Hastings to Bewdley and Peterborough. In recent years, its old identity has become somewhat obscured as part of the waterfront of Field Lodge Farm, which is located easterly across a bay from Idyl Wyld.

STILL ATTRACTIVE

[illegible] famous estate developed by the late Fred Field, of Cleveland. Its decline set in just before his death, but the property is still one of the most attractive stretches of the south shore of Rice Lake.

The Sherwins of Alnwick descend from six brothers who came to Canada from Yorkshire county, England, in 1840, and settled in the northern part of the township. One of them was Richard Sherwin, father of Margaret, and grandfather of Norman W. Sherwin, one of the members of the family living at Roseneath. Margaret Sherwin was his aunt, he informed the Examiner today.

First of the Curtis family in the township was Samuel Curtis who had two sons, Colin and Thomas. The two young men were attracted to Havelock in the early boom that developed with the coming of the C.P.R. and the building of its divisional roadhouse. Colin Curtis married Margaret Sherwin. They lived for a comparatively short time at Havelock and then moved to Toronto. During their stay in the Peterborough county village, their son Wilfred Austin Curtis was born. In Toronto, Colin Curtis became a contractor for the city.

Meanwhile, Thomas Curtis went into business as a young man at Havelock, was elected to the municipal council, and eventually as reeve became Warden of Peterborough county. At his death a few years ago, he was widely known and greatly respected. His son, Bruce Curtis, has carried on the funeral home which his father established.

Those few paragraphs are in outline a sketch of the family background of Air Marshal Wilfred Austin Curtis, to whom the defence department of Canada paid eloquent tribute in the announcement last Saturday of his retirement as head of the Canadian Air Force.

Canadian Press said: "He is the last veteran of the First World War to sit as one of the Canadian chiefs of staff. He is possibly the only top military figure in the world who has served in all three armed forces. He won the D.S.C. twice, and became a fighter ace as a navy flier in the first war, and was a soldier both in the active and reserve forces.

"Air Marshal Curtis is the first [illegible] flier to become chief of the air staff, having left the forces at the end of the first war, and gone into the insurance business in Toronto. He then re-enlisted in 1939. He learned to fly at his own expense in the first war, and to this day his hobby is flying.

"He will be remembered as the man who fought for a stronger air force in the lean years after becoming Chief of the Air Staff five years ago; saw things begin to go his way in 1948, and then crack wide open in 1950 when Korea stimulated plans for a 41-squadron force by 1954, with a manpower of roughly 50,000, nearly as big as the army. He took over the force 13,000 strong. He hands over one 37,000 strong."

That is part of the story of Air Marshal Curtis. From several Peterborough army officers who recognize his high place and service, it was learned that as a young man he joined the militia in Toronto, enlisted in the First War, and switched to the naval air arm.

"He comes around to see us occasionally," Bruce Curtis remarked to the Examiner today.

At Roseneath, the son of Margaret Sherwin is affectionately regarded as one of the numerous family living in and around Roseneath and elsewhere in Alnwick.

Three Ontario's Top Lawyers Native Sons Of Millbrook

By E. S. CLARRY

It just seems as if whenever any big legal job has to be undertaken in Ontario, governments both provincial and dominion as well as corporations and individuals have to engage the services of a member of the legal profession who is a native of Millbrook.

Reference was made in the press recently to the appointment to the Chief Justiceship of the province of John Wellington Pickup who was born and spent his boyhood years in the village. Shortly thereafter it was announced by the government at Queen's Park that George T. Walsh, another Millbrook native son, had been appointed chief counsel to the commission recently set up to investigate the circumstances surrounding the escape from the Don jail of Edwin Alonzo Boyd, Steve Suchan and the two Jackson brothers as well as the administration of the Don jail in general. Wellington Pickup held this retainer but was obliged to relinquish it upon his appointment as Chief Justice of the province. Thus one Millbrook born lawyer succeeds another in this important legal work.

Few other villages in Ontario, if any, have made such an outstanding contribution to the legal profession for it may be noted that still another Millbrook born lawyer has been for a good many years now, one of the country's leading counsel. This third native son is Gershom Mason with a very successful record in our higher courts.

The Walsh family has been prominent in the agricultural and mercantile life of this district since its earliest settlement and has contributed substantially to many phases of its development. George who has become one of Ontario's outstanding counsel is a son of the late Wesley Walsh who with his partner, Richard Clark, conducted a dry goods business in Millbrook for a great many years. There were two other boys in the Wesley Walsh family. Charles who graduated in medicine and who is now in practice in Vancouver, and Toby who for some time has been manager of one of the branches of the Bank of Toronto in Montreal.

STUDIED IN MILLBROOK

When George Walsh finished at the local schools he entered on the study of law in the office of A. A. Smith in the village, later passing through Osgoode Hall law school. After being called to the bar he established his own practice in Toronto in which he has been successful to a high degree and for the past 25 years or more his name has been prominent in the press as counsel in many important legal actions. He is well known for his aggressiveness, his priceless wit and his friendly disposition. No better evidence of his popularity in the legal profession can be cited than the fact that as a bencher of the Law Society of Upper Canada—an office he has held for quite a few years now — he invariably heads the poll when he seeks re-election. He maintains a deep interest in his native village and has over the years contributed handsomely to the local United Church.

The third native son to attain distinction in the legal profession of the province and to whom reference has been made herein is Gershom Mason. The Mason family will be remembered by only a few present-day residents of Millbrook, those who are now real old timers. His father was Harry Mason and his mother was a member of the Sing family who lived in the village in the 70's and 80's. When Gershom was a small boy the Masons moved to Elmvale, a village in the county of Simcoe. After passing through the local schools there he entered on the study of law and in due time graduated and was called to the bar.

TREASURER OF BENCHERS

Gershom Mason is today and has been for a good many years now, one of Ontario's outstanding lawyers and has held many important briefs in the higher courts of the province. He has occupied the highest office in the gift of the Law Society of Upper Canada, that of Treasurer. The term treasurer in this instance is no doubt confusing to many of those who are not of the legal profession, and one not familiar with the duties and honor associated therewith might imagine it involves some clerical work, the collecting of fees or the like such as falls to the duty of the treasurer of an Orange lodge or a Rotary club. It is however far removed from that type of work. The legal profession cherishes old customs and old titles and therefore the top office in the Law Society of Upper Canada instead of being designated Moderator, Chief Potentate or President is known as Treasurer. It was this important and distinguished office in the legal profession of the province that Gershom Mason relinquished only a few years ago.

The fact is that during the past 30 years or more three of the top legal counsel of the province have been native sons of the village. This should be an incentive to boys presently attending the local schools to strive and attain an honored place in the legal profession. Village environment in their youthful days is no barrier to reaching the top rung of the professional ladder. It does however, require ambition, application and a life of rectitude plus a fair amount of brains. Wellington Pickup, Gershom Mason and George Walsh possessed all these qualities.

McGill Coach Sought By American Colleges

MONTREAL (CP) — Vic Obeck, athletic director of McGill University, said today he has received three offers to coach football teams next year and his future plans are "uncertain."

Obeck said he is considering two offers to coach American college teams and one from a Canadian team of the Western Interprovincial Football League. The Canadian team is believed to be Calgary Stampeders.

Hoped To Live As Long As Moses, Dies At 107

FITZGERALD, Ga. (AP)—"General" William Jordan Bush, Georgia's last surviving Confederate veteran, who had hoped to "live as long as Moses" — 120 years — died today. He was 107.

His death leaves only eight survivors of the defeated southern army in the War Between the States.

Lie was once the darling of the Soviet Union because, before the Korean war, he said it was realistic policy to seat Communist China in the U. N. since it controlled most of the Chinese mainland.

The Soviet bloc soured on him because he was quick to tag the North Korean invasion a Communist aggression and to invoke all the collective security he could find in the U. N.

See Early Arrest In Cheque Fraud

MONTREAL (CP) — The Herald says today in a newspage story it has been informed that the arrest of a five-man gang in the $250,000 Bank of Nova Scotia bogus cheque swindle is "expected momentarily."

'We have them in Montreal now,' the newspaper quotes a source as saying.

It also quotes an unidentified "top" official of the bank in Toronto as saying the bank expects "to be able to make a statement within 24 hours."

Meantime, police here said they knew nothing of the expected arrests. They have not been called in on the case, which is in the hands of private insurance company investigators.

In Toronto, insurance company spokesmen confirmed that certified cheques were used to swindle the bank out of $250,000.

Car Trailer Started To Swing Caused Fatality

COBOURG (ENS)—A coroner's jury Monday night empanelled to investigate the highway fatality which resulted in the death of Norman George Aulthouse, of Picton, brought in a verdict that he came to his death on the afternoon of November 6 as a result of the collision of the truck which he was driving with a car transport driven by Gordon Ellison, of Calgary.

On November 6, a truck loaded with sand and driven by Norman Aulthouse, employed by McFarland Construction Co., was proceeding east along No. 2 Highway. It had crossed the bridge east of Grafton when it was in collision with a westbound empty car transport driven by Gordon Ellison. Just how it occurred was not clearly evident from the inquest testimony.

PASSED TRUCK

Ellison told the inquest jury that he passed the truck just east of the bridge as far as his view of the vehicle was concerned. Then he heard a bang and his transport tractor started to weave and broke loose from the trailer which had jammed against the end of the bridge rail after the impact.

Just what had happened behind him he didn't see. Some distance back he had applied the brakes coming down the hill. He said that in his driving experience for some years past he had on occasions had a trailer creep to one side when making a right turn but in the accident about which the inquest was concerned he had not noticed his trailer creeping out of line.

Albert O'Brien, of Calgary, helper in Ellison's car transport, said he saw the other truck about 200 yards away coming at their own speed of around 40 to 45 miles an hour. Sitting in the cab they had passed the truck without anything happening during their view of it, and then he heard a bang followed by a second bang. The tractor started to jump and bounce and went over to the south and then to the north and took out some guard rails. There was no other traffic at the time.

Jack Welch, company supervisor of the McFarland Construction Company, said that Althouse was a competent driver.

FRACTURED SKULL

Dr. J. M. Fleming, of Grafton, who attended at the accident scene, testified that Aulthouse was pinned in the wreckage of his cab and died from a fractured skull. He had a broken arm and broken leg and his face was crushed.

Provincial Constable Lyle Erskine said that the dump truck was jammed into the side of the car transport trailer and that the cab was a total wreck with the driver pinned inside. Both vehicles were on the south side of the highway. From his examination of the scene there was nothing to establish the cours taken by either vehicle just before the accident, he said.

THE POST was cracked and the front of the car was badly damaged, but William A. Bannon, of Campbellford, escaped without serious injury early Monday morning when he skidded 118 feet and crashed into the telephone pole. — (W. W. Reid Photo).

Youth Damages Telephone Poll

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — William A. Bannon, 24, of Campbellford escaped without injury on Monday when the car he was driving went out of control on a curve on Queen St., skidded 118 feet and struck a telephone pole.

Bannon had apparently taken the car without his father's permission, and faces a charge of joyriding, and one of careless driving.

The front of the vehicle was badly damaged when it struck the pole. The pole was splintered and cracked but remained upright, being held in that position mainly by the overhead wire supporting it.

Acting Chief W. E. (Fred) Cargin of Campbellford investigated and laid the charges. The car tore up a section of wooden cribbing leading to a private driveway in its plunge, before striking the telephone pole.

Study Need Of Policeman

LINDSAY— (ENS). — The question came up at Monday night's meeting of council whether or not the town should hire another police constable, now that the force is one man short through the promotion of Constable Hunter to Chief. Mayor Lamb and Alderman Stevens expressed the opinion that the town should be able to get along with one less policeman until the end of the year. The mayor thought it unnecessary for the men to ride double in the cruiser on patrol and stated one of the men should be used for traffic duty on Kent Street during the rush hour.

Chaiman Butler of the police committee believed that the cruiser should be manned by two men, at least during the night hours, but he agreed that one man should be posted to Kent and Lindsay Streets during the busy period. Council agreed to look into the matter and advertise for another officer, if the Chief expressed the need for one. Reeve Butler and Chief Hunter will investigate the matter and make their report.

Mrs. Thomas Duck

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) — Funeral services were held here on Saturday afternoon for Emma Brougham, wife of Thomas Duck, of Campbellford. She was 93.

Born in Liverpool, England, Mrs. Duck came to Canada in 1914. She married Thomas Duck and the couple lived at Watters, Saskatchewan before coming to Campbellford six years ago. Her parents were the late William Brougham and Mary Dempsy.

Besides her husband, she is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Pearl Wallace of California.

Captain Mutton and Captain Baker of the local Salvation Army which Mrs. Duck attended, conducted services from Bennett's funeral home on Frank Street.

Burial was in Mount Pleasant cemetery.

John Oscar Cole Buried In Belmont

HAVELOCK (ENS)—The funeral of John Oscar Cole, 56, of Belmont township, took place on Monday from the family residence where the service was conducted by the Rev. R. G. Newman. Burial was in Maple Grove cemetery.

Among the many floral tributes were those from the C.N.R. car department, Niagara Falls, Ont., Mr. and Mrs. Richard Nicholson, Mr. Archie Stevenson and children of Niagara Falls, Lady McGill L.O.B.A. No. 471, Havelock, the Blairton neighbors; A.F.L. Union No. 294, Havelock.

Mr. Cole was born at Cordova Mines and was the son of Mrs. Margaret Cole and the late Richard Cole. His death in the Civic Hospital on Thursday followed a lengthy illness. He had lived his entire life in this district following farming as an occupation. He was a member of the United Church and the Orange Order.

and his widow the former Adelia Elmhirst there are: two daughters, Mrs. Reginald Burleigh (Ileen) of R.R. 2, Norwood; Gladys, 11, at home, seven sons, Randle of Niagara Falls, Ontario; Orval, Richard, Carl, Arnold, 16, Douglas, 14, Glenn, 9, of Belmont township; a sister Mrs. Herbert Youmans and a brother Harry, both of Blairton.

Car Strikes Horse Animal Not Hurt

CAMPBELLFORD —(ENS) — Three minor accidents were reported in the district on the weekend, all of which were investigated by the local O.P.P. detachment.

On Saturday, Donald McVety, 21 of Peterborough failed to stop in time to avoid hitting a team of horses on the Warkworth road, a few miles south of Campbellford. The car struck one of the horses, doing about $100 damage to the front of the car but leaving the horse uninjured. McVety was not hurt.

Two cars, one driven by Clinton McComb of Campbellford and the other by Marcue E. Pollock of Windsor, met on a county road a mile and a half north of Havelock on Saturday. The left front fenders and headlights of both vehicles were damaged.

On Saturday afternoon, a car driven by Cyril Redcliffe of R.R. 1, Havelock, went out of control after a front tire blew. The car went into the ditch and struck a large boulder and two trees. The driver was uninjured.

Provincial Constable Archie Eady of Campbellford investigated all three mishaps.

Quebec Starts Drivers' Tests

MONTREAL (CP) — Testing of applicants for private motorists licences began here today.

The tests, first in Quebec's history, were ordered recently by the provincial government to combat the province's mounting accident rate. Quebec has the highest automobile accident insurance rates in the country.

To be given permanent status in a bill before the session of the Quebec legislature opening tomorrow, the tests include physical fitness, reflexes and judgment at the controls of a car. They are for new drivers and present holders of permits may renew them without examination.

All other provincial car licensing bureaux in Montreal have been closed. The tests also are being given in Quebec City.

Car Rolls 15 Times, One Killed, One Hurt

DRYDEN (CP) — Caesar Belluz 64, of Fort Frances, was killed and his wife severely injured yesterday when their automobile went off the highway and rolled over "about 15 times" near Vermillion Bay, 30 miles west of here

Mrs. Belluz is in fair condition in Dryden hospital with shock, broken ribs and possible back injuries.

The car spun off the highway, hit a soft portion of the shoulder and rolled over, plunging into a gulley. Mrs. Belluz told police the car rolled over about 15 times before coming to rest.

CGE Pipe Band Leads Hastings Parade

HASTINGS (ENS) — Branch 106 of Canadian Legion, held its Remembrance Day service on Sunday. The ex-service men fell in at the Legion Hall and headed by the C.G.E. Pipe Band from Peterborough, paraded to the town hall where the Rev. N. Cole, veteran of World War I officiated for the Memorial Service.

The service opened with the singing of "Oh God Our Help In Ages Past" with Mrs. J. G. Thompson at the piano. The choir was composed of members of the several clubs of the local churches. The scripture was taken from Hebrews 11: 32-40; 12: 1-2 read by Mr. Cole followed by the Lord's Prayer repeated in unison. Mr. Cole's address was "In Remembrance". The hymn, "O Valiant Hearts" was followed by the benediction.

The people then moved outside to the Cenotaph, where the company formed to attention and numerous wreaths were placed.

'Reeve C. D. Howse read the following Honor Roll of World Wars I and II. D. R. Richardson, H. Robinson, L. Robinson, J. Stewart, Hugh N. McArthur, J. F. Barry, J. W. Devine, J. Doherty, B. Hicks, T. Powers, G. E. West, K. C. Fitzpatrick, W. G. Seeney. The band played "The Lament" and the Legion paraded back to the hall.

Council Kills Rent Controls

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS) — Rent controls came under fire at the meeting of the Campbellford Council here on Monday evening. Delegations representing both sides of the question were on hand.

The motion of Councillor P. H. Macmillan and Deputy-Reeve Oscar Mason that rent controls remain in force for another year, was defeated. Rent controls will end in Campbellford next spring.

A request by the assessor, R. H. Townsend, for an increase of $25 per month in his salary was granted.

The by-law re-appointing J. C. Birmingham as tax collector for the town, at a salary of $1,800 per year, was presented. Mayor Kingston had to break the tie vote and the by-law was finally passed. Councillor P. H. Macmillan asked that the vote be polled, which resulted as follows: For the re-appointment of Mr. Birmingham as tax collector—Councillors George Free, Isobel Tatham, Douglas Maybee and Reeve Ralph J. Locke; against, Councillors A. F. Collette, P. H. Macmillan, David Ness and Deputy Reeve Oscar Mason. Mayor Kingston voted for the appointment.

Council adjourned after passing the pay sheet.

Come Back Next Year

TORONTO (CP) — It's too early to think about the coronation, Board of Education has decided. It turned down a request by an Oshawa firm to supply souvenir medals for school children at a cost of between $10,000 and $21,000 depending on the type of medal and number supplied. The matter will be decided by the 1953 board.

WITH THE BOY SCOUTS

By G.E.G.

We are pleased to report that two new youngsters have started to work for this column in the persons of Brian Dunford of St. John's Pack and Don Morrison of St. Luke's Pack. We wish them both Good Hunting in this work. Also it is a great pleasure to welcome back in the new St. Andrew's Group. This unit has been inactive for some time and we will do our best to secure full details on the new set-up. In the meantime we sure wish St. Andrew's all the best of Scouting and may they once again rate as they did in the past: one of the best in the district and at one time the holder of more King's Scouts than the rest of us put together .

1ST PETERBOROUGH, ST. JOHN'S

In a short ceremony Ken Murdock was presented with his "White Kerchief." If patience merits reward this little fellow deserves special mention for he came to the Pack nearly a year ago but was not accepted owing to his age but has faithfully attended every meeting, taken part in games, hikes, camps, etc., and now at the age of eight years has been formally made a New Chum. Inspection this week centred on badges and insignia. Those boys who have uniforms and are not wearing same are losing points for their six at every meeting. Leap Frog relay was one way that Akela found of getting some of the extra energy used up. Instruction followed with Skipper G. taking the tenderpad instruction, Bagheera gave signalling instruction to Geo. Boucher, Brian Dunford, Ken Collins, Bob Cumpsty, David Gunn, Ken McLaren, George Sedgwick, David Irwin and Bob Dawson. During this period Mr. Tureman passed some of the boys in tests and Akela gave instruction in growing things. Checker Hop was the cause of lots of fun. Joe Cunningham received his Ontario badge, Wolf Cub button hole badge and Pack colors, Bill Collins, his button hole badge and pack colors. Tests passed during the evening were: Growing things, George Boucher, Jamie Welsh; Hopping, Wallace Davidson, Bob Dawson; Balancing Bob Wagster, Bob Dawson, Wallace Davidson; Highway Code, Jamie Welsh; Cleanliness, Brian Dunford, David Irwin; Compass, Ed Zinser; Skipping, Bruce Cotton; Cleaning boots and folding cloths, Ed. Zinser, Leapfrog, Don Sherk, Bob Barber, B. Cotton. Letters were given to every boy to take home inviting the parents to a special Parents Night being held Friday November 2st. and the Pack held a rough practice of some parts of the intended program.

2ND ARMOUR ST. LUKES

Several boys were accepted into the World Brotherhood of Scouting by the Investiture Ceremony in which Jim Eakin, Keith Worboy, Randy Bradshaw, John Reynolds and Ron James promised to do their best and threw off their white coats to don the group colors. Many games and tests were carried out with the results being Union Jack, Ron James, Jim McGowan, Ron Hepburn, Roger Mesley; Highway Code, Daird Choate, Blair Greenly, Jim Wyatt, Ron Worboy; Public telephone and skipping, Don Ebbs; Signs, salute and grand howl, Joe Monerief; Balancing Ron James; Collector Jim Wyatt, Wayne Ash, Jack Steen; Team Player, Toymaker, and Homecroft Gord Sanderson.

7TH PETERBOROUGH ST. PAUL'S

Lair Inspection was taken by Akela James Anderson and Ronald Earle were invested into the World Brotherhood of Scouting before Akela and in the presence of their parents who were special guests of the evening. Then, under the supervision of Baloo Jack Cuffe and Bagheera Mr. Hewitt the following games were enjoyed, "Man the Ship," Jamubled Animal Relay Mountain on Fire, Chicken Fight, Piggy Back Relay. During the closing ceremonies Toymakers badges were present to Tommy Caldwell, Terry Higgins and Bill Oliphant.

We were very sorry indeed to learn of the painful injuries suffered by Cub Leonard Minty and trust that he is getting rest and will soon be on the Jungle trail again.

8TH ST. ANDREW'S

A new group committee has been formed with Mr. H. W. Vickers as chairman, Mr. K. Andrew, vice-chairman, D. K. Chiles, secretary. Patrol Leader was in charge of flag break with Scouter Davis taking inspection. Games on the program were "under and over" and "aviator test." Second class instruction in signalling was given by Scouter Davis, Tenderfoot instruction by Scouter A. Ingham, with the result of Gary Deeny and Hugh Young completing the test.

In the Pack, Sixer King Baker led the opening grand howl following which Freddie Rowell was invested as a Wolf Cub and added his name to the roster of the World Scout Brotherhood and Mr. Rowell had the pleasure of presenting his son with his badges. Kenneth Wood, Grant Nicholls and Bob Stickle completed their Tenderpad tests. Games played included "man the ship" and "horse and rider."

16TH TRINITY

To start things off for the night we had inspection. Just in case you folk wonder what it is all about here it is: The Scouts come out in patrols and form up in horse-shoe formation. Then comes flag break, followed by prayer. Scouter then gives the announcements and follows by the inspection of the four patrols. The scouter, assistant scouter and troop leader inspect the scouts for neatness, appearance, etc. The Eagles won the inspection marks. Following came patrol corners where the boys discused going on hikes and various activities. Patrol competition also earns points for patrol corners, and in this the Wolves won out. Games of floor hockey, under the direction of Alvin Phillips, showed the Eagles winners for the second time of the evening.

As instruction ended, the St. John's first aid course began under the direction of Mr. Ferguson. The boys are now going through with great enthusiasm the framework of the body.

To complete the program of the evening we had two excellent pictures, one which was on "Sailing In Canada" which showed the many different types of sailboats. The other was on "Portage," a picture of making, handling and the origin of a birchbark canoe.

NOTE AND COMMENT

Your scribe would like to see all names printed in the reports. We had a little trouble this week with making out the St. Andrew's names and trust they are right.

Coming events: Parents' night for St. John's Cub Pack, Friday, November 21.

As far as we can see, there has been no damage done to the Den over Hallowe'en. This is something to be thankful for.

Fosky the painter and Dave Hatton took their lunch up to the Den last Saturday and spent the day painting the outside of the hut. There is only the south end of the building to be finished now.

Any of you citizen Rovers that have nothing to do any Tuesday or Thursday evenings, if you wander up to the Den, you will find Doug Harris working away like a beaver, and he will only be too happy to put you to work. Doug has acted as the Crew's building foreman since we started repairing the hut, and the credit belongs almost entirely to him for the splendid progress that has been made. The Den is beginning to look very good. It looks as though we will be able to hold our annual banquet in it this year after all. It's up to each member though. There is still lots of work that needs to be done. It is encouraging to see that Roly Brier is turning out on Thursday evenings to do anything that he can. Roly is on leave from the Crew because he is attending night school on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday nights. Roly has the spirit that we like to see.

All members should keep the following dates in mind, and make it a point to attend each event:

November 16 — Monthly Communion breakfast and church parade; November 17—Nomination of officers for the coming year in the home of Kelvin Johnson, 705 Monaghan Rd.; November 21 — Elections of officers for the coming year in the home of Len Foskett; December 6 —Annual Crew Banquet.

1st Woman Candidate For Port Arthur Mayor

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Port Arthur this year will have a woman candidate for mayor for the first time. Mrs. Eunice Wishart, city council member for the last five years, announced last night she will run in the Dec. 8 election.

Ex-Mayor Fred Robinson also is running. Mayor Charles Cox has not yet announced his intentions.

A Trend Toward The Right?

As we remarked in these columns on Saturday last, there has been a good deal of talk in Canada about a trend toward the Right, based on the outcome of the U.S. election; it is suggested — hopefully, in some quarters — that this trend may soon bring to an end the long Liberal tenure in Ottawa, and put the Progressive Conservative party in power. Some brief discussion of this matter is not out of place at this time.

* * *

The great stumbling-block in the way of Mr. Drew and his party is their failure to gain any effective support in Quebec; at present they hold only two seats there, against the 66 held by the Liberals. The trend against the Liberal administration, whatever it may amount to, is not in Quebec, and so long as the Liberals hold Quebec a clean-cut victory for the Conservatives will be very hard to achieve. Now it might happen that after the next General Election the Liberals will be returned to power with a small majority, and with the bulk of their strength in Quebec. Political history since 1867 shows that it is worse for a country to be strong in a single province, and to be weak elsewhere, than it is for a party to suffer from a general weakness. Even if Quebec support assured it of victory in the next contest, it would not be good for the Liberal party in the long run to hold power by the grace of Quebec.

* * *

As even the most convinced Liberals will admit, there is nothing sacred about Liberal tenure in Ottawa, and it might be good for the country to have a change of Government. The power of the C.C.F. has been waning in recent years, and there is no chance of their forming the next Government. Suppose, then, that Mr. Drew forms it; what are the prospects then? Mr. Drew's strengths and weaknesses are well known, and the latter are not so many or so serious that they would prevent him from being a very fine Prime Minister. His honesty, his very keen sense of national honour and his thoroughgoing Canadianism wedded to his high sense of the dignity of public life, all commend him. He has, himself, experience of administrative office. His difficulty is that he leads a party in which men of extensive political experience are few, and he would be faced with the difficulty of forming a Cabinet with a number of green men in it. If he were to go into power with a large and representative majority, this would not be an impossibly difficult state of affairs, but the chances are that if he forms a Government at all, he will have to do so with a small majority in the Commons, and with a party which is predominantly representative of Ontario. An inexperienced Cabinet could then be disastrous.

* * *

A Liberal party dominated by Quebec, and a Conservative party dominated by Ontario would in neither case be good for Canada. The only party to rule this country is one which has a truly national representation. It is possible that the dissatisfaction with the Liberals in Canada has been exaggerated; much has been made of Liberal losses in by-elections, but they have won nine out of seventeen of these contests, which does not suggest any violent reaction against them. The extravagance of the Liberal administration (of which Mr. Drew will certainly make the most in his campaign) is against them; so is the somewhat arrogant tone which a few Liberal spokesmen have taken in public utterances; so is the inevitable accumulation of grudges against any party which has been in power for a long time. The record of the Liberals in Ottawa is a good one and will not be easily set aside. Mr. Drew's chances of a victory are much better than they were in 1949, but it would be rash to say that they are good.

* * *

Ninety per cent. of the talk about "trends" in politics is mystical nonsense; this sort of thing reached its peak in the "Wave of the Future" silliness with which a few speakers on this continent tried, in 1939, to convince us that the fascists and totalitarians were on the right track. To say that there is a "trend toward the Right" in North American politics because a Republican president has been elected in the U.S.A. is to suggest that Canadians are a much less politically astute people than they really are. Political acumen is one of the principal Canadian national characteristics, and Canadians will choose, at the next election, the sort of Government they want, regardless of what has happened in the south. This is by no means to say that they will choose the Liberals again, or that if the Liberals win they will do so without severe losses. But any prediction as to what will happen in Canada must be made after some consideration of Canadian facts, and not on a belief in some fanciful influence from the U.S.A. The Republican victory (a very small one considered in the light of the whole government) means simply that an entrenched party can, at last, be turned out of office; this is a fact which every child, learning the elements of history, knows already.

Half A Billion From Ontario Mines

Last night the Ontario Minister of Mines, the Hon. Philip T. Kelly, spoke by radio about the Province's mining industry. Its production this year will be worth half a billion dollars. This sort of production money is worth having, and means far more than the actual value of the minerals mined. As Mr. Kelly said, "it means thousands of pay-envelopes." The industry is a great consumer of farm products. It uses huge quantities of heavy machinery and other manufactured goods. It is the foundation of great communities and of new communities that gradually acquire all the modern facilities entering into a high living standard. The impact of this industry is felt in every corner of Ontario and indeed, beyond."

Two points in Mr. Kelly's address particularly interested us. One was the development of iron mining; the other was the comparative decline in gold mining.

Fifteen years ago this Province produced no iron ore at all. Last year production exceeded two and a half million tons. The reason for this development is the high value of iron and the depletion of the ore bodies of the Mesabi Range in Wisconsin, which has sent governments and companies prospecting for other sources. Steep Rock mine in the Lake Superior country was developed. This year it will produce about a million and a quarter tons of high grade ore. The local iron range at Michipicoten will produce a million tons a year to feed the steel mills at Sault Ste. Marie.

As people in this district know, the Bethlehem Steel Company is developing deposits in south-eastern Ontario (Marmora). It is also involved in extensive exploration near Simcoe. The Ontario Department of Mines has been sponsoring these new developments, chiefly by its aero-magnetic surveys, which have been used in the Sudbury basin, and in the Marmora and Simcoe areas. This new scientific procedure — using an airborne instrument known as the magnetometer—helps geologists and prospectors to find iron ore deposits.

Gold mining production has been declining. In the first nine months of this year, its production was 64 million dollars, two million less than last year. The industry is squeezed between high costs on the one hand and a fixed price for its product. The depreciation of the American dollar has also hurt it. Government subsidies have helped protect this historically important industry, but it has not been able to maintain its position and prosperity. The fact is that, intrinsically, iron is more valuable than gold.

The importance of iron is shown by its price on the free market; the importance of gold only by the conventions of governments which buy it as a unit of international exchange. Gold has an artificial value which is at the mercy of the governments who as buyers, set its price. The United States government is the biggest buyer and its price—set through international agencies—determines whether Ontario's gold mining industry wanes or flourishes.

Remembrance Day

In comment upon today's dedication to the dead of the two world wars of this century, we can find no words more suitable than those which have arisen today from hundreds of thousands of throats, in cities and hamlets everywhere in this country.

O valiant hearts
Who to your glory came,
Through dust of conflict
And through battle flame,
Tranquil you lie,
[illegible] proved,
Your memory hallowed
In the land you loved.

NOTES AND COMMENT

The fallacy of the theory of "guilt by association" may be easily established. If that were true, anyone who associated with human beings would be guilty of a multitude of crimes and offences.

A cookbook declares that it offers recipes "for men who live alone." In our experience the favourite food for women who live alone is one boiled egg; for men who live alone it is a can of half-warmed beans.

A mournful editorial bewails the fact that the "old-fashioned family doctor has disappeared." If he was the old dunderhead who didn't believe in germs and recommended a bag of assafoetida hung around the waist to ward off cholera, we are better off without him.

Monks Take A Beating

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN
(in Tokyo)

IT WAS evening, and the temple seemed empty. Behind a high and fantastic gateway, courtyard and after courtyard opened one into another. They were built all up the side of a hill and closed in with dark trees.

The place was a monastery of the Zen Buddhist sect, one of five such places in Kamakura, which is one of the many former capitals of Japan.

THE ZEN are the strictest and the most dignified of the Japanese Buddhists. Theirs is not a popular religion, but they have played a major role in forming the Japanese character and developing the demanding social rituals that tend to keep it unchanged. Starting as a reformist movement in the thirteenth century and reacting against the corruptions and unnecessary complications of other Buddhists, tney taught that each man must seek his own salvation by harsh self-discipline, both bodily and mental. In a series of poetical aphorisms, they embrace what is apparently illogical and nonsensical as the only way of conveying what is humanly inexpressible and of achieving the "divine emptiness" which leads to self-revelation and union with God. They have more than twenty thousand temples in Japan.

◇ ◇ ◇

THIS temple was both elegant and bare. Its trees had been planted, its rocks arranged and its courtyards set in a careful asymmetrical design. There were small shrines where bronze Buddhas sat well back in the shadows, half hidden by curtains, in front of tables that held incense burners and flowers and fruit. They stared out through wide open doors over the shrines, the treasuries, the houses for guests, the libraries and the little huts for the Tea Ceremony. The yards were all swept and the paths marked by rocks set like stepping-stones in the earth. The sliding doors were all shut. Locked doors closed off more halls and pavilions, whose heavy tiled roofs showed over the tops of old walls. There were ponds where carp hung almost motionless in the clear water.

HIGH UP on the hill, in a wall, was a sliding door that was not locked. There was another courtyard inside, surrounded by low buildings with a tall, plain hall at its centre. In one of the buildings was a monk sitting in the middle of an empty floor. He sat beside a small pit which, held glowing charcoal and he made tea in a tiny brass pot and talked about his faith. Occasionally other monks would come bare-footed down a polished corridor and prostrate themselves on his threshold and speak to him kneeling. He sat as if rooted to the floor, his heavy blue-black robe tucked round his knees.

He invited us to attend the Zen hall where the "exercises" were taking place. But before we were allowed in, we were shown how to enter, how to sit, and made to promise not to leave before it was over, not to speak or move. We were given flat cushions and grass sandals and we followed him across the darkening yard to the hall.

◇ ◇ ◇

IT WAS quite bare inside, like a schoolroom. Two electric light bulbs hung from the ceiling and gave a yellow light. There were some twenty monks here, all dressed alike in rusty blue-black kimonos, padded round the waist. Their heads were shaved and their faces pale. They were arranging themselves slowly round the hall on low platforms. We were given places on another platform that ran down the centre. A bell tinkled. The monks sat cross-legged in the "lotus position" with their feet on top of their thighs. Another bell rang and they went rigid. Their hands were joined in their laps, thumbs touching. They sat bolt upright, staring down through half-closed eyes, an exact row of men, perfectly spaced, all expression banished, absolutely immobile, and the room fell into tremendous silence.

◇ ◇ ◇

THERE was no ritual, no chanted prayers. There was not even an image of the Buddha. You could hear the trees rustling outside; cicadas were shrilling in the darkness. An engine hooted a long way away and the night wind blew in and out through the open windows and doors. The twenty men, some young, some middle-aged, sat as if they were in fact a row of carved Buddhas.

◇ ◇ ◇

THERE was one monk who stood at the end of the hall. He carried, like a sword over his shoulder, a five-foot length of wood that had been flattened and polished. After a little he began to pace between the platforms and their rows of figures with slow, silent and formal steps. Then suddenly, behind my back, there came the sound of a severe beating; no one moved, but the place was filled with the hateful sound of the stick moving through the air and landing heavily on some part of a man's body. Yet it just did not seem feasible to turn and look.

◇ ◇ ◇

THEN the monk with the stick came pacing past again and a monk who sat opposite me bent forward and bowed as he passed. He stopped and bowed back and held out the stick in both hands, and the sitting monk lay forward with his head between his knees. The monk with the stick hit him once in an exploratory way across his flattened back and then hit him four times as hard as he could. [illegible] the stick high above his head. He did the same on the other shoulder, bowed and walked on, and the sitting monk sat upright with no change on his face.

THESE monks were in the middle of an eight-day period when they take only three hours' sleep in twenty-four. Almost the whole of their long day was spent sitting in this hall, in periods of forty minutes interrupted by breaks of five. Sometimes pains attacked their shoulders and so they bowed and asked for a beating to relieve the ache or at least to alter it. Sometimes they fell asleep and were wakened and beaten for discipline. And we sat there, interrupted three or four times by the sound of blows, and felt completely subdued.

At the end of the forty minutes there was the sound of a wooden clapper, and the monks stretched themselves slowly and opened their eyes. No one spoke. We left and began the walk down hill, back through the courtyards, past the carp ponds whose water was now jet black. As we passed the sliding door, the bell sounded again to arrange themselves on their platforms, started again the long process of conquering themselves in the way that seems most noble to the Japanese.

Did Nelson Say 'Kiss Me, Hardy'?

(Ludovic Kennedy in The London Sunday Times)

NOT LONG AGO the Duke of Wellington offered £50 to anyone who could produce evidence that hi famous ancestor ever said that the Battle of Waterloo was won on the playing-fields of Eton. Nobody could. Next Tuesday is the 147th anniversary of the Battle of Trafalgar; and I would gladly offer the same reward to anyone who could prove that Nelson's dying words to Hardy were "Kismet" and not "Kiss me".

But nobody will. For, although the story persists, it is disproved by all the evidence. Two of the principal witnesses of Nelson's last hours were Mr. Beatty, the Victory's surgeon, and Dr. Scott, the chaplain; and the integrity of both is beyond dispute. In 1807 Beatty published his "Authentic Narrative of the Death of Lord Nelson," in which he wrote:

> " . . . 'and,' continued he, 'take care of my dear Lady Hamilton, Hardy: take care of poor Lady Hamilton. Kiss me, Hardy.' The Captain now knelt down, and kissed his cheek; when his Lordship said, 'Now I am satisfied. Thank God, I have done my duty." Captain Hardy stood for a moment or two in silent contemplation: he knelt down again, and kissed his Lordship's forehead. His Lordship said: 'Who is that?' The Captain answered: 'It is Hardy"; to which he Lordship replied, 'God Bless you, Hardy!' After this affecting scene Captain Hardy withdrew . . . "

Dr. Scott's version (taken from a letter by him dated December 22, 1805, and published in the last volume of "Nelson's Dispatches and Letter") is briefer but much the same, ". . . 'Hardy, kiss me!' The Captain knelt down by his side, and kissed him. . . . "

Why then, in the face of such incontrovertible evidence, does the Kismet story still continue?

THE ANSWER, I think, is because many of us want it to. We reject the true story because it is too distasteful, or too ridiculous, to accept. That any man should ask another to kiss him seems unwholesome: that our greatest sailor should have asked it is quite untenable. And because of this we miss the pathos and significance of what was one of the most moving episodes in Nelson's life.

For, among all his comrades, it was Hardy, in the last analysis, whom Nelson loved most. With others he had been more intimate; but they had given him both the praise he wanted and the criticism he did not. Hardy had offered him neither, but for seven years had served him with a loyal, unquestioning devotion. They were the opposite in all things: Nelson passionate, fretful, impatient, Hardy ponderous, placid, enduring; and each was the other's foil.

In his heart Nelson had always known that Hardy had loved him; but because it had never been said he did not know. Now in this last moment of his life he wanted the proof; and he could not have asked for it in terms more alien to Hardy's nature. Twice Hardy gave it to him; once at Nelson's request, the second time (so there be no doubt) freely and of his own volition. "Who is that?" "It is Hardy." "God Bless you, Hardy." Nothing could have been less fitting; nothing in the circumstance more profoundly right.

Whether the Duke of Wellington has succeeded in burying the story of the playing-fields of Eton remains to be seen. But I think the Kismet legend will continue. For we live in an age which does not understand these things, which regards any show of emotion as unseemly and embarrassing. Whether this is to our advantage I do not know. But throughout history there have been many who "on noble occasions" have not been ashamed to express their natural feelings; and it seems to me that for doing so they were greater rather than lesser men.

Unconsidered Trifles

"That was a beautiful hat, Pat, your wife wore to church last Sunday. It was so high I could hardly see the pulpit above it."

"It should have been beautiful, Mike: an' if she'd worn the bill that came with it you wouldn't have seen the steeple!"

◇ ◇ ◇

At the trial of a woman accused of murdering her husband, the jury were out for a very long time. The verdict, when they returned to the jury box, was for acquittal, largely because of the efforts of one little old lady on the jury.

After the trial the latter explained her attitude: "I suppose I just felt sorry for her. After all, she was a widow."

◇ ◇ ◇

The Smiths were entertaining and Mr. Smith was doing his utmost to impress his guests.

"I think I shall get a car this year," he said offhandedly. "I haven't decided what make, but I won't get a cheap one. Probably I could get a serviceable affair for about seven hundred or so."

While his guests were gasping at the careless mention of so much money, Smith's youngest son remarked: "And will that funny little man with the big black whiskers call every week as he did when you bought my bike?"

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Now the serpent was more subtil than any beast of the field which the Lord God had made. And he said unto the woman, Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of every tree of the garden? And the woman said unto the serpent, We may eat of the fruit of the trees of the garden: but of the fruit of the tree which is in the midst of the garden, God hath said, Ye shall not eat of it, neither shall ye touch it, lest ye die. . . . And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was pleasant to the eyes, and a tree to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat, and gave also unto her husband with her: and he did eat. . . .

And they heard the voice of the Lord God walking in the garden in the cool of the day: and Adam and his wife hid themselves from the presence of the Lord God amongst the trees of the garden. And the Lord God called unto Adam, and said unto him, Where art thou? and he said, I heard thy voice in the garden, and I was afraid, because I was naked; and I hid myself.

And he said, Who told thee that thou wast naked? Hast thou eaten of the tree whereof I commanded thee that thou shouldest not eat? And the man said, The woman whom thou gavest to be with me, she gave me of the tree, and I did eat. And the Lord God said unto the woman, What is this that thou hast done? And the woman said, The serpent beguiled me, and I did eat. (Gen. 3:1-3, 6, 8-13.)

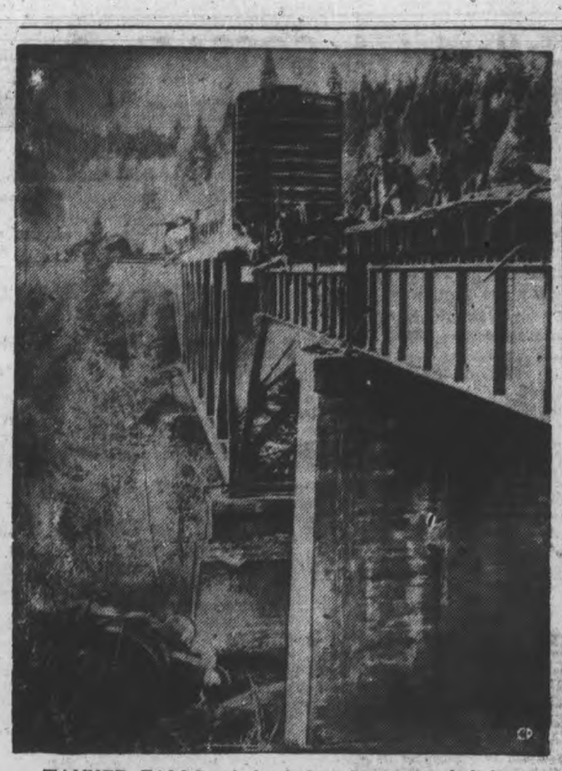
◇ ◇ ◇

I acknowledged my sin unto thee, and mine iniquity have I not hid. I said, I will confess my transgressions unto the Lord; and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin. Selah. . . . Many sorrows shall be to the wicked: but he that trusteth in the Lord, mercy shall compass him about. (Ps. 32:5, 10.)

How Much Longer These Bans ?

(Financial Post)

For several years now millions of Canadians have been eating margarine and not one case of poisoning or even malnutrition has been reported. Consumers have found margarine just as wholesome as any other carefully prepared food and they have also found it economical too.



Yet, despite this wide test, there are still provincial laws that discriminate against margarine and, in one province at least, distribution and manufacture are completely banned. Only in British Columbia and Newfoundland can margarine compete on equal terms with butter—that is it can be coloured artificially, just the same as butter can be coloured and very often is.

How much longer are Canadian consumers going to put up with these unfair and crazy restrictions? Why shouldn't they be able to go into stores in any province and get coloured margarine, exactly the same as they can get coloured butter, coloured cheese or coloured jam. There is no more reason why provincial authorities should insist that margarine be sold in its natural colour or lack of colour, than they should insist that all woollen goods be sold in a natural grey. But these discriminations against margarine will remain until consumers put real pressure on the provincial legislatures. For some strange reason these bodies think that their ban pleases the rural voter and that they don't need to worry about anyone else.

Ontario Truckers Win Five Top Road Prizes

Three of them won top provincial and country-wide honors, finishing in the same order in both competitions. C. G. Brown 24, of Sudbury, received $400 and two trophies for first place in the Dominion and Ontario straight trucks contests. He has been driving for eight years.

Wallace Postill, a 38-year-old veteran driver from London, was runner-up in both straight truck competitions, and Stewart Dow 18, of Toronto placed third.

The competition's biggest money-winner was Alan Shepherd of Burlington, who took his tractor semi-trailer over the six-obstacle course to win the national tractor semi-trailer title worth $400 and the Ontario championship worth $100. He has been driving for 13 years and hasn't had an accident in 10 years.

The other first prize winner was Cpl. E. C. Setters of the R.C.A.F.'s No. 25 materiel base at Calgary. He piled up 369½ points for the highest point aggregate of the Roadeo.

Other winners in the tractor semi-trailer class were Fred Dedels, 40, of Calgary, who placed second, and W. K. Johnston, 38, of London, who came third. Johnston has been a trucker for 17 years.

WARM NOVEMBER — The calendar says November but grass still is growing on Victoria, B.C., boulevards and city workmen Art Farey, on a power mower, and his assistant, George Bryant, find it hot work under a brilliant sun. An October sunshine record was established last month and November continues warm.

Stratford Theatre Names Coronation Season Players

STRATFORD-ON-AVON, Eng. (Reuters)—The Shakespeare Memorial Theatre today announced details of its 1953 season, in which top British actors will play before more than 300,000 Coronation Year visitors.

The season, starting March 17 with "The Merchant of Venice," will last 33 weeks, about the same as this year. Other plays will be "Richard III," "Anthony and Cleopatra," "The Taming of the Shrew" and "King Lear."

Stars of the season will be Michael Redgrave, Peggy Ashcroft, Marius Goring, Yvonne Mitchell and Harry Andrews.

Redgrave, who gave up a lucrative London part to prepare for the season, will be playing three roles he's never tried before—Shylock, Antony and King Lear.

Miss Ashcroft will have the female "plums" of Portia and Cleopatra.

Gorin, in his first season at Stratford, will appear in four roles new to him—"Crookback" Richard, Octavius Caesar, Petruchio and the fool in "King Lear."

"The Merchant of Venice" will be directed by Denis Carey, "Richard III" and "Anthony and Cleopatra" by Glen Byam Shaw, co-director of the theatre, and "The Taming of the Shrew" and "King Lear" by George Devine.

Recount Nears End In Michigan

DETROIT (AP)—With state police keeping the ballot boxes under scrutiny for an expected recount, canvassers today neared the end of their task in tallying up the Michigan vote for governor.

The official canvass was completed in 71 of the state's 83 counties, giving Governor Mennen Williams a lead of 7,002 votes by unofficial count over Republican Fred M. Alger, Jr. These were the totals:

Alger 1,422,953
Williams 1,429,955

Since the canvassing started Williams has held a lead of about 7,000 votes.

At the governor's request, state police commissioner Joseph A. Childs assigned 250 state troopers and a number of detectives to check ballot-box seals.

Republicans are expected to ask a recount if Williams' margin is less than 10,000.

Engineers' Enrolment Boosted At McGill U.

MONTREAL (CP)—If enrolment at McGill University is an indication of the next generation's representation, there will be 40 times as many engineers as clergymen.

Officials report that enrolment in the university's engineering course was up by more than 100 students at 1,302 while the divinity course dropped by 11 students for an enrolment of 30.

Total number of students to enrol at the university was 6,653, a drop of about 200 students from last year. However, there were 600 fewer veterans registered this year and enrolment was considered satisfactory in view of the drop in veteran registration.

The figures also showed notable gains in the schools for teachers, physiotherapy social work and law. The arts course dropped from 1,022 to 920.

British MP's End Kenya Tour

NAIROBI, Kenya (AP) — Two British members of parliament ended a nine-day fact finding tour of Kenya by condemning the colonial administration.

In statements before leaving for Britain Labor members Fenner Brockway and Leslie Hale blamed the present tense situation on African land hunger, low wages and the increased cost of living.

Both said they were saddened by the "wholesale arrests." They were also "deeply concerned at the number of arrests of people who have been in contact with us." One man was arrested as he spoke to them, only to be released an hour later, they said.

Brockway and Hale complained they had been subjected to an "armed escort" while visiting tribal reserves. This had "deterred the free expression of opinion."

Can't Broadcast Music

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—The American Federation of Musicians (A.F.L.) yesterday forbade radio station CHVC to broadcast any part of the music at the cenotaph Remembrance Day service. Manager B. H. Bedford said the station will carry the spoken sections of the service and fill in with recordings of the last post and the national anthem. Louis Scott, secretary of the union local, said the station is on the "unfair list" of the international union.

Child Killed In Car

CHATHAM (CP)—Allan Bayzlinsky, 10-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. John Bayzlinsky was killed in an automobile accident here yesterday and his mother was injured. Police say a car driven by John Bayzlinsky collided with a truck at an intersection.

BROCKVILLE (CP) — Charles Randolph, 85-year-old pedestrian, was killed last night when he was hit by a car as he crossed the highway on the outskirts of this city. Police said the driver was Stanley Blanchard of Oshawa.

Scrape Barrel For Surplus Arms

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada is scraping the bottom of the barrel for surplus Second World War arms and equipment to ship to Atlantic Pact allies in Europe.

In planning new aid for Europe, defence officials now are thinking largely in terms of new production—planes, guns and ships coming off the assembly lines that took up the pace of twilight mobilization after Korea started.

The available surplus stocks left when peace came in 1945 are running dry. During the last two years they have been tapped to ship to France, Italy, Belgium, Holland and other countries enough arms to equip three divisions as well as others outside the divisional pattern.

Canada has never considered the entire stock available for shipment to Europe because she must maintain a certain reservoir for her own use in emergency. This has been notably true of the .303 rifle.

Butter Production Tops Output Of 1951

OTTAWA (CP)—Production of creamery butter, margarine and process cheese increased during the first 10 months of this year compared with the same period a year ago, the bureau of statistics reports. However, output of cheddar cheese dropped.

Butter production climbed to 252,014,000 pounds from 233,630,000; margarine to 87,547,000 from 87,428,000; and process cheese to 34,225,000 from 32,534,000. Cheddar production decreased to 60,329,000 pounds from 79,562,000.

Last month production of butter increased to 25,440,000 pounds from 23,575,000 a year ago; process cheese to 3,835,000 from 3,884,000; and cheddar to 6,934,000 from 8,931,000. Margarine production last month rose to 11,061,000 pounds from 10,154,000 a year ago.

Butter stocks dropped to 73,913,000 pounds Nov. 1 from 76,937,000 Oct. 1 and cheddar to 45,841,000 from 46,599,000. Process cheese stocks declined to 1,239,000 pounds from 1,191,000 at Nov. 1 last year and margarine to 2,614,000 pounds from 2,712,000.

Top C.I.O. Officials Gather For Final Tribute To Murray

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Top officials of the Congress of Industrial Organizations began arriving in this steel capital today to pay final tribute to Philip Murray and probably to seek his successor.

Murray, soft-spoken leader of C.I.O. and the C.I.O. United Steelworkers unions, died Sunday in San Francisco. He was preparing for the annual C.I.O. convention scheduled to open Nov. 17 in Los Angeles.

Whether to postpone the convention is one of the first pieces of business facing officials. The union's nine vice-presidents will make that decision tomorrow.

Friday the 46-member executive board meets to consider a possible choice to take Murray's place as head of the 6,000,000-member C.I.O. The steelworkers will decide on a new leader separately.

REUTHER OR CAREY

Walter P. Reuther, 45-year-old president of the United Automobile Workers (C.I.O.), and James B. Carey, 41, president of the International Union of Electrical Workers (C.I.O.), are considered top contenders.

Several other names are being mentioned, including that of Allan Haywood, vice-president of the C.I.O. in charge of organization and now acting interim president.

Selection of a new president will be made at the convention, but an executive board recommendation would carry weight.

Union dignitaries and Pittsburgh city officials, including Mayor David L. Lawrence, formed a guard of honor as Murray's body arrivee by train early today.

SING REQUIEM MASS

A solemn mass of requiem will be sung at 11 a. m. EST Thursday at Pittsburgh's Roman Catholic Cathedral of St. Paul. Murray will be buried in the cemetery of the Church of the Resurrection, where he was a devout attendant.

James C. Nicholson of Sydney, N. S., director of local 1064 of the United Steelworkers of America (C. I. O.-C. C. L.) will be an honorary pallbearer at the funeral.

President Truman has designated Labor Secretary Maurice Tobin to represent him at the funeral.

Remanded Till Friday

BELLEVILLE (CP)—Three men accused of breaking into the office of Trinidad Leaseholds, Limited (Canada) and blowing the safe to escape with $1,000 were remanded yesterday until Friday without bail and without being asked to plead. Michael Metrunitz, 40, Jackson's Point resort operator, Walter Johnston, 36, and Robert Knutson, 22, were charged with shopbreaking, possession of stolen goods and shopbreaking with intent.

Ship Due For Repairs

PORT COLBORNE (CP)—The J. N. McWatters, Colonial Steamships Limited canaller, damaged early Saturday when she ran on the rocks in the St. Lawrence River near Clayton, N.Y., is en route to Port Weller for examination and repairs. The McWatters, bound from Port Colborne to Montreal with a cargo of grain, ran on the rocks in a snow storm. She was pulled free by tugs and towed to Kingston where she was given preliminary examination.

Fire Destroys Barn

HENSALL (CP)—Fire last night destroyed a large barn on the farm of Thomas D. Wren, Hibbert township clerk, about five miles east of here, and caused damage estimated at $10,000. Lost in the blaze were a number of new farm implements, 400 bushels of grain and 200 bales of hay.

Man Fined $200 On Liquor Charge

A fine of $200 and $2.50 costs or two months was imposed by Magistrate W. R. Philp Monday when Elmer Tripp, 42, 660 Romaine St., pleaded guilty to a liquor charge.

Tripp was charged with being an interdicted person and consuming liquor. He admitted a prior conviction on the same charge last May.

After Tripp pleaded guilty to the charge, crown attorney John A. Bradshaw, said he would be offering no evidence on a drunk driving charge against Tripp and it was dismissed.

Fluorides Cut Tooth Decay; Use In Water Recommended

By EDWIN P. JORDAN, M.D.

There are not many people in this world who work hard for something which will cut down on their occupation and reduce their income. This, however, is exactly what the great American dental profession is now doing in its campaign to add a substance to the water supply which reduces dental decay.

There are three ways, it is said, to reduce the rate of dental decay among our people: 1. Increased emphasis on dental health education. 2. Increased emphasis on dentistry for children. 3. Controlled fluoridation of public water supplies. It is the latter which is the subject of today's column.

It was some years ago that fluorides were found to add to the hardness of teeth. Patient study of the effect of fluorides on the teeth was then conducted for many years, and finally the practical value was considered proved and the campaign was begun to fluoridate the public water supply so that tooth decay—and incidentally, the work of dentists in filling cavities—would be decreased.

What can be expected by communities which add fluorides to the water? In Newburg, N. Y., which instituted fluoridation of its water in 1944, there has been 47 per cent decrease in the rate of tooth decay among elementary school pupils. This figure was obtained by comparing tooth decay of children in a neighboring city Kingston, in which the water supply was not fluoridated.

Among those children who drank fluoridated water since birth, the drop in rate of tooth decay is even greater—two-thirds

With the over-whelming evidence that fluoridating the water supply cuts down on tooth decay, 367 communities, at latest report are now receiving fluoridated water.

FIND NO SIGN OF HARM.

Curiously enough, this program has been opposed in spite of the fact that the effect on tooth decay is so definite, and that neither the medical profession through its constituted agencies, nor the public health profession, has found any evidence that fluoridated water in the concentrations recommended produces any harmful effects on those who drink it.

Some of us who have spent hours in the dentist's chair having cavities filled would be happy to approve any method which would cut this experience in half.

First O.R.F.U. Crown Here Since Senior Team of '07

By DON GRANT

There will be few Peterborough residents who will recall the last time a Peterborough football team won an O.R.F.U. championship. If they'll look back, they'll see it was no less than 45 years ago; in 1907 to be exact. Then the Petes, with a strong senior team, won the O.R.F.U. senior title, later that year losing out to a stronger Montreal team from the inter-provincial union for the Eastern Canada championship.

Actually Peterborough was one of the big names in the gridiron game before the turn of the century. But a championship never came Peterborough's way until 1899 when the Petes won the intermediate championship. They lost out in the Eastern Canada series to the Quebec Westmounts 4-2 in the final game.

LOST TO QUEBEC

Between that first title and the last in 1907, Peterborough twice won the intermediate championship, in 1901 and 1902. But each time the Peterborough squads lost out to Quebec champions in the Eastern Canada playoffs.

In those days it was just straight rugby, with the flying wedge one of the first famous plays, until outlawed. Then the two bucks and a kick were the game's mainstays with the emphasis on the kicking since there were no passing plays.

Brawn was another part in the game. Today's grand-daddies wowed the Gay Nineties' girls with their feats on the gridiron.

But since then the best Peterborough teams could do was reach the Ontario finals.

C.O.S.S.A. HONORS

Many school teams, especially P.C.V.S. under Coaches Harry Bamforth and Bev Goulding, have brought the city C.O.S.S.A. district championships. John Lynch's St. Peter's High juniors added a district championship last year.

This year the St. Peter's High seniors won the Ontario Catholic Conference senior "B" title for the second consecutive year. But that championship is not representative enough for a clear-cut Ontario title since the Saints played only St. Michael's College of Toronto.

But apart from the school titles the Peterborough teams haven't fared so well in the O.R.F.U. In the past 15 years Peterborough teams have reached the provincial finals only once, then in 1937. They lost out.

The Orfuns hope to break the Quebec jinx on the Eastern Canada finals this weekend in the sudden-death game with the Quebec champions for the Eastern Canada honors.

Fort McLeod in the Cariboo district of British Columbia was founded by Simon Fraser in 1805.

Central Takes Sr. Title School Soccer

Central captured the senior Public School Soccer League crown yesterday in Morrow Park by defeating Prince of Wales 3-2 in the final playoff game. Chufon Mac, Sorrie and Barclay starred for the victors; with Coombes, Bowen and Ketcheson best for the other team.

It was quite even in the lively first half with Bowen finally kicking a neat one from the corner which Coombes drove between the uprights to give the Princes a lead. Later, Dinsdale took Lustic's pass and scored to tie it up. Near the close, Robbins broke down the field and carried the ball to the goal line where he centred it across to Chufon Mac, who planted it to put Central up 2-1.

Early in the second half, Robbins picked up the ball and carried it to his wing, centred it nicely to Chufon Mac and the latter scored another fine marker. Halfway through, Ketcheson drove one and the Central defenders missed the ball which rolled freely toward the goal. Ketcheson followed to bang it in. Princes pressed hard and had Central backed up often. With two minutes left, P. of W. were given a free kick and the ball came in to the goal line. But their forwards failed to take advantage of it before Central halves cleared the ball down the field to end it. It was a clean, hard-fought game all the way. Teams:

P. of W.: Londerville, Oliver, Kent, Jay, Bowen, Dunstan, Coombes, Riel, Ketcheson, McIntosh, G. Douglas, Park, Peel, B. Douglas, Barber, Nurse, Clarke.

Central: Lamers, Barclay, Aulbrook, Downer, Sorrie, Armstrong, Mac, Hum, Simpson, Tunnicliffe, Robbins, Gray, Dinsdale, Lustic, Ross, Grills.

Referees, L. McNeil and W. Patterson.

Badminton Club Loses Out To Bowmanville

Bowmanville defeated the Peterborough Badminton Club here Saturday by 12 matches to eight. The visitors sent a strong team of young players to uphold their reputation of having one of the strongest clubs in Central Ontario.

Peterborough ladies won three matches of five. Baker and O'Donoghue dropped the first set, going to three games, while Rose and Charlton took the second team in two games. In men's doubles, Johnston and Baker won from G. Tighe and B. Burgess two of three, while the other four local men's doubles dropped their matches.

In mixed play, Bowmanville had the edge, six matches to four with some good badminton shown for so early. Lunch was served after the competitions.

The Central Ontario Association meets Nov. 16 in the Belleville Armouries when officers will be elected and a tourney site named.

The junior club begins today at 4:30 when Marg. Baker will start the youngsters off in instructions. Saturday is an open night here, while Nov. 22 sees a team go to Bowmanville. The following Saturday, Belleville comes to Peterborough.

THE RESULTS

Saturday scores: M. Baker and A. O'Donoghue lost to Thompson and D. Reddock 15-8, 8-15 and 15-12; V. Rose and M. Charlton won from L. Dipple and M. James 15-11, 15-8; C. McHugh and R. McKee won from M. Swindells and M. Kent 15-8, 15-7; J. Elmsley and A. Graham won from Cole and Robson 15-4, 15-7; M. McKee and I. Jones lost to Hutchison and Leask 15-2, 15-7.

Men's doubles: R. Baker and E. Johnston won from G. Tighe and W. Burgess 15-10, 8-15 and 15-11; W. Elmsley and V. O'Donoghue lost to E. Neilson and R. Kent 15-6, 10-15 and 17-15; H. Curling News

By HERB MARTIN

Well, the boys got away to a good start last evening and when you consider that there were many new curlers playing for the first time, the opening night was all that could be expected.

As far as the curling was concerned, it was very good. Most of the games were won by a margin of one or two shots.

We believe that all seven sheets of ice were occupied by 7.05 o'clock. One thing we did notice—the critics on No. 8 picked up just where they left off last spring,—the curlers may change from year to year—but the critics—never.

Games chairman Norm Hamley was busy distributing the schedule books.

Several of the lady curlers were down on Monday afternoon for a practice.

Don't forget to get your tickets for the big turkey (20 of them) draw, Wednesday, Dec. 17.

The schedule games are now in full swing.

Today's thought: The man who has done less than his best, has done nothing.

SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By CEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

As usual, early-season confusion has occurred in puck circles over the icing-the-puck rule. The O.H.A. goes by the N.H.L. ruling on it for junior "A" and probably senior "A" games, but calmly refuses to see eye to eye with the N.H.L. in this respect for senior "B" and junior "B" competition. N.H.L. calls the centre red line the dividing line for icing, whereas the O.H.A. (for senior "B" and junior "B", as well as intermediate) orders its refs to blow the whistles for icing if an attacking team pitches the puck into the defenders' zone from outside the defenders' blue line. Peculiar, but that's how it'll be this season.

* * * * * * *

While the T.V.L. hockey season proper hasn't opened yet, you'd be surprised at the rivalry being built up in the four-team T.V.L. pre-season setup going each Wednesday night now at Civic Arena. The favored Norwood entry, with a lot of Peterborough players aboard, were upset in the opener by the homebrew Lakefield club. Hastings and Havelock appear pretty well matched, but all teams are really digging in for the twin bill tomorrow when Hastings plays Norwood, followed by Lakefield vs. Havelock. Their brief schedule winds up in another week, with top two teams then tangling in home-and-home games on Nov. 26 and Dec. 3 for the trophy. No time for fooling around.

Orfuns On The Prowl

Local Orfuns, monarchs of all they survey in intermediate "A" football ranks in Ontario, are prepping for the big game here Saturday aft. It'll be Montreal Lakeshores and Orfuns in a sudden-deather for the Eastern Canada crown and a crack a Winnipeg for the Canadian intermediate grid championship. Tony Kotowski's crew are all back in action with the exception of Don McGillis. Jerry has returned to the lineup, Jack McIntyre is okay again and Bill Huntley played in Hamilton on Saturday, though used only in a defensive role. Clive Naismith twisted his knee but should be okay this week. There'll be no letup in their drive now with but two teams in the country to hurdle for a local history-making capture of the Robinson Trophy.

* * * * * * *

"The Lakeshore Flyers are a husky, young bunch of footballers, with a style somewhat similar to Oshawa Raiders," Coach Kotowski said after scouting the game at Verdun. They are opportunists, it seems, sometimes running plays on third downs or returning kicks, and they drive hard in slippery footing. Their ace fullback is Harry Miles, a 225-pound plunger, while a back named Martin has plenty of speed. Tony figures the Flyers and Orfuns are pretty well matched, but he thinks his squad should pull out a close win on home terrain. After all, O.R.F.U. trophy holders, aren't made up of a few individual stars—every man on the team is a star in his own right. But more on them again.

Minor Puckists Set

P.M.H.A. has the decks cleared for a five-game opening Thursday eve in Civic. Starting at six and going hourly, it'll be: Shamrocks vs. Trojan bantams, Norwood vs. midget Aces, Marines vs. juvenile Aces, Shamrock midgets vs. Otonabee Wolves, and Shamrock juves vs. either I.O.O.F. or Havelock, depending on which one enters today. Each Friday at six p.m. there'll be a bantam game, Swartz vs. Aces this time—so as to let the younger kids get home earlier at nights. The officers are: President, Ray Tanner; vice-prexy, Moon Wootton; secretary, Bill Dawson; treasurer, Jack Miller; committee members, Phonse Brioux and Sam Miceli, with one more to be added. Early word from the O.M.H.A. is expected on players' insurance and transfers. This is a well-organized minor hockey setup for the boys.

* * * * * * *

Comes the list of officers for the Trent Valley Hockey League. They are: Hon. Pres., Dr. C. K. Herz, of Batawa; president, Art Duncan of Batawa; vice-presidents, Bill Regan of Marmora, Frank Openshaw of Trent River and Len Greer of Wellington; with Dick Bridgman of Trenton secretary-treasurer. Ten teams in: Lakefield, Havelock, Hastings, Norwood, Marmora, Stirling, Frankford, Wellington, Point Anne and Campbellford, the latter back after an absence. The Fliers left this loop to go in the lakeshore O.H.A. setup, and Belleville is an absentee. The T.V.L. will likely be divided up into a couple of sections, and a ruling is expected soon on how many city players may perform on each club.

Dutchmen Trip Hamilton 6-3

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

That crew of juniors wearing Hamilton Tiger sweaters in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A series this season did a little better last night.

The club, mostly composed of players from last year's Hamilton Aerovox Junior B squad, held the edge for almost two periods before bowing to Kitchener - Waterloo Dutchmen 6-3.

The win gave the Dutchmen nine points and put them within a single point of Owen Sound Mercurys and Chatham Maroons who share third place with 10 points each.

Stratford leads the league with 12 points followed by Sarnia with 11.

Hamilton led through most of the first period but the Dutchmen pulled away in the second and third. Jack McKenzie and Tony Cupolo scored two each for Kitchener while Harry Psutka and Charlie Brooker a single for the Tigers.

Chatham have a chance to pull even with Stratford in first-place tonight. They travel to Brantford for a game with the Redmen who have won only twice in eight starts this year. Chatham has five wins and three losses.

Schedule for the week of November 17: Legion No. 12 vs. Legion No. 10; Orphans No. 2 vs. Legion No. 7; L.O.L. No. 2 vs. Glens No. 1; Fire Hall No. 9 vs. Fire Hall No. 4; S.O.C. No. 8 vs. Red Patch No. 11; Legion No. 3 vs. Legion No. 5.

The results of last week's play: Fire Hall No. 9 at home against Legion No 7, swept both games by scores of 22-2 and 15-10 from No 7.

At the Citadel, the Sons repulsed the attack of Legion No. 5 in both games by scores of 12-7 and 17-3.

At the Legion, No. 12 won the first game 16-11 from the Glens. No. 1 came back to take the second game by a 13-6 score.

Legion No. 3 were hosts to Legion No. 10. The Barbers came off second best when No. 3 won both games 19-4 and 12-9. Orphans No. 2 were at home against Red Patch No. 11. In the first game No. 2 started off strong and were leading 10-2; then the Red Patch scored a six, then a four and the final score was Red Patch 14-13. The second game was also a nip-tuck affair with the Orphans leading most of the way but No. 11 again scored a couple of large ends and went on to score one in the final frame to deadlock that game at 14-all.

The Orange Hall saw two close games fought out by L.O.L. No. 6 and Fire Fighters No. 4, with No. 4 capturing both games, the last game in the final end by one ball. Scores of the games were 12-8 and 8-7.

The postponed game between Legion No. 3 vs. Red Patch No. 11 was played and resulted in two victories for the Red Patch by scores of 13-7 and 10-7.

That brings the league schedule up to date with one exception: Red Patch No. 11 vs. Fire Hall No. 9. This game must be played this week.

The Glens have paid their entry fee. How about yours?

Skips should submit the personnel of their teams when paying their entry fees so membership cards can be made out in their favor.

P. Hawthorne Tops

P. Hawthorne led in singles with 322 this week in the Girls' City Bowling League, as M. Hawthorne rolled high three of 768. Black's led in pinnage with 3146 and had top single of 1167. They blanked Arcos as Cardinals whitewashed Bassel's, 2-1 wins going to Curtin's over Sevenaires, Collis against Austin's, and Marines over Aces. N. Ephgrave's 618 won the blind score of 623.

Good singles included: J. Moore 297, J. Castle 290, M. Hawthorne 287, E. Rishor 274, I. Buckton 270, T. Grierson 268 and N. Ephgrave 254; neat triples were: J. Castle 734, T. Grierson 670 and B. Morrow 668.

Collegiate In COSSA Finals Against Port Colborne High

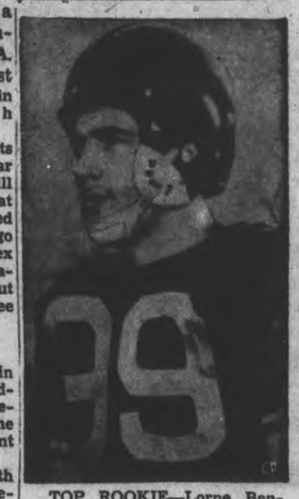
Coach Bev Goulding's Garnet and Greys will have new opponents this year in their C.O.S.S.A. final Saturday. St. Catharines Tricolors and Stamford Hornets, the usual rivals, lost out this year to Port Colborne High School. The Ports just made the final game and that's all. They squeezed through the regular league schedule, narrowly missing a first place tie. Then on Monday in Oakville in C.O.S.S.A. semi-final play, the Ports just managed to eke out a 7-6 win over Oakville-Trafalgar High School.

Everyone believed the Hornets were in the finals again this year but the Ports won out. This will be the first time in years that the Garnet and Grey has played Port Colborne; a few years ago the juniors, under Coach Alex Londry, had several trying seasons against Port junior clubs but managed to chalk up three straight C.O.S.S.A. titles.

SCOUTED GAME

Following a policy adopted in the past few years, Coach Goulding scouted the Port Colborne-Oakville game Monday. But he was unavailable for comment early today.

A converted touchdown with less than two minutes of play remaining, gave Port Colborne High the 7-6 win. Stopped cold on two running plays after a 45-yard march to the five-yard line, Port quarterback Ezra Ginther fired a screen pass to Johnny Crawley for the all-important major.



Oakville players and supporters bitterly protested Ginther's game-winning convert boot; they claimed the ball drifted a full yard outside the goal post.

HAD AN EDGE

The Oakville squad had a wide edge on the play during the first half, recovering four Port fumbles to keep the ball in the visitors' end most of the way. Fullback Gord Bartholomew grabbed a long lateral from quarter George Farrow to romp over from the Port 15 for an Oakville TD, after 10 minutes of play and hoofed the convert but the heavier Port Colborne line thwarted three other bids for major scores.

Ginther opened up the second half with successful passes to Dinny Jones and Crawley, and made it 6-1 when his field goal attempt went wide for a single point. From this point the winners gradually took command of the play, although Bartholomew's fine punting and hard tackling by Jim Joyce, Bob Nairn and Andy Rickaby came within an ace of staving off defeat for Oakville.

TOP ROOKIE—Lorne Benson, 22-year-old Winnipeg Blue Bomber fullback, has been named rookie-of-the-year in the Western Interprovincial Football Union. Benson, named most valuable player in the junior loop last year, was awarded the Beattie Martin trophy. In Saturday's playoff game against Edmonton Eskimos he scored a touchdown although the Bombers lost 18-12.

Port Colborne Wins Niagara Football Title

OAKVILLE (CP)—Port Colborne High School won the Niagara District Central Ontario Secondary School Association football crown by defeating Oakville - Trafalgar High School 7-6 yesterday.

Oakville opened the scoring with a converted touchdown by George Farrow. Port Colborne came back with a single and a converted touchdown by Ezra Ginther for the win.

TOP SCORER — Edmonton Eskimos' tackle import, Bill Snyder, scored enough points himself to defeat Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the second of the best-of-three Western Interprovincial Football Union series, at Winnipeg. He scored a touchdown, two field goals and two converts for 13 points as the Eskies beat Winnipeg 18-12 to force a third and final game.

Name Brockville Man Scout For Black Hawks

BROCKVILLE (CP)—Bob Wilson, head coach of the Chicago Black Hawks' scouting system, announced yesterday that Jack Buell of Brockville has been appointed a scout for the National Hockey League team.

A native of Brockville, Buell played with Sid Abel, the Hawks coach, on R.C.A.F. hockey teams while overseas during the Second World War. He was member of Perth Junior Blue Wings when they reached the Memorial Cup semi-finals in the late '30s.

THE Calvert SPORTS COLUMN

by Elmer Ferguson

It is only fair and right that those who sparkled in the hockey crusades of other years should get the preference as the roll is called to place the greats of the game in their niches in the Hall of Fame. Perhaps the modern will chafe at this. They may wish to see honored those of their own era, or of the generation just before. And this, in time, will come to pass. There are now 42 names listed for the Hall, of which number 32 are players, the other 10 selected because of their contributions to the game in legislation, rules, or equipment.

This agent has at least one preference, in the names to be included in the next group named by the Committee. That is the late George Hainsworth, who in his playing days with Canadiens compiled a seasonal goaling record quite unlikely to be equalled in these days when the rules are designed to place the accent on scoring.

Hainsworth, in this writer's opinion, was one of the greatest goalers of all time. Like that other great Canadien goaler the late Georges Vezina, who preceded him by many years, Hainsworth was ice-cool in the nets, almost nonchalant in perfection, and in his complete lack of what might be called "showmanship". Expressionless, unexcited, he just stopped pucks, blocked the heaviest drives without the flicker of an eye-lash.

Once, after this agent complimented him on one of his many shut-out games, Hainsworth remarked, as if annoyed with himself: "I'm sorry I can't put on a show like some of the other goalers. But I just can't do it. I can't look excited because I'm not. I can't shout at other players because that's not my style. I can't dive on easy shots and make them look hard. I guess all I can do is stop pucks".

He did very well indeed, at that chore. In the season of 1928-29, facing some of the game's greatest snipers, such as Nels Stewart, Ace Bailey, Bill Cook, Carson Cooper, Harry Oliver, Cooney Weiland, Frank Boucher, and others of that unforgettable quality, little Hainsworth scored 22 shut-outs in a 44-game schedule, was scored on only 43 times in the regular season, an average of slightly under one goal per game. No record has ever closely approached this.

Undoubtedly this little fellow, who hailed from that great hockey incubator, Ontario's Kitchener district, was one of the all-time greats of the nets. And yet, curiously, he never made the all-star teams of his era, for Charlie Gardiner, "Tiny" Thompson, and Roy "Shrimp" Worters were names to conjure with when, in 1930-31, the selection of all-star teams began.

Bentley's Five-Goal Week Earns Kudos For Centre

MONTREAL (CP) — Maurice (The Rocket) Richard's golden goal carried him to the top of the National Hockey League point-scoring scramble, but the man who deserves kudos for last week's production is Max Bentley. The Rocket's 325th record - breaking goal of his career was also his sixth this season. Along with two assists in the two games Montreal Canadiens played, Richard booted his total to 17 in the N.H.L.'s newest official statistics.

Bentley breezed through the week with a great scoring splurge. The Toronto Leafs' nimble little centre bagged four goals and one assist in the Leafs' three games and bounced into a second-place tie with Gordie Howe of Detroit Red Wing. Each has 15 points. Howe was unable to click for a goal, but picked up three assists.

FOUR-TO-ONE FOR MAX

Maxie's four-goal outburst was four times that of any of the current 10 leaders, who found one goal the best they could produce.

Fleming Mackell of Boston Bruins came through with three goals and Dick Gamble of Canadiens drove in two goals. Both players moved within striking distance of the first 10, along with Detroit's Red Kelly, highest scoring defenceman in the league with nine points.

Ted Kennedy of the Leafs went pointless during the week and lost the leadership. He now is tied at 14 points with Ted Lindsay of the Red Wings who collected one goal and one assist.

Bert Olmstead of Canadiens, crowding the leaders last week, dropped back. His one goal brought his point total to 13. Behind him with 12 are Canadiens' Elmer Lach, who scored his 200th goal last Saturday, and Alex Delvecchio of the Red Wings who hopped over a couple of other players with one goal and one assist.

FOUR-WAY TIE

Wally Hergesheimer of New York Rangers follows with 11 points and there's a four-way tie, with 10 points, among Jimmy McFadden and Cal Gardner of Chicago Black Hawks, Sid Smith of Toronto and Metro Prystai of Detroit.

Canadiens' two wins in as many starts last week lifted them from a second-place tie to the league leadership with 17 points, one point ahead of Leafs, who fell before Canadiens in one game. Chicago Hawks, also victims of Canadiens, dropped both last week's games and fell from the lead to third place, one point behind the Leafs.

Despite a win and a tie in three games. Detroit Red Wings remained in fourth place, barely ahead of Boston Bruins who won both their two games. The lowly New York Rangers dropped two games and are still in the cellar, six full games behind the leading Canadiens.

The league's statistics show that Jim Henry of Boston Bruins is still showing the way to all other goalies. Sugar Jim has the excellent goals-against average of 1.83 and he is the only goalie with two shutouts this season.

Gerry McNeil of the Canadiens ranks next with 2.31, including the three games in which Jacques Plante guarded the nets and one in which Hal Murphy took over. McNeil, out of the game with a fractured cheek bone, is expected back this week. Plante, as understudy, had a fine 1.33 average in three games.

Other goalies' averages: Al Rollins, Chicago, 2.54; Terry Sawchuk, Detroit, 2.78; Harry Lumley, Toronto, 3.15 and Lorne Worsley-Chuck Rayner combination of New York Rangers 3.46. Rayner has played in only one game.

Toronto Leafs are the most penalized team, with 201 minutes, and Ted Lindsay of Detroit leads the league's bad men with 34 minutes.

Cricketers Tour U.K.

TORONTO (CP)—An all-Canadian cricket team will play in Britain in 1954 as guests of the Marylebone Cricket Club. The Canadian eleven will be on tour from July 15 to Sept. 12 and their games will include a test match against Pakistan. The M.C.C. toured Canada last year.

UPSET VICTORY—Umpire Cliff Roseborough signals a Winnipeg Blue Bombers touchdown a split second before the ball slips from the hands of Lorne Benson (99) in the Western Interprovincial Union playoff game at Winnipeg. Edmonton Eskimos roared back from a first game defeat to down Winnipeg 18-12 and force a third game today at Winnipeg, in the best-of-three series for the right to represent the west in the Grey Cup final.

Big John Mize Top Homer Hitter

NEW YORK (AP) — Big Johnny Mize of New York Yankees, who performed sensationally during the 1952 world series, is the king among home run hitters active in the major leagues.

Mize, who has indicated he will remain in the Yankee fold next year, walloped four homers last season to bring his lifetime total to 355. He also has hit three in world series play and one in all-star competition.

The big Georgia player now is sixth among the all-time home run clubbers. Only Babe Ruth (714), Jimmy Foxx (534), Mel Ott (511), Lou Gehrig (494) and Joe DiMaggio (361) have hit more round trippers than the 39-year-old first baseman.

Mize's most important circuit blow during the regular season was struck Sept. 7 in Griffith Stadium, Washington. A grand slam, it gave the Yankees a much-needed 5-1 victory and enabled the veteran slugger to gain the distinction of having hit a home run in every major league ball park.

Ralph Kiner, co-leader in the national League for '52, is second to Mize among the active players. The hard-hitting outfielder crashed 37 circuit blows to bring his aggregate to 294.

Eskimos Confident Of Win In Final With 'Peg Bombers

By AL VICKERY
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WINNIPEG (CP)—If confidence means anything, Edmonton Eskimos will represent Western Canada in the Nov. 29 Grey Cup Final at Toronto.

That was the way western football fans looked at it as the winhungry Eskimos prepared to square off with the jittery Winnipeg Blue Bombers in the third and deciding game of the western final this afternoon. The winner gets a berth in the late-November classic and as far as the Eskimos are concerned, they are in.

"We'll win," is the persistent claim of Eskimo coach Frankie Filchock, and he could be right if his club plays up to its form of last Saturday when it shook the Bombers with an 18-12 upset victory.

That triumph evened the best-of-three series at one game each and stunned the Bombers down to their cleats. Winnipeg won the opener 28-12.

THIRD STRAIGHT YEAR

This is the third straight year that Eskimos have forced the western finals to the three-game limit—they lost to Bombers in 1950 and to Saskatchewan Roughriders last year—and they are set to prove that the experts, who have made Bombers 6-5 favorites, are wrong in this sudden-death game.

The Bombers, made to look almost second-rate by the sheer power of Edmonton Saturday, will have a shuffled line-up when the opening whistle sounds at Osborne Stadium at 2 p.m. CST (3 p.m. EST).

JAMES IS BACK

Tommy Ford, a mainstay in the Bomber backfield during the season, will be replaced by 18-year-old Gerry James, the youngest player in senior football in the country. Ford injured his knee last Saturday when he was hit hard by two Edmonton tacklers

And some outsiders speculated that relief quarter Joe (Black Magic) Zaleski, former star with the University of Dayton who has been used mainly on defence, may take a turn at calling signals. Zaleski tossed forwards at the Bomber practice last night.

Indian Jack Jacobs, one of the best tossers Canada has seen, had a sad afternoon last Saturday and Coach George Trafton may use Zaleski if Indian Jack has troubles today.

Coach Terry Moore Splits With Cardinals

ST. LOUIS (AP) — Terry Moore, veteran St. Louis Cardinal outfielder and in recent years a coach with the club, said last night he was out as coach.

"I had a choice of an office job or managing in the minors," Moore said. "The best way out of it was to quit."

Fred Saigh, owner of the Redbirds, announced earlier that Moore had been granted a temporary leave as coach at his own request to take care of outside business interests.

Canada Scores Win In N.Y. Horse Show

NEW YORK (AP)—Canada scored its first victory in the 64th National Horse Show last night when W. R. Ballard of the Dominion's equestrian team rode Reject to a flawless triumph in the international individual championship challenge trophy.

Fifteen riders from five countries competed over the eight-obstacle course. Only five completed the course the first time without a fault.

In addition to Ballard, they were: Canada's Lt.-Col. Charles Baker; Capt. Louis Magee of Ireland; Pierre d'Oriola of France and Billy Steinkraus of the United States. Ballard and Baker are from Toronto.

Remember When—

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Ted Atkinson, Toronto-born jockey, booted home four winners at Belmont Park eight years ago today for a total of 16 winners in a week. Atkinson finished that season of 1944 as the leading jockey on American tracks with 287 wins.

Ulysses Curtis Tops Scorers With 80 Points

TORONTO (CP)—Ulysses Curtis, 26-year-old Toronto Argonaut back, won the Big Four individual scoring championship this year with an impressive 25-point margin over Canadian-born Tip Logan of Hamilton Tiger-Cats who took the runner-up position.

Statistics compiled by The Canadian Press show that Curtis ended the 12-game schedule with 80 points, made up of 16 touchdowns. The 175-pound speedster from Florida A. and M., now in his third year with the Argonauts, finished 12th in the 1951 scoring race.

Logan, native of Fort Erie, won the title last season with 51 points, just four less than his 1952 total. He was the first Canadian to lead the league since Joe Krol of Argonauts tied with import Virgil Wagner of Montreal Alouettes in 1946 with 65 points.

Logan, in third place behind team-mate Hal Waggoner the last few weeks, collected seven points as Tiger-Cats defeated Ottawa Rough Riders 13-4 in the season's windup at Ottawa last Saturday. Waggoner dropped to third place with a 50-point total.

Bill Bewley of University of Toronto Blues leads the intercollegiate union with 30 points, five up on Ray Truant of University of Western Ontario Mustangs. Varsity and Mustangs close the college schedule this Saturday.

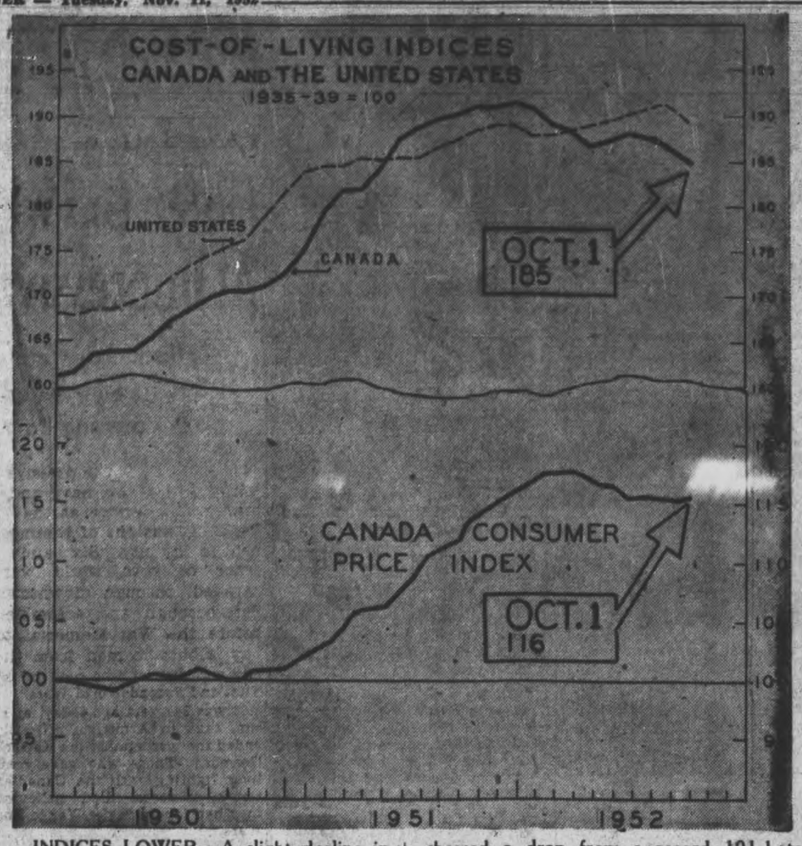
Quarter Supply Of Sugar Comes From Beet

MONTREAL (CP) — Nearly one-quarter of Canada's requirements for refined sugar will come from the current sugar-beet crop and will be sold on the domestic market.

In assessing this production, the publication—Sugar Facts—of the Canada and Dominion Sugar Co., Ltd., says Alberta, Manitoba, Ontario and Quebec are processing a crop estimated at 1,024,000 tons of sugar beets. About 287,000,000 pounds of refined sugar are expected to come from this crop. Alberta expects to produce 130,000,000 pounds, Ontario 95,000,000, Manitoba 35,000,000 and Quebec 27,000,000.

ALBERTA TOP PRODUCER



Breakdown of sugar-beet production by provinces, with 1951 figures in brackets: Alberta 474,000 tons (325,560); Ontario, 340,000 (341,191); Manitoba, 125,000 (178,300); Quebec, 85,000 (96,000).

The estimated total of 1,024,000 tons for this year is only 100,000 tons short of the record beet crop in 1950.

Harvest conditions were reported ideal in the west. In the east, there were only minor interruptions from rain and snow.

The company's publication presents statistical information to show that, in terms of purchasing power per unit of work, sugar is twice as expensive in the United Kingdom, where sugar controls continue, as it is in Canada.

A leading United Kingdom sugar refiner says the average British worker has to work 10 minutes to earn enough to buy one pound of sugar. The Canadian worker earns the equivalent in five minutes, at current Canadian wages and retail prices.

INDICES LOWER—A slight decline in Canadian living costs in September, helped mainly by lower food prices, is shown in Canada's two living-cost indices released by the Bureau of Statistics. The old cost-of-living index (top chart), based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, declined 1.5 points to 185 for the third successive monthly decline. At the same time the United States announced its index (dotted line on top chart) showed a drop from a record 191.1 to 190.8 for the period August 15 to September 15. It was the first decline in six months. Canada's new consumer price index (bottom chart), based on 1949 prices equalling 100, during September dropped one-tenth of a point to 116.0 from 116.1. The peak in living costs was reached last December, measured as 118.2 on the new index and 191.5 on the old.

Mile-Wide Isle Vanishes In H-Bomb Blast

LIMA, O. (AP) — A mile-wide island disappeared in a recent atomic or hydrogen bomb explosion at Eniwetok in the Pacific, a witness wrote Lima relatives.

The unidentified witness didn't say he watched the first explosion of a hydrogen bomb but the Lima News, which published the letter in a copyrighted story, said: "It is apparent that the explosion he felt and saw was America's first experiment with a hydrogen bomb.

The man wrote that he watched the explosion from 30.4 miles away but that heat from the bomb was 180 degrees when it reached him. He said flame two miles wide shot five miles into the air.

A 20-mile-wide mushroom drew thousands of tons of earth into the sky. It looked like a giant cauliflower, the man said.

"About 15 minutes after shot time," the man wrote, "the island on which the bomb had been set off started to burn and it turned a brilliant red. It burned for over six hours, gradually becoming smaller.

"Within six hours, an island that once had palm trees and cocoanuts was now nothing. A mile-wide island had actually disappeared.

"I was watching through binoculars. At first I didn't notice but when I saw a huge chunk just seem to melt away, I watched closely."

The writer drew a picture of the shape of the cloud and sent it with the letter.

The account published in Lima closely followed the details first given in a story in the Los Angeles Examiner last Saturday.

CONVICT COACH—The railway in which 40 convicts from Quebec were transported to Stoney Mountain (Man.) penitentiary arrives at Winnipeg in a battered condition. Windows were smashed and soap drawings made by the convicts who regarded the trip as a holiday from St. Vincent de Paul prison at Montreal. Two convicts jumped through the window at North Bay but were recaptured. Tables were ripped from the walls and tossed with other debris on the floor during the trip.

President's Tactics Injured Adlai Stevenson's Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Robert A. Taft and four other Republican leaders were on record today as saying President Truman's give-'em-hell tactics "hurt" Governor Adlai Stevenson's bid for the presidency.

Wilson Wyatt, Stevenson's campaign manager, commented that some of the things Truman said in attacking Republican nominee Dwight D. Eisenhower "seemed very blunt" and were "disturbing" to many people.

But Wyatt said he thinks Truman's "whistle - stop" speeches were a "plus contribution" to the Democratic campaign.

Joining Taft in declaring Truman lost votes for Stevenson were Governor Thomas Dewey of New York; the House of Representatives Republican leader, Joseph W. Martin, Jr., of Massachusetts; Chairman Arthur E. Summerfield of the Republican National Commitee, and Senator Henry Cabot Lodge Jr. of Massachusetts.

Their views were expressed in telephone interviews published in a copyrighted series by U.S. News and World Report, a weekly news magazine.

ENLIVENED CAMPAIGN

Taft said he thought Truman "gave spirit to the Democratic campaign," but contended the president "alienated a lot more (voters) than he acquired" and stirred up antagonisms in people who might otherwise have been friendly to Stevenson.

Taft also declared he thinks he would have won the election if he had been nominated, and that the Republicans would have won against any Democratic candidate.

Martin took a different view. Asked if he thought the Republicans could have won without Eisenhower, Martin replied:

"No, I'm afraid not. I am inclined to think that Eisenhower is the only man we could have won with this year."

Wholesale Prices Off

OTTAWA (CP)—A year-long decline in wholesale prices continued during September, when the general wholesale price index droppd 1.8 points to 222.1 from 223.9, the bureau of statistics reports. The index, based on 1935-39 prices equalling 100, declined by 21.6 points from the peak of 243.7 in July a year ago.

Students Honor Secretary Of High School

LAKEFIELD — (ENS) —The students of Lakefield District High School met in assembly on Friday afternoon and the presentation of a silver tea service was made by Miss Donna Lean and Jack Burger to Miss Joyce Hutt, popular secretary of the school. Miss Hutt's marriage to Mr. Murray Paterson took place on Saturday afternoon at the Church of St. John The Baptist.

Principal J. E. Stephens also spoke briefly adding his good wishes to those of the students.

Miss Hutt was also presented with a pair of woollen blankets and a pair of pillow cases from the dietary department of Civic hospital.

The pupils of Grade 6, Lakefield Public School, of which Mr. Paterson is teacher, presented him with a beverage set and towels on Friday afternoon. He was also feted when residents of the Lakefield Hotel, where Mr. Paterson boards, presented him with a gift of money at a turkey dinner in his honor.

Carl Wickens Wins County Speaking Test

ROSENEATH (ENS) — Carl Wickens, S.S. No. 23, Murray township, won first prize and the R. B. Dawson trophy at the Northumberland County public speaking contest at Brighton town hall Friday night.

Fourteen contestants, winners in various township and village contests held during recent weeks, competed in the county final. The first and second prize winners will be competing in the district final at Havelock, November 14.

The first prize winner's subject was "Carlo to the Rescue".

Ray Ward, S. S. No. 5 Percy (Dartford School) won second prize and the Dominion trophy. His subject was "Why I Stick to the Farm".

George Osborne, Cobourg, carried off third prize and the Provincial Trophy. His topic was "Your Dog".

Ann Fanning, Fenella School won the fourth prize and the Northumberland Country Trophy. Her subject was "The Blue Willow Pattern".

DONOR PRESENTS TROPHY

The first prize trophy was presented by the donor, R. B. Dawson, Second prize, the Dominion trophy, was presented by Edmund Irwin, Castelton, in the absence of Dr. F. G. Robertson, M.P. Hon. W. A. Goodfellow presented the third prize, provincial trophy; Mr. R. G. Ross, Brighton, presented the fourth prize, the county cup.

OTHER CONTESTANTS

Other contestants and their subjects were: Betty Lowery, Hastings, "A Night of Blitz in England"; Helen Boyle, Academy Hill, "Gardening"; Donald Sandercock, Camborne, "Canadian Postal Service"; Sandra Muspatt, South Monaghan, "Hosteling"; Darlene Johnston, Flemings School, "Barbara Ann Scott"; Lorraine Gibson, Brighton, "Fishermen's Fallow"; Eleanor Wilson, Castleton, "A Little Dutch Boy"; Billy Ireland, Campbellford, "Insulin"; Arthur Reilly, Hilton, "One Egg"; Tim Post, Colborne, "The Ingenuous Eskimo".

Andrew Kemp, Castleton, president of the Trustee and Ratepayers Association, was chairman for the evening.

Mr. J. R. Ross, Brighton, gave the address of welcome. He said it was a privilege to have the county speaking contest in Brighton.

WELFARE MINISTER SPOKE

Hon. W. A. Goodfellow, guest speaker, spoke of the opportunities and training the children of today had in public speaking and concluded by saying, "Do your own thinking, take advantage of every opportunity to express yourself intelligently".

Miss Catherine Schwab, Brighton, contributed two vocal solos with Miss Elizabeth Solomon, Brighton, as accompanist.

The Colborne Barber Shop Quartette sang several vocal numbers.

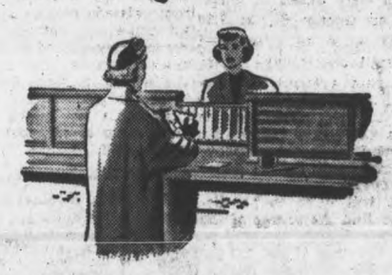
The decision of the eleven judges, chosen from Northumberland and Durham counties, was presented by Mr. Andrew Kemp.

Sportsman Dies

HALIFAX (CP)—W. Roy Cann, 72, veteran Yarmouth, N.S., weekly newspaper man and sportsman, died here yesterday. Manager of the provincial information bureau of Yarmouth for 19 years, he earlier had worked for the Yarmouth Light and later the Yarmouth Herald, where he wrote his columns "Wayfarer," "People We Meet" and "Rod and Gun."

Arrest Arson Gang

DETROIT (CP)—Ten members of a youthful arson gang were arrested yesterday following a two-alarm fire which left 10 families homeless. The group, mostly juveniles ranging from nine to 15, admitted setting 12 fires in the last five days, police said. Firemen led women and children safely from the blazing two-storey structure on Detroit's west side



Windsor Votes On 2-Yr. System

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Windsor's electorate will vote Dec. 1 on a proposal aimed at transforming the city's system of electing half the city council annually into a straight biennial system.

A special city council meeting yesterday approved holding a plebiscite on the proposal of a one-year extension of the terms of those City Council members who were elected last Dec. 3.

If the electorate approves, these would hold office until December, 1954. In that month, with the election of a complete council, the city would undertake its first biennial election.

The city has always help annual elections at which two controllers and five aldermen are elected for two-year terms. Every second year a mayor is elected, also for two-year term. The coming Dec. 1 election is one in which the mayoralty as well as the usual seven council seats are at stake.

Chinese Dropped 3,000 Bombs, Shells On Canadians Holding Gibraltar

By BILL BOSS
Canadian Press Staff Writer

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP)—The Chinese rained 3,000 mortar bombs and shells onto Little Gibraltar spur in the half-hour before they over-ran the Canadian-held position the night of Oct. 23.

The full story of how the enemy pulverized the hill spur, won it and held on for seven hours before "Dog" company dislodged them, has now been passed by censorship. Reported casualties in the Canadians' toughest engagement of the Korean war total 76—18 dead, 14 missing, 35 wounded and nine injured.

During the half-hour the bombs and shells tore at the bunkers, twisted and caved in the trenches, dispersed and buried the ammunition and ration stores and chopped off the communications.

CAME "LIKE CYCLONES"

The Canadians dug themselves cut to fnd the Chinese already in the position.

Said Maj. E. L. Cohen of Ottawa and Pembroke, Ont., company commander:

"They came in on us like cyclones, from three directions, hooting, shouting and howling They shot up flares and blew bugles."

The Chinese battalion probably had laid up outside the Canadian position all day and hugged closely to the barrage, ready to assault the second it stopped. The reserve battalion was believed grouped 800 yards away.

Cohen said the fighting was virtually man to man. "There were bags of little fights." Soldiers fought to their last round; then couldn't recharge their weapons because the barrage had buried the ammunition.

Light [illegible]

Ottawa organized groups from the chaos and brought them into the lines of neighboring companies.

COURAGEOUS OFFICER

Lieut. Russ Gardiner, M.C., of Arnprior, Ont., almost a living legend with the battalion and reputed to take his tommy-gun to bed with him, killed six Chinese, then lay out on the wire for two hours before making his way in. He was wounded in the right arm and both legs by shell fragments.

Individual Canadians like Gardiner were still fighting it out two hours after the assault.

Meanwhile at headquarters of Brig. M. P. Bogert, commander of the 25th Canadian Infantry Brigade, a prepared plan was put into effect as soon as it was realized the attack was on.

Lt.-Col. E. M. D. McNaughton of Ottawa, commanding the 1st Regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery, signalled the start of the artillery plan. The battle area was isolated by R.C.H.A. 25-pounder shells and 4.2 mortar bombs from the 61st Light Regiment, Royal Artillery, which has supported the Canadians for almost a year. Also shooting were tanks of the Lord Strathcona's Horse.

With a few seconds' more warning McNaughton could have cut into ribbons the Chinese forming up for their attack. As it was he prevented reinforcements from reaching them, and later lashed their escape routes.

During the seven following hours a total of 15,000 rounds of artillery, mortar and tank shells were poured onto the area and routes leading from it.

Isolated, the Chinese now had to be knocked off Gibraltar spur.

Maj. Frank Klenevik of Petawawa, Ont., commanding the Royal Canadian Regiment, assigned "Dog" company under Maj. Bob Richards of Montreal to the task. Richards' men had come off the spur only the night before after enduring the whole of the enemy's softening-up program.

Richards split his depleted company into two platoons, under Lieuts. Mel Faraday of Toronto and M. F. Goldie of Pembroke.

Faraday's men worked around by the left and uphill. Goldie worked down a crest on the right. The two hooks were to meet in the middle of Gibraltar spur Faraday bumped opposition first. His men fell back under the concentrated fire of 18 automatic weapons—burp-guns and machine-guns. He regrouped, led his men to just short of the same spot, and waited for Goldie to work [illegible] the right.

[illegible] both were in position, Richards called for seven minutes of intense shelling fired onto the spur, and then they moved in. McNaughton turned his guns onto the escape routes.

A "BLOODY SHAMBLES"

Said Richards: "They'd gone. We found the place a bloody shambles. They'd blown it all to hell. They'd left a lot of concussion grenades with the pins drawn. I had to warn the chaps not to touch them.

"They'd taken all the clothing from the place but left the sort of things Canadians would have taken—rum, primus stoves and things like that.

"On the whole, the men did well. I'm satisfied. Perhaps they were a little slow. That's because we've become defence-minded after such a long time in the bunkers."

Only eight bodies were found in the position, including the one with the flag. But the Chinese are scrupulous about evacuating their killed and wounded and they had had seven hours on the spur to do so.

AFTER PRISONERS?

Brig. Bogert said any guess as to the enemy's objectives would be "pure conjecture" but that a good one would be they wanted:

1. Prisoners.
2. A foodhold from which to exploit forward and capture Little Gibraltar.

One of their dead, found later on the briefly-held spur, clutched a rude Red banner on which were Chinese characters saying: "Fellows of the reinforced platoon! Take this Red flag and place it on top of the hill."

A BOUQUET TO BANDS

A visitor to Peterborough standing watching the parade on George St. today remarked on the number of excellent bands in this city. "I do not think you will find in any city the same size in Canada as many fine bands," he said.

CARE

A meeting of the CARE organization for Peterborough was held Monday night in the Public Library. Further planning for Peterborough projects through this organization was postponed until more information was received from CARE headquarters in Ottawa.

IN LAST QUARTER

The hunter's moon is now waning late in its last quarter, appearing in a new crescent Tuesday Nov. 17. Maybe, moons have no effect on the weather, but this one rose far in the southwest. Weather since then has been fair and favorable, except in the country where the water supply of wells is abnormally low.

PEOPLE REMEMBERED

The two minutes silence at 11 a.m. today, the nation's brief pause of Remembrance Day, was observed by many of the people outside the business stores on George St. One woman stopped north of Hunter St. with her two children. One of them said: "Come on, Mommy, what are you waiting for?" There were exceptions, unthinking and a bit conspicuous.

FLAGS AT C.G.E.

C.G.E. office was a flutter of color this morning with its array of ensconced flags enhancing the Remembrance Day spirit of the plant and its employees . . . . Memorial wreaths against black draperies in some of the uptown shops were not only notes in the national observance. They were from the hearts of business fathers whose mourning of sons will always remain with them.

OVERHEATED BOILER

Firemen were called to Burtol Cleaners on George St., at 9:30 a.m, today when an overheated boiler was discovered. When there was no steam available for the presses, an employee went to the basement to investigate and the boiler was found to be red hot. No damage was done as it was discovered in time. Cause for the boiler becoming overheated is not known yet, as it will have to be dismantled to find the source of the trouble.

THIS IS WHAT HAPPENS TO GARBAGE after householders put it outside their homes on collection days. A month ago, the city scales were moved from the Market Square to the city yard on Townsend St. Joe Hill, outside works accountant of the Sanitation Department (lower photo) is seen weighing a truck load of garbage while driver Carmen Houck (centre) and sanitation superintendent J. E. Pierce (right) look on to see how much the load weighs. Then, the trucks drive up a ramp to dump their load of assorted rubbish (top right) into the incinerator. The men in the (top left) photo are using hand scrapers to rake the garbage into one of the four open hearths of the incinerator where all city garbage is burned.—(Examiner Staff Photos)

Most AFL Locals To Join New Council

Gordon G. Cushing, general secretary of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, is being invited to present the newly organized Peterborough Trades and Labor Council with its charter on December 3.

Nineteen members of Trades and Labor Council (A.F. of L.) affiliated locals attended a meeting of the council in the Library Monday night. There are about 15 T.L.C. locals in the city and Henry Nokes, interim secretary of the council, said most of the locals have indicated a desire to join.

It was decided to postpone the election of a permanent executive until a future meeting, because most of the representatives present stated they were merely attending as observers and had not been appointed as permanent representatives by their locals.

The council is the T.L.C. counterpart of the Peterborough and District Labor Council of Canadian Congress of Labor affiliated unions (C.I.O.).

COMMITTEE FORMED

A three-man municipal committee was set up to investigate questions of civic interest, as they affect labor. For the present, it was decided that each local appoint three representatives to the council, until a constitutional committee can be set up to bring in recommendations concerning the entire setup of the organization.

Glenn Price, president of the interim executive, introduced Jack Kellythorne, T.L.C. district organizer, and Mr. Kellythorne outlined the reasons for organizing such a council.

"It brings the opinions of all local units under one roof," he said. The council could be said to acquaint city council with "the thoughts and feelings of the labor movement. If they are of sufficient merit, they may win the support of the public in bringing about something along the desired lines," he said.

In urging the various locals to get behind the new council, Mr. Nokes said, "A.F. of L. organizations in Peterborough have been quite content to let other organizations do the work for us. There is an active C.I.O. labor council. It is up to A.F. of L. locals to have their own council."

"Labor hasn't achieved much in Peterborough yet," he continued, "and it's up to A.F. of L. locals to pull their own weight."

First steps in organizing the new labor council were taken last February. It has been in the process of being organized since. A steering committee was set up in April and a pro tem executive appointed in August, which has held several meetings since.

The council has obtained its charter from the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, and it is hoped Mr. Cushing will be able to come to Peterborough for the December meeting, to address the council and officially present the charter.

Clarence Porter Seeks Seat Bd. Education

Clarence Porter, 268 King George St., has announced he will be a candidate for the Board of Education, on December 1.

With three years of experience on the Board of Education advisory vocational committee, Mr. Porter has decided to follow up his work on the committee by running for one of the four vacancies on the board.

Aside from the fact that he has found the work on the advisory vocational committee interesting and would like to put his experience to work as a member of the Board of Education, Mr. Porter said the main reason he decided to run was because one of the retiring trustees suggested that he do so.

Southend Resident

Then too, Mr. Porter is a resident of the steadily expanding south end of the city with its large number of school-age children, and he feels that this section of the city should be represented on the board by a resident of the area.

As a supervisor at Outboard Marine, Mr. Porter's duties include supervision of plant layout end installations.

He is married and the father of two children, both girls, Sharon, nine, and Katharine, seven.

Mr. Porter was educated at May's and Confederation schools and P.C.V.S., and has lived in the city all his life.

He is a member of St. James' United Church and is president of the Peterborough and District Gladiolus Society.

Collecting City's Garbage $95,000 A Year Operation

Collecting garbage for a city the size of Peterborough is a big job, and each time the city takes in a new area, it means new headaches for the Sanitation Department. The first of October, the city scales were moved from their old location on the Market Square back of the old City Hall to the city yard on Townsend St.

The Sanitation Department has taken over the old horse barn, on Townsend St., lowered the ceiling and converted it into a garage for housing and servicing its truck fleet. Superintendent J. E. Pierce and outside works accountant Joe Hill have their offices in the front and the city scales are conveniently located right in front of the building.

LET BY CONTRACT

Many older residents will be able to recall just as Mr. Hill can, when garbage collection in Peterborough was let out by contract for a few thousand dollars a year. Now, it costs $95,000 annually to operate the Sanitation Department.

With new houses being built around the North Monaghan dump, complaints about the smell from smouldering rubbish have become so frequent that all garbage is now being burned in the city incinerator.

This makes it handy for Mr. Pierce to weigh all the garbage hauled to the incinerator. It has just been done since the city scales were moved to their new location on Townsend St., and it will enable him to determine if the incinerator will handle as much garbage as the manufacturer guaranteed it would.

Also, it will provide a complete record of how many tons of garbage are being collected during the year and enable the department to work out a breakdown of costs when it submits its annual request for money to run the department when the budget is being worked out.

$3.30 A YEAR

During the week of November 1, 324,950 pounds of garbage were hauled by the five department trucks which are engaged full time in collecting garbage. Mr. Hill points out that it costs about $3.30 a year to collect garbage from each residential and business address, and this is for two collections a week.

The Christmas holiday season is always a busy time for men of the Sanitation Department. They have to work overtime to keep up with the increased amount of refuse and rubbish of all kinds that householders want to get rid of during the weeks immediately before and after Christmas and New Years.

The summer months, when a good many residents are on vacation or living at the cottages is the light period for the department, but they are really busy for the next few weeks and often work as much as 18 hours a day, Mr. Pierce says.

Although the total cost of garbage collection is substantial, Mr. Pierce points out that when it is broken down to the cost per home it is really quite economical. Both Mr. Pierce and Mr. Hill emphasize that the annexing of new areas, such as the proposed annexation from Smith township, will increase costs, on account of the sparse population.

Worker Hurled 60 Feet Bottom Of Cliff

HAVELOCK (ENS) — Kenneth Hadley, 18, an employee of the Building Products Ltd. of Preneveau, three miles east of here, was taken to Civic Hospital in Peterborough on Monday.

Hadley, who is employed in the quarry department on the former Ontario Rock Company property, was drilling holes preparing for dynamite on the top of a 60-foot cliff. Suddenly the rock gave way and Hadley was hurled down the face of the cliff to the bottom. In his 60-foot drop he only suffered scrapes and bruises. He appeared to remain on top of the rock in its crash down the cliff.

[illegible] authorities today reported his condition as quite satisfactory.

Three Sudbury Men Charged In OPP Raid

SUDBURY (CP) — A raid here by provincial police from Toronto about a week ago resulted in charges of having liquor in a public place against three district persons.

This came to light yesterday when the three appeared in court and were remanded to Nov. 17.

Facing charges are Frank Gramigna of Lockerby, Terry Richer of Capreol and Geannine Tessier of Sudbury.

The court appearance followed the announcement by police commissioner W.H. Stringer that district inspector Price Morris of Sudbury had been suspended. It was reported yesterday in Toronto that a bootlegging situation lies behind the suspension.

Town Engineer Clears Woollen Firm

LINDSAY — (ENS) — Horn Brothers woollen mill was absolved of blame for any wool now appearing in the digester at the town's sewage disposal plant at Monday night's council meeting.

Town engineer Strachan told the council that he had received every co-operation from the woollen Company in eliminating wool waste from their sewage. He did say, however that some source was feeding hair or wool into the sewage system. The engineer noted that many cities and towns had passed by-laws forbidding industries to dump any type of waste material into sewers.

Reeve Richard Butler commented that the wool waste is gradually being eliminated from the digester and that the disposal plant is working at almost top efficiency.

In a second lengthy session with the own's auditors, Shiach and Howard of Toronto, the council found that certain types of bookkeeping in connection with the auditing of the books of the arena and recreation centre had made it necessary to take more time with those books, and thence to charge more for the work. Mr. Shiach told the council that the auditing of the books of the arena and recreation centre was forced on the firm when it tendered for the auditing of the town's other departmental books. He further pointed out that the firm was actually losing money on the audit, although he admitted the cost was too high. He noted that the books of the town's waterworks, hydro commission and the town itself were in perfect shape. Mr. Howard of the firm told the council that the reason for other town's spending less on the audit of their recreation centres books was that the books were probably in good order on the statement forms before the auditors started to work on them.

Mayor Of Hamilton Runs For Fourth Term

HAMILTON (CP)—Mayor Lloyd D. Jackson announced today that he will be a candidate for re-election for a fourth term as mayor at the Dec. 3 municipal election, and stated that he would "welcome opposition from any quarter."

So far no opposition has been forthcoming, although it is known that some C. C. F. members favor a mayoral candidate in the field.

Young Thief At Work Near Police Station

TORONTO (CP) — Less than 25 yards from a west-end police station, a young gunman held up Irwin Miller's tobacco shop last night and robbed Miller of $171.

"He didn't ask for cigarets," said Miller. "He got right down to business."

Thousands Gather To Honor Fallen Of Two World Wars At Impressive Service

Citizens Join Veterans of Armed Services In Ceremony At War Memorial After Stirring Parade Through City Streets

In a service of impressive simplicity, thousands of citizens joined with army, navy and airforce veterans in a Remembrance Day service at the War Memorial in Confederation Park. It was one of the most largely attended services ever held in the city. Six bands marched in the parade, as veterans of both world wars paraded through downtown Peterborough and assembled before the War Memorial to pay tribute to men from the city and district who died in the First and Second World Wars.

It was 34 years ago today, at 11 a.m. that an Armistice officially ended the war against the Kaiser's Germany. Those who gave their lives fighting with the Canadian forces overseas, died believing they had fought in the War to End Wars.

JOINED AGAIN

Less than a generation later, many of the veterans of that war were among the first to join up when war broke out with Germany again.

Today, many of those veterans were probably thinking "How long before the present uneasy peace will again erupt into an all-out war?"

As a chorus of factory whistles broke the quiet of two minutes of silence, Canadians were fighting with U.N. forces against the Chinese Communists in Korea.

As representatives of the city's industries and business, social and church organizations followed one another up the steps of the memorial to lay their wreaths, among them was a soldier in battle dress.

To him, the Remembrance Day service had added significance. As well as remembering those who died in both World Wars, Gunner Clarence McFarland was thinking of comrades in foxholes in Korea helping U.N. forces hold off the Red Chinese.

As he laid a wreath on the memorial, stood back and saluted, his mind went back to a few months ago, when he was serving with the Second Royal Canadian Horse Artillery north of the 38th parallel.

A re-dedication to God and to our fellow man will give meaning and significance to our Remembrance Day tributes, Padre A. E. Larke of Springville said in a brief address, which followed his opening prayer, before the two minutes silence.

GIVEN FREEDOM

The freedom we enjoy today is the heritage we have received from those who gave up their youth on the field of battle, said padre Larke.

"In their sacrifice as martyrs to the cause of Right and Truth they have exemplified a heroic quality of character which is latent in every man, and disclosed only when men are caught by loyalty to a cause which goes far above and beyond petty self-interest and which has the power to lift a man out of himself and enables him to give all he has, even life itself.

"In their passing they have taught us that the measure of glorious living is not just 'length of days.' For

'We live in deeds, not years —not figures on a dial! These have conquered time.'

"In the days of their com-

Zeller's To Join With U.S. Chain Of Variety Stores

The chain of Zeller's Ltd. stores which operates a branch store in Peterborough as one of its 32, announced Monday night preliminary arrangements to affiliate with W. T. Grant Company of New York.

The American company is the third largest variety chain in the United States.

The announcement said that Zeller's, subject to the approval of its shareholders, will issue to the Grant company a debenture note "which will carry the privilege of conversion at a future date into the presently authorized and unissued common stock of Zeller's Ltd."

No major change is anticipated in the merchandising, operating or personnel policies of Zeller's. Its business will be conducted as formerly with its present officers and directors, with Walter P. Zeller as president and chairman of the board.

There has been a Zeller's store in Peterborough about 18 years.

It is expected the board will be increased to permit representation of W. T. Grant Co.

In its last fiscal year Zeller's had combined sales of $27,000,000. W. T. Grant Co. in its fiscal year had total sales of more than $268,000,000.

John Porter, 90 Merchant At Ballyduff

BETHANY (ENS)—John Porter, 90, is still actively managing his grocery store at Ballyduff. The surrounding community celebrated in honor of his birthday on Friday evening, in the school-house, and presented him with a studio couch, reading lamp and a pair of blankets, also a huge birthday cake.

Mr. Porter expressed his sincere appreciation, saying he had no notion of retiring, and hoped he would be serving Ballyduff community for many years yet. Ballyduff is a tiny hamlet situated on Highway 35, midway between the villages of Bethany and Pontypool. In bygone days it was quite an active centre, but now consists of only the school, Presbyterian Church, a garage and Mr. Porter's store.

ONCE TWO HOTELS

Doing a little reminiscing, Mr. Porter recalled when at one time there were two stores, a post office, two hotels, two churches, a blacksmith shop, etc. There were 75 pupils in attendance when he went to school. He thought discipline was stricter in his school days, and remembers being sent out to the woods which adjoined the school in company with some other pupils to cut beach gads, which would serve for weapons of punishment.

Mr. Porter was born in Manvers Township, a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. David Porter, worked on his parents' farm as a young boy, later going to Millbrook and becoming employed with Alex Ferguson, who was ac arriage-maker and blacksmith in that village. Still later he moved to Rochester, N.Y., where he lived until 1930, when he returned to Ballyduff, taking over the store formerly owned by his sister, Mrs. F. Bannister. He never married, and humorously attributes his longevity to no family cares or responsibilities.

KEEN BUSINESS MAN

In anticipation of his birthday celebration, Mr. Porter drove to Bethany to purchase a new white shirt and tie for the occasion, and spent the afternoon chatting happily with old friends. He is known by salesmen and customers alike as a keen business man, and does a thriving business in his little store.

Fred Gray, ex-reeve of Manvers Township, was chairman for the entertainment. He expressed his congratulations and told some humorous stories of Mr. Porter's activities. Harry Preston, Bethany, sang several solos, accompanied by Miss Jean Coulter of Pontypool. Others expressing their good wishes were Earl Argue, deputy-reeve of Manvers; John Payne of Pontypool and Mrs. Earl Argue. The remainder of the evening was happily spent in dancing to music supplied by Mrs. Richardson of Pontypool and Charles Taylor of Orono. Mr. Porter, one of the most active on the floor, doing the old time waltzes, square dances, etc. with more grace and agility than those of many years younger.

John James, M.P. for Durham, was present to add his congratulations and took a picture of Mr. Porter and a neighbor, Mrs. Joseph McCullough, dancing "The Susannah Waltz."

As well as local people there were numerous old friends present from Orono, Peterborough, Lindsay, Millbrook, Toronto and Oshawa.

THE LAST POST SOUNDED and colors dipped before the Cenotaph in Norwood at 11 a.m. today, as citizens gathered to pay tribute to their honored dead. A small parade, headed by part of the Havelock Pipe Band, proceeded to the town hall following the laying of wreaths. Village clergy of each denomination addressed the gathering briefly.—(Examiner Staff Photos).

Armistice Time For Rededication

NORWOOD (Staff)— "This day should be a day of rededication. We should rededicate ourselves to defend the heritage of freedom for which so many died."

The Rev. R. D. Duncanson of Norwood Presbyterian Church warned against Canadians being lulled into a false sense of security in his Armistice Day address at the Norwood Town Hall.

The Norwood Branch of the Canadian Legion, the Norwood District High School Cadet Corps, Boy Scouts and representatives of the Norwood I.O.D.E. and Women's Institute marched to the cenotaph before the main service. The parade was led by members of the Havelock Kiltie Band. Following the short service at the centotaph and the laying of wreaths, the parade marched to the town hall.

DEFEND OURSELVES

"We must defend ourselves against those who would undermine our democratic way of life and inflict upon us what has been inflicted upon other countries," Mr. Duncanson said.

The minister condemned the cry of peace at any cost. There should only be peace at the right cost he said.

"Our capitalistic system does not give us the right to ask God to defend us. It is only in capitalism modified by the social aspects of the Christian doctrine that we can ask for God's help.

"Our democratic country must come under the judgement of God and the Cross of Christ and we must stand for judgment in all humility," he said.

"Only as we dedicate ourselves to God in our daily lives and become true followers of the Christian doctrine can we ask God to be our King and head and lead us victorious into battle."

In his concluding remarks, Mr. Duncanson warned again that this is not a time of peace. Canadian soldiers are fighting in Korea and in Canada communistic doctrines are being spread under cover.

"We must take up that faith in Christ and God so that we will be able to defend a Christian democracy against an atheistic Communism."

The service was conducted by the Rev. J. J. Peasgood of Norwood Anglican Church and chaplain of the Norwood Branch of the Canadian Legion. He was assisted by the Rev. J. Bingham of Norwood Baptist Church and the Rev. H. K. Wright of Norwood United Church.

SERVICE AT CENOTAPH

Mr. Peasgood also conducted the short service at the cenotaph.

The last post and reveille were played at both services by John and Melville Hamblin. The members of the color party were Ken Thompson, Robert Gardiner and Mrs. George Bitten.

The wreaths were placed by the following: Reeve Rork Ferguson, Town of Norwood Wreath; Hugh Rogers, Canadian Legion Wreath; Mrs. Clarence Copp. I.O.D.E. Wreath; Mrs. D. M. MacPherson, Women's Institute Wreath; Mrs. William Chamberlain, Province of Ontario Wreath.

Bob Fairman of Hastings placed a wreath in honor of his brother, Jack Fairman who is listed as missing in action. Clifford Innis of Norwood placed a wreath in memory of his two brothers Fred and Eric, who were killed in action.

Critics Get View Of Souvenires

LONDON (AP)—Critics had a preview today of souvenirs intended to dazzle coronation visitors next June.

On many of the do-dads are pictures of the Queen that make her look like a dozen different women.

"According to one bust, she is a slant-eyed high cheekboned eastern goddess type," says the Daily Mirror. "A plaque makes her a matronly 41-year-old with an out-of-date hair style."

The Queen is 26.

The exhibition was arranged by the Council of Industrial Design which rejected some offerings and gave others a certificate of good taste.

One rejected piece was an ash tray in which stands a figure of the Duke of Edinburgh with open mouth ready as a rest for a burning cigaret.

Fred Fallis Outlines Church Activities

MILLBROOK (ENS)—W. Fred Fallis was the special speaker at the morning service in St. Andrew's United Church on Sunday. Mr. Fallis gave an interesting report of the recent United Church general conference especially as it affected the missionary and maintenance department. He urged as many as possible to attend the United Church exposition being held in Peterborough the latter part of this week and first of next. This exposition had been planned at the Hamilton conference to give people an idea of the work being accomplished by the church.

POPPY DAY RECEIPTS

The local branch of the Canadian Legion, Branch 402, realized $123.17 from the poppy tag day held on Saturday.

Charge Mother-In-Law After Man, 22, Killed

HAMILTON (CP)—George Nunn, 22, was stabbed in the back with an eight-inch butcher knife as he lay on a bed in his home early today. Police arrested his mother-in-law, Margaret Foley, 42, and charged her with wounding with intent to maim.

Nunn was taken to hospital with a gaping wound just below his right shoulder blade. Hospital authorities describe his condition as "satisfactory."

Detective George Larson said Mrs. Foley lived with her daughter and son-in-law.

When police responded to a call that an ambulance had been sent to the address about 1 a.m. they found Mrs. Foley running about the roadway, her right hand covered with blood.

Director's Daughter Loses Alimony Rule

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A film director's 14-year-old daughter has lost her plea for alimony and had reduced her request for $125-a-month support for her unborn child.

A court also ruled esterday that there was no evidence of a marriage ceremony in Mexico uniting her and 19-year-old Wylie Duff.

Mrs. Josephine Duff, daughter of Felix Feist, had petitioned for alimony and support pending trial of her divorce suit. She admitted that she and Duff did not get a marriage certificate, but only a slip to show that they had paid for a ceremony at Tijuana last June 8.

Duff was ordered to pay $10 weekly for support of the baby after birth.

Police Probe November 18

Commissioner William Stringer of the Ontario Provincial Police said today that the formal hearing into the charges of breach of discipline against Inspector Price Morris of Sudbury will be held on November 18.

The former sergeant at the O.P.P. headquarters in Peterborough was suspended a week ago. Although Commissioner Stringer refused details of the suspension a high official said that a bootlegging situation lies behind the suspension; Morris placed in charge of the detachment in April, 1951, with orders to clean up wide-spread bootlegging.

Commissioner Stringer emphasized that Morris' suspension "has nothing to do with the suspension of Sgt. Lloyd McClure," formerly a sergeant in Peterborough and transferred to Sudbury in the summer.

Deputy Commissioner Arthur Moss, Toronto, said Monday that the report on the formal hearing in the McClure case has been submitted. Commissioner Stringer said that he expected an announcement of the result probably next week.

Bailieboro W.A. Plans For Annual Bazaar

BAILIEBORO (ENS) — The monthly meeting of Bailieboro United Church W.A. was held at the home of Mrs. W. Gainer on Wednesday afternoon, with a good attendance.

The president, Mrs. Hugh Fallis, presided, and opened the meeting with prayer. Plans were completed for the supper and bazaar to be held on November 12 in the Anglican Church basement.

The roll call was answered by each member contributing something for the parcel post or fish pond for the bazaar.

Mrs. Howson gave a report on the Bay of Quinte W.A. conference, held at Foxborough.

Mrs. Howson was in charge of the devotional part of the meeting, which opened with a hymn, after which the 21st Psalm was read, followed by prayer by Mrs. Yarr. Mrs. Yarr gave a talk on missionary work in Newfoundland. The meeting closed with prayer.

Lunch was served by the committee and hostess.

The December meeting will be held at the parsonage.

Veterans Muster At Plants For Big Parade

The annual muster of war veterans at Canadian General Electric Company on Remembrance Day mornings is quite a spectacle in itself.

Men fall out of industrial ranks at 9 o'clock for the general assembly on the big square along Park St. This morning its area was soon entirely occupied. Formal grouping was readily arranged for the take-off at 9.30 o'clock. Custom has established the procedure. Work becomes a secondary thought for everybody, but especially the men who once rode the air and waves, and slugged it out on the ground. Scores of girls of the office staff clustered about the main entrance to see the plant's one parade as it turned down Park St. behind the C.G.E. Pipe Band. They then swung widely across the Rubidge St. gore, and with the Salvation Army Band bringing up a rear detachment, they were on their way to the rendez-vous with their fellows at the Armouries parade.

ASSEMBLY AT DE LAVAL

Men of the De Laval Company assembled on the north lawn on Park St. They had lined cars along the east side of the street, up the block to which they marched, and made the rest of the trip up town in a motor file.

Cecil G. Upper, president of the company, spoke briefly to the men before they left.

He said the De Laval appreciated the services of the employees to their country in the two World Wars, and the company's goodwill was with them in the full significance of Remembrance Day and its celebration. Mr. Upper spoke of the hopes of peace after those two wars, and of the efforts of peace-loving nations today in trying to bring about an armistice in Korea.

The De Laval Company likewise appreciated the services of the men in their day to day work and co-operation.

Mr. Upper congratulated the veterans of the plant on their continuing response to the spirit of Remembrance Day, and said it would increase as a memorial occasion with the passing of the years.

De Laval men had a new Union Jack this morning as they fell in for their assembly. For the rest of the morning a depleted staff carried on, as did the other industries, while so many of their employees were absent.

James Alfred Loucks

The funeral for James Alfred Loucks, the last surviving member of a Marmora pioneer family was held Monday from the Comstock funeral home. He died in hospital Saturday.

Mr. Loucks has made his home for the past 23 years with his nephew, John H. Loucks, 461 Hunter St. W. He was 91.

Born in Lake township near Marmora, he was a farmer in that district until 1909. In that year he went west and homesteaded first at Weyburn and then Willowbunch, Sask. He returned east 20 years later.

Mr. Loucks was ill for only a short time before his death and was active on his nephew's farm at Keene.

Besides John Loucks, he leaves several nieces and nephews in Peterborough, Saskatchewan Winnipeg and California.

The Rev. H. D. McCormack of St. James' United Church conducted the funeral service.

Pallbearers were Wilfred Curtin, Walter Collins, Alfred Johnston, Joseph Bell, Bruce Scott and Mat Berg. Burial was in Marmora cemetery.

Burn Coal In Ground To Make Synthetic Gas

GORGAS, Ala. (AP) — Government scientists have produced gas from coal burned underground. It is a synthetic gas from which chemists can make gasoline, other fuels and various synthetic chemicals.

Success of this phase of the experiment, disclosed today, climaxes a six-year series of tests here in gasification of coal—the famed mining by fire experiment conducted by the bureau of mines in cooperation with the Alabama Power Company.

It may mean the ultimate use of millions of tons of coal now left in the ground because mining by present methods is considered too costly for these deposits.

The gas was made by pumping oxygen over a burning mass of coal about 200 feet underground in a practical appliation of laboratory experiments in the past.

William Miller Hurt In Fall From Truck

LINDSAY — (ENS) — William Miller, 76 of Reaboro, is in Ross Memorial Hospital with undetermined injuries, following an accident Monday afternoon when he fell from the passenger seat of a panel truck on one of Lindsay's street.

Miller was riding with Jack Angiers, of Colborne St., the owner of the truck north on Lindsay St., south. Angiers made a left turn onto Kent St. and Miller fell out the right hand door to the pavement.

Dr. J. C. Arnold attended the man before ordering him to the hospital. Early this morning the man's injuries had not been diagnosed.

Fall On Stairs Fatal

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—James Gordon Copeland, 60, died in hospital last night of head and spinal injuries suffered earlier when he fell downstairs at his home. A well-known commercial traveller, he had lived in this city for the last 24 years.

Pistol-Packing Hermit Vanishes In Fla.

FERNANDINA BEACH, Fla. (AP) — What has become of the barefoot hermit of Crane Island—a woman about 70 who packed a pistol to ward off intruders?

Sheriff H. J. Youngblood said today no trace has been found of British-born Alice Broadbent since fire destroyed her home Friday.

When he went over Saturday to look around, he found the Broadbent house burned to the ground.

Miss Broadbent had lived there alone since January, 1924, when her father died.

The sheriff found some charred bone in the ruins and sent it to be analyzed.

There were fresh footprints near the house, presumably made by the elderly recluse, who was never known to wear shoes.

Miss Broadbent lived primitively on her lonely island retreat. She had no liking for modern ways. Once in a while she'd come to town for provisions or to attend to matters concerning her property. But most of the time she kept to herself. She cultivated a small garden and raised a few animals.

Sees Oil Wells Giving 300,000 Barrels Daily

CHICAGO (AP) — S. M. Blair, vice-president of the Trans Mountain Oil Pipe Line Company of Toronto, said today Canada's crude oil production can reach a rate of 300,000 barrels daily during the summer of 1953 and may be 10 per cent higher by the end of the year.

He told some 6,000 oil and gas men at the annual convention of the American Petroleum Institute that by the end of 1953 Canada's "major oil transportation will be by pipe line."

"The three refineries on the west coast, the refineries across the great prairies, and the refining centre at Sarnia can then all receive their crude supplies from the Canadian prairies by way of long-distance pipe lines," he added.

Blair forecast that Canadian oil production next year should be sufficient to fill 70 per cent of Canadian needs and within the foreseeable future will equal consumption.

Crown Attorney Claims $3000 From Kitchener

KITCHENER (CP) — Crown Attorney Harold Daufman last night told city council the city owes the provincial attorney - general's department more than $3,000 in statute prosecution fees and he will sue the city, if necessary, to collect.

Council delegated Mayor Bruce Weber to name a committee to meet with police officials in investigating the claim.

Ministers Told Of Need New Churches

Peterborough Presbytery of the United Church of Canada met in St. James' Church.

Worship was conducted by the Rev. I. G. Pollock of Grace Church.

Among the many matters of importance considered during the morning session was the report presented by the Rev. Walton H. Tonge, chairman of the Missionary and Maintenance Committee and the address given by Dr. Neal of Lindsay in this connection.

In his report, Mr. Tonge referred to the preparations which have now reached completion for the presentation of the United Church Exposition in the city of Peterborough from Nov. 13 to 19. Radio, newspaper and church announcements will provide full particulars. Cobourg, Lindsay, Oshawa and Peterborough Presbyteries will participate. During 1952-1953 the Exposition will be presenetd in many centres across Canada.

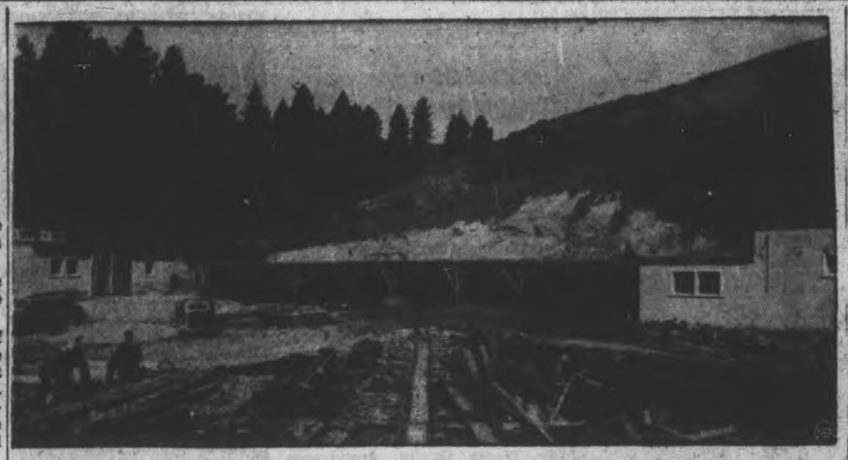
The various committees met from 11:30 to 12:30 at which time Presbytery proceeded to dinner which was provided by the ladies of St. James' Woman's Association. The Rev. E. W. Rowland of George Street Church was asked to express the appreciation of all for the pleasant repast. Acknowledgment of the vote of thanks was made by Mrs. Henry Turner, president of the St. James' Woman's Association.

The afternoon session began with worship conducted by the Rev. H. L. Yarr of Bailieboro.

EXTENSION FUND

The Rev. Malcolm C. MacDonald, D.D., associate secretary of the Board of Home Missions, spoke to Presbytery on the subject of the United Church Extension Fund. He mentioned the great need for new churches owing to the phenomenal number of new suburban districts and new industrial districts from a nation-wide standpoint. Many new churches and manses have already been built by the United Church to meet the need. Others are in course of construction. More will soon be started. It was for this reason that the Extension Fund was established. The amounts for this purpose raised by the churches of Peterborough Presbytery will be used for the erection of a church to replace the present Grace United in the city. The newly appointed Extension Church Committee for this Presbytery is as follows: T. H. Taylor, chairman; P. M. McCarrell, James Wharry, A. E. DeNure, E. L. Sackville, W. B. Gordon, C. S. Cummer, Eric McKinstry, Charles Barnard, Lewis H. Bird, Revs. I. G. Pollock, H. G. Douglas, H. K. Wright, A. E. Larke.

David William Potter, who has been recommended as a candidate for the Christian ministry by the Session of Knox United church was warmly welcomed to this meeting of Presbytery. He was received as a candidate after his candidacy had been duly examined. At the completion of the ceremony of reception conducted by the chairman, the Rev. Nathaniel Cole, Presbytery recommended that Mr. Potter continue with his studies at Victoria University, Toronto.



General Council having recommended that the United Church Observer be sent to every United Church family and that the cost be underwritten as a part of the annual budget of the pastoral charge, the Publications Committee was asked to bring this matter to the attention of the Official Boards of the Presbytery.

The Christian Education Committee displayed the new "Christion Family Life Program" and the "Let's Take a Look at Ourselves Plan" prepared for use in church schools and all Christian education groups.

Presbytery adjourned with the pronouncing of the benediction by the chairman at 4:45 p.m.

Ask Explanation Of Nurse Quote

TORONTO (CP) — A full explanation of criticisms by Ontario Health Minister Phillips of immigrant nurses coming into Canada was demanded last night by the Toronto Labor Council (C.I.O.-C.C.L.).

Mr. Phillips was quoted as saying he had written Immigration Minister Harris asking that immigrant nurses be limited to those passing a strict physical and mental test by a board of Canadian doctors. He was also quoted as saying "we cannot be expected to accomodate displaced persons whose mental attitude is completely alien to the Canadian nursing profession."

Allan Porter, research secretary for the Ontario Federation of Labor, commented that it was doubtful if there was any basis for "such wholesale condemnation of immigrant nurses."

Koreans Slow Learning Use Army Equipment

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. James A. Van Fleet, Allied commander in Korea, is quoted by a former staff officer as saying it would take a "long, long time" for the South Koreans to learn how to use modern military weapons.

Lt.-Col. Melvin B. Voorhees, former chief censor of the U.S. Eighth Army in Korea, used the quote in a book, "Korean Tales," published today by Simon and Schuster.

Van Fleet added, Voorhees wrote, that it would take "longer still" for the South Koreans or any army to lean how to use effectively highly technical equipment.

WATERLOO (CP)—Charges of besetting against two employees at the Sunshine Waterloo Company, laid during a three-month strike which ended Oct. 3, were dismissed yesterday. Lucy Fritz of Waterloo district, also charged with besetting, was remanded for one week. Cases against Leroy Goodwin of Waterloo district and Frank Friedman of Linwood were dismissed for lack of identification.

Stabs Wife For Burglar

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A man who claimed he was made "nervous" by "telephone calls from Communists and news reports of murders" fatally stabbed his wife yesterday when he mistook her for a burglar, police quoted him as saying. Stephen Rohde, 47, was held for mental observation after his wife, Ella, 51, died of a stab wound in her left breast.

Zinc Boom Starting In Washington State, BC

COLVILLE, Wash. (NEA) — Zinc, the metal that figures in all our lives, may never be in short supply again, even in event of war.

Here in the northeastern part of Washington, about 80 miles north of Spokane, a little heralded zinc boom is under way. The area promises to become this continent's biggest source of zinc, says an official of the U.S. Bureau of Mines, who adds: "The more the mines are worked, the more fabulous are the discoveries."

Another official puts the potential zinc-lead ores in one 50,000-acre tract at a worth of $6.5 billion, even at today's low prices.

This all means that another future bottleneck will probably be wiped out for American industry and consumers. Washing machines, typewriters, fuel pumps and many other articles have zinc-alloyed parts. Iron and steel producers use zinc to lay a rust-proof coating on iron sheets, pipe and wire. Newspapers use zinc to engrave pictures for printing.

BIG INVESTMENT

Millions of dollars are being spent in this rugged, mountainous area on new claims, flotation mills and other equipment. The area extends right up to the Canadian border and into British Columbia.

Just about every well-established metal company, plus some newcomers, are in on the quest for zinc. About 20 miles north of here the American Smelting & Refining Co. is completing a 1,000-ton flotation mill at a cost in excess of $1 million. Last year, Anaconda Copper Mining Co. paid $2 million for the Bonanza Mine 12 miles north of here and is developing it along with other properties.

The Kennecott Copper Corp. and New Jersey Zinc Exploration Co., a wholly-owned subsidiary of the New Jersey Zinc Co., have opened exploration offices.

Awhile back, the Colville Chamber of Commerce featured mining at its annual banquet. Out of 400 who attended, 180 were outsiders, some from as far away as New York City.

The Pend Oreille (pronounced ponder-ray) Mines and Metals Co. at nearby Metaline Falls has opened its second 800-ton flotation mill, with a third under construction. Miners are in short supply, even though the company completed 50 two-bedroom houses last spring at a cost of $160,000.

PRODUCTION UP

The boom is showing results in production already. Washington mines produced 19,143 tons of zinc last year, a 29 per cent gain over 1950. This year it will be considerably more. While this booming area's production still is a good 25 per cent less than the zinc produced by the famed Tri-State area (Kansas, Missouri and Oklahoma), government mining men believe someday it will supplant Tri-State.

The zinc ore is found near the surface, allowing low-cost open-pit mining. What ore that is found below the surface is in large stopes or pockets. A stope may be 200 to 300 feet wide and as high as a three-storey building.

This means miners can work one place for days without moving, and refuse can be dumped into the cavern and left. The ore is found in rock so hard that little expensive timbering is needed.

This district isn't new. Between 1900 and 1910 attempts to produce lead failed. In 1914, government experts said it would take from 30 to 40 tons of ore to produce one ton of concentrate. It had its ups and downs during World War I.

However, metal shortages in World War II led the U.S. Bureau of Mines back to the area for new surveys. This time diamond drilling equipment was used. This unearthed the big discoveries. But it took 1,250,000 feet of drilling, from 1943 to 1945. The Korean war gave the area its big start.

Fists Save Scooter

VANCOUVER (CP) — Robert Forsythe told police he saw three men playing with his five-year-old son's scooter in front of the house Sunday night. He told them to cut it out. The trio attacked him, Forsythe said. He disposed of them one at a time. Geoffrey Scott and William Senear were taken to hospital with head injuries and face lacerations. The third man ran away. Forsythe went back into the house, carrying his son's scooter.

Throws Child In Fire

WISCONSIN RAPIDS, Wis. (AP) A 29-year-old mother threw her baby daughter into a furnace yesterday during a fit of depression, but the child was saved from the hot coals by the father who pulled her out within seconds. Dr. George Handy said the three-month-old baby suffered severe burns and is in fair condition in hospital. The names of the parents were not disclosed.

55,000 S. Koreans Added to UN Army

By WILLIAM C. BARNARD

SEOUL, Korea (AP) — Gen. [illegible] South Korean army three days ago and soon will be ready for combat.

The Eighth Army commander told a press conference that two new Republic of Korea divisions of 14,000 men each, the 12th and 15th, and six independent regiments were activated Nov. 8.

The increase, he said, should enable the South Koreans to take over more of the fighting front, though he has no particular assignment for them in mind. South Koreans now man most of the front.

NO OFFENSIVE SEEN

The 60-year-old commander said: "The enemy has the capability, as he has for some time, but I do not believe he will launch a major offensive."

Why did the Communist command launch the sharp attacks against Allied positions the last three weeks?

"I should think he has done it to continually train his own army," Van Fleet replied. "His army has been built up continually and the test of an army is to train it in battle."

The general said his Eighth Army would be "delighted and honored" to welcome President-elect Dwight Eisenhower to Korea.

[illegible] date of Eisenhower's arrival and that the route Eisenhower would take through Korea has not been decided.

Van Fleet thought the journey would be beneficial to the President-elect.

"One picture is worth a thousand words," Van Fleet said, "and one look is worth a thousand reports."

ENEMY EFFICIENCY HALVED

Van Fleet opened the conference with a 30-minute off-the-record talk, reviewing the fighting of recent weeks.

"The Eighth Army is in better shape today than it has been in a very long time and the Communist armies are in much worse condition than they have been for some time," he said.

He said the bitter October fighting for central front hills such as Sniper Ridge and Triangle cut the combat efficiency of two Chinese armies to half. The Allied battling in the Triangle-Sniper sector had "diverted Chinese plans for attacks elsewhere," he asserted.

The Eighth Army commander said "no comment" to a question whether he favored using Chinese Nationalist troops in Korea.

Civil Airlines Look South For New Routes

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP)—Canadian civil airlines, already criss-crossing Canada and flying to the United States, Europe and the Far East, now are looking to South America for new routes.

Transportt Minister Chevrier outlined plans for southern routes at the opening session of the Air Industries and Transport Association meeting here Monday.

The idea behind the new routes, besides supplying Canadians with a convenient carrier, is to provide transport for Orientals from South America to their homelands in Asia.

G. W. G. McConachie, president of A. I. T. A. and head of Canadian Pacific Airlines, which would fly the routes, said what C. P. A. wants is a once-a-week service from Vancouver to Mexico City, Lima, Peru and Rio de Janeiro.

HAS MEXICO'S BLESSING

The development has Mexico's blessing, but still requires agreement by Brazil and Peru.

"There are 300,000 Orientals in Rio de Janeiro," Mr. McConachie said. "The boat trip to or from Japan or China takes about 70 days.

"We would do it in 70 hours with only $200 difference in fare."

C. P. A. already flies from Vancouver to Hong Kong.

Difficulty for Orientals in travelling between Asia and South America on existing carriers is that there is no through route and transit visas are difficult to obtain in some countries.

In his address, Mr. Chevrier reaffirmed government policy of allowing Trans-Canada Air Lines to develop Atlantic and trans-continental air service while leaving C.P.A. the exclusive field in the Pacific area and in the South American development.

MIGHTY MELON—It wouldn't be a farm fair without the melons and the squash. Robin McDonald, 4, of Agincourt, holds this giant zucca melon, an entry in the Royal Agricultural Winter Fair, world's biggest farm fair, to be held at Toronto, November 14-22.

Co-operation Greatest Job Of UN—Martin

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Health Minister Martin said yesterday the United Nations has shown the world that nations must depend on one another and work together and that the welfare of each is the welfare of all.

This, he told a conference of the 223rd district of Rotary International, is "perhaps the greatest achievement of the U.N."

Further, he continued, the U.N. has made "an organized effort to tackle many of the fundamental economic, social and political problems that condemn peoples to privation and that . . . predispose them to seek in armed conflict results they could better achieve in co-operation."

The Parliamentary library at Ottawa was founded in 1841 on the union of Upper and Lower Canada.

Morrison Claims Tories Fail In Economic Job

LONDON (CP)—British Socialists charged yesterday that the Churchill government has failed to tackle Britain's "serious economic position" and asserted the Conservatives could not bank on American aid continuing at the same peak.

Herbert Morrison, deputy prime minister in the last Labor government, warned also, in moving in the House of Commons a motion of no confidence, that there might be "economic difficulties" in the United States and a world slump.

The house will vote on it tonight at the end of a two-day throne speech debate.

If the motion is carried, Churchill would be forced to resign. But this is not likely in view of the Conservatives' effective commons margin of 18 votes. A conservative party leader ordered a full turnout of all Conservative M.P.s for the big vote.

Morrison said the government had failed to come up with "a coherent, progressive economic policy" strong enough to withstand possible changing world conditions.

Sir Walter Monckton, minister of labor, said he did not believe that evidence produced about the drop in productivity, the difficulty of the export trade, and figures of unemployment justified the opposition's amendment.

Replying for the government, Monckton said Britain was in a "serious economic condition when we took office." He added "the negative part of our task has been done."

How much nickel is there?

"Well, son, in 1951 the Nickel Company mined over 11 million tons of ore, but they now have one more million tons of known ore than they had at the beginning of the year."

"How come, Dad?"

"Well, that's a long story. Why don't you write to the Nickel Company right now and ask them to send you 'The Romance of Nickel'? I hear that it tells you a lot about nickel and the company's new methods of mining."

"The Romance of Nickel" a 72 page book fully illustrated, will be sent free on request to anyone interested.

MR. AND MRS. NEIL DICKSON of Hamilton as pictured following their marriage Friday evening in the Burlington United Church. Mrs. Dickson is the former Miss Shirley Fisk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. V. W. Fisk of Peterborough.

Shirley Fisk Wed In Burlington To S. N. Dickson

The wedding of Shirley Elizabeth Fisk, younger daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon W. Fisk, of Peterborough, to Mr. Stewart Neil Dickson, son of Mr. and Mrs. W. S. Dickson, of Burlington, took place last Friday evening in the United Church at Burlington. The Rev. James Renn officiated.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was lovely in a ballerina gown of white French lace over taffeta. Her fingertip veil was of tulle illusion and her headdress a Mary Queen of Scots coronet. She carried a heart-shaped bouquet of blue and pink carnations.

As matron of honor for her sister, Mrs. Robert Hatton, of Peterborough, wore a gown of ice blue French lace, similar to the bride's with ice blue accessories and a hat of pale pink feathers. She carried a nosegay of pink and white carnations. The groom's attendant was his brother, Dr. Keith Dickson.

The reception was held at the home of the groom's parents. Mrs. Dickson received her guests in a gown of lavender crepe and was wearing a hat of dark blue feathers and a corsage of lavender carnations. Mrs. Fisk received in a gown of electric blue taffeta and hat of gold feathers and was wearing pale pink carnations at her shoulder.

For a wedding trip to points east, the bride chose a tailored suit of grey taffeta, accented with electric blue accessories, and she wore a light muskrat coat with corsage of carnations on the lapel.

Mr. and Mrs. Dickson will live in Hamilton.

MR. AND MRS. MURRAY PATERSON, the bride formerly Miss Joyce Hutt, were married Saturday afternoon in St. John the Baptist Anglican Church, Lakefield.—(Choate Studio Photo)

Paterson-Hutt Nuptials

The Church of St. John The Baptist (Anglican) was the setting for a lovely fall wedding on Saturday afternoon when Beverley Joyce, only daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Hutt, Lakefield, was united in a double ring ceremony to Mr. Murray Leighton Paterson, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman L. Paterson of Warsaw. The Rev. L. J. Delaney officiated.

Baskets of gold, mauve and bronze mums were at the chancel steps and white mums were used on the altar. The wedding music was played by Mrs. L. Neale and prior to the bride's entrance the choir sang "The Voice that breathed o'er Eden" and during the signing of the register, "O Perfect Love."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of pale blue lace and net over taffeta, with fitted bodice, full skirt and matching lace jacket. Her heart-shaped hat was fashioned of matching lace and net and she carried a bouquet of American Beauty roses.

She was attended by Miss Betty Birch as maid of honour and Miss Florence Orr as bridesmaid. They were frocked in similar gowns of shrimp lace and net over taffeta with fitted bodice, matching jackets and headdresses of shrimp net. They carried nosegays of yellow 'mums. Max Paterson of Warsaw was his brother's groomsman and the ushers were Douglas Thurston of Hamilton and Wilbert Webster of Peterborough, cousin of the bride.

Following the wedding a reception was held at D'Eyncourt Manor where the bride's mother received wearing a gown of midnight blue crepe and lace, grey hat and accessories and a corsage of pink carnations. She was assisted by the groom's mother who wore a gown of grey crepe, mauve hat and accessories and a corsage of mauve 'mums.

The wedding cake was cut by the bride who used a silver knife belonging to her grand-mother, Mrs. W. J. Webster, which has been used to cut more than 200 wedding cakes.

For a motor trip to Kingston and points east the bride wore a two-toned brown gabardine dress and winter white coat trimmed with brown. Her accessories were also of brown and she wore a corsage of pink carnations.

On their return they will live in Lakefield.

Archdeacon Gives Address To University Club

Ven. Archdeacon W. P. Robertson gave a scholarly and fascinating address to the University Women's Club in the Green Room of the Y.W.C.A. Monday evening, choosing as his theme "The Supernatural In Macbeth." Archdeacon Robertson developed his thesis of Macbeth as a hag-ridden, demoniacally - possessed king moved in the beginning of his tragic life by forces which chose him as their instrument and over which he had no control.

By many references to unusual source materials, from the "Demonology" of James the First to "Four Centuries of Witchcraft," by Trevor Davies, Archdeacon Robertson documented his theory and deduced the reaction of the audience for whom the play was originally written. The whole paper was enlivened by dramatic readings of the play and the writings of the great witch hunters.

Archdeacon Robertson was introduced by Miss Margaret McCulloch and thanked by Miss Marion Harvey. The meeting was arranged by Miss Ila Giles and her group.

President Miss K. Macdougall presided. Dr. Francis Stewart, chairman of the bursary committee, read letters from recipients of the club's bursary, Miss Lois Holman and Miss Frances Ryan, in which they thanked the club and commented on university life.

MR. AND MRS. JOHN J. ROSE, the bride formerly Miss June Freeman, pictured after their marriage on Saturday.—(Choate Studio Photo)

June Freeman, J. J. Rose Wed

The marriage of Miss June Elizabeth Freeman to Mr. John James Rose was solemnized Saturday morning at St. Peter's rectory by the Rev. G. J. Weis. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel Freeman of Peterborough and the groom is son of Mr. and Mrs William Rose.

The bride wone a gown of original design of white satin and metallic lace. It was fashioned on princess lines with the skirt falling in billowing folds of lace over satin at the back and caught up with satin straps and tiny pink velvet blossoms. The bodice was finished with a small mandarin collar and long tight sleeves with frills at the wrist. Her fingertip circular veil was of silk tulle, caught to a lace and satin cap with tiny blossoms. She carried a semi-cascade bouquet of stephanotis and sweetheart roses.

Bridal attendant was the groom's sister, Mrs. Dorothy Hale, wearing a heavenly blue gown fashioned with a tight fitting bodice of Chantilly lace featuring a scooped neckline and tiny cap sleeves, and the very full skirt of nylon over taffeta. Her hale headdress was of net and blue velvet blossoms and she carried a semi-cascade of white mums and Sweetheart roses. The groomsman was Mr. Danny Hale.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, 607 Stewart St. About 100 guests were receieved by Mrs. Freeman who wore a gown of black tissue faille with burgundy accessories and a corsage of pink roses. The groom's mother also received, wearing a dress of black and white coin dot taffeta with winter white accessories and corsage of pink carnations.

Mr. and Mrs. Rose will live at 202 Dalhousie Street.

Junior Red Cross Sets New High

TORONTO (CP)—The Canadian Junior Red Cross now has reached a peak membership of more than 1,000,000 school children.

"In these troubled times," says Dr. Muriel Uprichard, national director of the society, "it is inspiring to know that so many Canadian school children have so thoughtfully pledged themselves to helping others."

Since its founding by 15 pupils in a rural school at Northgate, Sask., in 1917, the organization has contributed almost $3,000,000 through its national and international activities.

Some 41,000 Canadian children have been aided through the service for crippled and handicapped children, while shipments valued at $1,284,000 have been sent to children abroad through the Overseas Service.

Typical of the Junior Red Cross projects was last July when Canadian school children sent $20,000 worth of milk and vitamins to famine victims in the Bengal and Madras provinces of India.

McKeown-Hoey

A recent marriage at St. Mary's Church, Campbellford, was the double ring ceremony of Audrey Theresa, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Hoey, to Gervaise Anthony McKeown son of Anthony McKeown and the late Mrs. McKeown of Moscow.

The Rev. J. C. Moloney officiated and Rev. Father Healy of Centreville was in th sanctuary. Miss Marie Crossan was organist and Mr. Jack Anderson sang. Miss Crosson sang Schubert's "Ave Maria" during the signing of the register.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride was gowned in white nylon net over satin, with sequin trimmed collar of Chantilly lace. A scallopped bertha of lace reached her waist at the back. She wore chantilly lace mittens nd veil of embroidered net studded with hearts made of seed pearl, which fell from a pearl coronet to her finger tips. She corsage of gardenias and scattered carried a white prayer book and 'mums.

Bridal attendant for her sister was Miss Ann Hoey, gowned in nile green net over taffeta with matching headdress. She carried a colonial bouquet of bronze and yellow 'mums. The groom was attended by his youngest brother Paul McKeown. Ushers were Bernard Hoey, brother of the bride, and Gerald McKeown twin brother of the groom.

The wedding breakfast was served at Kay's dining room. Guests were present from Detroit, Toronto, Peterborough, Hastings, Grafton, Napanee, Newburgh and Britt. The reception was in the afternoon.

The bride's mother was attired in smoke-grey crepe and lace. Her accessories were of black velvet and corsage of American Beauty Roses. Miss Margaret McKeown received for her brother, gowned in navy crepe with black accessories and corsage of Johanna Hill roses.

For her honeymoon, the bride donned a cinnamon galardine suit with black velvet accessories and corsage of gardenias. Her shortie coat was bright Paddy green.

They motored to Montreal, through the northern states Niagara Falls and back to Newburgh where they will make their home.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Sandwiches For Lunch Pail On Production-Line Style

Later in the week you will read the letter from Mrs. Roy T. asking for help.

She has to make 12 slices of bread into sandwiches for her husband's carried lunch six days per week. All of this time I have been thinking that Pete was Canadian Champion Stower-away-of-Food. Pete's a piker compared to this giant.

Mrs. Roy T. I'd want help too if I had that daily labor of love to perform and I'm your trouble-shooter.

I am assuming that it will not be too much trouble to make a week's supply of sandwich fillings up on Mondays, and store them in the coldest part of the refrigerator in covered jars (something like squat peanut butter jars).

On Mondays you will usually have sliced cold roast meat, so need not do this weekly preparation of fillings until your mid-morning working hours, or after the washing is started.

The following six fillings are enough to fill 5 sandwiches generously, and obviously will do for the 6 double sandwiches for 5 days, since Monday may look after itself with what is left from your big Sunday dinner.

SANDWICH FILLINGS

(for 5 sandwiches)

(1) Four large hard-cooked eggs, ½ cup finely chopped celery, 1 teaspoon grated onion, 3 tablespoons butter, ¼ to 1-3 cup mayonnaise, salt.

(2) Six ounces nippy cream cheese, ¼ to ½ cup chopped broken salad olives, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons mayonnaise.

(3) Three each chopped cooked chicken liver, giblet and heart, 1 hard-cooked egg (all of these could be put through grinder together), ½ teaspoon celery salt, ½ teaspoon onion salt or grated onion or chopped chives, 3 tablespoons salt, 3 tablespoons mayonnaise.

(4) One and one-half cups well-packed ground leftover roast or boiled shin beef, ½ cup thick chili sauce, ½ to ¾ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons butter, ⅛ teaspoon pepper.

(5) One and one-half cups ground smoked picnic shoulder, ¼ cup finely chopped mustard pickle, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons butter, 1 or 2 tablespoons mayonnaise.

(6) Crisp fried side bacon or sliced smoked jowl—10 slices—drained and dried and broken up, 5 oz. peanut crush or peanut butter, ¼ cup finely chopped salted peanuts, 3 tablespoons butter.

I could go on for some time—for I would like to suggest liverwurst and dill pickle combined, ground boiled veal or fresh pork with green relish, chopped bacon and eggs with drained tomato or a little catsup; crab meat or lobster or sardine with a little lemon and celery, salmon or tuna with chopped sweet pickle, white cream cheese with walnuts, but maybe Mrs. Roy T. can go on with these later suggestions another week.

The choice of breads is very important. Naturally you know what's coming before I write it: Use whole wheat most of the time. Ease off a little by using cracked wheat occasionally, and white bread rarely—for these lunch carriers need all of the nutrition you can pack into this difficult and monotonous meal. Don't forget that thinly sliced rye bread is a natural with salami and liverwurst and dill fillings and with Swiss cheese too. Lettuce will not stay crisp in sandwiches—so wrap two or three choice, well-dried leaves in a little wax paper parcel. They can then be fitted into the sandwiches or eaten with the fingers. Don't salt lettuce or celery in wax paper wrappers in a lunch for it makes them wilt.

They ought to keep your darlings munching and happy and in love with you for a while longer.

DOROTHY DIX

Why Does Suitor Dwell on Shortcomings?

DEAR DOROTHY DIX: I am only 17 years old, and after many infatuations have really fallen in love with George, who will be 23 soon. I have only known him since June, but feel as if I've known him several years.

A few days ago he proposed to me, and said: "I need a good girl like you to set me straight. I could be something with your help!" Now, I wonder do all men have the same line, and say they're "no good" and "need help" to impress a girl, or are they really serious?

MAGGIE M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: There are two usual reasons why a lad will protest vehemently that he is not good enough for his lady. Sometimes his abasement serves as a warning that he is actually becoming tired of the girl and feels that an insistence on his unworthiness will effectively free him from any ties he has unwittingly bound. Thus, he can sever a romantic connection that has become boring, and retire in the guise of a martyr to leave the girl—heartbroken, it's true, but at least with her pride undimmed.

FEELS NOT GOOD ENOUGH

Then there is the boy who is so carried away on the wings of love that he is abjectly convinced he is not good enough for his sweetheart. Even this is a somewhat spurious attitude since most males are inherently sure of being at least on a basis of equality with their chosen mates. Which is as it should be. No woman could look up to a man who eternally vowed his inferiority and no woman can be truly happy with a man she can't respect.

In your case, Maggie, I think you are reading somewhat more into George's words than is actually intended. You seem to be seeking some dark past which he is covering up with his protestations, while he is merely following the pattern of most young men in love by putitng his sweetheart on a pedestal and endowing her with perfections she doesn't possess. It would be as difficult for a girl to live up to such high expectations as it would be for the boy to sink to the emotional depths he describes.

George seems like a fine young man and, though you are a bit young and your acquaintance is of too short a duration to be welded into permanency as yet, I doubt if your trust in him would be misplaced. If you feel he is holding anything back from you, a little tact will bring the matter to light. In the meantime don't at your tender age, begin to cultivate the nasty habit of being unduly suspicious.

DEAR MISS DIX: I am a widower of 60, living with one of my five children. My daughter treats me very well and does everything she can to give me a happy home. Still, I am very lonely. While my wife was alive, we were great friends with a couple of our own age. Since my wife passed away, I have continued the friendship, and now the woman and I have fallen very much in love. Her husband doesn't suspect anything, and, though I realize it isn't right to act this way, I can't help it. We are both old enough to be sure it's real love. I know you don't believe in breaking homes, and I don't either as I am a religious man, but in this case I'm sure your honest answer would be that we are justified in spending the rest of our lives together.

L. M.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your confidence in me, I'm sorry to say, is misplaced. I cannot honestly tell you that you are right in coming between another man and his wife. I must also destroy another of your illusions: at 16 or 60 love is equally difficult to separate from other emotions. You have let loneliness masquerade as love in your case. It is very unlikely that you would find lasting happiness by leaving your daughter's comfortable home and establishing yourself with another man's wife. Your new home would be haunted by the ghosts of conscience for both of you. Furthermore, no matter how well you think you know this lady, living together as man and wife would be an eye-opening experience and one which I am sure you would not find happy for long. Think well, and discuss thoroughly, before you take this step.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I am 14 years old and the eldest of three children, deserted by our mother when my sister was only three months old. My father is married again to a very nice lady. We respect her as our own mother. She cooks very nice meals for us, keeps us clean and buys us nice clothes. Is it right for us to call her "mama" while our own mother is still alive, even though we never see her? Now we call our stepmother by her given name.

C. C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: Your stepmother has most certainly earned the title of "mother" or "mama" from the little family she has cared for so well. Do your best to repay her with the love and consideration she deserves. It's heartwarming to know that your family is happy now after all the trouble of your early years.

What's Right?

Your wife works in an office and you pick her up after work each evening so that the two of you can drive home together.

WRONG: When you happen to stop by early go into the office and wait for her to finish her work.

RIGHT: Realize that her employer may not like having you waiting around while she finishes her work. So, instead, wait for her outside her office.

6—In Memoriam

LASHBROOK—In loving memory of a dear husband and dad, Albert Lashbrook, who passed away Nov. 11, 1948.
We cannot buy the old days back,
Your hand we cannot touch,
But God has given wonderful memories
Of one we loved so much.
—Lovingly remembered and sadly missed by Jean Esther and Vic.

SANDERSON—In loving memory of Ellen Sanderson, who passed away Nov. 11, 1947.
"Thy will be done" seems hard to say,
When one we loved has passed away,
Some day perhaps we'll understand,
When we meet again in that better land.
—Sadly missed by son Arnold, Margaret and Arline.

SANDERSON—In loving memory, Mrs. Wellie Sanderson, who passed away five years ago today.
May the wind of heaven blow gently
On that quiet and hallowed spot,
Where the one we loved is sleeping,
And will never be forgot.
—Ever remembered by daughter Florence and family.

SWAN—In loving memory of Mrs. N. J. Swan, who passed away Nov. 11, 1930.
A wonderful mother, woman and aid,
One who was better God never made,
A wonderful worker, loyal and true,
One in a million that mother was you.
Just in your judgment, always right
Honest and liberal, ever upright,
Loved by your friends and all you knew,
A wonderful mother, that mother was you.
—Ever remembered by daughters Rose and Pearl.

War Memorial Blaze Of Color In Ottawa Rites

OTTAWA (CP) — The sorrowing memories of millions of Canadians crystallized today in traditional Remembrance Day Ceremonies around the National War Memorial.

Thousands of the great and little people of the capital massed in a vast circle around the massive monument to watch Rt. Hon. Vincent Massey place the wreath for the first time as Governor-General and to join in the emotional experience of a united tribute.

When it was all over — the two minutes' silence, the hymns, the Last Post — hundreds of wreaths joined that of Mr. Massey at the base of the memorial until it was ablaze with color.

Among them were the floral tributes of many countries including Japan and Germany. But Russia was not among them. She has not placed a wreath at the memorial for the last two years.

This was the ceremony tradition has mothered and made familiar, the mother of all the ceremonies held at 11 o'clock in the villages, towns and cities all across the land.

It is doubtful if it has ever been larger or more moving. The people were there in thousands—in the streets, looking out of buildings, clustering on the sloping lawns of Parliament Hill, some of them around the base of Laurier's monument so it looked, from a distance, as though he were one among them, looking over at the Memorial and the solemnity around it.

MANY UNITS ATTEND

The men in uniform have probably not been more numerous since the war years—18 army units as well as contingents from the air force, the navy, the women's services, cadets, Mounties. There were a dozen bands.

And the veterans, with their ribbons up, wearing civilian clothes, bearing the flags of their legion branches. Gen. H. D. G. Crerar, former First Army commander, came in his uniform and stood among the chiefs of staff who snapped to attention and saluted when the old warrior came to join them.

For all the bereaved mothers of Canada, Mrs. Dan McCann of Ottawa placed one of the many wreaths and stood among the great to do it, next to Mr. Massey and Prime Minister St. Laurent. War took two sons from her.

Save Six Lives As Power Off

OSHAWA (CP) — Electric power went off at the Oshawa general hospital today while three persons were in oxygen tents and three babies in incubators.

An emergency operation had just been completed when the power failed. Batteries were used to light the operating room while the patient was wheeled away.

Police said an automobile driven by a 14-year-old boy knocked down a hydro pole carrying a transformer. That caused the temporary blackout.

Nurses used oxygen masks to save the lives of the persons in the oxygen tents.

Hot water bottles kept three infants in incubators warm.

Phones To Cost More In Kitchener District

KITCHENER (CP) — Subscribers in the Kitchener - Waterloo area probably will pay more for their telephone service starting Jan. 1.

The increased number of phones in the Kitchener - Waterloo zone is given as the reason for the expected boost.

The increase on an individual residential line will be 25 cents a month; two-party residential line 20 cents and rural line 10 cents.

In the business field, an individual line will cost $1.30 a month more and rural business lines an additional 25 cents a month. About 22,000 phones will be affected.

The increase will come with placing of the twin city area in a higher rate group by the Board of Transport Commissioners.

Young Bricklayers Start Building School

TORONTO (CP) — Two hundred and seventy-five young bricklayers began construction of a six-room addition to Riverside public school in suburban Port Credit yesterday. [illegible] school, began slapping on the bricks as soon as Agriculture Minister Kennedy completed laying the cornerstone for the $194,000 addition.

Each student laid one brick under the guidance of professionals who continued from there.

Principal A. E. Gerhart conceived the idea of letting the students take a hand. As a pupil at Bracebridge high school in 1926 he said that he participated in a similar project.

"We all felt we had really contributed something to that school," he said. "So I thought these kids would like to do the same thing."

Scot Tells Of Playing Dead In Korea Line

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA (Reuters)—A Scottish trooper with the Black Watch told today how he played dead as Chinese soldiers stripped him of his armored vest and weapons after being wounded in a front-line engagement.

Pte. Jack McKinley of Glasgow, recovering from wounds in hospital said the Communists put a live grenade under him but he was able to grab it and throw it at them as they ran.

Free Legal Aid Given 2,239 In York County

TORONTO (CP) — A total of 2,239 persons have applied for free legal aid in York county since the Ontario legal aid plan went into effect a year ago, Sheriff J. D. Conover said today.

The plan was established by the Law Society of Upper Canada to help persons unable to pay for a lawyer's services. Free advice or assistance is given to those with an annual income not exceeding $900 plus $200 for each dependent.

Dies of Injuries

TORONTO (CP) — Unconscious for 43 days after an accident on the Queen Elizabeth Way, Kenneth Bretby Mitchell, 19, of nearby Cooksville, died in hospital yesterday. The youth suffered a fractured skull when he was hurled through the windshield of an automobile.

Woman Found Dead In Tillsonburg Flat

TILLSONBURG (CP) — Mrs. Vivian Crowell, about 26, of Digby, N.S., was found dead in her apartment here last night by friends.

Police said there were no marks on the body to indicate foul play, nor was the room disturbed.

An autopsy will be made.

Pageantry Marks 70th Birthday King Gustav

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Sweden's King Gustav Adolf VI celebrated his 70th birthday today with royal splendor and festivities not seen in this capital for many years.

Heading the list of crowned heads and officials on hand to honor Sweden's popular ruler was Norway's King Haakon, whose 80 years make him Gustav Adolf's only senior among Europe's eight reigning monarchs.

Also on hand were his son-in-law King Frederik IX of Denmark and his Queen Ingrid, Norwegian Crown Prince Olav and Finland's President J. K. Passikivi.

Two Arrested After Clash At Textile Firm

HAMILTON (CP) — Two men were arrested today following a brief clash between rival unions in front of the strike-bound Hamilton Cottons mill. Several persons were reported to have suffered minor injuries.

The skirmish occurred when a picket-line of 300 members of the United Textile Workers of America (A.F.L.) was broken by 250 members of the Textile Workers Union of America (C.I.O.)

Bert Porkolab, 42, of Stoney Creek, and Ronald Frith, 21, of Hamilton, both A.F.L. pickets, were charged with obstructing police.

Members of the two factions began gathering in the pre-dawn darkness following word that company employees would resume work today to end a six-week strike.

Yesterday company officials appealed to the 500 workers to resume work. In a vote last week close to 50 per cent of the employees approved a new contract with the T.W.U.A.

The strike developed from a secessionist movement headed by Jack Robinson, former T.W.U.A. employee, who broke away from the C.I.O. in the hope of leading all textile workers in the Hamilton area into the A.F.L. camp.

Mr. Robinson now is Ontario director of the United Textile Workers of America.

ROBINSON CALLED STRIKE

T.W.U.A. (C.I.O.) is legally certified bargaining agent at Hamilton Cottons, but Mr. Robinson called the strike. Today's move to go back to work was a C.I.O. effort. It was backed by the fact that as bargaining agents the T.W.U.A. took a referendum of workers in which 217 voted to accept a company offer of a wage boost of seven cents.

Today's skirmish occurred when the A.F.L. pickets tried to keep out the C.I.O.'s back-to-work gang.

Works Manager W. H. Young said 220 workers had returned to the plant and that all the machinery in the mill is operating.

He said pickets on the plant gate today included some workers from other plants, including Cosmos Imperial.

STREETS BLOCKED OFF

Streets were blocked off near the plant early today. Wooden barricades and lanterns were set up. Forty uniformed policemen were stationed in the area. Members of the plainclothes, detective and morality squads also were on duty.

Pickets spent the final minutes singing and shouting. Then a great roar went up as C. I. O. members arrived and broke through the picket line. The violence lasted barely five minutes. No clubs or weapons were used but several stones were thrown.

Farmer Rescues Man Trapped In Truck Cab

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A transport driver, trapped 30 minutes in the cab of his overturned vehicle near Watford today, was rescued by a farmer.

The farmer, A. J. Williams, forced the cab door to release Nick Durbano, 24, of Lakeview, near Toronto. The doors of the cab had been sealed by the sides of a deep ditch at the edge of the highway.

Durbano was treated for head gashes.

Durbano, on his way from the Imperial Oil Company Ltd., Sarnia, with parafin for Toronto, reached a point on highway No. 7 three miles east of Watford when his truck swerved toward the edge of the highway, clipped off 12 guard posts and overturned.

Eisenhower Won Race On Negative Issues believes President-elect Eisenhower won the election last Tuesday on "negative issues."

Taft, who stumped the country on behalf of Eisenhowee after losing the Republican nomination for president, made the statement in a copyrighted analysis of the election written for the Cincinnati Times-Star magazine section.

He said he believes the tremendous vote in the election was "a negative enthusiasm against what had been going on in Washington in the executive administration."

Fire Guts Plant

KIRKLAND LAKE (CP) — A briquette manufacturing plant was gutted by fire early today with loss of $45,000. The fire apparently was caused by faulty electrical connections.

13,000 Volts Kill

HAMILTON (CP) — Reginald Scott, 25, was electrocuted when a boring machine touched a 13,000 volt cable on Burlington street this morning.

BIRTHDAY SUITS—Oldest and newest dress uniforms of the United States Marine Corps are modelled by two Marines at the Capitol, in Washington, as part of the Corps' celebration of its founding 177 years ago on November 10. One vestige of the old uniform remains in token form in the tight collar of the blouse. It was originally a leather neckstock, which protected the wearer from sword cuts, and gave to the Corps their nickname of "Leathernecks."

Thousands Gather

panioning with us on active service these our comrades bore witness to man's capacity to rise above the common level of life to lofty heights of courage, patient fortitude and brave endurance in the face of cold and hunger, wind and rain, mud and filth, peril and wounds.

UNBROKEN GLORY

"They went forth to their death in no coward, craven spirit; and going 'they leave a white unbroken glory, a gathered radiance. These have built a house that is not for Time's throwing.'

"In the solemn interval during which the world is hushed and we bow in silence; and while the 'Last Post' and the 'Reveille' are being sounded, shall we not consecrate afresh to God and to the service of man our own capacity for true greatness; a greatness which can only spring from loyalty to a High Cause which, lifting us out of self enables us to live nobly, fight manfully and, if need arise, die bravely.

"This resolve and this dedication will give meaning and significance to our Act of Remembrance this day."

Lou Durkin, president of Branch 52 of the Canadian Legion, thanked the veterans for turning out in such numbers for the parade, and thanked everyone who helped put the Poppy Day drive "over the top" on Saturday.

District Deputy Zone Commander of the Legion P. J. Burke then commented briefly on the success of the service due to the large turnout and thanked industry for giving veterans time off with pay to take part in the parade and service.

The Salvation Army Band then played "Abide With Me" and a bugler played the Last Post, which was followed by Reveille after two minutes of silence.

The laying of wreaths at the base of the War Memorial then followed, with Mrs. B. W. Harvey of the Silver Cross Mothers laying the first wreath. A few minutes later, there was a solid bank of more than a hundred floral wreaths on the rack and at the base of the memorial.

INDUSTRIES REPRESENTED

All industries in the city were represented in the parade. There were 1,000 from the C.G.E. along with hundreds of others from other industries which gave their men time off to take part.

Harry Gabbutt was marshal of the parade which began forming at 9:30 a.m. At 10:15, the parade moved off from the Armouries. It was divided into four columns.

The 50th A.A. Band, one of the six bands in the parade headed the first column, with the 50th A.A. Regt., directly behind. The R.C.E.M.E., Legion executive, branch 452 (women's branch) branch 52, the color party and wreath bearers followed.

The fire department, city police, provincial police, R.C.A.F. Association, S. D. and G. Association, Navy Association and the Citizen's Band marched in the second section.

Next came the C.G.E. Co., 2nd Section, the C.G.E. Band, C.G.E. Army Band.

In the fourth section were platoons of Boy Scouts, R.C.A.F. cadets, the Grove School Band and cadets, the Sea Cadets and the Sea Cadet Band.

The parade marched west on McDonnel to Aylmer, then south on Aylmer to Charlotte St. From there, it continued east to George St., and north on George to the War Memorial.

After the service, the parade moved off north on George to McDonnel, then east on McDonnel to Water, south on Water to Muhray St., and west on Murray to the parade grounds at the Armouries where it dismissed.

Don Kingdon, chairman of the Legion Parade Activities Committee was chairman during the memorial service.

Ancient Prayer Used At Funeral Of Weizmann

REHOVOT, Israel (AP) — An ancient Hebrew prayer, today committed to eternal life the soul of Dr. Chaim Weizmann, Israel's first president.

Chief Rabbi Yitzhak Halevi Herzog presided at funeral services for Weizmann, 77, father of the Israel republic, who died at his home here Sunday.

Sirens throughout the land sounded a minute-long blast at the hour of the funeral—2:30 p.m.—stilling all traffic and work in Israel.

Rabbi Herzog recited 10 verses from the Book of Psalms, chosen so that the Hebrew initials of each verse spelled out "Chaim Ben Ozer," which stands for Chaim Weismann, son of Ozer Weismann.

The coffin was covered with the blue and white flag of Israel. It was accompanied by eight generals and borne by eight colonels of the Israeli army, navy, air force and police on the last short journey from the catafalque, where it had lain in state since Sunday, to the grave a few hundred yards away in the garden of the president's estate.

An estimated 250,000 persons from all walks of life had filed by the black-draped catafalque prior to the funeral service. The burial place is an olive grove on the side of a hill sloping eastward toward the Judean hills and Jerusalem. Settlers of Nahalal, a village in northern Israel, planted the trees on the president's 70th birthday.

Station Broadcasts Music Despite Ban

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—In defiance of a ban by the American Federation of Musicians (A.F.L.), radio station CHVC today broadcast all of the Remembrance Day service here.

The union told the station yesterday not to broadcast the part of the program during which union members in the citizens' kiltie band played.

Louis Scott, secretary of the union local, said the station is on the international union's "unfair list."

Housekeeping Harder Now Says 102-Yr.-Old

TORONTO (CP) — Housekeeping in the old days was much simpler than today, in spite of modern labor-saving devices, Mrs. Alice Minette said here yesterday as she celebrated her 102nd birthday.

She told a group of friends that horse-drawn trams on city streets at the turn of the century sometimes got so bogged down with snow the men "had to get out and help the horse."

Reds Stop Dance Music Over Loudspeakers

SOMEWHERE IN KOREA (Reuters) — Dance music from Communist loudspeakers no longer sounds across the Korean sector patrolled by members of the Scottish Black Watch regiment

The Communists thought it would be a good idea to make the men homesick by playing the Scottish reel "De'il Among the Tailors."

Cried the proud Scot who commanded an artillery company:

"Och, the saucy devils! I'll give them a devil of a different sort."

With a brisk barrage of 25-pound shells, he halted the serenade. It hasn't been heard since.

Students Honor War Dead At PCVS Service

A wreath was placed before the collegiate's war memorial plaque Monday by the P.C.V.S. students during a Remembrance Day service, honoring students who gave their lives during the First World War and the Second World War.

A school holiday today, the students held the service, conducted by the P.C.V.S. Cadet Corps, No. 13, at the school's senior assembly. Honorary Chaplain, Canon Walter Gilling, conducted the service.

Guest speaker, the Rev. Henry Cotton, St. Andrew's United Church, told the students "that we should resolve to become better because of the great sacrifice made for us."

VOWS MADE

Recalling a similar vow he made, the veteran of both wars told of a visit to an army cemetery in England where he was sent to seek a grave of a former P.C.V.S. graduate. Walking and searching for three hours in the cemetery which was nearly as large as Peterborough, he found the soldier's grave.

Standing before that boy's grave, Mr. Cotton said that he resolved to become a better man because "they gave their all—their lives."

Mr. Cotton emphasized that youth in the armed forces, pointing out that during the First World War the soldiers were around 18 and 19 years old; in the Second World War it was the same.

"They were nearly all young men ready to give their lives for you and me. Our freedoms cost something and it has been paid for dearly," he said.

During the service the wreath was placed on behalf of the students at the war memorial by Student Council president, Lorraine Derry.

152 NAMES

Principal C. S. Browne read the names of the former students who died in both wars, 58 in 1914-18 and 94 in 1939-45; he also included Flight Cadet Garth Jopling who was killed 10 days ago while training with the R.C.A.F. After the reading of the names, two minutes silence was held.

Others taking part in the service were: Cadet Major Trevor Hawkins who read the scripture lesson; Cadet Major Douglas Jennings, who read a portion of Pericles' Oration praising the Athenians who died in the first year of the Peloponnesian War; Cadet Major William Burgomaster who introduced Mr. Cotton.

The P.C.V.S. concert band under Albert Croasdale supplied the accompaniment for the hymns.

Police Identify Man Killed In Truck Crash

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Police today identified as John Koivisto, 51, of Dryden, a man killed Saturday night when a truck shot off a bridge on a side road between Perrault and Cedar Lake and landed upside down in two feet of water. Koivisto, a woodworker with no known relatives in the area, died almost instantly.

Jalmar Ketonen, 51, a woods contractor and driver of the truck, got out of the wreckage and walked, although injured, nearly three miles to summon aid.

Visitors Puzzled About City Hall

"It was surprising the number of visitors, especially during the tourist months, who enquired about the identity of the building," Miss Jean Rylott, of the telephone and information bureau at the City Hall, remarked Monday.

"Some of them asked: "Is this the post office?" Others just said: "What building is this?"

Miss Rylott was merely commenting generally and briefly on some of her experiences with visitors. She is not volunteering a suggestion to the city council.

However, it may be recalled that nearly a year ago Fred Tuggey said to the Examiner that the City Hall "lacks only one thing." "It should be identified in becoming letters, sothat visitors will know that it is Peterborough's City Hall."

Mr. Tuggey said that words "city hall" might be effectively placed in brass letters somewhere below the roof line facing on George St. and towards the Murray St. corner. He said some people might prefer a brass tablet. "It would be better than nothing, if it could be plainly read from

Says Acute Shortage Of Engineers Exists

TORONTO (CP)—O.D. Johnston, president of the Association of Professional Engineers of Ontario, said today that an acute shortage of professional engineers still exists in the province.

Mr. Johnston, in a report to the quarterly meeting of the 20-man executive council, said the total membership now is 10,684, the largest in the association's history. About 300 applications for membership are pending.

Found Responsible

BERTHIERVILLE, Que. (CP) — Mrs. Jean Charles Provost, 23, of nearby St. Zenon, last night was found criminally responsible by a coroner's jury for the death five years ago of her two-year-old son Joseph Desroche. Mrs. Provost was detained by provincial police last week following reports the boy had died of poison.

C.I.O. Faces Crisis In Choosing Leader

By NORMAN WALKER

WASHINGTON (AP)—The C.I.O. faces a major crisis in trying to settle on a successor to Philip Murray as its head man.

Murray's death Sunday touched off latent rivalries among a number of the C. I. O.'s top men. It remains to be seen whether they can select a new leader without splitting ranks and breaking up the giant labor federation.

Murray had been a steadying influence on a score of ambitious leaders trying to forge ahead in the C. I. O.'s 40 or so unions. He pacified many potential breaks within C. I. O. ranks before they could splash into public attention.

The labor organization's effectiveness in the coming years depends a good deal on whom C.I.O. leaders choose among themselves as their next president. The decision may be made at meetings this week in Pittsburgh following Murray's funeral, or at the C. I. O. convention scheduled to begin Monday in Los Angeles.

The C. I. O. always has trailed in membership the older American Federation of Labor. But its influence has been probably equal or even greater in government, with Murray at the helm and close to the Democratic administrations.

COOL TO MERGER

A published suggestion that the time was ripe for the C. I. O. to merge with the A. F. L. was received with little enthusiasm in both A. F. L. and C. I. O. quarters. The idea advanced was that since the two big labor organizations had backed the losing candidate in last week's presidential election, they might be disposed now to join forces to become a more potent political factor.

John L. Lewis, head of the independent United Mine Workers union, may spur renewal of the merger idea now that C. I. O. leadership is up for decision and A. F. L. President William Green is expected to step down before long.

But every sign points to continued competition between the A.F.L. and C.I.O., with the 72-year-old Lewis standing by on the sidelines egging the two federations toward a unity in which he probably hopes to play a major part.

SARNIA KNOCKED OUT

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Windsor Patterson Collegiate Panthers advanced into the Western Ontario Secondary Schools Association Senior A football final yesterday by edging Sarnia Collegiate Blue Bombers 13-12 in a sudden-death semi-final game.

Panthers, undefeated since 1950, will clash with London, Ont., Central Golden Ghosts at the Purple Bowl in London Saturday in a sudden-death championship contest to decide the W.O.S.S.A. title won last year by Patterson.

Touchdowns by Zeno Karcz and Bob Fletcher, the former score converted by Karca, shot Patterson into an early 11-0 lead. Gene Fleet ran five yards for a major score and Ian McClung converted to slice the Panthers' half-time advantage to five points.

A single by Karcz in the third quarter and a single by Fletcher in the fourth upped Patterson's lead to 13-6. The scrappy Sarnia squad bounced back in the final minutes to score its second major when Ross Dowswell passed to Jack Lea in the Patterson end zone and McClung again converted.

Korean War Reporting Said Murky

NEW YORK (CP)—Newspaper reporting about the Korean War is described as a "lengthy and murky record of undistinguished press activity" in Melvin B. Voorhees' book, "Korean Tales," published today by Simon and Schuster.

Voorhees, a Lieutenant-colonel in the United States army who was at one time chief censor in Korea, criticizes war correspondents for apparent lack of social consciousness and of moral willingness to confess error.

The colonel, before the Second World War a reporter on the Vancouver Sun and newspapers in U.S. West Coast cities, was called on the mat by the army last month because he did not clear his book with superior officers.

"SORRY PICTURE"

The book cites pessimism, indifferent cynicism, morbid hatred of Gen. Douglas MacArthur, honest but erroneous estimates of the military situation and violations of military security as presenting "a sorry picture."

But, writes Voorhees, there was some reporting and a lesser amount of acceptable interpreting.

Among war correspondents he describes as "good people" is William Boss, Canadian Press correspondent in Korea who is mentiond as having done "the most intimate job of troop activities coverage."

Boss, Ronald Batchelor of Reuters, and such Associated Press men as William Barnard, Stan Carter and Leif Erickson are listed among 40 correspondents who were "worthy workers in the Korean vineyard."

MAIN CRITICISM

Voorhees chiefly finds fault with war correspondents for being indifferent to the consequences of their dispatches. "To sow doubt and fear among Americans as to the skill and honesty of army leaders, as to the effectiveness of the army itself, and as to the courage of its soldiers, was a commonplace, callous, and repetitious occupation of some correspondents," he writes.

Although Voorhees comes down hard on the press for its shortcomings, he admits in a foreword that he has "been no more able than any other man ever has been on any subject of importance to tell the whole truth, voice the most rounded possible opinion, or say that last conclusive word."

Millbrook Legion Holds Church Parade

MILLBROOK (ENS). — The church parade of the Canadian Legion Branch 402 was held on Sunday evening to St. Thomas' Anglican Church. The address was given by the Rev. A. A. Chote, Legion padre, a former squadron leader in the R.C.A.F. Mr. Chote said that whereas it had taken $50,000 to kill each Japanese killed in the last war, it took only $600 to convert one. "In the past we had been trying to secure peace by preparing for war. Now it was necessary to try God's way rather than our own. The only permanent solution lay in Christ," he said.

The color party with J. H. Raper in charge, and consisted of H. Scott and E. V. Scott. Scripture lessons were read by Ronald Palmer and Gordon Trick. Hugh Abbott, Russell Smith, Fred Lowery and Lyle Nattress received the offering.

The Last Post and Reveille were sounded by Donald Kent.

All those taking part in the service were members of the Legion with the exception of Donald Kent of the high school band.

Mrs. G. A. Spicer took the solo part in the anthem, Kipling's "Recessional," and J. O. Medd was at the organ.

James Godfrey, Legion president, was in charge of the parade. The ladies of the Auxiliary were also in attendance.

Mrs. M. W. Lyle

The funeral for Mrs. Morley Wilfred Lyle, the former Elizabeth Ann Dunk, 317 Park St., N., who died Saturday, was held Monday from the Comstock funeral home.

The Rev. H. G. Douglas of Knox United Church conducted the service.

Pallbearers were Gerald Wood, Alex Weddell, Ernest Howson, James Juby, Frank Jobbitt, Jack Richardson. Burial was in Little Lake cemetery.

Europe Spending More On Defence Than U.S.

By WADE JONES,

PARIS —(NEA)—An American who is in a position to know a lot about Europe's problems would like to clear up what he believes is a major misconception back home.

He's a tall, tanned man of 58, with dark blue eyes, black hair and eyebrows, and an unsually deep yet soft voice. His name is William H. Draper, Jr.

Since last Jan. 14 he has been President Truman's special representative in Europe, holding the rank of ambassador and charged with the impossible-sounding task of coordinating virtually all affairs here in which the U.S. has an interest—military, political and economic.

Boiled down, his main job is hammering through Western Europe's military build-up and at the same time trying to prevent any resultant economic collapse.

On a typically rainy afternoon in Paris, Draper sat in his great gold-leafed and mirrored office in historic Talleyrand Palace, overlooking the Place de la Concorde, and talked for an hour about his job.

One thing he feels strongly about is "the general attitude in the United States toward NATO (North Atlantic Treaty Organization) and the European build-up.

"I believe," he says, "there is a general feeling at home that the U.S. is spending everything for the build-up and that Europe itself is doing little.

TRIPLED DEFENCE

"But consider the fact that Europe has tripled its defense production in the last three years and doubled its defense budgets.

"Also, comparing Europe's contribution with its economic status, Europe's contribution is as great as that of the United States.

"For instance, taxes collected in Britain, Germany and France represent a larger percentage of the gross national production of those countries than the tax burden in the United States represents of our total production."

Draper recognizes the criticism that the French have a habit of dodging payment of their income taxes. "But," he says, "it must be remembered that about two-thirds of their tax burden is in hidden taxes on consumer goods, which cannot be ducked.

"In the United States, it's just the reverse. About two-third of our taxes are directly levied income and corporation taxes and the remainder are so-called hidden levies.

"I'm not saying that some European countries cannot do more than they are now doing, but then so can we."

Draper says he doesn't think European countries "look upon the threat of war with Russia with as much concern as the United States does."

One reason for this, he says, is that "for the first time the U.S. is the most heavily involved country in what could be a world war and we know if it spreads we will be in it all the way from the start. That plus the fact the Soviet has picked the United States as its principal target."

The most important European is ratifications of the agreements for establishing a European army, the two most important contributors to which would be West Germany and France.

SPREADING GULF

"Ratification will mean dividing more definitely East and West Germany, and it will mean no more French army as such, but only a French army as part of the European army."

Despite the obvious roadblocks to such action, Draper believes West Germany will ratify "in the next month or two, and France not long after."

Guiding U.S. affairs in Europe, Draper, from his driver's seat in Paris, is holding the reins on a 20-horse team composed of the countries with which we are operating closely.

He deals with each country through so-called American "country teams," headed by the U.S. ambassador in each nation. In the States, while he theoretically reports directly to the President, Draper actually works principally throught the Defense and State Departments and the Mutual Security Agency.

Draper came out of World War II a major-general heading the Economic Division of the American Military Government in Germany. Earlier he had commanded a regiment of the 33rd Infantry Division, in the U.S. and later in Hawaii.

In August, 1947, he was appointed Under Secretary of War, and later became Under Secretary of the Army, when the War and Navy Departments were unified.

He resigned from his government posts in 1949 to return to the New York investment banking firm of Dillon, Read & Co., from which he is now on leave as a vice president.

Draper has no magic formulae for getting his present heavy and complex chores done, except "at night I go home and go to sleep and forget everything about business."

WILLIAM H. DRAPER, Jr.: An impossible-sounding task.

Weather Ships Replaced On Pacific Run

VANCOUVER (CP) — Canadian Pacific's new cargo ships have already taken over part of the role left by the pre-war "Empress Fleet" on the Vancouver to Orient service and now they will take over another.

The S.S. Mapledell and her sister ship the Maplecove will serve as travelling "weatherships."

Other ships calling at the port of Vancouver do the same job but most of them follow a course taking them over the lower-Pacific latitudes. The Mapledell and the Maplecove will travel the north Pacific route which takes them close to the Aleutians.

It was this route that the Empress liners followed in regular schedule, and their reports helped fill in a part of the Pacific weather map.

SPECIAL EQUIPMENT

The ships will be equipped with a special barometer, a barograph to obtain a running picture of what's happening to air pressure, an instrument to measure relative humidity and air temperature, and a device to measure temperature of the sea. These instruments are read every six hours and the results, along with condition of the sea, wind direction and force, clouds and other weather data radioed back to this coast

F.R. Kennet, the department of transport's port meteorological officer, whose job it is to service these instruments and to enlist the help of ships' officers in sending back voluntary weather reports, says co-operation along that line is good.

Woodsworth Premier Statesman–Douglas

TORONTO (CP)—Premier R. C. Douglas of Saskatchewan last night prophesied that J. S. Woodsworth, founder of the C.C.F. party, will go down in history as having been responsible for more social and economic legislation than any other Canadian statesman of his time.

He spoke to a memorial meeting sponsored by the Ontario Woodsworth Foundation in commemoration of Woodsworth's death 10 years ago.

The premier listed a national bank, old age pensions, family allowances, unemployment insurance and numerous other things on the statute books because of a public demand no government dared ignore. He credited Woodsworth with helping arouse the people of Canada to the need for these things.

The Rev. M. Poole of All Saints' Anglican Church officiated. Interment was in Little Lake cemetery.

Culture Goes Neck and Neck With Vanity As Met Opens

By HENRIETTA LEITH

NEW YORK (AP) — The Metropolitan Opera, fighting to keep culture at least neck and neck with publicity and vanity on opening nights, breathed a sigh of accomplishment last night.

The Met has not banished publicity and vanity, and this 68th opening night had plenty of both.

But it was generally conceded by opening-night veterans that while the crowd was as big and the box office receipts bigger than ever, this was one of the best-behaved opening nights in memory.

A large number of opening-nighters showed enough culture to listen to the opera, and even talk about the opera while they sipped champagne in the lounge between acts.

ALL PROPRIETY

Mrs. Betty Henderson, who once brought the whole publicity-versus-culture situation to a head by agreeing to pose for photographers with her leg on a table, was all propriety.

The septuagenarian widow who is recovering from a stroke said she would not miss an opening night until they "carry me out on a stretcher."

A companion, young John Talbot livened the fashion scene with his bright blue satin lapels that matched the gown worn by Mrs. Henderson.

The opera was the third by Verdi to be dressed up for an opening night by the Met's comparatively new manager, Rudolf Bing

And "La Forza del Destino" was celebrating the 90th anniversary—to the day—of its premiere performance in St. Petersburg.

It starred tenor Richard Tucker and soprano Zinka Milanov, and they and other singers won cries of "bravo" and "bravo."

Paying record admission prices, 3,400 persons poured $60,000 into the box office.

New Books On Athletics At Public Library

"The Elements of Figure Skating," by Ernest Jones, is conspicuously new at the Public Library in a nest of books on athletic subjects. This one today was from a fresh package, not a stamp mark of issue on it, so it may be mentioned to some of the skaters who are willing to read about the fundamentals of this skill on ice.

"Swing the Club Head" denotes a discussion of golf methods, and "The Magnificent Yankees" could make some interesting fireside reading for fans as a solitary substitute for the hot-stove league of winter.

The followers of the national lacrosse champions will hardly be interested in a new book on the field game, of fond memories. It is written by W. Kelso Morrill, coach of the Intercollegiate (U.S.) Champion Lacrosse Team, 1950, The Johns Hopkins University.

Johns Hopkins has featured a lacrosse team for years. The field game survives in the sports tradition of some of the Universities across the line. Once upon a time, Canadian student teams used to engage them, notably the University of Toronto. The preface to the Morrill book sounds like the memory and tribute in which Ted Reeve occasionally indulges his preference for the game in which he was an outstanding player. Field lacrosse deserved a better fate than the oblivion into which it disappeared from the sward of Canada.

Whatever the universities which have retained it on their spring and summer schedule, they probably have continued to pay more attention to the skill the game invites, rather than the use of the lacrosse stick as a flail.

Tibet Tribe Revolts

CALCUTTA (AP) — Newspapers said today that at least 30 Tibetans and 10 Chinese Communist soldiers were killed recently in a revolt against Chinese rule by the martial Khambas tribe, in Tibet's southeastern Kham province. The reports, from the Tibetan capital of Lhasa, said the outbreak was touched off by the "extreme rudeness" of a Chinese military officer to a Khambas.

Movie Pioneer Says3-Dimension Film's Next Step

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — "Within five years, virtually every film theatre in the United States will be converted to three-dimensional movies."

These are strong words, but they come from one of Hollywood's soundest business heads, Merian C. Cooper. The movie man has made great early documentaries such as "Grass" and "Chang," and spectacles such as "King Kong." He now is general manager of the Cinerama Company.

Cinerama is the most important word in the Hollywood lexicon these days. Using a huge, curved screen and three projectors, cinerama has brought new scope to the movies. It was hailed as a triumph in its New York debut last month.

BEAT TV

"Hollywood now will have to start thinking in new terms," Cooper remarked. "We are at the same place now as when sound came in. Television is getting better all the time, and we have to beat it somehow. The way to do it is with cinerama, or some other device that will give added scope to the scene."

Louis B. Mayer, chairman of the Cinerama board, is responsible for lining up theatres. Cooper is in charge of production.

"I expect to start shooting a feature-length picture in the cinerama process within 90 days," he reported.

"Cinerama is the first form of entertainment to take the picture out of the frame. On the stage, the present movies and television, the picture is framed. But in cinerama, the screen is wide enough to encompass even your peripheral vision.

"The only other example I have ever seen of this is the Sistine Chapel art work of Michelangelo. If you get close enough to it, your entire vision takes in the picture."

Can cinerama pictures be made as cheaply as regular films?

"In some cases, more cheaply. You will need more lighting, because the three lenses take in the whole set. But also you do not need to make new setups for medium shots and close-ups. the whole scene can be shot from the same position."

VC Winner Tells Nov. 11 Thoughts

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—What does a Victoria Cross winner think about on Remembrance Day? Major Fred Tilston, V.C., gave some of the answers yesterday to students of Patterson Collegiate.

The student council of the school asked that Maj. Tilston, the Canadian hero of the Hochwald Forest battle in the Second World War, speak during their special Remembrance Day assembly.

Maj. Tilston lost both legs and won the V.C. during heavy fighting.

He told the students:

"I will remember the medical officers. Three times they saved my life.

"I will think of one medical officer who was never afraid to go to the forward companies, to comfort the dying and help the wounded.

"I will remember one commanding officer, Peter Bennett. His idea of fighting a battle was to stay in the forward companies. . . .

"I will remember the Falaise Gap, the Scheldt Estuary, Arnheim and Passchendaele."

Missing Since Sunday Hunter Found By Lake

BLIND RIVER (CP)—Fred Sachesky, 29, of Niagara Falls, Ont., reported missing in the bush 15 miles south of here since Sunday, was found yesterday beside a lake.

Sachesky said he lost his way after trailing a deer through the deep bush.

Searchers were called in when he became separated from his party in a bush area about 80 miles east of Sault Ste. Marie.

Veteran Sailors Claim Storm Of November, 1913, Worst Ever

BY JACK GEARIN
Canadian Press Correspondent

SARNIA, Ont. CP—Here's a time-tested recipe for starting a bitter argument: just tell a group of Great Lakes seamen which of the great November storms you think was the worst to hit the Great Lakes.

This is a good day to revive the question, because 12 years ago today one of the worst of all storms roared across the lakes. Winds raged from 85 to 125 miles an hour. There were 62 deaths in the sinking of two freighters and two tugs which succumbed to the pounding of the wind and 30-foot waves.

Some call it "the daddy of Great Lakes' twisters for November," but many veteran marines stoutly maintain that both the 1913 and 1905 blows surpassed it in intensity.

RAKED WIDE AREA

Michigan and Ontario suffered heavy damage in the 1940 blow. Power and communication lines toppled. Radio towers were blown down in Detroit. The storm raked all the lakes, but Lake Michigan bore the brunt, especially in the region of Penwater and Ludington.

One of the big mysteries of the storm was provided by the freighters William B. Davock and Anna C. Minch.

The 420-foot Davock, skippered by Captain Charles W. Allen of Detroit, had a crew of 32 and was bound from Erie to Chicago with coal. The 320-foot Minch was a Canadian ship skippered by Captain Donald Kennedy of Collingwood with a crew of 24 Canadians. She passed through the Straits of Mackinac Nov. 11, four hours after the Davock. Both vessels entered Lake Michigan.

Part of the Minch was found three days later in 440 feet of water 400 feet offshore about 1½ miles south of the Penwater Pier. Kennedy and the entire crew were lost. The aft portion of the ship was never located.

The Davock is believed to have foundered near the Minch, as bodies from both ships were washed ashore together.

DEEDS OF HEROISM

There were heroic deeds too. Clyde Cross was awarded a bravery medal for taking a tug to the aid of the stranded 253-foot freighter Novadoc in Lake Michigan.

Cross and two helpers found the crew in a cabin of the Novadoc, where they had been huddled for 36 hours with only an oil lantern for heat. Seventeen were rescued; three were washed overboard.

The 1913 storm struck Nov. 10. More than 235 men were lost. Eleven freighters sank. Seven more were wrecked badly enough to be adjudged total losses.

Older Sarnians will not soon forget the spectacle which greeted them the day following the storm in Lake Huron. First they sighted the wreckage of the 9,000 ton freighter Charles S. Price, a three-year-old ore carrier believed unsinkable. The Price had capsized and only the hull was visible.

The Price had been seen 24 hours earlier near two other vessels, the Regina, a package freighter, and the Wexford. The bodies of captain W. A. Black of the Price and several crew members were found wearing lifebelts from the Regina. No explanations were available.

BODIES WASHED ASHORE

Scores of bodies were found later that day washed ashore on Lake Huron, all the way from Sarnia to Goderich, 660 miles northeast. The body of a stewardess on the freighter Argus was found wrapped in a heavy coat belonging to one of the engineers. About her was [illegible]

The H. B. Smith and the Leafield both went down on Lake Superior with a total loss of 41 lives.

The 1905 blow struck Nov. 25. Temperatures varied from zero to 12 below during the two-day storm. The Ira H. Owen foundered. The Western Star was stranded and the Lafayette wrecked on Lake Superior, while the Vega was wrecked on South Fox Island, Lake Michigan.

The wreck of the 6,900-ton steel freighter Mataafa was spectacular. Loaded with ore and towing the barge Nasmyth, she was bound for a Lake Erie port when she was forced to return to Duluth. Near Duluth, the vessels were separated for safety's sake.

The Mataafa smashed into a stone pierhead in view of thousands. The waves beat over her deck and half the crew was stranded in the stern as it started to sink. Three made their way to the forward cabins and nine perished aft.

The freighter Saginaw went ashore near Port Huron, caught fire and burned, but her crew was saved.

Remind Seaway Critics Of Welland Canal Job

BROCKVILLE (CP)—William M. Benedickson, Liberal member of parliament for Kenora-Rainy River, said yesterday that "pessimists who are concerned with Canada's ability to pay for the St. Lawrence Seaway development should bear in mind that the Dominion successfully completed the Welland Canal in the depth of a depression."

Addressing the Brockville Rotary Club, Mr. Benedickson said:

"The cost of the seaway measured in terms of today's dollars and the present financial situation is no greater than that of the Welland Canal."

Ontario Agency Makes Road Map For Defence

TORONTO (CP)—A civic defence road map for Ontario has been prepared by the Ontario Civil Defence Committee, provincial police and the highways department, K. B. F. Smith, senior administrative officer of the committee said yesterday.

Addressing the 26th annual Automotive Transport Association convention here, Mr. Smith said all civil defence services rely on transportation.

"In planning for civil defence it immediately becomes obvious there are certain basic services which could rapidly be mobilized in the event of war. They are police, fire, health, welfare, communications, engineering and road transport.

"Without transportation the other services would be unable to function."

"A very valuable citizen"

When a bank manager was transferred recently a group of citizens wrote the bank in tribute to his sense of public service:

"During the time he was here, we found him to be a very valuable citizen. He always took a deep interest in our community, so we feel we have lost a valuable asset. However, we feel sure that his replacement will be made with a man of similar calibre."

A bank man, by the very nature of his work, becomes part of the life around him. During his training in various branches, and as he takes on growing responsibilities, he learns more and more about people and how his bank can help them. And he brings to his community his personal readiness to serve in any way he can.

Rev. H. Cotton Tells Rotary Of Trip To U.K.

The highlights of a trip to Great Britain were given by the Rev. Henry Cotton of St. Andrew's United Church, at the Rotary luncheon meeting Monday.

Mr. Cotton described sites he and Mrs. Cotton had visited and told of some of their experiences during a trip to Great Britain this past summer. The subject of Mr. Cotton's address was, Britain Revisited After 34 Years.

LOWER PRICES

He mentioned the comparatively low prices charged for meals in England. And he also pointed out that the old people of the country were well taken care of. They are provided with five-room cottages for the equivalent of two dollars a week.

The practice of registering all hoboes was also mentioned by Mr. Cotton. He explained that instead of housing hoboes overnight and then sending them on their way, as is done in Canada, the English authorities register them and encourage them to stay. Rooms and jobs are found for them so that they can become self-supporting members of a community.

The speaker paid tribute to the British people for their amazing comeback following the Second World War. He said that the poverty suffered 40 years ago had disappeared.

In conclusion, Mr. Cotton told of a visit to the grave of a Peterborough boy who had been killed overseas while serving in the Second World War.

The speaker was introduced by George Roper and thanked by Dr. R. K. Magee.

Asks For Transfer Of Culvert Account

The Douro Council at its November meeting requested the Department of Highways to transfer $1,160 of the money designated to be spent in culverts in 1952 to road expenditures. This move was made on account of the council not being able to get delivery of some of the culverts ordered.

Accounts passed for payment were general township payments $597.85; road payments $404.72, and relief payments $196.

Bonfire Day

DUNSTAN, England (CP)—Keen competition arose in this Durham town to see who would build the biggest bonfire for Guy Fawkes day Nov. 5. But children sabotaging rival bonfires left strictly alone the big one next door to the fire station.

Council Grants W.I. Use Of Hall

LAKEFIELD — (ENS) —The Women's Institute will be granted use of Memorial Hall auditorium for classes the last week of January and the first week of February, it was decided at a meeting of the village council. Reeve E. H. Northey presided with councillors J. I. Fraser, J. R. Hull and K. W. Morris present.

John G. Bell, Russell Curry and George Davey were a deputation present and after receiving copies of the survey showing the boundary of Water St. as it affected the westerly limit of their property, discussed with the council the possibility of purchasing some extra land to the west of what they already own. Clerk Harry T. Hill explained the cost of the survey and the estimated cost of legal proceedure etc. to close and sell part of the street. The estimated cost of survey and legal made a total of $613.55. After the discussion the three persons interested decided to get together and study the proposal and present their decision to the council at a later date.

Permission was granted to Miss Elsie Kidd and Miss Clarice Kidd to transfer the lease of lot No. 28, plan 30, Lakefield, to George E. Schmitt of Akron, Ohio. The said indenture to be authorized and signed by the reeve and clerk.

A petition signed by 12 local merchants and three other persons, to support the Lakefield Chamber of Commerce to have the "Hawkers By-Law" enforced was presented along with copies of the by-law. The matter was discussed as to method of enforcing and various other points and it was decided to leave it over until the next meeting.

The finance committee recommended payment of accounts totalling $4,700.37.

S. Koreans Regain Three Heights In Bloody Battle

By ROBERT TUCKMAN

SEOUL (AP)—South Korean infantry stormed back to recapture three strategic heights on Sniper Ridge and Triangle Hill in long, bloody battles today. But they failed to throw Chinese Communists off The Yoke. a maze of tunnels and caves at the Northern end of Sniper which has been the key to firm control of the important ridge. Associated Press correspondent John Randolph, reporting from the central front, said Republic of Korea troops regained all the ground they lost to Red artillery-supported assaults Tuesday night.

That included:

Pinpoint Hill, dominant height on Sniper Ridge, retaken by a five-hour infantry assault preceded by an hour-long artillery barrage.

Rocky Point, highest peak on Little Finger Ridge, as well as most of the rest of that ridge.

Jane Russell Hill, on the north-east edge of Triangle, recaptured in a counter-attack that began at dawn. Two Red companies — 350 men — wrested the twin peaks from the Allies Tuesday night.

Once they had made the crest of Pinpoint secure, elements of three South Korean regiments drove northward against The Yoke, taking part of it in a blast-them-out, burn-them-out battle against entrenched Reds.

But the South Koreans were forced to withdraw before dark. The Yoke is a virtually-impregnable redoubt at night.

Firm allied control of Sniper Ridge has been impossible with the Yoke's tunnels and caves in the hands of the Reds. It was from those underground caverns that Chinese reinforcements poured today at the height of the battle for Pinpoint.

The South Koreans had been pushed off Pinpoint, dominating height on Sniper Ridge, Tuesday night by 1,500 screaming Chinese. The Red assault was powered by one of the fiercest Red artillery barrages of the war. It was the 13th time in 29 days that the Reds had taken the hill from United Nations forces.

Despite the Allied victory on Pinpoint, determined Chinese defenders still held sizable chunks of the 1½-mile-long ridge at noon.

HUGE HAND GRENADES

Randolph also reported heavy fighting on nearby Little Finger ridge. Earlier the South Koreans were stalled two-thirds of the way up the slope by Chinese hurling huge hand grenades down upon them.

Randolph described the grenades as enormous canisters of TNT the size of stovepipe sections.

Elsewhere across the 155-mile Korean battle-line, only minor clashes were reported.

A.E.C. Withholds Statement Until Tests End

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Atomic Energy Commission says it will have an announcement, apparently soon, in connection with snowballing reports the first U. S. hydrogen bomb has been exploded in the South Pacific.

Vivid eyewitness accounts of a purported "hell" bomb blast—some said it virtually sank Eniwetok Island—have been received in uncensored letters from U. S. sailors to friends at home.

An A. E. C. spokesman said Tuesday "we will make an announcement" as soon as the current series of atomic tests is concluded. Until then, he said, "we will have absolutely no comment."

Previously, A. E. C. officials had indicated that for security reasons it might be years before anything would be made public about the new bomb.

Descriptions of the recent explosion—H-bomb or super atomic—agree that it was awesome.

ISLAND MELTS AWAY

One sailor wrote that he watched the spectacle through binoculars from his ship 30 miles away. He said he saw a great chunk of Eniwetok Island "just seem to melt away" in the fire that burned for six hours after the blast.

Finally, he said, the entire mile-wide atoll "actually disappeared."

Several eyewitness accounts have been published in recent days in Los Angeles, Lima, O., Michigan City, Ind., and Salt Lake City. Most of the accounts agree on major points.

For example, all agree that the time of the explosion was 7:15 a.m., Central Pacific Time. All said it took place on the mid-Pacific Island of Eniwetok, scene of current hush-hush atomic tests. And all said the blast was far more intense than previous explosions.

However, one letter fixed he date of the explosion as Oct. 1, two others as Nov. 1.

It has been obvious for weeks that something unusual was scheduled for the mid-Pacific.

Newspaper men covering Pearl Harbor report that navy ships steamed out of the base unannounced two or three months ago. They have since returned. Army sources say scientists have been flying in and out of Honolulu recently, but all information about them was refused.

Bank Safe Foils Masked Bandits

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Two men wearing rubber Hallowe'en masks held up Walkerville branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce today. After handcuffing employees they tried unsuccessfully to open the vault and then fled.

Bank Accountant S. B. Clarke, one of the employees who was handcuffed, said two men entered the bank before it was scheduled to open, trapping employees as they entered.

The robbers were in the bank an hour and tried unsuccessfully to open the vault. They fled when two employees of Brinks Incorporated arrived at 9:30 a.m.

The employees of the money transfer organization said they noticed a key in the lock of the building when they walked up to the door of the building. As they opened the door some of the handcuffed employees ran out shouting "hold-car which later was found abandoned.

Half Of Volunteers Unfit For Service

KITCHENER (CP) — — Lt.-Col. H. V. Matthews of Toronto said here last night that more than 50 per cent of youths trying to enlist in Canada are unfit for military service.

He told a Remembrance Day gathering that of those accepted, many break down under training and have to be discharged.

He said he deplored lack of cleanliness among troops, apathy towards sport, absenteeism and illiteracy, and lack of ability of the men to look after themselves.

Col. Matthews is commanding officer of a rifle battalion at Camp Ipperwash.

Typhoon Roars Down On North Philippines

Swiss Climbers Assault Everest

PATNA, India (AP)—Messages today from the Swiss Everest expedition said the climbers are making their final assault on the world's highest peak.

The messages, received at this point on the Nepalese border, said the expedition established its seventh camp at a height of 27,200 feet. The height of Everest is generally reckoned at 29,141 feet.

Two ace climbers are making the final attack. They are Raymond Lambert, 38-year-old Swiss mountain guide, who failed by only 700 feet to reach the summit in June, and Bhotia Tensing, a Nepalese guide who also has attempted Everest previously this year.

The expedition's outcome is not expected to be known for some days. Messages from the group must be brought down the mountain by native runners.

Tories Win First Test Of Strength

Want of Confidence Vote Beaten By Majority of 34

LONDON (CP)—The Conservative government Tuesday night easily won its first test of strength in the new parliamentary session, defeating an opposition motion of no-confidence by a vote of 313 to 279.

The 34-vote margin was almost twice the 18-seat over-all majority Prime Minister Churchill's Conservatives hold in the House of Commons. Had the vote gone against the Conservatives, the government would have been forced to resign.

The motion was resented by Labor as an amendment to the government resolution asking approval of Parliament's traditional address of thanks for the speech from the throne.

The speech, read by the Queen Nov. 4, gave notice that in the coming months the Conservatives intend to de-nationalize the steel and trucking industries.

HIT ECONOMIC POLICY

During the two-day debate of the speech, Labor members centred their attacks on the government's economic policies. Opposition leader Clement Attlee asserted the Conservatives had "no positive and effective proposals for dealing with the serious economic position of the country."

His deputy, Herbert Morrison, who presented the motion of censure, had charged the government lacked a strong enough economic policy to withstand the shocks of a possible "world slump."

Richard Butler, chancellor of the exchequer, outlined the government's case at length, claiming the country is well on the way to economic recovery under the Conservatives' financial policies.

Britain has taken a "great stride" forward from the "shadow of overwhelming crisis of a year ago" when Labor was in power, Butler said.

PETERBOROUGH'S PIGEON POPULATION has increased as cold weather drives birds to the good pickings around city mills and grain elevators. Nuisance birds in the nesting season on various downtown buildings they now shift for themselves in large flocks and find ample food. In fine weather such as today's they seem to find pleasure in flying from roosts in wheeling flight formations every few minutes and feed at will.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Court Dismisses Appeals By Suchan, Jackson

TORONTO (CP)—By unanimous decision, the Ontario Court of Appeal today dismissed the appeals of Steve Suchan and Leonard Jackson against their conviction of murder in the shooting last March of Det.-Sgt. Edmund Tong. Arthur Maloney, counsel for Jackson, and J. J. Robinette, who represented Suchan, said later they will seek permission to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada. Such an appeal is possible if a Supreme Court of Canada judge decides the Court of Appeal's decision was contrary to the judgment of any provincial court of appeal in a similar case.

If the Supreme Court of Canada hears the appeal, the hearing will probably be held next January. In that case, a stay of execution would be necessary for Suchan and Jackson, now under sentence to be hanged Dec. 16.

Nurse's Decision Saves Church From Bad Fire

A nurse's decision to drop in to Immaculate Conception Church before going on duty at nearby St. Joseph's Hospital probably saved the church from serious damage by fire today.

At press time, the basement of the church was still filled with smoke from a fire which was discovered in the boiler room shortly after 2 p.m.

The flames started in a pile of building paper, but the first firemen to arrive on the scene carried the burning papers outside where the flames were squelched by water.

Painters were working in the church, doing some redecorating, but the smoke filtered up from the basement slowly, they did not notice it.

NURSE SMELLED SMOKE

When Miss Genevieve Shaughnessy dropped into the church for a few moments of prayer before going on duty, she immediately detected the smell of smoke.

One of the workmen, Alex McDougal, quickly opened a doorway to a stairway leading to the basement, and was confronted with a cloud of grey smoke.

Mr. McDougal ran to the rear of the rectory, just a few feet from the south east corner of the door at the rear of the church and phoned the fire department.

A ladder, leaning against the pile of paper also caught fire but it too was carried outside.

Firemen assisted by painters who were working in the church are still looking over the boiler room carefully, to make sure that sparks from the burning paper did not catch anywhere else. However, other than smoke damage, it is not believed that any extensive damage resulted.

Railways Argue New System Would Cut Rates

OTTAWA (CP)—The railways said yesterday a proposed new system of setting rail charges would result in freight rates lower than under the present basis

Though the method calls for immediate rate increases, the Railway Association of Canada contended that eventually it would bring about economies making lower tolls possible.

The submission was made to the board of transport commissioners by John L. O'Brien, counsel for the association and the Canadian Pacific Railway, as the C.P.R. opened evidence to back up the railways' application for the radical shift to the "rate-base, rate-of-return" system of fixing rail earnings.

Under this proposal, the board would determine the net investment in the "yardstick" C.P.R.'s rail property and allow rates that would yield the company a specified annual return on the investment. Freight rates for all railways now are set on the basis of the Canadian Pacific's current financial needs as decided by the board.

The C.P.R. says it should be allowed a 6½ per cent return on an investment base of $1,146,000,000, and provincial counsel opposing the move claimed Monday this would call for a freight-rate jump of between 30 and 33 per cent. However, Mr. O'Brien said yesterday that at the moment the request is for a rate increase to yield a five-per-cent return.

Mr. O'Brien said in his opening statement that the proposed new method, by stabilizing rail earnings, would result in "less costly rail service" through enabling the carriers to get capital at cheaper rates.

End Of Controls On Steel Seen

NEW YORK (AP) — The Iron Age, metalworking trade weekly, says today plans are being made in Washington to bring about an orderly lifting of steel controls as quickly as possible.

The timetable was said by the publication to shape up like this:

"(1) First will come decontrol of civilian requirements. (2) Industry will return to a free market and re-establish customer relationships as it girds itself to meet a buyers' market by mid-1953. (3) Complete decontrol of military and atomic energy requirements will be deferred for some time. Even when these controls are dropped the the steel industry will continue its pledge to meet all defence needs first. . ."

Steel making operations this week were placed by the trade weekly at 107 per cent of capacity.

Senators Ask UN Purge Spies

NEW YORK (AP)—The United Nations should either help purge itself of "spies and saboteurs" or get out of the United States, says two members of the U.S. Senate internal security committee. One of the two senators is the committee chairman, Pat McCarran (Dem.-Nev.), who says he also thinks Trygve Lie resigned as U.N. secretary-general because "of disclosures made and disclosures we will make in the future." The senators' search for suspected U.S. Communists on the U.N. headquarters staff was resumed on Tuesday. McCarran and Senator Willis Smith (Dem.-N.C.) composed a sub-committee which heard three more American U.N. employees refuse to answer some questions concerning Communist party membership.

A fourth witness said she believed she switched her citizenship from American to Russian simply by obtaining a Russian passport. She is Olga Michka, 33, an American-born U.N. clerk and typist.

A state department official said he did not think she automatically lost her U.S. citizenship when she received the Russian passport in 1949.

Smith, angry at the attitude of some witnesses, snapped that it is up to the U.N. "to help us purge it of spies and saboteurs."

If that cannot be done, he said, the U.N. "ought not to be allowed to sit in America."

"Senator," said McCarran, "I agree with your heartily."

After the hearing, McCarran told newspaper men he believed his committee's inquiry brought about Lie's resignation Monday.

McCarran said Lie's statement of reasons for quitting reminded good," said McCarran, "but it was hollow."

Lie said he was resigning "because I hope this may help the United Nations to save the peace and to serve better the cause of freedom and progress for all mankind."

An interview with Lie published in three Scandinavian newspapers said he emphatically denied the McCarran inquiry influenced his decision to resign.

The interview quoted the secretary-general as saying he thought Russia's non-recognition of him might have stood in the way of a peace in Korea.

Succeed Or Fail In Korea: Bradley

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gen. Omar Bradley said today the free world's ability to contain the advance of Communist frontiers "will succeed or fail in large measure" in Korea.

The chairman of the U. S. joint Chiefs of Staff, discussing the reasons and justification for the Korean war, said in an address to the Association of Land Grant Colleges:

"We had to draw the line against Communist aggression — and we did in June, 1950. . .

"I believe that that decision—as much as it has cost us—saved southeast Asia from being overrun in 1950 and 1951. . .

"And, further, I believe that our action in Korea may have prevented—or at least forestalled for some time—the Soviet Union's step-by-step aggression leading to World War III."

Jury Convicts "Leering" Negro

YANCEYVILLE, N.C. (AP)—An all-white male jury yesterday found Mac Ingram, a Negro tenant farmer, guilty of assault on a female by "leering" at her.

Judge Frank Armstrong today gave Ingram a six-month suspended sentence and placed him on probation for five years. The maximum sentence permissible was two years at hard labor. Ingram said he will appeal.

Ingram was charged with assault on an attractive 'teen-aged farm wife, Mrs. Willie Jean Boswell Webster, who testified that the middle-aged Negro father "eyed" her from "about 75 feet" on her father's Caswell county farm. Ingram denied he had criminal intentions. He said the girl was dressed in jeans and "looked like a boy" when he attempted to inquire of her where he could borrow a

Under North Carolina law no bodily contact is necessary for conviction of assault.

Sweden Asks Russia Free Jailed Diplomat

STOCKHOLM (Reuters)—Sweden has asked Russia to free a Swedish diplomat taken prisoner by the Red army when it moved into Hungary in 1945, it was disclosed today.

Raoul Wallenberg, secretary at the Swedish legation, was doing relief work in Hungary when he disappeared.

Punished For Hookey 13-Year-Old Suicides

TORONTO (CP) — A 13-year-old died in hospital last night, eight days after he was found in a gas-filled room in his home.

Police said the boy, whose name was not released, turned on the gas jets after being punished for playing hookey from school.

Fear Arson As Church Burns In S. Africa

EAST LONDON, South Africa (Reuters) — Fire today destroyed an Anglican church building close to the gutted ruins of a Roman Catholic church set ablaze by natives Monday night.

Police sought to determine whether today's fire marked another episode in racial passions which boiled over into a riot Sunday. Two whites, including a nun, and seven Africans were slain.

Marion Davies' Spouse Hearst Trade Blows

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) Publisher William Randolph Hearst Jr., and Capt. Horace Brown, husband of former actress Marion Davies, tangled in sidewalk fisticuffs outside a night club last night.

There apparently was little damage. No report was made to police.

"I happened to connect and knocked him down," said Hearst.

Miss Davies, long-time friend of Hearst's father, apparently had no part in the incident.

Brown could not be reached for his version of the affair.

Churchman's Warning

Self-Satisfaction Danger To Churches

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A prominent American churchman warns that church communities are in danger of becoming a "complacent collection of clubby, chubby people who are satisfied only with themselves."

Rev. Jesse M. Bader, executive director of the department of evangelism of the National Council of Churches, told the Canadian Council of Churches Tuesday that preachers are always speaking of evangelism, but they need to do more of this kind of work themselves.

He urged Canadian churches to increase their work on the university campus.

Rev. W. G. Berry, associate secretary of evangelism and social service for the United Church in Canada, said he is afraid of the "shot in the arm method" of evangelism. "We pep people up and then send them home. But it's the follow-up that is so important."

"GET INTO THE HOME"

Rt. Rev. G. N. Luxton, Anglican Bishop of Huron, speaking during the open discussion period, said:

"One of the weaknesses of the church is that not enough ministers are getting into the homes. The man who gets to the people and presents to them his loyalty to the church he loves is the greatest agent the church has in the world today — far greater than any mass evangelism."

Rev. H. B. Stainton of St. Thomas said he thinks one reason why churches are not reaching outsiders is because they are trying to reach people denominationally. The unchurched were not interested in such an approach, but they would listen to the interdenominational evangelist.

Speaking at the opening session of the meeting, Rev. W. J. Gallagher, general secretary of the Council, said the church still stands although she is suffering from sickness within and foes without.

The census report of religious profession of Canadians and the statistical reports of the churches themselves hinted that churches are falling short in the matter of evangelism.

BAD COMBINATION

Speaking on gambling and indecent publications, Mr. Gallagher said: "We are confronted with a combination of greedy exploitation on the one hand and deterioration of moral standards and decline of taste on the other."

Delegates voted unanimously in favor of accepting the Canadian Overseas Missions Council as their department of overseas missions. The organization promotes the work of all denominations.

Whitby Farmer Increases Milk Production 15 Gallons Daily With Television In Barn

WHITBY (CP) — The latest method of increasing milk production and making sure you have contented cows is by providing television in the barn.

That's Russel Fleming's theory and he claims to have proof.

Mr. Fleming installed a television set in his barn for his own pleasure but soon found his cows enjoyed the set too. Milk production has increased 15 gallons a day since he installed the set, he said.

"They seemed to get the most kick out of watching such comics as Arthur Godfrey and Eddie Cantor," Mr. Fleming said. "They seem to do the cows most good."

UN Adjourns Korea Debate, Attention Turns To Africa

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP) —The United Nations turned its spotlight at least temporarily today from Korea to the explosive question of South Africa's treatment of non-whites, an issue heightened by new violence there this week.

As general policy statements continued before a plenary session of the General Assembly, the 60-country special political committee took up Asian-Arab charges that the white-supremacy program of South Africa's Prime Minister, Daniel Malan, threatens world peace.

South Africa's chief delegate, G. P. Jooste, the first speaker in the debate, is expected to repeat his previous warning that his country will not accept U.N. interference in what it considers a domestic problem. His government has threatened to pull out of the world organization if it attempts any strong action on the issue.

But though debate turned to South Africa, chief U.N. interest remained on the two major problems raised thus far in the assembly meeting—the Korean deadlock and the resignation Monday of Secretary-General Trygve Lie.

In the Korean debate, the Russians were faced with a new western request for agreement that prisoners of war not be forced to return to their homelands The west's new plan was put forth yesterday by Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain, who submitted a four-point peace proposal concluding: "After an armistice, a prisoner of war may not be either forcibly detained or forcibly repatriated."

Laborite Sees Eisenhower's 'Bludgeon' Truce

LONDON (Reuters) — President-elect Eisenhower probably will try to "bludgeon" the Chinese into a Korean truce by means of force and an ultimatum, Labor M. P. Woodrow Wyatt said today.

Wyatt, who has just returned from a tour of the United States, expressed his views in a Daily Herald article headlined: "It's dynamite, Ike."

"Most probably, seeing things as a general, he will seek to bludgeon the Chinese into a truce by force and ultimatum," wyatt said.

"At heart, he is a reactionary and unlikely to understand the nature and strength of the nationalist impulses behind the Communists in China. To him, the idea of heavy force suddenly applied will seem attractive. . .

"I think that he will want to issue an ultimatum demanding that the Chinese sign a truce within a time limit. The alternative will be a great onslaught which will not respect the Chinese mainland. Then the prospect of a third world war might well loom."

Wyatt urged Britain to take the lead at the United Nations with other members to block "so rash a move."

CPR Must Spend $95,000,000

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Pacific Railway must spend $95,000,000 a year for the next five years in expanding and replacing its rail property, the Board of Transport Commissioners was told today.

This evidence was given by N. R. Crump, C. P. R. vice-president, as the company continued evidence in support of a proposed new basis for determining rail rates.

Mr. Crump said the $95,000,000-a-year figure is gross. Later, L.B. Unwin, vice-president of finance for the company, calculated it would need a net $60,000,000 in new capital next year after taking into account its hoped-for surplus and money set aside for replacement of assets.

Detroit St. Railway Criticized For Profit

DETROIT (AP) — The Detroit Street Railways Commission, often under fire for losing money, today was criticized for another reason—making money.

City council questioned the D.S.R.'s net profit for October of $542,026.

"This requires an immediate explanation," said Councilman Edward Connor. "We should be told why the profit is so much in excess of what D.S.R. officials estimated at the time (Sept. 22) the 20-cent fare was adopted.

"The people do not expect the D.S.R. to make profit, but merely break even while at the same time maintaining satisfactory service."

CLASSROOM WORK for South Korean Army officers at Fort Belvoir, Va., requires help of ROK interpreter, 1st Lt. Chae Yong Suck (right), to help U.S. Army Capt. Howard Strohecker (behind desk), of Portland, Ore., get his lessons across. These officers are studying combat engineering.

Picked S. Korean Officers Training In U.S. Schools

By DOUGLAS LARSEN

FT. BELVOIR, Va. (NEA). — President-elect Dwight Eisenhower's campaign pledge to start an intensive training program of South Koreans so that they can begin replacing more American troops in the front lines is actually well on its way to being fulfilled.

A course of training for able young Republic of Korea Army officers in U. S. Army schools is proving highly successful. The Army says the course can be expanded quickly to speed Eisenhower's ultimate goal of having ROK troops take over the entire front line there.

Some of the secret restrictions on the program have been lifted enough to reveal that most of the key ROK officers who could speak and understand English are already on their way back to Korea from Army training courses in the States. Now the program is successfully training ROK officers who can't speak English.

The first class of 50 non-English-speaking ROKs now going through Ft. Belvoir's school for engineers is typical of those in infantry, artillery and quartermaster corps schools in other parts of the U.S.

• • •

The far more efficient technical training available in the U.S. is given as the main reason for bringing the ROKs here, rather than trying to teach them in Korea. And they end up with a much better insight into the use of American equipment and the U.S. Army's way of doing things.

INTERPRETERS

Interpreters bridge the language barrier in the classes. The American instructor delivers a few sentences of his lecture and the Korean interpreter repeats it to the students.

One of the instructors, Lt. Franklin Edson, says: "It's surprising to find out how alert and very sharp these boys are. They are asking extremely good questions and grasp the subject matter very well. You can tell that they have all had a lot of combat experience by the way they approach some of the problems we discuss."

The students themselves are eager to learn and enthusiastic about everything they have seen in the U.S. on their visit. In rank they range from second lieutenant to lieutenant colonel. Many of them entered the Korean Army right from high school. Several are college graduates.

They were carefully selected for the course on the basis of ability, leadership, and combat records. When they return they will be integrated as staff officers in ROK divisions, given key planning jobs and in many cases made instructors in their field for further training of ROK troops.

One of the youngest of the group, Lt. Kie Yeung Ahn, a native of Taegu, was commissioned at the start of the war, saw plenty of action and plans to make a career of the Army.

MISSED TRAINING

"It's too bad we didn't know some of the things we have been taught when the fighting first started," he says. "Things might have been a little different if we had."

Accompanying the class is U.S. Army Maj. Norman F. Lewis, who is with the Korean Military Advisory Group.

While they are at Ft. Belvoir, the South Koreans have all the privileges of any other officer on the post and are given a special allowance. Their regular Korean officers' pay is extremely low by U.S. standards. They wear regular U.S. officers' uniforms with Korean insignia.

The course lasts three months. So far all of them are doing very well, according to Major Lewis. Actually, they show more aptitude to the outdoor field work than do the average American officers, it is said.

They are all taking a special English course in the evening which Major Lewis has set up for them. The Army hopes that before the three months are up, the interpreter used in the classes can be dropped.

Serious Water Supply Hampers Ont. Farms

TORONTO (CP)—Farmers in most parts of Ontario report a serious shortage of water, the agriculture department said yesterday in its weekly crop report. Because of dry land in Grey county, farmers still have some fall plowing to do.

In Essex county corn harvesting is under way. Apples are moving to market at higher prices in Northumberland county owing to a scarcity of good quality.

In the Kenora and Sudbury districts all livestock has been stabled.

Poison Cripple's Dogs Were His Livelihood

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The livelihood of a crippled polio victim and seven years' work was destroyed Sunday when seven prized Mexican chihuahua dogs died from strychnine believed deliberately set for them.

City detectives are investigating the circumstances surrounding the poisoning of the dogs, owned by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Waggott.

Waggott, a cripple, breeds the pedigreed dogs for a living.

Four other dogs kept in the house were unharmed, though all 11 dogs were fed the same food Sunday night.

The poisoned dogs were valued at more than $2,000 and represented the Waggotts' entire breeding stock.

No Permission Given For Erecting Houses

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — Assessment Commissioner C. E. Colvin said today the city's assessment department is blameless for a situation which permitted the mysterious erection 11 years ago of four houses on the outskirts of the city.

No taxes have been paid on either property or buildings, erected unknown to civic officials.

The matter was brought up Monday at a council meeting. It was learned that four homes, a shed, and a garage in a birch grove on city property were discovered during an engineering department survey. The squatters have cars and have been cutting down the birch for fuel.

Obituary

BRUCE ROBSON

MARMORA (ENS)—Following [illegible] early Tuesday morning at the age of 73.

Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Robson, he was born in Blairton but lived the greater part of his life in this community. He was employed for a number of years with the Pearce Company and later with the Deloro Smelting and Refining Company Limited.

In his younger years he was a member of the choir of Marmora Methodist Church.

His keen sense of humor made him good company at social gatherings he attended in those days.

His death will be mourned by many friends. He is survived by his wife and six children: Leith, Western Canada, Forrest and Guy of Marmora, Mrs. D. Buchanan (Gertrude), Toronto, Mrs. Dagmar Olsen (Mary), Marmora; and Jean, Peterborough.

Also surviving are a brother and sister, Bert Robson and Mrs. J. Ruttan both of Trent River.

The funeral service takes place at his late residence at 2 p.m. Thursday, with burial in Maple Grove Cemetery, Havelock.

Workers Pass Picket Line With 110 Police

HAMILTON (CP) — Under protection of 110 police officers, a group of workers today passed through a picket line set up by a rival textile union and got to their jobs at the Hamilton Cottons Company plant. But a group of stragglers ran into trouble.

The returning workers are members of the Textile Workers Union of America (C.I.O.), which signed an agreement ending a six-week strike for higher wages. The picketing union is the Textile Workers Union of America (A.F.L.).

W. H. Young, works manager, said 276 persons were at work today, 50 more than the number who fought their way through the picket line yesterday and made their way out after work through jeering, jostling pickets.

During yesterday's battle, police found it hard to distinguish between the pickets and the returning workers. Today, however, more than twice as many police officers were on hand and they formed a solid wall along the sidewalk. The returning workers marched in behind this barrier.

When it appeared that most of the workers had entered the plant, the police broke their line. Then a small group of straggling workers came along. The 300 pickets rushed the workers.

Police raced back and in an ensuing struggle arrested two pickets. One was Vern Mustard of Welland, an organizer for the A. F. L. union, who was charged with obstructing police, and Bern Rutton, 26, husband of a striking employee, charged with assaulting police.

Officials of the company said the plant will be kept in operation despite the inter-union rivalry.

"The plant will stay open," said Mr. Young. "We will not be intimidated."

The violence yesterday coincided with the reopening of the plant.

Armed Strength Tops 100,000

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton reported last night in a Remembrance Day broadcast that the manpower of Canada's regular armed forces has topped the 100,000 mark for the first time outside the years of the two world wars.

He didn't say when this milestone was attained in the drive to build a strength of 120,000 by 1954 but it is understood reliably to have been shown on headquarters charts within the last week.

There were 47,000 in uniform before Korea, Mr. Claxton said in an address prepared as a free-time political broadcast on the CBC, compared with the, "100,000 giving their full time to our defence today."

This trength, he stressed, is devoted to the maintenance of peace through the prevention of another world war.

(With army veterans of Korea taking their discharges in the hundreds, the total of the three services has been hovering between 95,000 and 100,000 most of 1952 and for a time dropped back after hitting 99,000. The fact 1,900 married soldiers are due home from Germany shortly and entitled to discharge if they want it may drop the total back again.)

Need All Able To Work: Gregg

MONTREAL — (CP) — Labor Minister Gregg said today that as Canada's economy expands "we are going to need the productive efforts of everyone who is willing and able to work."

This included not only the older as well as the younger worker, but the handicapped worker and the woman worker.

In a speech before the Women's Canadian Club, the minister outlined the changes that had taken place with the growth of the Canadian labor force which now numbers 5,400,000 persons. He said the problem of the older worker continues to be "an urgent situation."

Employers seemed reluctant to employ older persons, but the minister said: "There really are few more unkind acts than that of forcing retirement on a physically and mentally active person who must then adjust himself or herself to a life of inactivity on a low income."

Base Metal Stocks Gain In Wide Advance

Base metals gained despite heavy individual losses such as Ascot, which dropped 40 cents in the first three hours in a turnover of about 89,000 shares.

Volume for the first three hours totalled 994,000 shares.

Industrials gained strength as papers, foods and refining oils advanced. Textiles showed strength. Steels, agricultures and miscellaneous issues weakened. Most price changes were fractional but Canada Cement added $1.50.

Senior golds turned mixed as Giant slipped and junior producers showed only a small edge of gains. Pamour added pennies but Campbell and Delnite slipped. Among prospects, Larder U attracted interest, trading 62,000 shares for a gain of little more than a cent. Placer gained. Holding companies slipped as Frobisher and Ventures lost strength.

Base metals losses ranged to 50 cents as Ascot, Eastern Metals, and Silver Miller slipped. Steep Rock gained.

Western oils losses outnumbered gains about four to one but Del Rio added pennies.

Critics Acclaim Shapiro's Play

LONDON (CP) — The "big-league" debut of Montreal's Lionel Shapiro as a playwright last night won enthusiastic first-night acclaim from audience and critics alike.

The Canadian journalist's first play, "The Bridge," received seven curtain calls following its premiere at the Theatre Royal in Bristol. Shapiro himself was called on the stage several times.

The play, described by Shapiro as a remote adaptation of his second novel, "Torch For a Dark Journey," was presented by the Bristol Old Vic company under the direction of Denis Carey. It will be recast for its London opening either next month or in January.

BIG HOLE—A massive piece of earth-moving equipment trundles into the entrance of a three-storey bomb-proof "underground pentagon" located 65 miles north of Washington and designed for use by the military in the event of aerial attack on the United States capital city. The Washington Post, in a copyright story, said it obtained this information and picture from a historical summary published by the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers. The project, costing $35,000,000, is located at Camp Ritchie, Md. Two heavy steel blast doors protect the structure and special means are provided for ventilation, emergency power and water supply. A special communications centre is designed to resist atomic attack.

Many Attend Marmora And Deloro Services

MARMORA (ENS)— Remembrance Day was well observed in Marmora and Deloro with a goodly following of parades under auspices of Marmora branch No. 237, Canadian Legion.

At Deloro, Past President Tom Cousins was in charge.

At Marmora Memorial Hall Canon J. M. Brownlie officiated and gave the address, while the Rev. G. H. Bach read the Scripture. The Last Post and Reveille were sounded by Comrade Robert Courtney with the intervening two minutes' silence being observed.

MANY WREATHS

Wreath carriers were Major Percy Gray, Norman Hepson, Nathan Mumby, Vaughn Glover, Roy Moss, Stanley Kerr and Herbert Wright. Wreaths placed beneath the memorial tablets included the Province of Ontario, Mrs. Wilbert Bedore; Marmora village council, President Stan Kerr; Marmora and Lake township councils, Herbert Wright; Marmora Chapter I.O.D.E., Mrs. Wm. Cobourg Council Ask For Contract

COBOURG (ENS) —Wage increase of 18 cents across the board, is asked by municipal employees of the National Union of Public Service Employees in a proposed new contract. Other clauses in proposed contract are:

Closed shop and check-off of dues at the source, the latter subject to authorization by the employee. Adding Boxing Day and other holidays proclaimed by the Mayor to the holidays already granted. That the town provide goggles, mitts, rubber boots, overalls, smocks and leather gloves for employees in certain occupations. That the Workmen's Compensation allowance to men injured in accidents be supplemented by enough to bring the pay up to what it was before the accident.

The union also asks sick leave pay up to a maximum of 13 weeks. At present this is covered by the hospitalization scheme to the extent of the plan. Any case beyond 13 weeks is to get special consideration from the town. Sick leave pay for broken periods of less than three days would be paid at the regular rate pr... management considers it ... factory. Under the p... amendments to the preser... tract, a general utility ma... get $1.25 an hour and s... cleaners, $1.21.

Council will deal with the matter next week.

Customary Pomp Marks Opening Of Quebec House

QUEBEC (CP) — Traditional pomp and ceremony is to mark the opening today of the first session of Quebec's 24th legislature.

Lieutenant - Governor Gaspard Fauteux is scheduled to review a military guard of honor and then precede some 400 guests to the Legislative Council, upper house of Quebec's bicameral legislature.

Initial formality of the session, first since Premier Duplessis' Union Nationale party was returned to power in last summer's general election, is to be election of a Legislative Assembly speaker.

Once appointed, he will lead assembly members to the upper house where Lieutenant - Governor Fauteux will read the speech from the throne in French and English.

The legislative assembly is expected to meet briefly and adjourn until Thursday.

In view of Premier Duplessis' earlier announcements, it is expected the speech from the throne will deal with Quebec's advance in industrial development and legislation to apply drastic traffic regulations to cut down fatalities.

RENT CONTROLS

Other legislation known to be coming up will extend rent controls for at least another year, tighten existing anti - margarine laws, propose censorship of television programs, establish a provincial transport department and abolish Montreal's circuit court.

The 62-year-old premier and his 66 Union Nationale followers will face a 22-member Liberal opposition led by George Marler, 51-year-old Montreal notary. In the last four years an eight-member Liberal opposition faced 82 Union Nationale members.

Standing in the legislative assembly: Union Nationale, 67; Liberal, 22; Independent, one; vacant, two.

Standing in the legislative council: Liberal, 15; Union Nationale, nine; Vacant, none.

British Promoters Refused Copyright Television Right

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP)—Copyright protection of television programs, sought by British promoters of sports events and similar attractions, has been rejected by a special committee set up 18 months ago by the Board of Trade.

The committee's report on the controversial subject notes:

"Copyright never has extended to a horse race or to the performance of an artiste or a group of artistes—and we recommend that no such right be established."

The committee, however, offers a series of suggestions it hopes will lead to an early break in the present deadlock which has deprived TV fans in the United Kingdom of an opportunity of viewing such major spectacles as the Derby, the Grand National, cricket test matches, championship fights and the Wembley Cup finals.

FINANCIAL BARRIER

The stumbling block to agreement so far has been the demand of interests staging such events for adequate financial safeguards and control against direct television competition, which the committee says the British Broadcasting Corporation is unable or unwilling to meet.

Under the public control system of broadcasting in Britain, advertising sponsorship is not permitted at present although the postmaster-general has indicated the sponsorship principle may be tested soon in the television field. The BBC derives its entire operating revenue from radio and television licence fees.

Conceding that a case has been made for some measure of control over public performance of television programs, the committee's report observes: "We are satisfied that only if the financial and other relations between the BBC, the sports associations and others are worked out between the principals on a voluntary basis will a sufficiently flexible scheme be produced. We believe that compulsion applied by either side would do more harm than good."

The report recommends that only one performing right, that of the broadcasting authority, should be recognized.

COMPENSATE PERFORMERS

It also suggests that fees derived from public performances could be used to provide extra payments to those supplying the material for the televised shows. The sports promoter, in turn, would then be in a position to see that the various interests concerned were protected and compensated.

Under existing legislation there is no copyright covering a sporting event and if access to it can be obtained neither those taking part nor the organizers can prevent the spectacle being filmed or televised.

But on that point the report remarks: "We are no more prepared to recommend that the BBC should have legal right to take its television cameras into private places than we should be to give a right of access to a newspaper man or newsreel photographer.

"Also we are not prepared to give sports promoters and others a new statutory right. . .to prevent photographs of an event being taken at some other place."

The committee believes it should be possible within the range of existing law for promoters to follow methods adopted in broadcasting the Grand National steeplechase at Aintree last spring. For that event a running commentary of the race was recorded and broadcast with a slight time lag over the BBC's radio network under copyright protection It is suggested this method could be extended to television and promoters compensated by sale of reproduction rights to producers of public entertainment.

Another suggested measure of control is the possibility of restricting the broadcast of television programs to areas some distance from the scene of the event to protect gate receipts.

DEMANDS PROTECTION

Disappointment was expressed by F. W. Gentle, vice-chairman of the association for the protection of copyright in sport, over some of the committee's proposals.

He said the recommendation that exclusive performing rights be given to the broadcasting authority left a loophole by which a spectacle could always be broadcast from outside. A cricket test match, championship fight or the finish of a horse race could be televised from houses or special stands overlooking the scene.

Housing Areas Request Civic Services

COBOURG (ENS)—Faced with several requests for installation of municipal services in housing sub-divisions, council Tuesday night decided to commit itself to nothing until it had pasesd a by-law which would be equitable for all concerned.

Jim Stuart, representing an east end subdivision, addressed council to propose extension of municipal services to the housing area. A sewage plan which would include a force main to convey sewage north to join the University Avenue sewer, was suggested by Mr. Stewart. Cobourg Lumber Co. and Mr. L. Caine also had requests for services.

On motion of Councillor Otto Curtis it was decided to table all the applications until the necessary covering bylaw had been passed.

"We are aware of the town's needs in regard to expansion but when we finally decide what should be done, it will be in accordance with the over-all needs of the town," commented Mayor Jack Burnet.

A deputation from Haldimand township council was on hand to seek an agreement whereby the township would be served by Cobourg's fire fighting facilities. The suggestion was the result of the fire department saving Fenella village from destruction, assited by the water supply from the forestry department, when fire destroyed a general store there on Sunday morning, Council will deal with the request next week.

Kiwanis club asked premission to exhibit and sell Christmas trees on the front lawn of the town hall. Council gave permission to exhibit a tree and a sign there but to do the selling on the market square.

Cobourg Rugby Club informed the council that the Galloping Ghosts finished their season with a deficit of $1,000 and asked for a grant to assist them to get out of the red. The request was referred to the finance committee.

A letter from the town solicitor informed council that everything was in readiness to put the current debentures on the market. Made up of a total of around $390,000, the debentures consisted of $280,000 for the east end school; $14,984 for the new grader; $26,300 for the new fire pumper; $35,000 for a new water main on Division street and $32,623 for the D'Arcy street sewer.

Mayor Jack Burnet reported that no objection was raised at the recent sittings of the Municipal Board in regard to the east and west end restricted areas.

Successful Club For Divorced

By ELNAR PRAVITZ

STOCKHOLM (AP) — About a year ago a Stockholm merchant got an idea—why not start a club for divorced persons?

Himself divorced, he had much experience of the loneliness that results after severance of marital ties and most of the contacts any couple holds in common.

There were many persons both men and women, in the same predicament who rallied to help him with his project.

The result: Stockholm, a city of many divorces, but no night clubs, got its "Divorcees' club," which may be the first organized project of its kind.

HUGE SUCCESS

The club was a success from the first. It now has some 200 members who meet once a week in a 17th Century cellar in the "Old Town."

The "Friday Club," as it is called officially, has rigorous rules and regulations, and qualifications are closely checked.

At first a number of married persons managed to squeeze in. Some elderly gentlemen tried for membership. Now the rules are strict: Only applicants who can prove they are bona fide survivors of an unhappy marriage, officially terminated, are welcomed to membership.

PLAN NEW CLUBS

The arrangement has been so successful and aroused so much interest that divorced persons all over the country are following the example and planning a country-wide association.

The Stockholm club membership cuts through all strata of society. At first, it was mainly newly-divorced women who joined, seeking escape from sudden loneliness. Now the disproporation between male and female members is beginning to disappear. The aim of the management is an even distribution.

Are Canadians 'Second Bests'?

Dr. A. R. M. Lower of Queen's University has been been sharply criticised recently because, in a speech at Port Arthur, he said that Canadians are "very good second bests"; as a nation he does not think that we are quite first-rate. Professor Lower says things of this sort quite often and he never fails to provoke a row. Whether we are second-best or not, nobody will deny that Canadians are exceedingly touchy, and are quick to resent criticism.

* * *

Was the professor right? There can never be a final answer to such a question. It could be successfully argued that Canadians are admirable in many respects, but it would be stupid to forget that there are realms in which we are an odd and self-satisfied nation. For instance, we do not seem to care that certain individual Canadians who really are first-rate are unable to exercise their abilities in their own country.

* * *

We put forward the case of Alexander Knox. Have you ever heard of him? He is an actor, and he was born at Strathroy, Ontario. Some years ago he was seen in the title role in a film about the life of Woodrow Wilson. He is now acting in London, and Harold Hobson, the critic of the London Sunday Times, has this to say about him:

> When Mr. Alexander Knox made his first post-war appearance in London a couple of years ago . . . I called him a great actor. I have now had the opportunity to watch Mr. Knox in another play, and I see no reason to withdraw the adjective . . .

and the critic goes on for the space of a column to explain why Alexander Knox is, in his view, one of the handful of great actors in our time.

* * *

A great actor—and a Canadian. One of ourselves. What would he be if he had remained among us? A radio actor, perhaps. A performer, at wages lower than those of a machinist, in one of our summer theatres. Perhaps a man engaged in some other business, who performed with an amateur company. But he went abroad to find a place for his abilities, and he has won the highest sort of acclaim.

* * *

Does Canada care? We see no evidence that it does. There is to be a Shakespearean festival at Stratford, Ontario, next year, and we understand that two or three leading English actors will be imported to head the company. Why? Because the Stratford committee knows its business, and knows that Canadians would not accept a Canadian like Knox as a first-rate attraction, although they are ready enough to see what is excellent in actors who are not of our nation.

* * *

When Professor Lower says that we are a nation of second bests he has more reason on his side than we like to admit. The case of Alexander Knox is not an isolated one. Throughout the world there are men of exceptional ability in a score of spheres who are Canadians, who are lost to Canada because Canada has blandly rejected them. Instead of huffing and puffing at Professor Lower we might be wise to pay close attention to what he says. Truth is a bitter pill, but Canada needs a purge to rid it of some of its self-honouring complacency.

The Serpent Of Regulation

The Archbishop of York recently made this remarkable statement in an address at Halifax, England: "Widespread dishonesty, one of the sins of our times, has affected all classes in Britain"; he called upon the Church of England "to educate and [illegible] people's moral and social conscience". If this comment by the Archbishop stood alone, we should not attach as much importance to it as we do, but from other British spokesmen, from travellers and from some personal experience we know that the general standard of honesty in Britain is not what it once was. We are sorry for this decline, and wonder how it has come about.

It is easy to blame the Welfare State, but we do not think that socialism in Britain explains the matter satisfactorily. Rather, we blame the war, which has left the country short of many things that people want, and which other and apparently less solvent nations have. When people cannot have something which they think they have a right to, they are apt to become dishonest; what they cannot get by fair means they will get by means which are not so fair. And thus the general standard of honesty slips. The pages of Punch are an interesting gauge of public opinion in Britain, and since the war a character has appeared there who used not to have a place in the national gallery of comic characters; he is the "spiv," the petty crook, the man who can get something for you which you cannot get by legal means. The British did not formerly think that petty crooks were amusing.

The effects of war must bear the chief blame then. But the concept of the Welfare State is not utterly blameless. The desire to raise the living standard of the poorest section of the population is a laudable one, and in Britain the lowest level was pitifully low. But with this desire to help the poorest there is often linked, in the socialist mind, a desire to punish the rich, and to regulate and dragoon those classes which, without being rich, have been comfortable. Such an attitude is bound to provoke resentment, and resentment gives rise to a contempt for regulations and the laws which lie behind them. When a government begins to tell the businessman, in detail, how to run his business, and the farmer how to work his farm, resentment grows apace. And when businessman and farmer find that they are working chiefly for other people, they find ways of avoiding rules which appear to them to be more troublesome than just.

Under the Conservatives, as well as under the Socialist government, this sort of irritating regulation goes on. Britain seems to be in the grip of a great serpent of governmental meddling, which will not relax its hold. A strongly independent people, the British resist, and part of their resistance finds its outlet in dishonesty, great and small.

A Quaker Call

There are fewer than 1,200 Quakers in Canada, and they have no effective means of making their public pronouncements known here. Because we think that it is of the highest merit, we reprint here a declaration which was agreed upon at a recent Quaker conference at Oxford:

> "The Christian faith, which we believe is the hope of our troubled world, is a revolutionary faith. It is rooted in inward experience, but wherever it is genuine, it leads to radical changes in the ways in which men live and act. We rejoice in the movements, appearing in many parts of the world at once, which are inspired by the desire for social justice, equal right for all races and the dignity of the individual person. These changes can neither be achieved nor prevented by war. War leads to a vicious circle of hatred, oppression, subversive movements, false propaganda, rearmament, and new wars. An armaments race cannot bring peace, freedom or security. We call upon peoples everywhere to break this vicious circle, to behave as nations with the same decency as they would behave as men and brothers, to substitute the institutions of peace for the institutions of war. Let us join together throughout the world to grow more food, to heal and prevent disease, to conserve and develop the resources of the good earth to the glory of God and the comfort of man's distress. These are among the tasks to which in humility for our share of the world's shame, and in faith in the power of love, we call our own Society and all men and nations everywhere."

The Quakers (or Friends, as they would probably prefer to be called) have always laid particular emphasis on the necessity for a personal spiritual life, as opposed to a spiritual life which is focussed upon a church or a community. We have no desire to enter into a discussion of the merits and demerits of their way of thinking, but we believe that most people will agree with us that their faith has borne remarkable fruit in humanitarian work. For this reason we think that people of many faiths will be interested in the above declaration, which contains nothing new, but which states with admirable clarity and terseness certain propositions which cannot be too often repeated.

A Short Way From Sweden

An airline which is representative of Denmark, Sweden and Norway and is called Scandinavian Airlines is planning a polar service across the top of the world, to link northern Europe with the North American west coast. The commercial attraction is, of course, the transport and passenger business which can be got from San Francisco and Los Angeles, with Seattle and Vancouver on the way. To make this difficult but shorter run from Stockholm possible and permissible, the Scandinavian countries are now negotiating with Ottawa for the right to land [illegible] from Vancouver and Edmonton. The treaty negotiations and the Scandinavian Airlines plans emphasize again the strategic and commercial importance of Canada's land mass which is the top of the world.

NOTES AND COMMENT

Music is like medicine, says a doctor. Well, we'll admit we have heard some that was rather hard to take.

The choice is a simple one: do you want to be a patient pedestrian or a pedestrian patient?

Every now and then some belittling oldtimer will grumble that our grandfathers knew nothing of vitamins. True—but a lot of the dishes they favoured were just crowded with the things.

A psychologist says that "short, thick, rotund people are of an easily adjustable nature." He should try sitting between two of them in those seats in the P.C.V.S. auditorium!

BIBLIOMANIA:

The Great John A.

JOHN A. MACDONALD, The Young Politician, by Donald Creighton. (MacMillan Co.)

A NEW, THOROUGH biography of the first Prime Minister of Canada has long been needed. Most writing about Sir John A. has been a rehashing of Sir Joseph Pope's Memoirs, or jottings of personal recollection by other men who knew Macdonald. Pope's monumental Memoirs of Sir John Macdonald appeared in 1894. His smaller Day of Sir John Macdonald (1922) was itself chiefly a reworking and condensation of the earlier large account. This new biography by Professor Donald Creighton of the University of Toronto appears to fill a fifty-year need and to be an important work on Macdonald.

It has the advantages which the distillation of time allow to an exact scholar and historian who has spent many years of research on the life and time of his subject. Pope's Memoirs appeared little more than three years after Macdonald's death, too soon to permit a systematic analysis. But if Professor Creighton has an advantage in scholarly detachment and the perspective of time, Pope had an intimacy and immediacy. Pope knew and worked with Macdonald. This circumscribed (as Macdonald's literary executor) his independence, but it gave his account a lively authority which this new biography misses in its scholarly authority.

The author's accuracy and scholarship cannot be questioned. An appended note on his authorities and 28 pages of footnotes prove, as the text indicates, that the author has gone back to source material in archives and state offices, much of it never before adequately analysed. The present volume is the first of two. It takes Sir John through his first 52 years, up to the Confederation, July 1st, 1867, of which Sir John was the principal instrument. The second volume, due next year, will conclude the biography.

HERE ARE SHOWN in detail the circumstances of Macdonald's boyhood, his apprenticeship in the law and setting up his own office when he was only 20; his rapid rise in public notice; member of the Assembly at 29 and a cabinet minister at 32; the story of his marriage to his first cousin and her illness within a year which twisted Macdonald's life for a dozen years until she died; of the political Macdonald, his tangles with Brown and Rep. by Pop; of the Militia Bill; of the annexation sentiment (Macdonald never subscribed to the Manifesto of 1849). Here is shown the Macdonald who at twenty already had "a lusty appetite for people, talk, debate, literary conversation, and conviviality".

The major part of the book must of course present Macdonald during the see-saw decade when Confederation became first necessary and then inevitable. The Charlottetown conference seems to have been something of a picnic. Macdonald and the "formidable" Canadian delegation arrived by the steamer Queen Victoria. They were little noticed in the "sudden influx of visitors". Most were coming to see a circus! This was the main attraction, the first circus to visit the Island in 21 years. Almost no arrangements had been made to house the delegates.

Macdonald and others used the ship as a billet, and entertainment headquarters. On the second morning of the conference, Macdonald made a speech and afterwards all repaired to the Queen Victoria for lunch. So good a host was Macdonald that "they were still talking and drinking toasts, until late in the evening".

✦ ✦ ✦

THERE ARE people living in this district who can remember the first Dominion Day of 1867. Yet how far away the time seems when one reads in this biography, of the power and influence of the Governors, particularly of Sir Edmund Walker Head and Viscount Monck. How backwoodsy and provincial and deferential were the Colonial leaders; Macdonald, for instance, seeking their support, letters of introduction and hanging on their words. And yet, in June, 1865, two years before Confederation, Oxford gave Macdonald its highest honorary degree—D.C.L.—and the Canadian statesman was wined and dined by the great of England.

This biography is complete in its detail, panoramic in its Canadian scope. But somehow it is unsatisfactory. The reason may be that the author is a historian and not a biographer.

There is over-stuffing and the style suggests artifice rather than art when the author strains to make it interesting and vivid. The very first chapter begins with novelistic inversion which ill-suits Professor Creighton's scholarship: "In those days they usually came by boat"—a reference clarified only three pages later. One feels that the writer has stayed too close to his filing cabinet—and is consciously trying to correct this stance.

YEAR IN, YEAR OUT, by A. A. Milne (Methuen).

IT IS ASTONISHING to realize that A. A. Milne is seventy. He may look seventy—we have not seen any recent picture of him—but he does not write like a man of seventy. That mellow didacticism which so often overtakes elderly authors seems to have passed him by. His writing is as delightfully fresh as in The Holiday Round which he wrote, in all[illegible]

This is a book of [illegible] together in the form of an almanac. It is all good reading, but it contains some things which are in Milne's best vein. His notes on Bernard Shaw's "Candida", for instance, will warm many hearts, for which of us has not longed to tell that insufferably smug little housewife precisely what she is and what her pretensions amount to? There are some excellent notes on light verse, about which Milne must be allowed to speak as an expert. There is much that is interesting about the writer's profession generally. There is some good stuff about lawyers. But the whole book is good and if at any time you have admired Milne, this is a chance to renew and deepen that admiration. This is a book, by the way, which would make a very welcome Christmas gift.

FOR OUR QUOTATION this week, a snatch from the Milne book reviewed above: "And now I would give you my 'Ode To Asparagus' but it is not yet written, and time passes. Yet, since the earlier poets have been (I suppose) too busy eating it to sing of it, I must do what I can, if it be no more than four lines of tribute:

> Asparagus, in hours of ease
> A pleasing substitute for peas,
> When pain and anguish wring the brow
> The only vegetable, thou."

The Poor Lady Can't Decide Which One She Fears Most

Canada's Winter Colony

(Matthew Smith in 'Mayfair')

WHEN Stanley Minshall left his home in Ingersoll, Ontario, one winter day twenty-five years ago, he told his friends he'd be back in a few weeks. He was going south to see the sun, he laughed. Minshall went to Florida and stopped in St. Petersburg. Three weeks later he was still there. In fact, that was the last Ingersoll ever saw of him. He became in a sense, the founder of Canada's biggest winter colony in the south—St. Petersburg and neighboring Tampa are winter vacation centres each year for 80,000 Canadians.

After launching a successful florist business, Minshall became interested in St. Petersburg politics. He ran for and was elected to the City Council and served several terms. Then he was elected to the Florida state legislature. While there he introduced a bill which, in effect, would democratize the local electoral system. At that time the citizens of St. Petersburg elected only the town councillors, who in turn chose a mayor from their own ranks. Minshall's bill, passed by the legislature, gave the citizens the right to elect their own mayor. Two years later they did—he was Minshall.

Unlike Minshall, not every Canadian visitor stays there so long or becomes so solidly entrenched in business and civic affairs, but for at least six months of the year a sizeable percentage of the population is Canadian and, naturally, so is the atmosphere. In addition to the transient Canadian population there is a large permanent one too. A Canadian—Roy Thomson—owns the leading daily newspaper in St. Petersburg, and others direct some of the area's largest industries and resort hotels.

Last year the winter-vacation influx from Canada in the St. Petersburg-Tampa area was big enough to populate a city the size of Calgary. Five thousand travellers arrived by plane, 5,000 by bus, 15,000 by train and another 55,000 made the long drive south by car, many with trailers.

Toronto today stands second from the top of the list of the home towns of winter visitors to the area; New York stands eleventh. The fact is that New Yorkers prefer noisier Miami and Miami Beach, with their miles of cliff-like hotels, to the quieter atmosphere of the west coast. High on the list of visitors' home towns are such Canadian places as Ottawa, Oshawa, Peterborough, London, Hamilton, Montreal, Winnipeg and Windsor.

Like Canada itself, Flordia's west coast is booming—the fastest-growing part of the state. It is perhaps this sense of typical northern vigour, in spite of the sometimes-boiling sun, that attracts Canadians. That and the fact that the way of life is closer to that in Canada than is the case with the east coast. In contrast to Miami, west-coast towns boast not a single nightclub worth mentioning. But St. Petersburg and its almost-twin city of Tampa have more than 180 churches. They may be slightly different from Canadian churches in their neon signs and their advertisements. "Air-conditioned for your comfort," but their services are to capacity congregations.

Nature's Sweetest Gift

(OTTAWA CITIZEN)

TO CHILDREN, liquorice means the savory plugs, pipes and jawbreakers that are sold at corner stores. To parents, it means a constant outlay of pennies and a steady procession of dirty faces.

Yet according to a "public interest" advertisement in the current Atlantic Monthly, liquorice has enormous potentialities as "a servant to mankind." A number of useful services are already performed by this "sweetest compound in nature." Besides supplying the flavor for many confections, liquorice improves the quality of mildness in tobacco, helps to keep it moist and flexible. Tobacco manufacturers, not candy-makers, are the largest consumers of liquorice in the U.S. In Britain, it is used to stimulate and preserve the foam in stout, porter and ale. It aids also in aging and mellowing pipes, pickling sheet metals, stabilizing acid latex, and remedying roup, a disease of poultry. Insulating board, pulp for paperboard, a compost for mushroom culture, and a widely used type of fire extinguisher, are all by-products created from the spent root of the licorice plant.

But it is the medicinal properties of the root that may prove most important. Researchers are currently investigating the use of liquorice in healing stomach ulcers and combating a form of anaemia. Its soothing qualities are already well known to manufacturers of cough syrups and throat lozenges.

What is in store for this magical root, this "untested gift of nature whose potential after thousands of years has only been glimpsed in the last 40," the liquorice industry will not even guess. Children at least will hope, however, that the industry will be able to meet all the new demands without reducing the world supply of plugs and jawbreakers.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Thus saith the Lord to his anointed, to Cyrus, whose right hand I have holden, to subdue nations before him. . . .

I am the Lord, and there is none else, there is no God beside me: I girded thee, though thou hast not known me: that they may know from the rising of the sun, and from the west, that there is none beside me. I am the Lord, and there is none else. I form the light, and create darkness: I make peace, and create evil: I the Lord do all these things . . . .

They shall be ashamed, and also confounded, all of them: they shall go to confusion together they that are makers of idols. But Israel shall be saved in the Lord with an everlasting salvation: ye shall not be ashamed nor confounded world without end. For thus saith the Lord that created the heavens; God himself that former the earth and made it; he hath established it, he created it not in vain, he formed it to be inhabited: I am the Lord; and there is none else. (Isa. 45:1, 5-7, 16-18).

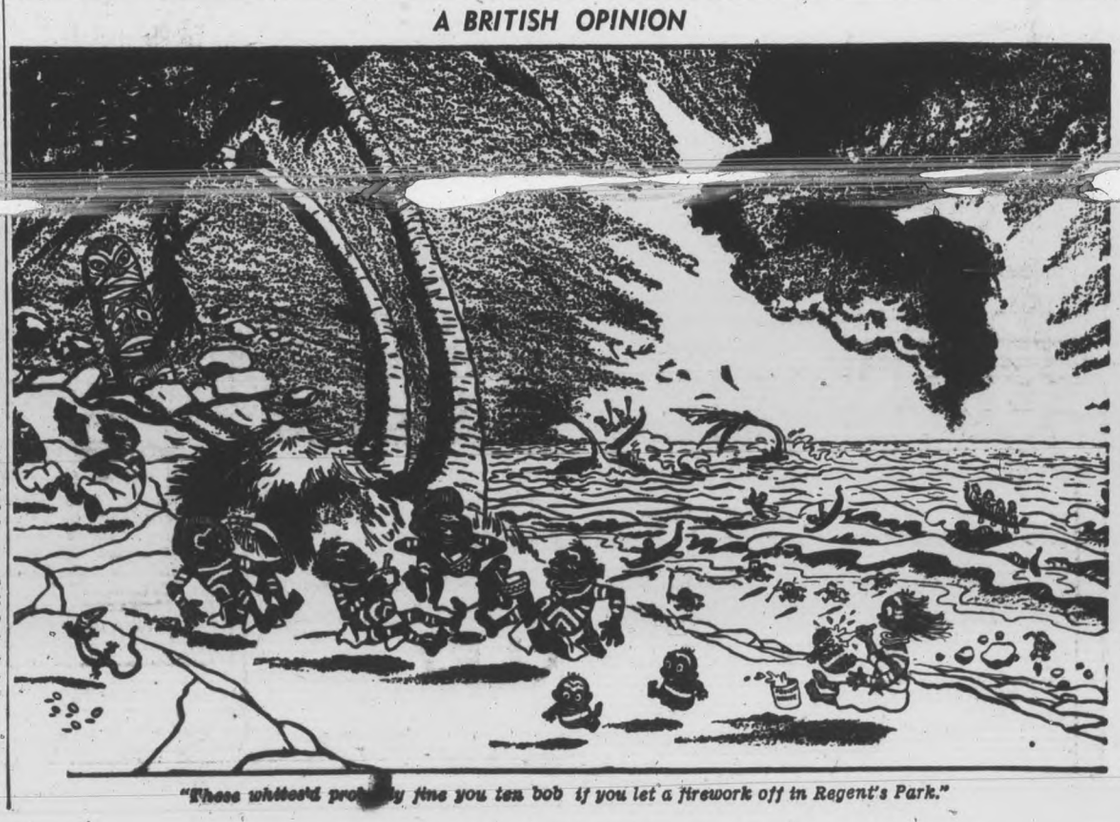
An Ancient Game

(From the Manchester Guardian)

Hopscotch courts (and a track for baby cycles), proposed in a Colchester scheme, give official approval for the first time to an ancient game. Nobody seems to know how old the game of hopscotch is. It was certainly played in the days of Greece and Rome, and the line of several ancient "beds" (scotches or shallow cuts) are said to be seen scored on the pavement of the Forum. The variety of the game sometimes played in England under the name of "round hopscotch" is almost identical with a game described by Pliny as being played by the boys of his day. In the days when hopscotch was more popular than it is now, nearly every town had its own [illegible] written regulations, and even London, as it grew, had many variations. A bit of china or a bit of slate was used there, but in the Black Country the "hop-flags" were made of glass. They were usually supplied by fathers working in the glasshouses and were made in their spare time from any oddment of glass that happened to be handy. Much smoother than either slate or wood, they required more skill in the game, as much skill with the foot perhaps as was required with the hand by the fathers playing shove-half-penny in the local pub.

Salmon In Algonquin Park

(Ontario, Bulletin)



Atlantic salmon have been introduced to Cedar and Cauchon Lakes in Algonquin Park.

After extensive study and field work, biologists of the Department selected these two lakes as the most suitable for the experiment. The lakes have several gravel-bottomed tributaries which are sufficiently free of beaver dams to allow free movements of the salmon. These tributaries were necessary for the initial planting of the salmon fry and will also provide suitable spawning areas in later years.

The Atlantic salmon is well known along the coastal waters of the Maritime provinces and in the New England states. A large part of its life is spent in the sea where most of its growth takes place.

By raising these fish in land-locked lakes and streams, it is hoped to domesticate the salmon, thereby avoiding the necessity of its going to sea. Certain species of salmon can and do prosper in inland lakes.

UN Group Urges More Freedom Of Information

By NORMAN ALTSTEDTER
Canadian Press Staff Writer

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—The United Nations social committee yesterday completed its discussions on freedom of information with a call for greater publicity for U.N. resolutions.

The committee voted 44-5 (Soviet bloc) with New Zealand abstaining to call on governments and information media to co-operate in disseminating information on U. N. resolutions. The committee defeated a Russian proposal that would have asked governments to disseminate information on U.N. decisions "provided that they agree with the particular resolution."

The final votes indicated the East-West split in the committee during its three weeks of discussion on information. But splits between Arab, some Latin American countries and others on one hand and Western countries on the other were also evidence during the debate.

The committee decisions now go to the General Assembly for formal ratification.

The list of resolutions passed include those concerning right of correction, a code of ethics for journalists, prevention of false news, and further work on freedom of information.

The resolution on the right of correction, among the most controversial passed by the committee, was approved by a vote of 29-19, with nine abstentions. Western countries including Britain, Canada and the United States opposed the resolution.

The present convention on right of correction would allow a government to send a "correction" to another which would be required to pass it along to its press though the newspapers could decide for themselves whether to print it.

Score N. Ireland House On Wide Emigration

BELFAST (Reuters)—The Northern Ireland House of Commons yesterday turned a deaf ear to critics perturbed at the extent of emigration, particularly to Canada.

With a division it rejected their plea to set up a commission of inquiry to find out whether emigration is sapping Northern Ireland's economic strength.

Speaking for the critics, Mrs. Irene Calvert, an independent, said that so far this year 3,500 Ulster people had left for Canada alone.

"This is the policy of the surgeon's knife," she complained. "Once this movement gains momentum it will be almost impossible to stop."

But Labor Minister Ivan Neill said the average number leaving for abroad each year since the war was less than 2,000.

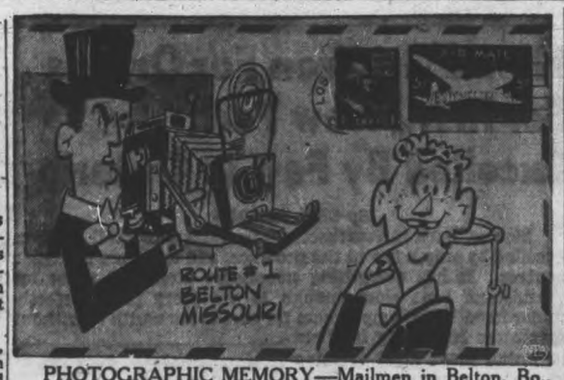
Better Smoking For More People Aim Of Industry

ISTANBUL (AP)—Beter smokes for more people and bettZer business for the tobacco industry is the aim of a new world-wide association of tobacco producers which has been shaping up in this ancient Turkish city.

Tobacco experts of 13 countries, including Canada, have just taken another major step here toward formation of a World Tobacco Organization.

Canada's representative in the W. T. O. is Dr. N. A. MacRae, chief of the tobacco division of the Canadian department of agriculture.

Dr. K. B. Hutson, president of Tobacco Associated Inc., of Washington, D. C., an organization of United States growers and exporters, is provisional president of the new group.



Objectives of the W. T. O. are non-commercial — scientific and technical research and collection and classification of trade statistics.

The group which has been meeting here comprised a 13-country interim committee appointed more than a year ago to put the W T. O. on its feet.

A world tobacco congress in Amsterdam in 1951 set up the interim committee and decided that W T.O. would begin to function as soon as 20 countries announced their intention of joining. About 15 countries have agreed so far, Hutson says.

Hutson emphasizes that the research activities of the W T. O. should be helpful to smaller countries whose facilities for research are limited. W. T. O. researchers will concentrate on such matters as planting, growing, harvesting, curing and processing.

African Tribe Remains Loyal To Chief Who Married White

SEROWE, Bechuanaland (Reuters)—A lone Briton stood before 5,000 hostile Bamangwato tribemen squatting under a pitiless sun yesterday and demanded they give up their young chief who married a white woman.

Prominent tribesman Owabone leaped to his feet and offered to sacrifice his life for the return of exiled chief Seretse Khama. As the assembled Africans murmured approval, he cried:

"We would rather live like wild animals than accept another chief."

The British district commissioner, Gordon Batho, called the three-day kgotla—tribal meeting—to consider the election of a new chief. Britain deposed 31-year-old Seretse as chieftain and banished him on grounds his marriage to a red-haired London typist, Ruth Williams, made him unfit to rule.

Owabone challenged Batho to those in favor of electing a new test tribal feeling by asking all chief to stand up.

Batho ignored the challenge and said: "The government decision is final."

Owabone rose again. "Force is being used against us," he said. "But you will have to kill us. We will die rather than change our minds and our loyalty to Seretse."

Thanks For Clothing

HASTINGS (ENS) — Thanks from the Jesuit Overseas Relief was received by the Hastings Subdivision of the Catholic Women's League at its November meeting for 90 pounds of clothing sent in October. Of the upset grid win by Montreal Lakeshore Flyers over Ottawa on Sunday, the Ottawa Journal commented in part: "With that 13-12 win under their belts, the Flyers head for the eastern intermediate playoff. Big, alert and working like demons, the underdogs came through to edge a team that was considered an almost sure-thing winner. 'It was the field that beat us,' the Ottawa coach said; 'in all that muck we couldn't get moving along the ground. The only time we really got going was when Robillard started to throw those passes in the second half. I guess he just didn't throw enough of them.' Fresh in his mind perhaps were a pair of long, arching heaves to Chuck Paul and Marc Pitre that accounted for 10 of Ottawa's 12 points."

* * * * * *

Montreal Star said: "Farrington, showing more nerve than a daylight bank robber, called a dazzling game. He piloted possibly the finest downfield march seen this year when, on seven successive first downs, he drove the Flyers into payoff territory in the third. On five of those seven downs, Farrington gambled on a third down, usually sending big Parsons over, but taking it himself once to mix Ottawa up. Parsons scored the major. Martin got the other when he broke out behind perfect blocks thrown by Bartlett and Chaiken and outraced Chuck Paul for a brilliant 75-yard score. Martin earlier had been called back on a terrific 70-yard gain for holding in the line."

Four Good Reasons

There are a few opinions of writers covering the Q.R.F.U. final in Verdun. Like the late Will Rogers, all we know is what we see in the papers. At least, that's all we know of the Montreal gridders who come here Saturday for the Eastern Canada final. But we do know what Peterborough Orfuns are like, and we know that Coach Tony Kotowski scouted the Flyers and he thinks Orfuns can beat 'em. Fans should be out in such force Saturday at Morrow Park as to set a new attendance record here for football frays. They should be on deck (a) because it'll be a great game and a most important one, (b) because it is the last football to be played here till next autumn; (c) the Orfuns will go better with a mounting roar of encouragement from the stands as the game progresses; and (d) the club needs a whole lot of money to carry on.

Hockey action here this week opens with two pre-season T.V.L. tilts tonight at Civic, starting at 7:30: Hastings vs. Norwood, and Lakefield vs. Havelock. The senior "B" Petes are off to Stouffville, and they have Oshawa Truckers here Friday. Local juniors trek to Kingston tomorrow. P.M.H.A. games Thursday, commencing at six: Bantam Shamrocks vs. Trojans, Norwood vs. midget Aces, Marines vs. Aces juves, Shamrock midgets vs. Otonabee Wolves, and Shamrocks vs. either I.O.O.F. or Havelock juveniles. Friday at six p.m. it'll be Swartz vs. the bantam Aces. Jim Ellis says the Petes will grant transfers to players desiring same but these players should have their new club apply to the Petes' secretary, making it a club-to-club deal.

Guys in the N. H. L.

Ike Hildebrand in nine games played for Cleveland so far this A.H.L. season has 11 scoring points, and has served four minutes in penalties. George (Red) Sullivan with Hershey has eight points in 11 games, but sat it out for 12 minutes in the penance pew. Hm, must be developing into a rugged player since his year in the N.H.L. Both he and Lorne Ferguson will likely be back with Bruins ere long. Red returned to Hershey to put on more weight for the harder hockey in the National League. Such other N.H.L.-ers as Bill Ezinicki, Bill Juzda and Danny Lewicki are toiling presently for the Leaflan camp at Pittsburgh.

Grey Cup ticket madness will soon sweep the east again as the big senior football playoff of the year looms up toward the end of the month. There has been quite a scramble already for the precious pasteboards, and many a grid fanatic will be lucky to get a ticket at scalpers' prices. Like a lot of others, we were tickled yesterday to hear Edmonton Eskimos had knocked off Winnipeg to represent the west in the cup final against either Argos or Hamilton. It's much better to have new faces from time to time in Canada's outstanding sports event of the year, and for that reason many hope it'll be Hamilton vs. Edmonton in this coming football classic.

Hither and Yawning

There is one other doubtful starter for Orfuns here Saturday as Reg. Burns—a valuable lineman with them for years—is still nursing an injured knee....P.C.V.S. is preparing for the C.O.S.S.A. senior "A" final this weekend in Port Colborne....Three bouts set for tonight's pro grappling card at the Brock, topped by Lou Plummer vs. Chief Big Heart....Two girls' cage contests Friday p.m. at the Y.W., beginning at 8:10: Collis vs. St. Joseph's, and Black's vs. C.G.E.....Plenty of curling nightly now at the Charlotte St. rink ....Belleville junior puckists opened their schedule at home with a 5-4 win against Kingston Vics....Arn Dugan scored two for Brantford last night as his side beat Chatham 5-2....Maurice (Lefty) Reid, who used to pitch softball here, is sportswriter in Chatham....Leafs lead the N.H.L. penalty parade while Rangers have served least time of any....And soon the remaining deer will have naught to contend with but the wolves.

Mazza, Fedosoff Win Awards In Big Four

OTTAWA (CP) — A cagey Hamilton Tiger-Cats lineman and a rookie Toronto Argonauts backfielder won two of the most distinguished trophies in Big Four football this year.

Vince Mazza, powerful 27-year-old Ti-Cats' middle, is the 1952 winner of the Jeff Russel trophy, awarded to the league's most valuable and sportsmanlike player.

Johnny Fedosoff, talented 18-year-old Argo backfielder, captured the Gruen trophy as the rookie of the year.

Both awards were announced today by D. Wes Brown, Big four secretary-treasurer, following selections by 12 league referees and field judges and five league governors.

EIGHT NOMINATED

Mazza, canny field tactician with ability to sense opposition plays, was selected from among eight players nominated for the award. A big, burly import, Mazza joined the Ti-Cats in 1950 after Buffalo Bills folded. He started at left outside.

Clean line-smashing tactics, built around a powerful frame six feet two inches high and weighing 235 pounds earned Mazza a Big Four all-star berth in his first two years in Canadian football.

The Jeff Russel trophy was first awarded in 1928 to commemorate a young Montreal player who lost his life in an accident. It goes to a Hamilton player for the first time in 19 years. Huck Welch of the old Hamilton Tigers won in 1933.

Since then it has swung back and forth among the other three teams. Altogether, Ottawa has held it eight times, Toronto Argos seven times, Montreal Alouettes three times and Hamilton four. There were no awards in 1942-43-44. Last year it was held by Bruce Cummings, Ottawa's kicking halfback.

Mazza's ability and sportsmanship helped him top these other trophy nominees:

Ted Toogood and Red Ettinger of Toronto Argos; Gene Roberts and Bob Simpson, Ottawa Rough Riders; Jim Staton and John O'Quinn, Montreal Alouettes; and Hal Waggoner, Hamilton Ti-Cats.

FEDOSOFF RODE BENCH

Fedosoff is a former Mimico, Ont., high school star playing senior football for the first time this year. He was among the top 25 Big Four scorers with 15 points even though he rode out most of the season on the Toronto bench.

Only in recent weeks has the 190-pound five-foot 11-inch youngster seen heavy action. But he's figuring prominently in future Argo plans and Big Four fans likely will see a lot more of him next year.

He took rookie honors over these other candidates: Chester Miksza, Hamilton; Don Hollingworth, Ottawa; and Andre Brunet, Montreal.

The Gruen trophy, first awarded in 1947, was held last year by Ottawa's Bruno Bitkowski, Rough Riders' lineman.

SOCCER TOUR PLANS

LONDON (AP) — Provisional dates for the England soccer team's tour of South and North America next spring were set yesterday by the English Football Association. The international contest with the United States is scheduled for New York June 4 or 7.

Home Gridiron For Orfuns Set In Morrow Park Excelled By Few In Ontario

By CEC. PERDUE

Morrow Park in Peterborough provides a football gridiron excelled by only a few in the province, and these are in bigger centres. It has everything necessary: plenty of room for grandstand fans close enough to see every play perfectly under floodlights; ample room for cars to park with or without spectators remaining in them to watch play; good dressing rooms and other conveniences, and the layout is close to the centre of the city, providing handy bus transportation.

It was first used for organized football in 1938 when Orfuns were in senior ranks. Visiting squads such as Toronto Balmy Beach, Montreal Nationals and Sarnia Imperials, expressed satisfaction at the long, wide, level layout. No balls are kicked over fences there, or lost in the river, such as has happened at Riverside Park. The latter place, of course, is a baseball park and has several gridiron drawbacks. The Oval lacks seating accommodation, except when temporary bleachers are installed —and it has no lights for night play.

A BETTER FIELD

When Orfuns were in senior company, their field in Morrow Park—known generally then as Exhibition Grounds — was better actually than the C.N. field used by the Nats in Montreal, or the big park used in Sarnia. Beaches played in Maple Leaf Stadium where baseball holds sway till out in the fall. Hamilton Ti-Cats presently have a fine stadium and Argos perform at home in massive Varsity Stadium, the best football setup in the east. Rough Riders do their stuff in rambling Lansdowne Park, where exhibitions are held. Some of the senior college teams have fine stadiums for home action.

In their local group this fall, the O.R.F.U. intermediate "A" champion Orfuns had no better field on which to play anywhere than here in Peterborough. The large grassy sward has nothing more than a snow fence around three sides of it, with the race track on the other. Players' and officials' benches nudge the playing area on the north side, with the huge stands looming across the track. Cars line the three sides of the low fence and no fans encroach on the field — as they do in so many places — even in the final few minutes of play. It is well policed. The lighting is first-rate, too.

Beneath the stands are a number of dressing rooms of various sizes, these being used during exhibition time by the vaudeville performers. Morrow Park has a caretaker on hand all the time and the place is kept in top repair.

LARGE TURNOUTS

While a new football attendance record may be reached in Morrow Park this Saturday afternoon when Montreal Flyers and Orfuns clash in the sudden-death Eastern Canada intermediate "A" final, this place has seen large grid crowds before. Some big turnouts of fans have filled a good part of the lengthy stands at intermediate contests in recent years. Larger ones practically filled the place in 1938-39 to see such players perform as Ab Box, Bummer Stirling, Tony Golab, Johnny Ferraro, Don Crowe, Mike Loucks, Les Ascott and many other senior stars of a decade and more ago. They have drawn nearly 3,500 football followers to some of those games, though the highest exact figure was never made public.

It is not improbable, given fair weather, that a crowd of close to 4,000 might fill the stands this weekend to see Peterborough after its first Eastern Canada football title since 1907, according to the C.R.U. record book. A stretch of 45 years is a long time to wait for such an event and not only grid fans but local people in general are suddenly keenly interested in the classy 1952 Orfuns, under Coach Tony Kotowski. The lineup includes half a dozen ace Orillia players. The winner Saturday goes west Nov. 22 to Winnipeg for a chance to capture the Canadian championship.

ATHLETE OF YEAR—Jerry Gratton, 25-year-old middleweight class weightlifter from Verdun, Que., has been named athlete of the year for 1952 by the Amateur Athletic Union. He was awarded the Norton H. Crowe trophy. Gratton placed second in his class at the Helsinki Olympics last summer. He was fifth in the 1948 Olympics at London and in 1950 won the British Empire Games title at Auckland, N.Z.

T.V.L. Expects 10 Teams For Puck Play

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS — The T.V.L. will comprise a 10-team loop this year, if things go according to plan.

Following a meeting this week, it was announced that leauge will get under way at the first of the year. Teams from Lakefield, Havelock, Hastings, Norwood, Marmora, Stirling, Frankford and Wellington, all of which were members of the league last year, and Campbellford is back again after a year's absence. Point Anne is expected to be a new comer to the league.

The teams will be grouped into two or three divisions with the winners of each contending for the championship of the league in the form of the Bata Memorial Trophy.

IN LAKESHORE

Trenton R.C.A.F. Flyers have entered O.H.A. Lakeshore Intermediate "A" this year. They took the championship last year in the southern section.

Officers were elected for the coming season. They are: Honorary president, Dr. C. K. Herz, Batawa; president, Arthur Duncan, Batawa; first vice-president, William Regan, Marmora; second vice-president, Frank Openshaw, Trent River; third vice-president, Leonard Greer, Wellington, and secretary-treasurer, R. H. (Dick) Bridgman, Trenton.

LOSES, MUST ROLL EGG

EDMONTON (CP)—Smoke Lane of Edmonton today regrets his lack of faith in Edmonton Eskimos football club. Prior to the western championship game at Winnipeg yesterday with Blue Bombers, Lane wagered the Winnipeg club would win. He lost when the Eskimos upset the odds-makers with a 22-11 victory. On Saturday, Lane is due to roll an egg four blocks down an Edmonton street, with his nose, at the height of the afternoon rush.

Wrestling Card Set For Tonight

Chief Big Heart, the Osage Indian wrestling star from Oklahoma, will meet Larrupin' Lou Plummer, the rough and ready Texas ranch-hand, in the main bout at the Brock tonight.

Big Heart is both a capable and colorful wrestler, with his bow-and-arrow and Indian deathlock specialty holds, his tribal war dance before his bouts, his head-dress and tom-tom accompaniment by his father.

Plummer, however, boasts he will topple the popular Indian. "He won't be able to stand up under my he-man kind of wrestling," bragged Lou.

Johnny Barend of Rochester will meet Bull Montana of Omaha in the semi-final. Dick Raines of Texas will oppose Tony Lanza of Montreal in the first event.

Esks Trim Bombers 22-11, Win West

By AL VICKERY

WINNIPEG (CP)—Edmonton's fabulous Eskimos roared into the Grey Cup Final Tuesday brushing aside the dopesters and the Winnipeg Blue Bombers on the way in. Proving again they're the team to beat when the chips are down, the redoubtable Esks whipped the favored Winnipeg team 22-11 Tuesday to take the Western Canada football title with two straight — and smart — victories. In winning the deciding game of the best-of-three series, they became the first Edmonton club to reach the Canadian final in 30 years.

A champion's welcome awaited them in Edmonton, where delerious fans never were in any doubt as to the outcome.

Everyone else said they couldn't do it—Bombers hadn't been beaten two straight all season—but the Eskimos evidently didn't believe in past performances. They went out and backed up with action Coach Frankie Filchock's statement:

"We go best with our backs to the wall."

The amazing Esks were counted out after their 28-12 defeat at home in the first game against the Bombers, but they surged back to win the second 18-12 last Saturday, forcing the saw-off.

It was after the second game that Filchock predicted flatly "we'll win" the West and Grey Cup finals.

The East-West classic will be played at Toronto Nov. 29, an event no Edmonton team has made since 1922, when the Esks lost 31-1 to Queen's University. In the previous year—the only other time Edmonton represented the west—they lost 23-0 to Toronto Argonauts.

TOP DEFENSIVE DISPLAY

One of the major factors in Esks' two victories in the final was Filchock's defensive set-up which handcuffed the passing of quarterback Jack Jacobs, named the most valuable player in the W.I.F.U. this year.

In the final game, Jacobs completed 13 of 28 passes for a meagre gain of 125 yards. He was consistently rushed by Esks' two hard-charging ends, all-star and captain Rollin Prather and Frank Anderson.

Besides turning in a fine defensive chore, the two accounted for all three Edmonton touchdowns. Anderson scored two and Prather one, an 88-yard pass-and-run play from quarter Claude Arnold.

Tackle Bill Snyder converted all three and kicked a field goal and single for the other seven points.

Rookie winner Lorne Benson plunged for Winnipeg's lone touchdown, converted by Jacobs, who added the other points with two singles and a field goal.

Filchock, who missed the last two games due to a shoulder separation, said the whole team played "terrific ball. You just couldn't single out one man. . . It was a good win and we beat a good ball team."

If anyone could be singled out, many of the 9,600 fans who jammed Osborne Stadium probably would pick Arnold, the slim signal-caller from Oklahoma, who threw three touchdown passes and generally called a heady game.

PEG TAKES LEAD

The Bombers held a 5-0 edge in the first quarter on Jacobs' kicks. Edmonton roared back to take a 6-5 lead at the half. Steve Mendryk cut off a Bomber threat by intercepting a Jacobs' pass behind the Esks line. Two plays later, Arnold passed over centre to Prather on the 40, and the hard-hitting end went all the way. Snyder's convert gave Edmonton its slim lead.

An 18-yard field goal by Snyder upped the count to 9-5 midway through the third quarter, but Bombers forged ahead 11-9 when Benson bulled over on his third try from the one-yard line after a Winnipeg downfield drive.

The quarter ended with Esks in possession on the Winnipeg 22 after Miles made a diving catch of an Arnold pass. Arnold's pass to Anderson over safety-man Joe Zaleski's head put Esks in front 14-11. Snyder converted and the Eskimos never looked back.

Anderson added his second major—a 53-yard pass play from Arnold. Snyder converted, then later booted a single when his attempted field goal went wide and Bombers Mickey Maguire conceded the point.

Stanky In Dispute, Shake Coaches

ST. LOUIS (AP)—A shake-up in the St. Louis Cardinal coaching staff brought repercussions yesterday with the little manager, Eddie Stanky, right in the thick of it.

Terry Moore, who became a Cardinal great in the old gashouse days of the club, was fired as a coach at the beck of Stanky.

Stanky, the National League manager of 1952, said:

"I exercised the manager's privilege of making a change in my coaching staff. Why all the discussion?"

Moore reported that Stanky was tempermentally unsuited to be a manager; that the job was too big for him. "When he loses a ball game he's like a year-old boy than a man."

Owner Fred Saigh remained quiet about the stir caused by the little man whom he lifted into the managerial ranks last season.

On the heels of Moore's ouster came word that another veteran coach, Clyde Wares, was given his unconditional release by the Cardinals. No reason was given.

Boston's Sugar Jim Looks Like Vezina Bet As Bruins Blank Leafs 4-0

By CRAIG ARMSTRONG, Canadian Press Staff Writer

It's early in the National Hockey League season to talk about the Vezina Trophy, but the name of Sugar Jim Henry is being whispered. Sugar Jim, one of the most travelled goalies in the business, is far ahead in the goaltenders race with a torrid 1.17 average for the first 13 games of the scheduled 70. In addition he has three shutouts to his credit—two more than any other netminder in the circuit.

Toronto Maple Leafs were his latest victims in the whitewash department Tuesday when Boston scored a 4-0 victory in a Remembrance Day matinee.

The Bruins, whose victory moved them ahead of Detroit into fourth place in the league standings, exploded for four goals in the first period and then settled down to solid defensive play to give Sugar Jim his second shutout in his last three games.

LUM NOT SO LUCKY

Henry's opposite in the Toronto nets, Harry Lumley, celebrating his 26th birthday, gave him a boost when he hooked the first goal into the Toronto nets. It was credited to Joe Klukay. The other Boston marksmen were Real Chevrefils, Hal Laycoe and Fleming Mackell.

The matinee experiment, an attempt to bolster the sagging gate, was far from a success. The 7,861 fans just more than half filled the big rink. At night a basketball exhibition attracted 13,900 customers.

Chicago has a chance to move into a first-place tie with Montreal in tonight's only game. The Black Hawks, wonder team of the season so far, visit the tail-end Rangers in New York. A tie would knot them in second place with Toronto. New York, far in the cellar, has won one game and tied three.

EDGAR RETURNS

However, fans of the Broadway Blues were cheered by the news that their favorite, centre Edgar Laprade, is returning.

Laprade wanted to retire from pro hockey, run his sporting goods business in Port Arthur and perhaps play a little amateur hockey.

But fate—in this case Manager Frank Boucher of the Rangers and League President Clarence Campbell—ruled differently. Campbell refused to grant him his amateur status and Boucher talked him into returning to give the sagging Blues a lift. He will stay with New York until Dec. 15.

Laprade will arrive in New York for the Rangers' Sunday game with Toronto, but the 32-year-old star said he doesn't think he will be much help.

"Right now I'm certainly not in condition for the National Hockey League. But I'll give it a try."

Why did Edgar leave the relative calmness of his store for the rush and hustle of the N.H.L.?

"Boucher is a hard man to refuse."

Dugan Scores 2 As Brantford Downs Chatham

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Chatham St. Clair Maroons blew their chance to get back into first place in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A race last night.

Black Jack Stewart's Maroons are tied for third place in the league with Owen Sound Mercurys, two points behind the leading Stratford Indians and one behind Sarnia Sailors.

Brantford Redmen won their third start in nine games by downing Chatham 5-2. It left Brantford still in sixth place three points behind Kitchener. Hamilton is in the league cellar.

Sault Ste. Marie (Mich.) Indians pulled an upset in the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior southern group by trimming Sudbury Wolves 6-3. The Wolves are tied for first place with North Bay Trappers. The win pulled Indians into a tie with Sault Ste. Marie (Ont.) Greyhounds for second spot.

REDMEN ALWAYS AHEAD

Brantford pulled away from a first-period lead in their home rink and was never shaded. Arn Dugan scored two for the Redmen with singles going to Bill Shill, Wally Hnatiuk and Sam Kennedy. Joe Carveth and Ernie Dick tallied for the Maroons.

Laurie Peterson led the Indians' revival with three goals and two assists. Ron Rubic, playing coach Johnny Horeck and Jimmy Farelli scored the others. Gord Heale, Mauno Kauppi and Andy Milne scored for the Wolves.

Tonight Brantford visits Sarnia and Owen Sound goes to Stratford. In the N.O.H.A. the Indians meet North Bay.

Paul Masnick Irwin's Choice As Good Centre Prospect

By W.R. WHEATLEY

MONTREAL (CP)—A rugged little centre, sized up by Coach Dick Irvin as "the closest thing to Elmer Lach I've seen come into the National Hockey League," is back with Montreal Canadiens.

He's 21-year-old Paul Masnick, crew-cut blonde youngster from Regina. The prospects are Paul will be a fixture with the club for a long time.

Masnick has seen part-time service with the Canadiens since he came up from the junior Regina Pats two seasons ago. At other times he played with Cincinnati and Buffalo of the American Hockey League. At the start of this season he was sent to Montreal Royals of the Quebec Senior Hockey League, where Canadiens' brass could keep an eye on him. They saw plenty.

Irvin's favorable comparison of Masnick's play with that of Lach in the veteran centre's earlier days was praise enough in itself.

BETTER THAN LACH

"I'll go further," said Irvin. "I think perhaps Masnick is better than Lach was at the same stage of development. Masnick skates like Lach, and he's a tireless worker, too. Just like Elmer.

"Neither one has a particularly hard shot, but both can get goals, and goals are pretty useful things to have."

Masnick's return to the Canadiens means the club will have five centres. Irvin plans to hang on to all of them, remembering the injury jinx that played havoc with his pivot men last season. He can also afford to rest some of his veterans once in a while.

But he figures on putting Masnick definitely on the line with Bernie Geoffrion and Paul Meger, a pony-express line where the average age is 22 and nobody weighs more than 170 pounds.

"I'm glad to get back with the fellows," said Masnick at practice Tuesday. "They're a great bunch to be with. Even the older fellows on the team have always treated me swell."

NHL TOUGH LOOP

How does he compare the N.H.L. with minor leagues?

"The boys shoot harder in the N. H. L. and they throw harder passes at you. Also, you've got to keep your head up or somebody will really wham you."

In his first pro season, Masnick was in 43 games with the Canadiens. He has four goals and one assist. Last season, Canadiens acquired John McCormack from Toronto and Masnick was in only 15 games, getting one goal and two assists. In 31 games in the American Hockey League, he had eight goals and 20 assists. Recalled by Canadiens, he scored an all-important goal against Boston Bruins in sudden-death overtime in the playoffs.

He played in Canadiens' last two games, collecting two assists. The call-up was under the lend-lease regulation. It's lend - lease no longer. It's for keeps.

Flyers Drop 4th Straight, Remain In Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Coach Hap Emms of Barrie may be excused if he sheds some bitter tears although his Flyers are still on top of the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A standings.

Barrie last night dropped the fourth straight game of their Quebec tour in the interlocking schedule with Quebec Junior teams when Montreal Royals reached up from the league cellar to defeat the Flyers 6-4.

Galt Black Hawks forced the Flyers to move over and share first place when they downed Toronto St. Michael's 2-1. It was a big jump for Galt as they vaulted St. Michael's, Toronto Marlboros and Guelph, now tied in third place.

St. Catharines Teepees tightened their grip on sixth place by downing Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts 5-3. Kitchener and Oshawa are next with 10 points and Windsor is last with three.

Even the schedule-makers didn't give Barrie a break. The battered Flyers go back into action tonight in Guelph for the only game in the Ontario section while in Quebec Montreal Royals visit Three Rivers Reds.

First place changed hands in the Quebec Amateur Hockey Association Junior League when Quebec Citadelles took over from Montreal Canadiens by downing them 5-3.

FLYERS EASY PREY

The Royals had no trouble with Barrie, leading 2-1 after the first and 5-3 after the second. Ed Swartzack scored three for the Royals, Ken Naylor notched two others and Ross Watson rammed home a single. Mongeon scored two for the Flyers while Doug Mohns and Fred Pletsch shared the other two.

Camille Henri led the Citadelles to their win by scoring twice while singles went to Gignac, Jacques Pichette and Roland Leclerc. Yvan Chasles, Les Lilley and Henri Richard scored for Canadiens.

St. Catharines took an early lead in Kitchener and never relinquished it. Hugh Barlow and Willard Haas started the Teepees off but the Shirts came back with tallies by Gary Collins and Orv Tessier. Charlie Marshall, Brian Cullen and Joe Kastellic scored other St. Catharines goals while John Ford added one for Kitchener.

The Hawks did some heavy backchecking to beat the hot St Michael's club. Tony Poeta and Jim McBurney put the hawks up 2-0 before Mike Ratchford scored St. Michael's lone goal by stealing a Galt pass inside the Hawks' blue line.

HALL OF FAME SCULLERS — Canadian Amateur Hall of Fame admitted these sculling greats at a memorable ceremony at Hamilton recently. Four noted oarsmen, one long since dead, were paid high tribute and elected to the A.A.U. of C's Hall of Fame. All won the Diamond Sculls for Canada. Left to right-holding membership diplomas are Jack Guest, Sr., Toronto; Lt.-Cmdr. Robert Pearce, Ottawa; Lou Scholes, Jr., Toronto, who accepted the membership for his deceased father; and Joe Wright, Jr., Toronto.

Beaches' Pont Wins ORFU Player Award

TORONTO (CP)—Johnny Pont, 170-pound bundle of dynamite from the Toronto Balmy Beach half line, won the Imperial Oil trophy as the most valuable player in the Ontario Rugby Football Union Senior series in his first season in Canadian football.

Donald F. Downey, O.R.F.U. president, announced last night that the five-foot-seven native of Canton, O., topped the 1952 poll of players on the union's four teams. The voting is restricted to players. They vote for two members of their own team and one of another. High man gets the annual award.

Pont, a late arrival who missed the first four games of the season, burned up the league with his powerful running. In eight games he scored 13 touchdowns for 65 points, just five less than the union scoring champion, Corky Duchene of Sarnia Imperials, who got his 70 points in 11 starts.

Gerry Tuttle, playing coach of the Beaches, calls Pont a "coach's dream. . . who always has his heart in the game."

"Without Pont, we wouldn't have it," says Tuttle. "He gives you breakaway speed and is always good for a couple of yards when you need it."

SPOTTED BY CLAIR

Frank Clair, coach of Toronto Argonauts in the Big Four, parent club of the Beaches, is responsible for bringing Pont to Canada. He visited the stocky import at Miami University in Ohio last year where Pont was in the final year of a course leading to a Bachelor of Science (education) degree and asked him to come to Toronto this fall to try out with the Argos.

Instead, Pont first tried out with Green Bay Packers of the U.S. pro league and after nine weeks' training there came to Toronto Sept. 6. He was too late to get into the Argo roster and tried out with the Beaches instead. He plans to return to Canton after this football season and will try to make the Argos next year.

Pont likes the Canadian game and its three downs and doesn't see any need for switching to four as in the U.S. However, he thinks that Canadian backfielders still have to learn how to follow interference to take full advantage of a 1952 rule change which permits unlimited blocking on kickoff returns.

Pont is the 19th winner of the award and the eighth U.S. import to be judged by his competitors as the union's most valuable, most sportsmanlike and most gentlemanly player. Last year's winner was Bruce Mattingly, Canadian-born snapback for the Imperials.

WINS AWARD—Johnny Pont, 170-pound bundle of dynamite from the Toronto Balmy Beach half line, was named the most valuable played in the Ontario Rugby Football Union in his first season in Canadian football. The five-foot seven-inch native of Canton, O., topped the 1952 poll of players on the union's four teams. A late starter, in eight games he scored 13 touchdowns for 65 points, five fewer than the scoring champion, Corky Duchene of Sarnia Imperials who played 11 games.

MEXICO WINS TROPHY

NEW YORK (CP)—Mexico last night captured the international perpetual challenge trophy, final international event at this year's National Horse Show. The Mexican army team of three riders completed the difficult 10-jump course with only four faults. Canada finished fifth with 20¼ faults.

REPLACEMENT—For the first time in 34 years City College of New York has a new basketball coach. Dave Polansky, above, replaces Nat Holman, touring Europe on sabbatical leave.

TRACK STAR—Jackie Carroll, 21, of Verdun, Que., who competed in the Helsinki Olympics, has been awarded the Jack Davies trophy, as Canada's outstanding track star for 1952. The award was made by the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada at is meeting in Hamilton. The Montreal-born quarter-miler ran for the University of Michigan this season.

Shantz Reports Arm Just As Good As Ever

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — The mighty left arm of little Bobby Shantz is out of a cast and as good as new, the 24-game winner reported to his Philadelphia Athletics bosses.

Shantz, whose left wrist was fractured by a pitched ball served by Walt Masterson of Washington Senators Sept. 23, had a few anxious moments, though, after telling Manager Jimmy Dykes the good news Tuesday.

Dykes and General Manager Art Ehlers, with a few sly winks, hinted that it might be best for the arm to be X-rayed before talking contract for 1953.

Shantz took the kidding seriously and hurried to hospital to have the arm X-rayed. Doctors said it is in perfect condition.

Five Injured

GODERICH — (CP) — Thrown through the windshield of a car, Thomas Campion of Goderich was one of five persons injured in a head-on crash yesterday near the R.C.A.F. station, Clinton, on No. 4 highway. Campion was taken to Alexandra Hospital here where his condition was described last night as serious. Also in Goderich hospital are three other Goderich youths: Craig Costello, Morley McLean and Bill Beacom. Sgt. Fred Barclay, R.C.A.F. station, Clinton, was taken to Westminster Hospital London.

Attacked Wife

SIMCOE (CP)—Morley Shephard of Kelvin yesterday was convicted of a charge of attempted murder of his wife during a shooting affray July 12. The jury recommended leniency. Mr. Justice Wilfred Judson remanded Shephard until Thursday for sentencing. Shephard was found innocent on a second charge of wounding his daughter, Marlene, 10, with a shot-gun pellet the same day.

PIGTAILS UP — Pigtails flying, nine-year-old Bobby Gardner took Tiny over hurdles at the National Horse Show in Madison Square Garden. Despite a cast on her right hand, the result of a spill, the little miss of Friendly, Md., finished third among 37 in the lightweight working hunter class.

TALKING ABOUT TWO FLAVOURS

Did you know that delicious, nourishing Ovaltine now comes in TWO flavours? Yes, the ORIGINAL PLAIN flavour and a sweet CHOCOLATE flavour, too. Both provide proteins and energy foods from the ripe barley malt, milk, and eggs used in their manufacture, and the vitamin and mineral content is augmented with additional vitamins A, B_1, C, D, Riboflavin (B_2), Niacin and Minerals—available Iron, Calcium, and Phosphorus.

CHOCOLATE FLAVOURED OVALTINE is ideal for that hot drink at breakfast that every child should have during the fall and winter months. It's nourishing, and the children love the delightful chocolate flavour.

ORIGINAL PLAIN OVALTINE —the favourite food beverage with adults for many years, is also excellent for invalids and convalescents and as a soothing, relaxing bed-time drink for anyone.

CHOCOLATE FLAVOURED and PLAIN OVALTINE are obtainable at all drug and food stores.

Eden Sees Opportunity Commonwealth Talks

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden of Britain said yesterday the Commonwealth economic conference slated for the end of November offers a "famous opportunity."

Speaking in the general debate before the United Nations Assembly, Eden said that in the final resort economic problems "cannot be resolved except on a world basis."

Many U.N. countries will in the immediate future have an opportunity to "take stock of the present position in preparation for a fresh attack on common economic problems," Eden said.

"So far as we in the United Kingdom are concerned, we warmly welcome a Commonwealth conference. . . here can be a famous opportunity."

FAO Sees Boost In Production Of Farm Foods

ROME (Reuters)—The underfed inhabitants of the world have received little relief during the last year but the world's farmers are expected to boost output further in the coming year, the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization said last night.

The forecast was made on the basis of the latest information received on crops just harvested in the northern hemisphere or in preparation in the southern hemisphere.

The F.A.O. said preliminary reports from the main wheat importing areas indicate that production in western Europe may have increased by as much as eight per cent over last year. In India production is estimated at 26 per cent higher. Sowings in Argentina are estimated to be some 30 per cent greater than last year.

"Present indications are that demands on North America for wheat may decline somewhat from the unusually high export of 22,000,000 tons in 1951-52," the F.A.O. said.

The U.N. specialized agency, whose headquarters are in Rome, released its crop forecast shortly after issuing the 1952 edition of the "state of food and agriculture."

The latter report said agricultural production had gone up about two per cent this year compared with last year but added that people in densely populated regions are about as underfed as ever. That is because the production increase was mainly in commodities other than food.

EASTERN TRADITIONS clash with Western ideas . . . Jews from Oriental countries pour into Israel immigrant camps like this, bringing with them two wives or even a small harem.

Bigamy, Polygamy Plague New Government Of Israel

By SIGISMUND GOLDSTEIN

TEL-AVIV, Israel — (NEA)—The new nation of Israel, formed of people from many lands, has found an unwelcome custom smuggled in with some of its immigrants. That's the custom of bigamy and even polygamy.

As waves of Jews from Yemen, Morocco, Libya and other Oriental countries poured into Israel, authorities noted more and more instances of men with two wives and sometimes junior-grade harems. In the lands of their origin, it was natural and right to have more than one wife.

But Israel is a country where Eastern traditions clash with Western ideas. The government is working to uproot the centuries-old custom which "the Bible does not prohibit" but the government does not want to countenance.

HAVE TO BE TOLERATED

There is nothing, officially, which Israel can do about the existing bigamists. Under international law, these marriages were legally contracted in the immigrees' countries of origin. One official shrugs and says, "They have to be tolerated here."

But it is new multiple-wived families that Israel is battling. Parliament pushed through an amendment to the Criminal Code Ordinance, in 1951, proclaiming bigamy to be a criminal offense.

This was only partly successful. It gave the government a weapon, but it took more than just its passage to stop new harems from being formed. Orientals were still "purchasing" second and sometimes third wives whenever they could afford such luxuries.

The government went into action with "flying squads," including experienced social workers, officials of the Justice, Religion and Interior Ministries, and translators. These groups toured immigrant camps, explaining to newcomers, in dozens of languages and dialects, the provisions of the law and the penalties for breaking it.

There were many trials, and many convictions. Newspapers still report sporadic cases, but they are rapidly diminishing in number. The so-called "Operation Monogamy" has apparently all but stopped new bigamy.

In some cases, old harems have been dissolved, usually with the active assistance of one of the wives. These women, brought here by ship or plane from places where the customs have not changed since Biblical times, have suddenly been thrust into a modern world.

PREFERRED SCHOOL

The freedom they found around them awakened them from their habits of subservience to men. They began to complain to police—old women complained of "brutality," younger women told of being "compelled" to marry an old man, some wanted "to go to school."

Social workers, working with these women, managed to dissolve some of the marriages.

"The trouble is," says one official, "that the bulk of bigamists and polygamists do not discriminate, but actually are loyal to all wives. In such cases, we simply can do nothing but wait until new ideas and new generations extinct the old custom."

The new law applies to all Israel citizens, including the Moslem community. Israel expects some day it will be the only monogamist country in the Middle East. But it will take time. There was even opposition to the law in Parliament, where a Yemenite M.P. undertook to defend the institution of bigamy.

"It is no shame to have two wives at home," he argued. "What we consider immoral is to have one wife at home and a second wife elsewhere."

SUMMER'S OVER — Lucy, favorite attraction for children who visit New York's Central Park Zoo, sadly searches for peanuts among autumn leaves outside her cage. Despite the generous amounts of food supplied to her by the zoo, she always has room in her trunk to pack away a few more pieces of her favorite delicacy.

Would Try Stalin, Says Nurnberg Professor

WASHINGTON (AP) — United States Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson told investigating congressmen yesterday: "If you will capture Stalin, I will try him."

Jackson, who was chief prosecutor at the Nurnberg war crime trials after the Second World War, was asked his opinion on whether there was any legal method of prosecuting Soviet officials for mass extermination of peoples.

Jackson was a voluntary witness before a special House of Representatives committee investigating the wartime slaughter of 15,000 Polish officers and intellectuals in the Katyn forest in Western Russia.

Charge Father Shot Son, 1

PERKINS MILLS, Que. (CP)—A 15-months-old boy was fatally injured by a bullet and his 19-year-old mother said yesterday it came from a rifle accidentally discharged in a room below his bed.

Rolland Charbonneau, 27-year-old laborer, was taken to provincial police headquarters in Montreal on a coroner's warrant as a material witness to the shooting early Sunday of his son Michel.

Mrs. Charbonneau, married at 15 and mother of three other children, all girls, twice was taken into custody and released after questioning yesterday. She finally was released by Quebec provincial police at Hull, Que., 15 miles south of here.

Mrs. Charbonneau told reporters she was alarmed about 2 a.m. Sunday by something passing the window of their lonely log farmhouse. She said she grabbed a .22-calibre rifle from the wall. While passing it to her husband, it discharged.

She Was Laid Up With RHEUMATIC PAIN

"I had been afflicted with rheumatic attacks ever since I was a girl," writes Mrs. F. Rose, Selkirk, Man. "Four years ago I was in bed tormented by rheumatic pain and unable to work. Then I heard about Templeton's T-R-C's. Soon after I started taking T-R-C's I was able to get out of bed, and walk about and do my work. I only wish I had learned about T-R-C's years ago, for I feel they would have saved me a great deal of suffering."

Canadian Air Firms Rate Third Best With Gov't

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que (CP)—Canada's air enterprises are not getting as good a deal from the government as her ground and water transport companies, a Maritime representative claimed yesterday.

At a meeting of the Air Industries and Transport Association, C. E. Burke of Maritime Central Airways challenged the head of the air transport board, J. R. Baldwin, with the statement that railways and water transport are being given an advantage in government policies.

Mr. Baldwin, who as head of the air transport board has strict powers over Canada's commercial air business, was non-committal in reply.

Mr. Burke, a native of Charlottetown, criticized the government's policy—as reaffirmed Monday by Transport Minister Chevrier—of making air enterprises "stand on their own feet."

WINS McKEE TROPHY

The retiring chief of the air staff, Air Marshal C. W. Curtis, presented aviation's annual award, the McKee Trophy, to the head of the De Haviland Aircraft of Canada Ltd., Philip Clark Garratt

Mr. Garratt, 58, joined a succession of a dozen men who have earned aviation's recognition as outstanding contributors to the development of Canadian aviation.

Awards for the writing contest of the Aviation Writers' Association, an international body were presented.

The prime award, for the outstanding story in all classes, including newspapers, aviation and popular magazines, and technical publications, went to Ron Keith, editor of Canadian Aviation

Stolen Tabernacle

JOHANNESBURG, South Africa (CP)—Thieves broke into a Greek Orhodox church at Brakpan and stole the tabernacle, altar cloths and vestments. The tabernacle of gold-plated brass, 20 inches high, contained the sacred host and communion service.

Manvers Honors Rowan Family

BETHANY (ENS)—On the occasion of their silver wedding anniversary, friends and neighbors of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rowan gathered in the United Church basement on Saturday evening to express their congratulations. Mrs. Mervyn Porteous and Rev. James Hampson each read an address which acknowledged the active part Mr. and Mrs. Rowan have taken in the community and extending good wishes for the future. Mrs. Donald Lowes and Mr. Harry Preston presented the gifts of a walnut coffee table and silver teapot. Eleanor Porteous presented Mrs. Rowan with a bouquet of pink and white chrysanthemums and Patricia Fallis presented Mr. Rowan with a box of chocolates.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Rowan made gracious replies. Mr. Rowan, who is the only son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Rowan, has always lived here and in expressing his thanks for the gifts said it was quite typical of the friendly ways of Bethany community. Mrs. Rowan, who was the former Alice Werry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Werry of Bowmanville, lived her early years in that town, attending Bowmanville public school and high school and after graduation from Normal School, taught in the Bowmanville district for several years. In expressing her thanks Mrs. Rowan said until she came to Bethany as a bride 25 years ago, she knew no one here except her husband, but that the years had brought many new friends which had added to the happiness of their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Rowan have been particularly active in Church and community work. Mr. Rowan is a member of the board of stewards of the United Church and was a former organist and choir leader. Mrs. Rowan has been a valued member of the church choir, has taught in the Sunday School, past president of the Women's Missionary Society and a busy worker in the Women's Association.

They have three children: Miss Vivian Rowan, a graduate nurse of Peterborough Civic Hospital, is at present employed in a Vancouver, B.C., hospital, and although unable to be present for the celebration made the day happier for her parents with a long distance telephone call. Howard, the only son is this year attending [illegible] School and Bexhor, the youngest daughter, attends Peterborough Collegiate.

Rev. James Hampson was chairman for a brief program, leading in community singing. Leone Jordan gave a piano instrumental. Jane Fallis and Patricia Fallis sang a duet. Miss Elsie Richardson gave a reading and Mr. Harry Preston sang two solos. Joan Morton and Phyllis Bristow sang a duet.

The tea table was attractively arranged with lace tablecloth. A huge wedding cake was the centre attraction, flanked with silver candelabra and Mrs. Elmer Rowan and Mrs. Walter Rowland poured tea from the two silver tea services. Members of the Young People's Union served the lunch with the members of the Women's Association helping in the kitchen.

A number of friends from Bowmanville and Peterborough were present.

Metropolitan Store Opens Downtown Gets New Lift

Almost a year and half to the day since the Zacks building was gutted by fire, the Metropolitan Stores are opening their most modern store on the premises. It's not the chain's largest variety store, but it is without a doubt the most modern.

Stretching over 9,500 square feet the store follows a policy adopted by the Metropolitan Stores to build each store more modern, if possible, than the last. More than 100 girls and men will be serving the 1,000 feet of counter space in the 13 squares loaded with every imaginable bit of merchandise.

The store front is ultra-modern as far as dime stores are concerned. In bright red lettering which can be seen for a city block a sign shines Metropolitan store. Immediately beneath is the canopy which, according to modern trends, is back off the street, more under the building, rather than over a portion of the sidewalk.

GLASS FRONT

The front is the new all visual glass front with fluorescent lighting and also spot lighting for various effects in dressing the large windows which are trimmed with stainless steel. Special window dressers have decorated the store front for the opening but a man or woman will be trained to provide the best store window displays along the main street.

Inside the store the newest feature is a large store restaurant which will specialize in fast efficient service as well as good food.

Like the store proper, the restaurant is equipped with the most modern and finest equipment money can buy. For cleanliness it is stainless steel and marble throughout.

The restaurant kitchen is situated at the store's southwest corner and is equipped to produce everything from coffee and doughnuts to full-course meals. There Metropolitan Stores have installed two deep-friers and two gas ranges, bake ovens and an extra-large refrigerator which the restaurant chef and his two assistants will be using from opening time, 8a.m. to closing time, 6 p.m.

The lunch counter is referred to as "the all-vision counter", meaning that mirrors are situated along the 50-foot serving counter for customers to see just what's cooking for them. The serving and preparation counter is apart from the kitchen.

Let's step behind the counter for a moment and pretend we're working there. At the east end is a fully-equipped soda fountain which will be supplying sundies, sodas, milk shakes and other sweets. There are tea and coffee containers, toasters, grills refrigerators for keeping salads cool, as well as everything for snacks.

BAYS

But the customers' side is, if possible, a little more modern. The restaurant's 45-seats are situated in four self-contained U-shaped bays, a new arrangement which allows the restaurant to have more stools with just as much room for the customers to sit comfortably.

In each bay a waitress has cutlery, cups and saucers, tea and coffee, ice water and the rest.

MAURICE ROSSIGNOL (left) is the new manager of the Metropolitan Store which opens Thursday. An employee of the chain variety store for 20 years, Mr. Rossignol comes to Peterborough from Rouyn where he opened a new store two years ago. He'll be assisted by Jerry Hinshey (right), of Chicoutimi, Quebec.—(Examiner Staff Photos).

Within minutes after the order is placed she can place the lunch or dinner before you easily, served up by chefs from the serving counter.

For those who like breakfast downtown the restaurant will be opened at 8 a.m. one hour earlier than the store for lunches and dinners at noon, the restaurant will have dinner hours from 11 a.m. until 2 p.m.

MILLINERY DEPARTMENT

But the restaurant isn't the only new addition to the Metropolitan store; there's also a new millinery department. Situated at the back of the store, the millinery department will be stocked with the latest in women's hat creations.

The old Metropolitan store had only a small ladies' dress department, mostly frocks and house dresses. But the new store has a large new department especially stocked with dresses, coats and other women's dress apparel featuring both low priced and high priced clothes.

The young ladies, right down to the one or two-day olds, can be fitted with clothes from the Metropolitan store's counters. There's everything for the child, girl and woman.

The store didn't forget the boys and men. They have special counters stocked with ties, socks, underwear, shirts, trousers, everything for the men and boys to play or work in.

Hhere's a list of what will be filling the 1,000 feet of counter space—candy, winter knit goods, hosiery, millinery, handkerchiefs, domestics, crockery, gloves, jewellery, stationery, notions, lingerie, misses', tin, enamel, glassware, toys, men's and boy's, infants' wear, house furnishings, toilet articles, hardware, pet department, electrical goods, paints, dresses, coats, suits, luggage and leather goods, neckwear, gifts, souvenirs and sportswear.

With Christmas just a little more than a month off, it is necessary to mention the large toyland which will be featured at the rear of the store. There there are dolls, doll houses, trucks, cars, dinner sets, trains, balloons, books, guns, horns, and everything a little girl or boy would like to see under the Christmas tree on Christmas morning.

Of course to see all the merchandise there has to be excellent lighting. The new Metropolitan store has just that. The builders have made the counters of light mahogany wood against lightly colored walls. The fluorescent lighting, very soft but very bright, has much to add to the store's excellent appearance as well.

Dotted on the ceiling are display spotlights that serve a dual purpose. First, the lights are for display purposes, but they are also auxiliary lights. Should a power disruption affect the store the spot lights automatically switch over to a generating unit and business can be carried on as usual.

The Metropolitan store also boasts an excellent air conditioning system. The powerful air-conditioning unit sucks all odor out of the store and restaurant, keeping air fresh and wholesome.

Managing this modern store is Maurice Rossignol, who opened a new store in Rouyn, Quebec, two and a half years ago. He's been with Metropolitan stores now for 20 years serving in Glace Bay, New Glasgow, Quebec, Montreal, Victoriaville and finally Rouyn. He'll be assisted by Jerry Hinshey, formerly Chicoutimi, Quebec.

Peterborough residents will see the new Metropolitan store for the first time today when the store and its workers will be hosts at a pre-season opening, featuring gifts for all.

Frozen, Dried Skin Used To Cover Burns

ST. LOUIS (AP)——New skin sprinkled from a salt shaker to cover burns is a prospect raised today in a report to the national academy of sciences.

The skin would be quick-frozen, dried under a vacuum, then powdered and stored under vacuum. But the skin would remain alive, able to provide a living cover as a first step in skin-grafting over severe burns.

Blood vessels or other human spare parts might also be kept alive, intact, for years by the same freezing and drying.

The possibility is foreseen in success in freeze-drying influenza virus and other tissues, and finding it still alive some time later.

The work was described by Dr. Donald Griff, professor of biology at St. Louis University.

Eisenhower To Meet Leaders Of G.O.P. In Conference

by MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—President-elect Eisenhower plans an important round of conferences with Republican leaders in New York next week before leaving for Korea, associates said today.

These associates, who asked not to be named, said the conferees may include Senator Robert A. Taft of Ohio, chairman of the Senate Republican policy committee, and Senator Alexander Wiley of Wisconsin, in line to head the Senate foreign relations committee when the Republicans take over control of Congress in January.

Eisenhower, vacationing at the Augusta National Golf Club, plans to head for New York this weekend.

TO SEE TRUMAN

He will confer early next week with President Truman, who has invited the general to sit in at a discussion [illegible] domestic problems [illegible] Republican administration.

Aides of the President-elect said he wants to talk over such matters first with Republican congressional leaders but may switch signals, go to the White House first, and meet them later in the week.

Eisenhower's press secretary, James C. Hagerty, said Tuesday no date had been fixed for Eisenhower's trip to Korea—a trip the general said during the campaign he would make in an effort to find a way to end the conflict there.

Meanwhile it was learned that extensive security precautions are being taken to protect the president-elect against the possibility of an enemy attack during his visit to Korea—and on the way there and back.

At a press conference Hagerty said he hoped to be able to make public by the end of this week "some information" about the Korean trip. But he made it clear such information would have little if anything to do with the timing of the President-elect' visit.

Hagerty also was asked about re- [illegible] Korea by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who commanded that theatre until he was ousted by President Truman.

"I know of no such plans," Hagerty said.

FIRST ACT—President-elect Dwight Eisenhower stands between his first two appointees, Sen. Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr. (right), and Joseph M. Dodge who will serve as liaison men with various departments of the outgoing Truman administration.

Canadian Elk Sent England

WHIPSNADE, England (CP)—Evangeline the elk, Winnipeg's gift to Whipsnade Zoo, has moved into her own private quarters.

Evangeline got a self-contained spartment all to herself because stags do not like strange females added to a herd during the mating season. Later she will go into a woodland enclosure with the others.

She will also go on a special diet to fatten her up. "She stood the journey from Canada well, but it thinned her down a little," said a zoo official.

The three-year-old elk was sent in exchange for a Tibetan yak, which will not be sent to Canada immediately because of foot-and-mouth diseases restrictions.

Blonde UN Typist Turns Russian

NEW YORK (AP)—A pretty blonde typist told an astonished U.S. Senate sub-committee yesterday she switched her allegiance to Russia but worked for the United Nations as an American.

"She was charged to the U.S. quota at the U.N. while holding a Russian passport and U.S.S.R. citizenship—this I cannot understand," said sub-committee counsel Robert Morris indignantly.

"I am not disloyal," replied the witness, Olga Michka. "I never did anything against America."

The 33-year-old American-born Miss Michka testified she applied for a Soviet passport in 1939 and actually got it 10 years later. In her opinion, she thus surrendered her U.S. citizenship.

"What I would like to know," demanded Morris, "is by what process a U.S. citizen, without any open disavowal of the United States, can become a Russian citizen. I am informed there is no precedent for this act."

Burned In Fire

MARKHAM (CP)—Anton Assinck, a machine-shop owner here, was burned about the face yesterday while trying to remove gasoline from his blazing building. His burns were not considered severe. The building formerly housed one of York county's first stage-coach factories.

H.M.C.S. Huron Refitted

OTTAWA (CP)—The Tribal class destroyer Huron, following an extensive refit with weapons of the most modern type, will begin a new commission at Halifax Nov. 17, the navy announced yesterday. She will bring to eight the number of destroyers the navy will have on active duty.

Starlings Unafraid

BIRMINGHAM, England (AP)—Starlings gave Birmingham's city fathers the bird last night. Their effort to drive the 20,000 starlings out of the city with fireworks was a flop. The starlings wheeled around the buildings until the noise subsided and then came back to their old perches.

Favor AFL Union

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—The United Textile Workers union of America (A.F.L.) has won by one vote the right to represent employees of the Monarch Knitting Company's hosiery mill. By polling 66 of the 130 votes registered, the A.F.L. group defeated the rival United Textile Workers union of America (C.I.O.).

Memorial Service For Mrs. C. McFadden

APSLEY (ENS) —A memorial service was held for the late Mrs. Cyrus McFadden in Trinity United Church on Sunday. Mrs. McFadden the former Louise Coones was a native of this locality and during her long life was an ardent church worker and faithful attendant at divine worship until her health would not permit. Even whene her hearing was failing, she attended church and although not hearing much of the service always joined in the service of song. She was also a faithful and esteemed member of the Apsley Women's Institute.

She died at the residence of her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Brown of R.R. 4, Edmonton, Alta., on October 26. Funeral services were held at Foster and McGarvey funeral chapel on October 28 with Dr. R. B. Layton officiating. Burial was made in Beechmount cemetery.

The pall bearers, all grandsons, were: Messrs Walter White, Russell White, Donald McFadden, Billie McFadden, Mac Brown and Ivan Kreller.

Mrs. McFadden was the last surviving member of a large family.

She is survived by one son, Frank of Apsley, four daughter, Mrs. E. R. Brown (Martha) of Edmonton, Alta.; Mrs. J. White (Alice) of Ribstone, Alta.; Mrs. L. W. Barnes (Annie) of St. Georges, Bermuda; Mrs. A. E. Henry (Myrtle) Brockville and 20 grandchildren, 19 great grandchildren. Her husband, Cyrus McFadden, predeceased her in 1938 and a daughter, Mrs. Jos. Tucker (Matilda) of Apsley in 1949.

Beautiful floral offerings sent by relatives from this locality including Mr. and Mrs. Frank McFadden, Mr. and Mrs. Victor McFadden, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. McFadden, Mr. Jos. Tucker and family, all of Apsley; Mr. and Mrs. Orville Miller, Lakefield; and Mrs. A. Henry of Brockville.

Hymns used at services in Trinity were ones chosen by one of her family. Mrs. McFadden has been with Mr. and Mrs. Brown since August 1951.

Cars Crash, 2 Hurt

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. M. Thibeault of Chatham and Mrs. A. Utley of Detroit were injured last night when their automobiles collided at a Windsor intersection. Mrs. Thibeault suffered a possible fractured shoulder and possible fractured ribs and Mrs. Utley suffered chest injuries. Condition of both is fair, hospital attendants said.

Lakes Carrier Sails

MIDLAND (CP)—The Gordon Leitch, Canada's newest Great Lakes bulk carrier, left this Georgian Bay port yesterday on her maiden voyage, bound for the lakehead. The Gorden Leitch, built at the Midland Shipyards, is a sister ship of the James Norris, commissioned last spring. She is 644 feet long, has a 24-foot draught and a 67-foot beam.

Lots of Turkey

LONDON (CP)—Traders here forecast that 1,000,000 turkeys from Ireland will be sent to Britain this Christmas. This would be 200,000 more than last year.

JUST WAITIN'—This brooding bruin in the London zoo isn't going anywhere, hasn't anything to do. It's not cold enough to hibernate, not warm enough to feel playful. He's just waiting for spring.

Phillips Denies Charge From CIO

TORONTO (CP)—Health Minister Phillips of Ontario yesterday denied a statement attributed to him which said that he has asked for limitation of the number of immigrant nurses admitted to Canada.

"I didn't say we didn't want immigrant nurses and physicians," he said. "We need these people, and we can absorb a whole lot of them. We recently made application for as many as we could get from the United Kingdom."

Dr. Phillips said that all he insisted on was that each immigrant nurse or physician should have a complete physical examination and be informed of the laws regarding their status.

Monday night Toronto Labor Council (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) asked for an explanation of criticisms by the minister of nurses coming into this country.

Plan Shopping Centre

WINNIPEG (CP)—Plans for construction of an $18,000,000 ultra-modern shopping centre in nearby Old Kildonan municipality were announced Monday night by a Canadian-American syndicate. The Free Press said yesterday the project would cover 153 acres, or 36 city blocks. It would contain 135 retail stores, a 1,500-seat auditorium, three apartment blocks, a 75-room hotel, a danee and roller skating pavilion, a 40-alley bowladrome, two banks and two children's playgrounds.

Two Rob Homes At Point Of Gun

TORONTO (CP).—Two armed men last night forced their way at gunpoint into two homes in suburban Etobicoke and escaped with more than $500 in cash and some jewelry.

Raymond Duguay, answering a knock at the door, was held up while the bandits took $501, representing two days' receipts from his groceteria. He then was bound and gagged with neckties and a torn bed sheet.

Mrs. Mary Chaban, the other victim, was forced to hand over her wedding ring to the two men, both of whom carried guns. They also took $20 from her purse and two watches.

Mrs. Chaban and her four-year-old grandson, Ronney Coles, were locked in the cellar while the thieves escaped in an old model car.

Mr. Duguay was able to rouse a neighbor and call the police. Mrs. Chaban and the boy were released when Mrs. Olga Coles, a daughter of Mrs. Chaban, returned to the house with a neighbor.

MINERAL IN NEW ZEALAND

Two-thirds of New Zealand is suitable for farming, but it also produces gold and silver, coal and oil.

NEWEST FEATURE of the Metropolitan Store, which will be officially opened Thursday morning, is the store restaurant. The restaurant, situated at the south-west corner of the store, seats 45 in its four serving bays, the latest design in seating accommodation. The counter is an all-vision counter, backed by mirrors in which the customers can see chefs preparing lunches, sandwiches, soda fountain dainties. The restaurant will serve dinners from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. and breakfast at 8 a.m.—(Examiner Staff Photo).

Men Can Change History By Working As Comrades

By working together in a spirit of comradeship, men of common ideals can change the course of history, H. J. Harvey of Ottawa told a Remembrance Day dinner audience Tuesday night.

Mr. Harvey, who is vice-president of the Ontario Provincial Command of the Canadian Legian was guest speaker at the annual Remembrance Day dinner in the Legion Hall Auditorium.

OLD-FASHIONED?

"Remembrance and Comradeship" was the subject of Mr. Harvey's address. He told the Legionnaires that comradeship and fraternalism, which are regarded in some quarters as "old fashioned" ideas would always remain alive, as long as the 3,000 Legion and auxiliary branches in Canada continue to remember comrades who need assistance.

"A man alone, no matter how high his ideals, can do little but joined in comradeship with like minded men, he can change the whole course of history," Mr. Harvey said.

"Those of us who have given so much over the years to the Legion must believe in it. If this were not so, we could not continue to give so much to it. The spirit of true comradeship is only manifest when there is a sincere desire to be helpful and render a service to those less fortunate comrades who need that service."

Mr. Harvey said that fraternalism is often referred to as an old fashioned idea that is dying out. "Are we pursuing a foolish idea in our effort to promote the idea of comradeship?" he asked. Answering his question he said, "No man lives, or has ever lived, who in his heart did not seek the understanding and commendation of another."

There are three groups of veterans to be remembered on Remembrance Day, Mr. Harvey said. First, there are those who gave their lives in defence of freedom and our way of life. Then, there are the disabled veterans whose nerves and bodies have been shattered by war and "for whom life is a burden of unspeakable suffering and distress."

Speaking of these veterans, Mr. Harvey said, "May they find in the honor we pay them on Remembrance Day and all days, some little consolation and solace that may help them to bear with patience and fortitude their burden of suffering and pain."

ESCAPED INJURY

"Still another group are those who came back unscathed and unharmed. They are able to enjoy the comforts of home and fireside. These men are to be most heartily congratulated."

It is the Legion's business to remember, Mr. Harvey continued and "because we remember, we are bound to defend our democratic way of life."

He then outlined some of the work being done by the Legion. The Service Bureau supported by the Legion he said sees to it that service men and women receive hospitalization when they require it and helps them obtain pensions and rehabilitation benefits.

Mr. Harvey also mentioned the scholarships sponsored by the Legion which assist veterans' children in getting an education and said it was appropriate for the Legion to support the Red Cross, Boy Scouts, St. John Ambulance and other similar organizations. In time of war, and peace time disasters, the Legion carries on its work of helping those in need by collecting relief material and providing assistance to the victims. The Legion is now sending through its auxiliary services, cigarettes, books and magazines to Canadian servicemen in Korea, he said.

"This Legion of ours was made great by the work of a faithful few," Mr. Harvey said in urging Legion members not to be discouraged because they may feel the bulk of the work is being carried on by a few members.

Kinsmen Enter Float In Santa Claus Parade

CAMPBELLFORD — (ENS) — The Kinsmen Club on Monday evening decided to place a decorated float in the Santa Claus parade, which will be held here on December 13.

It is expected a delegation from the Tweed club will arrive on January 26, and will bring with them the 'voyageur's gavel', which the Campbellford club will in turn take to Kinsmen at Belleville about February 2.

The club received a letter of thanks from Burnbrae school, for Hallowe'en candy. This had been left over from the Hallowe'en shell-out party the club held, and it was turned over to the rural school.

Guests at the meeting were Stanley Macey, Bill Hampel and Douglas Free.

Hoodlums Chase Newspaper Man

TUPELO, Miss. (AP)—A 26-year-old newspaper man and his pretty blonde wife, under police guard, prepared to leave here today a few hours ahead of a 6 p. m. ultimatum set by two hooded men.

Newell Anderson, circulation manager of the Tupelo Journal, decided to return to Fargo in his native North Dakota. He told police the men took him for a wild ride in the country Monday night and roughed him up and that one of the men said he "didn't like Yankees around."

George McLean, publisher of the Journal, said Anderson began getting anonymous telephone calls more than two weeks ago telling him: "We don't like foreigners coming in here and you'd better get out of town."

Anderson and his 21-year-old wife came here Oct. 1 from Grand Forks, N. D., where he had worked on the Grand Forks Herald.

HAS SOME CLUES

D. B. Crockett, chief of police in this northeast Mississippi town of 15,000, said he had some clues but could not disclose them now

"After he (Anderson) leaves, I think it'll blow over," Crockett said.

The police chief said the Anderson home was guarded around the clock and that the couple would be under police watch as long as they remained in Tupelo.

"A nice couple," Crockett added. "I feel mighty bad to see them leave."

Anderson said he was unable to identify the men. He said they wore hoods of dark material with no eyeholes. They cut off some of his hair and nicked his face with a razor. Anderson added.

British Interests Discuss Newfoundland Exploitation

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP) — Two meetings on opposite sides of the Atlantic this week may have a big bearing on the future direction of Newfoundland's economic development program.

A group of British companies, including the world banking house of Rothschilds, has opened talks in London where earlier this year it showed interest in Premier Joseph R. Smallwood's plans for exploiting the untapped natural riches of Newfoundland and Labrador.

In this capital, directors of the Newfoundland and Labrador Corporation hold their annual meeting Friday and will review progress in attracting outside interest in the province's resources.

It may be some time before the connection, if any, between the two meetings becomes clear. But a Rothschilds representative will sit in on the corporation discussions.

GREATER UK INTEREST

Some sources here believe this indicates increasing interest by United Kingdom concerns in a long-range prospect advanced by Mr. Smallwood during a tour of Europe. The premier visualized a "modern Hudson's Bay Company" as one of the greatest imperial ventures of the century.

One item on the corporation's agenda may be appointment of a temporary chairman to replace Sir William Stephenson, British millionaire industrialist who resigned two weeks ago.

But much of the discussion is expected to centre around mining ventures, which have formed a major part of the corporation's activities since it was formed as the government's "economic arm" and given exploratory rights over 22,000 square miles of territory.

Five mining companies have been probing for minerals this year and four of them — Reynolds Metals, Natural Lead, Newmont Mines and Selection Trust — started work after their interest was aroused by Stephenson.

The corporation has also launched extensive water power surveys and is reported to have two companies interested in Labrador timber potentialities.

Ont. Concerned Over Truck Laws

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario government views with concern attempts to place regulation of international and interprovincial trucking under federal control, Highways Minister Doucette said last night.

In a transcribed address prepared for the annual convention of the Ontario Automotive Transport Association he referred to the appeal now before the Privy Council of a decision by the Supreme Court of Canada which placed the regulation under control of Ottawa.

Ontario, Alberta and Prince Edward Island are contesting the decision.

Mr. Doucette said the annual truck Roadeo, which the association helps to sponsor, is an example of the development of highway safety based on courtesy and commended the association for the benefits it had brought to the economy of Ontario.

The association urged Transport Minister Chevrier to prevent or discourage international and interprovincial truckers who do not comply with provincial laws. It suggested that provincial highways ministers be asked to prosecute firms which operate without provincial licences.

Wounded Youth Brought To Peterborough Recovering From Serious Loss Of Blood

Seriously injured when he was accidentally shot Sunday, Harry Grant, 15, of Megary is in Civic Hospital here and his condition is not considered to be critical today.

Megary is five miles south of Maynooth.

The accident occurred when the youth was leaning on a shotgun and it discharged. The blast struck him in the right arm pit and came out behind his shoulder.

A friend, Frank Peever, brought him part way to Bancroft where ambulance driver Jack Hattin met them. The injured youth was rushed to Bancroft Hospital under police escort.

He was given blood transfusions at Bancroft, but the wound was so serious and he was so weak from loss of blood, that he was brought to Peterborough. An operation was performed Monday night here, and he was given another blood transfusion.

Memorial Centre Expenses Not Mounting Says Jebson

"Memorial Community Centre has no present expenses, and there is no occasion for Maurice Ketcheson trying to create an impression that the Centre expense items appear to be mounting as he was recently quoted in The Examiner," said Joseph A. Jebson, chairman of the Centre committee today.

"I don't want to say anything unkind about a man, but Mr. Ketcheson should be careful of the truth. I feel confident that the public understands the position of our committee, and I would like to repeat it on behalf of the members.

"Promotional work when the campaign for funds was underway cost us $1,079.93. That is all the expense there was in collecting some $200,000. It was an extremely low item of expense, and many people who enquired about our plan and method for similar campaigns in their own towns told us that it was most surprising.

STILL HAVE PLANS

"We also spent $9,000 on plans for the Centre. Those plans are still available. Another item was $750 for borings in the property Rink and Townsend Streets. We had already ascertained that the property could not be used But, Hurrell Dodds as a member of the council felt that it was the only place for the Centre, because it was well located. The council wanted the additional soundings, and so that extra was spent."

Mr. Jebson said that Mr. Ketcheson had no reason whatever to suggest to the public that the "expense items of the Centre were mounting."

"That is not a fact," said Mr. Jebson, "and I have once more mentioned the main items of expense so far."

"I would like to recall to the public that one of our first decisions was to make sure that their funds would be used for a public project, with no danger of it slipping into private hands," Mr. Jebson said.

ON CITY LAND

"So what we decided was that the Centre should be erected on land owned by the city. That is our policy, and the Centre committee cannot do a thing until the city ccuncil gives us title to a suitable site. I also wish to say that our committee has never turned down any property that was proposed to us. They were all given consideration.

"Another point is, that our committee decided that all monies received by us should be made payable to the City Treasurer So, it is plain that we have safeguarded the funds the public subscribed."

Mr. Jebson said, the Centre project, in one way and another, had cost him thousands. "The campaign was such a success that people came here from many other cities and towns to find out how we did it. And they insisted on me and others going to their communities to tell them about it. One of the farthest of such enquiries was from the late W. A. Mason of the Sudbury Daily Star, who wanted me to go up there. I had to refuse him. It took a great deal of time and finally laid me up for some months. These are reasons why I keenly object to Mr. Ketcheson evidently trying to create some suspicion of the use of the Centre fund.

"There is no 'mounting expense'. Only the other day we decided to invest $25,000 from some $27,000 which had accumulated in our cash account."

Siberian 'Quake One Of Largest

OTTAWA (CP) — The Nov. 4 earthquake in a Siberian peninsula was one of the largest of all time, the government's mines and surveys department reported today. Nobody knows it better than Frank Lombardo of Ottawa.

For five days after the quake, Lombardo was busy sending radio reports out of the arctic to Ottawa on the remarkable number of 119 so-called aftershocks.

He's the man in charge of a seismograph established two years ago at Resolute Bay, a military base on Cornwallis Island, about 1,000 miles from the North Pole. He was 3,000 miles from the epicentre of the quake, 2,000 miles nearer than the seismograph in Ottawa.

Three Canadian seismographs—the third is in Victoria—were part of an international team of 52 which sent reports into Washington to establish the location of the quake. By pooling the reports, the U.S. coast and geodetic survey established that the epicentre was on Kamchatka peninsula and that its magnitude made it one of the largest quakes of all times.

Candidates Just Fill Vacant Seals

Unless More Stand For Public Office Will Be No Elections

Unless more candidates decide to run for council and Board of Education, there may not be an election this year.

Nomination day is a week from Friday, and as it stands today, there is a full slate of candidates who have announced they will accept nominations.

There are five vacancies on council and four to be elected to Board of Education. So far, no one has been mentioned to oppose Mayor Hugh Waddell, or Gordon Matthews, perennial chairman of the Utilities Commission.

Monday night, the Peterborough and District Labor Council (C.I.O.-C.C.L.) decided to sponsor three candidates—two for council and one for Board of Education.

The council has endorsed alderman William J. Beggs who was appointed to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of alderman Norman Graham last spring. In his first bid for a council seat last year, Mr. Beggs made a good showing, running sixth in a field of nine. He polled 2,834 votes, trailing H. S. Longhurst who won the fifth council seat by 529 votes. Both Mr. Beggs and Mr. Longhurst drew more votes than sitting alderman Ernest Braund who ran seventh.

A newcomer to the aldermanic field, Thomas Cupoli, 529 Elm St., is the second candidate being sponsored by the Labor Council. Mr. Cupoli is in the stores department of Western Clock Co., and is a member of Local 570, I.U.E. He is also a member of the Labor Council and said today he will decide definitely whether he will run or not in a day or so.

Alderman Harold Rehill has not yet indicated whether he will be running or not.

Ed Humphrey, is the council's nominee for the Board of Education. Last year, Mr. Humphrey made his first try for election to the board and ran last in a slate of six candidates. He polled 1,722 votes.

Mr. Humphrey is president of the Peterborough and District Labor Council.

Of the five retiring aldermen, Dr. Herbert Young and James Gillespie have stated they will not be running for re-election.

Two former aldermen, Norman Graham and Fred Tuggey have already stated their hats will be in the ring and alderman A. B. Burrows has announced he will be running. These three, with the two Labor council nominees, alderman Beggs and Mr. Cupoli, bring the total to five.

Tuesday, Clarence Porter announced his intention of running for Board of Education and today, Mrs. Blake Bell said she would be seeking re-election for a second term.

Two retiring members of the board, Frank Jobbitt and Dr. Ralph Honey have stated they will not be seeking re-election, and W.B. Gordon, chairman of the board this year will be offering himself for another term.

When council meets Monday night, a delegation from the Labor Council will be present to urge a change in the voting system. At present, electors must vote for four candidates for aldermen and can vote for five. Voting for only one Board of Education candidate is permitted and the Labor Council is anxious to have the voting system changed, so plumping will be permitted for aldermen as well.

Polish Art Treasures Get Annual Inspection

QUEBEC (CP) — The disputed Polish art treasures, kept in a locked vault in the provincial museum here, were given their annual inspection last week, it was learned today.

Art experts, representing private persons who brought the treasures to Canada during the Second World War, opened the 24 blue chests to air the treasures. The three experts worked under police guard.

The treasures, long a point of dispute between the present Polish government, which wants them back, and Canada, were entrusted to the Quebec government in February, 1948, by nuns of Hotel Dieu cloister here. The nuns had kept the treasures after being entrusted with them by persons who brought them to Canada.

Premier Duplessis has said the treasures will remain in the government's safe-keeping until "com- should have them.

Car, Trailer Truck Collide At Corner

Both vehicles were damaged Tuesday evening, when a car and trailer collided at Lock and McGill Sts.

George Fettes, 770 Armour Rd., was going north on Lock St. and making a left hand turn to go west on McGill when the collision occurred as the truck, driven by Ed Foley of Keene attempted to pass.

Constable Eldon McDonald who investigated reported the truck skidded 54 feet after the impact and jack-knifed.

U.E. Local Asks Investigation Of C.G.E. Threat

Local 524 U.E. has sent a telegram to provincial attorney general Porter asking for an investigation in the threat of the Canadian General Electric Company to seize $9,200 collected for the union check-off dues.

A week ago the CGE in Toronto said it would seize $9,200 of union funds because the union has refused to pay damages awarded to the company by an arbitration board last June.

The award was made for damages resulting from wildcat work stoppages which, said the arbitration board, the union failed to control.

TELEGRAM

After meetings of the stewards council and the Local 524 executive the following telegram was sent by the recording secretary Mrs. E. Kennedy.

"I have been instructed by the stewards council and the executive of Local 524 U.E. to request you to investigate the action of the Canadian General Electric Co. The company has illegally and improperly held moneys of the workers of the Davenport plant of Toronto. This open defiance of collective bargaining and of the civil laws of our country must be prevented at once in the interests of democracy. You are urgently requested to act at once against the Canadian General Electric Co. to instruct this giant corporation to respect and aide by the laws of our country."

At the time of the ruling of the arbitration board the union said the award was beyond the jurisdiction of the arbitration board and on that ground had paid the award by Oct. 29, last day for payment.

Lakefield To Issue Own Driver's Licenses

LAKEFIELD (ENS. — Drivers and car owners of Lakefield and district around it will no longer have to go to Peterborough to buy their licence plates and driver's permits.

The Chamber of Commerce Tuesday night was told that they had been authorized by the Ontario Department of Highways to Mrs. William O'Brien, secretary of the Chamber of Commerce, will be in charge of the work. The Chamber has yet to find an office to set up their new business.

For some time now Lakefield residents have been trying to get permission to issue licences to save them the bother of driving to Peterborough.

Tommy Hughes Being Sued By Contractor For $728

A Dummer township contractor is suing Tommy Hughes, the auto wrecker, for $728. He claims that Hughes refused to pay him in full for work done in the winter of 1950-51 on Hughes' new home at 833 Bell Ave. The contractor, Peter Vandenberg of Dummer township, says he contracted with Hughes to excavate the foundations and erect cement block wall for the sum of $500. This was done, he says, and he was invited to work on the house with pay on an hourly basis.

The house was nearly completed when he ran into money troubles.

Vandenberg told Judge John de N. Kennedy, presiding at a special sitting of the county court, that he asked Hughes for some money.

The conversation was interrupted by Mrs. Ruth Masters, Hughe's housekeeper, who was alleged to have taken Hughes aside and commented:

"Don't pay the s-o-b!"

"O.K., if you say so, I won't," Hughes is said to have replied.

TOTAL EXPENSES

Vandenberg said his total expense—including $1,668 for wages—were $2,334. From the beginning of December 1950 to February 1951 Hughes paid out $1,606—including the $500 for excavation and building the wall.

"Did Hughes tell you why he wouldn't pay?" asked Trevor Clarke, counsel for Vandenberg.

"No, he didn't," said Vandenberg who also stated that Hughes never complained about the job.

Vandenberg denied a suggestion by W. J. Arthur Fair, Q.C., that he had agreed to build the house for $1,000 with Hughes buying the materials.

"I was to be paid for hourly work," he said.

The case is continuing.

Charge Six More In Bond Thefts

MONTREAL (CP) — Six more men have been arrested in a $200,000 bond theft from a bank in St. Jerome, Que., bringing to 13 the total detained thus far.

Police announced the arrests today. They said the six will be brought into court later today in St. Jerome on charges of conspiracy and receiving in the theft from a branch of the Banque Provinciale du Canada a year ago.

covered with the arrests, bringing to $70,000 the amount recovered to date.

No arrests have been made yet of those who committed the thefts.

The six were identified as Roger Simard, Sorel garage-owner; Paul Sylvestre, 39, employed by Simard; Gerard Laverdiere, 32, Sorel; Adrien Duhamel, 43, Boucherville; Raymond Boileau, 32,Contrecoeur; and Jacques Fauteux, Montreal.

Police said $6,000 in bonds was recovered from a Sorel branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce and $8,000 from a branch of the Bank of Montreal, also at Sorel. Another $500 was found in the home of one of the accused.

Seven Montrealers have already been charged in the robbery,which took place during the visit to the Laurentian district, 35 miles north of Montreal, of Queen Elizabeth, then Princess Elizabeth, and Prince Philip during the royal tour of Canada last November.

Hunters Arrive Like Sardines

The old spirit of yoicks and tallyho is plainly showing in the deer hunt, according to an Examiner man who has been noting the station-wagon forays in the venison belt.

"One of them pulled up at the week-end near our place," said this cottage owner in the Apsley country. "Two men climbed out and stretched themselves. Two more emerged, followed by another pair. Then the six on the ground were joined by two more hunters plus two hounds. Eight men! And two dogs, plus a full accoutrement of hunting arms and toggery. from that average size wagon! They must have been squeezed in like sardines in a can. I guess I was popeyed looking them over and recounting them to make sure I was really seeing things as they were.

MATTRESSES ON FLOOR

"They had two mattresses on the floor, but I don't know what they were doing for a larder, and they looked as if they could pay full prandial respect to a platter of steaks.

"After that spectacle of a hunting mobile unit, I wouldn't be surprised to see something like an old frontier stage coach patrolling the roads in the bush country, with a rifle thrusting from every window. The old idea of settling down for a couple of weeks in a more or less cushy camp seems to be retained by only remnant regulars. About a week is the present limit for most of the hunters, and some of them are content with a quick week end. For them, there is no relaxing in the quiet of the bush, away from telephones. newspapers and all the interruptive media of today."

Any way, that station wagon load of eight men and two hounds is a true story of one party's arrival, but where they went from there is not recorded.

Jockey Club Manager Dies At Hamilton

HAMILTON (CP) — John J. Conway, 77, managing director of the Hamilton Jockey Club and the only surviving charter member, died today.

Mr. Conway came to Hamilton from his native Alliston and after working for the Gurney - Tilden stove manufacturers and heating suppliers as secretary-treasurer, became permanently connected with the H. J. C.

He was a member of the Incorporated Canadian Racing Association as a representative of the Hamilton Jockey Club for nearly 15 years. After the association collapsed, he became a member of the Thoroughbred Racing Association.

Police Seek Trucker After Thessalon Crash

THESSALON (CP)—Police seek the driver of a truck which rolled down a 50-foot embankment into a ditch from the Chapleau highway early today.

Police said they found, in the demolished truck, a licence bearing the name of Rosario Campion, 32, of Blind River.

Police searched the bush area north of this community 55 miles east of Sault Ste. Marie.

Three Arrested Before Discovery Of Cracked Safe

Three men arrested in Lindsay early Sunday morning who face charges in connection with a break-in at Belleville Saturday night may be brought back here to face charges it was learned today.

Mickey Metrunitz, 39, Jackson's Point summer resort owner, William Knutson, 22, also of Jackson's Point and Walter Johnston, 38, of Toronto, were stopped in Lindsay a few hours after city detective sgt., Bud Clarke exchanged shots with one of two men he surprised in the Beaver Lumber Co. yard about 11.30 Saturday night.

After the shooting, both men fled, and Detective Clarke radioed the police station he believed the men had escaped in a late model Oldsmobile.

SEEN ON HIGHWAY

Provincial police were alerted and when O.P.P. Constables George Mount - Stephen and Thomas Fitzpatrick of the Lindsay detachment spotted a car answering the description near the junction of Highways 35 and 7, they followed it into Lindsay and stopped the car in front of Lindsay Town Hall.

Metrunitz, Knutson and Johnston were in the car and $1,031 in bills were found stuffed behind the rear seat.

At the time they were arrested, Belleville police had not yet discovered that the safe in the office of Trinidad Leaseholds on Front St. had been blown and more than $1,000 taken.

An unsuccessful attempt was made the same evening to crack the safe in the office of Imperial Oil across the street.

After the trio were arrested in Lindsay, they were brought to Peterborough for questioning and turned over to Inspector J. Clair Hayes of Belleville on Sunday.

Monday morning, Metrunitz, Knutson and Johnston appeared before Magistrate T. Y. Wills in Belleville on charges of shopbreaking, shopbreaking with intent and -being in possession of stolen goods.

They were not granted bail and were remanded without plea or election on the charges until Friday.

Three Strikers Bailed For Picket Line Row

HAMILTON (CP)—The strikers' disturbance in front of Hamilton Cottons yesterday had a sequel in magistrate's court today when four men appeared before Magistrate Beamer W. Hopkins, three of them charged with obstructing the police and one with assaulting the police.

Bert Porkolab, 42, Stoney Creek; Ronald Frith, 21, Hamilton, and Vernon Mustard, 26, Welland, were charged with obstructing the police and were remanded until Nov. 20 on bail of $100 each cash, or two sureties of $100 each.

Verdun Ruttan, 26, Hamilton, charged with assaulting the police, was remanded until the same date on bail of $200 cash, or two sureties of the same amount.

Britain Cuts Imports Of Scandinavian Pulp

PARIS (Reuters) — Britain will cut her newsprint imports from Scandinavia by more than 50 per cent in the first six months of 1953 and will pay $5.60 less a ton. Canada will make up the balance.

A spokesman for Norwegian suppliers said here today these decisions were made after negotiations here last week.

He said Britain will take 35,000 tons from Scandinavia in the first half of 1953, compared with 72,000 tons in the same period this year.

Britain will pay $134.40 a ton for Scandinavian newsprint in 1953, compared to $140 this year, the spokesman said.

Sold Stolen Goods To Church, Jailed

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — A man who admitted selling stolen goods to a St. Thomas church was sentenced today to concurrent reformatory terms of six months definite and three months indeterminate on two charges of theft from his employer.

Harold O. Johnston, 35, pleaded guilty to stealing plywood and other building materials from Copp Builders' Supply Company Limited where he was employed from 1945 until his arrest about a week ago.

He said he got $82.88 for the lumber sold to the reorganized church of the Latter Day Saints and $125 for plywood which he sold to a London contractor.

Marks 102nd Birthday Wants To Try For 200

TORONTO (CP) — A man who would "like to try to reach 200" celebrated his 102nd birthday yesterday.

Andrew Konecny was born Nov. 11, 1850, in a village near Brno, Czechoslovakia.

Although he is a little hard of hearing and has trouble recalling details of his experiences, he reads without glasses, his eyes are clear and he has all his own teeth.

He has no formula for those who would like to follow his example.

However, his daughter, Mrs. Margaret Hooper of Toronto,thinks "a very methodical life" may have a lot to do with it.

"And I feed him pretty well," she said.

Killed 13 Sheep Dog Shot Cavan Pays $297

MILLBROOK (ENS) — A dog who went on a sheep killing spree has cost the Cavan council $297.

The council, at their regular meeting last week authorized the payment of $275 in subsidies to three township farmers who had lost a total of six sheep and seven lambs. The remaining costs of $22 included a $10 bounty for shooting the dog and $12 to L. W. Smith, valuator of animals.

David Armstrong received $145 for four lambs and two sheep killed and for killing the offending dog; Fred Brown received $80 for four sheep killed and John Allwell $60 for three lambs killed.

The accounts for the month totalled $5,512.22. The greatest amount was $4,692.83 to the treasurer of roads for payroll and vouchers.

The clerk was authorized to put a notice in the local paper instructing that taxes be paid either to A. V. Thorn or at the Millbrook branch of the Bank of Toronto. This action was taken to stop ratepayers bringing their payments to the clerk's office.

ASK FOR FEES

The clerk was also instructed to write to the secretary of the Durham High School Area Board asking that the board pay tuition fees and transportation to the Peterborough Suburban High School Area Board for R. Benner's son who is attending school in Peterborough.

A by-law appointing polling places, deputy returning officers and poll clerks for the township election was passed.

Packaging Poor U.K. Firms Told

LONDON (CP)—Brig. H. R. Mackeson, Britain's Secretary for Overseas Trade, came back from a visit to Canada with a warning on packaging goods for the Canadian market.

He said in an interview there were complaints from Canadians that British goods are often packed in heavy timber crates, with freight and cost charged to the importer. Mackeson said Canadians, with a surplus of timber in their own country, protested against paying for unnecessary wood crates.

"Prices should include packaging, preferably of some sort of fibre or simply strongly-bound cartons," said the British minister.

He also urged British exporters to keep weight of goods as low as possible because of high transit costs in Canada.

High School Cadet Band Leads Parade To Lakefield Cenotaph

LAKEFIELD (ENS)—Lakefield Memorial Hall was filled to capacity on Tuesday morning when residents gathered to pay honor to the memory of their dead of two wars.

Headed by the band of the Lakefield District High School cadet corps the parade formed and marched to the cenotaph. Included in the parade were members of the Canadian Legion, the ladies' auxiliary to the Canadian Legion, cadets, both boys and girls of the High School, the Sea Scouts, Cubs, Brownies and Girl Guides.

The Last Post was sounded by bugler Ken Darling, and the two-minute silence was followed by the Revielle. The scripture was read by the Rev. L. J. Delaney of the Church of St. John the Baptist and the Rev. W. B. Walker led in the Lord's prayer. Prayers for "The Queen and empire," "Our dominion" and "Peace of the world" were given by the Rev. W. H. Tonge of the United Church. Hymns suitable for the occasion were sung with Mrs. Harry T. Hill at the piano.

The Rev. G. Downing of the Baptist Church, himself a veteran, gave the memorial address. "We enjoy a wonderful freedom in Canada", said Mr. Downing. "We have freedom from fear, freedom from want, freedom of speech, freedom of the press and freedom of worship, because these men we are remembering today bled and died for it. The democracy and freedom we now know can be destroyed by one word—indifference. The church and our national institutions can fall to pieces because of indifference. If Canada is a country worth living in, it should be a country worth working for. As Canadians we should say 'I will stand up for God, for Queen and for country, and I will die for them if need be'."

Following the service wreaths were placed on the cenotaph as follows, Province of Ontario, Mrs. G. Stuart. Mrs. Stuart also placed a wreath in memory of her husband who lost his life in World War I and her son who died in World War II. Mrs. W. James Charlton, in memory of her son; Mrs. J. J. McFadden in memory of her son and Aubrey Morrison in memory of his brother. The Lakefield Branch, Canadian Red Cross Society, Mrs. W. W. Leonard; the Women's Institute, Mrs. Howard Bullock; Clemanti Lodge, Mr. W. W. Yale; Rebecca Lodge, Mrs. Charles Lee; St. Paul's Church, George A. Charlton; Lakefield District High School, Bill Down; Lions Club, Jack Ryan; Village of Lakefield, Reeve E. H. Northey; Lakefield Fire Department, Bernard Johnston; I.O.D.E., Mrs. K. Veterans Face Hardships Government Told

OTTAWA (CP) — In the wake of Remembrance Day mourning for Canada's war dead, the Canadian Legion told the cabinet today that many of the men who fought and lived are facing "extreme hardship."

A day after the traditional Nov. 11 ceremonies, the Legion's leaders called for greater aid for aged and needy veterans because, they said, existing legislation cannot cope with the situation.

In a brief to Prime Minister St. Laurent and other ministers, the 250,000-strong veterans' organization said that improvements in the War Veterans Allowances Act by Parliament this year have not nearly solved the problem.

Dr. C. B. Lumsden of Wolfville, N. S., the national president, read the brief which also reiterated a demand for an independent inquiry into the state of Canada's reserve forces.

It pledged support "in the maintenance of Canada's contribution to the defence of democracy" and opposed any suggestion that Canada should cut down on aid to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization.

"NOT ENOUGH MONEY"

But the main fire was concentrated on the state of the roughly 30,000 Canadian overseas veterans and widows of veterans living on war veterans allowances, awards made to the aged and needy.

The existing maximum monthly rates of $50 for single, $90 for married recipients aren't large enough to allow the recipients to live in decency under existing living costs, the brief said. They should be at least $60 and $120.

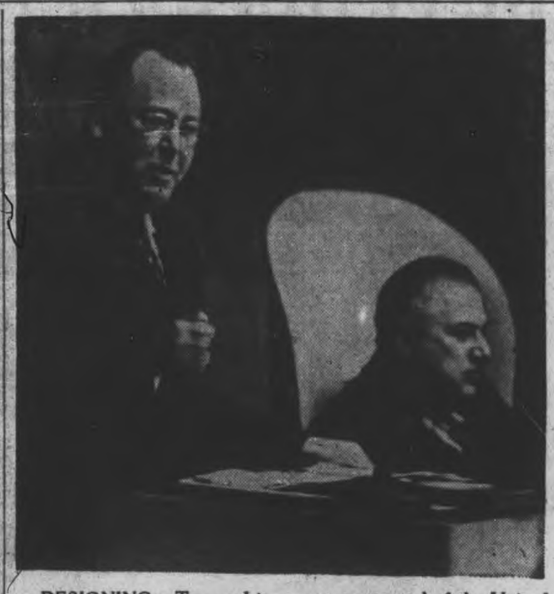
"There is no serious argument that the present basic rates are adequate to meet the needs of the veteran entirely dependent o W. V. A. but we have been told that the insuperable objection to granting our request is that W.V.A. legislation must be tied to the provisions of the Old Age Pension act. We are not prepared to accept that proposition."

The whole concept of W. V. A. had nothing to do with similar awards to civilians.

The Legion said it has canvassed branches across Canada in an effort to find out how W. V. A. recipients are living.

MANY UNEMPLOYED

"The information that comes to us reveals that there are a large number unable to accept any kind of employment at all. . .We have over 200 case histories indicating extreme need."



The Legion proposed that the allowances be increased and that ceilings on total income be raised sharply — to $1,200 single instead of $720, to $2,000 married instead of $1,200 — so those recipients who can work won't be penalized for doing so.

WESTWOOD (ENS) — Remembrance Day was observed on Sunday afternoon in Westwood Community Park. Mr. H. J. Tomlinson of the Presbyterian Church conducted the service. Rev. H. E. Peasgood of St. Michael's Anglican Church delivered the address.

"O God Our Help In Ages Past" and "Nearer My God To Thee" were sung by the congregation.

The service at the cenotaph which followed included the reading of the names of the departed by Mr. Peasgood and prayer by Mr. Tomlinson and the National Anthem.

Suffer Broken Legs

LUCKNOW (CP)—Run over by a car yesterday on the main street, two small children were admitted to the Wingham General Hospital each suffering from a broken leg. They are Donna Corrin, 3½, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Mel Corrin of Lucknow, and her three-year-old cousin, Douglas Lankshire of Brantford. They apparently stepped into the path of the car.

Play Withdrawn

LONDON (CP)—Actress Florence Desmond's first straight play, "The Apples of Eve," was withdrawn after a 12-day run in the West end. The British actress played all seven women's parts in the production and had her hair cut short for the play.

Criticizes Girl Students

OXFORD, England (CP)—Oxford University's own paper, the Isis, criticized girl students with the statement "the fluffy pullovers, windswept hair, sack-line skirts, are sufficient indication of the tepid, sluggish flowing of their blood."

Conscience Money

BELFAST (CP)—The post office received one shilling "conscience money" from an unidentified man in Canada who explained he had broken insulators on telephone poles when he was a boy in Ulster.

Allen Earl Deen

Pallbearers at the funeral Tuesday of Allen Earl Deen, 34, lot 27, concesson 2, Otonabee township, were Ronald Cameron, Sherwood Hendren, Stuart Buck, Gordon Stevenson, Orval Bell, and Jack Dewart.

Mr. Deen died Sunday in hospital after a short illness. He farmed in Otonabee all his life.

The service was at the Belleghem funeral home and burial was in Warsaw cemetery. The Rev. R. D. Duncanson of Norwood Presbyterian Church officiated, assisted by the Rev. W. J. Bingham of Norwood Baptist Church.

Flower bearers were Leslie Cameron, William Brealey, Stewart Bell, Sherman Nelson, Archie Elmhirst and Harry Wood.

Princess Pats Remember Fallen Comrades

PUSAN, Korea (AP) — The 1st battalion of the Princesss Patricia's Canadian Light Infantry paused in its journey home at the United Nations cemetery here today and bid a last farewell to comrades who fell in the Korean war.

Under a grey sky, officers and men paid homage to the memories of one officer and 35 men who died in combat. Their commanding officer, Lt.-Col. John Cameron of Halifax, placed a wreath at the base of the flag staff.

Then, for each man killed in action, one of his comrades placed a wreath beside the first.

Then the solemn notes of the Last Post from nine bugles blended into the icy wind and the battalion stood in silence for two minutes.

Two pipers of the Black Watch piped the Lament and the traditional reveille was sounded by the buglers.

I WANT 2000 PEOPLE TO TRY SYNTONA FOR ONLY 25 CENTS

WHAT IT IS!

SYNTONA is an advanced medical compound of 12 of the finest medicinal herbs, and not one a habit-forming drug. It is taken before meals and mixes with the food in one's stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that foster stomach troubles. It acts within 10 minutes to stop gas and pains, sourness, bloating and belching. At the same time SYNTONA drives the poisons from the kidneys and relieves backache, bladder irritation and weakness.

WHAT IT DOES!

It acts on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It DRIVES OUT rheumatic and neuritic pains, puts a stop to boils, pimples and other common blood disorders by ELIMINATING THE CAUSE! It builds strong healthy nerves. It will free your system of its over-supply of acidity. Those ravaging acids that accumulate and irritate your stomach—fill you with gas—sour your food and cause constipation.

Now, whether SYNTONA will help you as it has thousands of others—whether it will end your sufferings in a day or week—remains to be seen, but in the light of what it has done for others, it is surely a mistake not to try it for 25c only a fraction of its worth. This introductory offer is good the remainder of this week ONLY. Act at once. Do this in fairness to yourself and your family.

At the First Sign of a COLD
and feel better FAST!

Here's sound and effective advice about colds.

No matter how you try to stop or shorten a cold, the first thing to do—before you do anything else—is to take Aspirin.

You should do this because a cold is almost invariably accompanied by muscular aches and pains—and a headachy, feverish feeling. And for your own good, you need a medication that will relieve these distressing symptoms—relieve them quickly.

One reason Aspirin tablets bring this relief is that they're ready to go to work with amazing speed . . . actually start disintegrating almost instantly.

So don't experiment with a cold. Use Aspirin. And for sore throats due to colds, gargle 3 times daily with 3 Aspirin tablets dissolved in ⅓ of a glass of water.

Many Ideas Tried To Solve Parking Jam

By BERT GOLDRATH

CHICAGO (NEA) — Not so much where to go, but where to stop when he gets there, is a problem increasingly plaguing the motorist. Let him take heart, though; something is being done about the tragic lack of parking facilities in many U.S. communities.

PUSH-BUTTON parking is achieved in this Washington garage, where one attendant puts cars in elevator stalls electrically.

Just how the problem is being attacked is explained in a recently - published pamphlet, "Parking — How It Is Financed," prepared by the Automotive Safety Foundation for the National Retail Drygoods Association, presumably because the N.R.D.G.A. is interested in better parking for its member stores.

Naturally, the first step to be undertaken is the determination of local needs. There the human element comes in. All-day parkers, who must get facilities at fairly low rates, must not encroach upon more expensive space needed for short-time parkers.

The short-timers, it has been found, are unwilling to walk more than two blocks from where their cars are parked to their destinations. All-day parkers don't mind walking considerably further. In some areas the two types of parking are segregated.

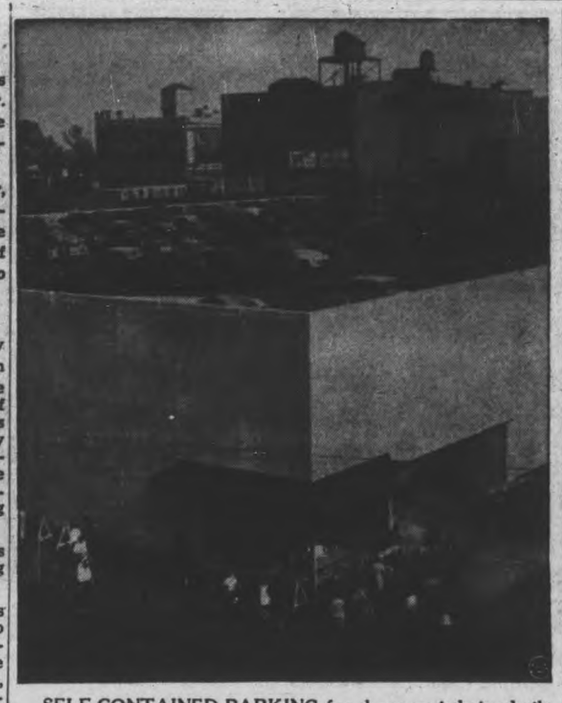
Multi-storey parking has become a must even in some small cities. But engineers have learned that motorists are reluctant to use unattended parking structures if they have to walk up or down more than four stories. If the garages have to be attended, costs soar, and rates must be higher. A Midwestern department store saved $25,000 by dropping attendant parking in its 500-car lot.

To handle the problem better, some 35 cities have added a parking authority as an arm of the municipal government. Some of these groups have the power to issue bonds.

THREE CATEGORIES

Parking financing can generally be broken down into three main categories: municipal, private enterprise, or a combination of the two. Municipal parking is currently under heavy attack by the newly-formed National Parking Association, which raises the cry of "socialism" against municipal efforts to correct parking inadequacies.

Meanwhile, man's ingenuity is being applied to the parking puzzle in a number of ways.



Two leading department stores in Richmond, Va., have joined to operate an 858-car garage. "Desperate" parking conditions at the medical centre in Beverly Hills, Calif., were alleviated by completion of a 400-car, demountable, prefabricated garage which can be dismantled and moved to another site in three weeks.

The 10-storey Cafritz office building in Washington has interior parking for 475 cars so that tenants may park on their own floors. In Spokane, "Pigeon Hole" parking permits storage of automobiles on a narrow 55-foot lot by means of a hydraulic elevator which travels the length of the demountable parking structure and can stack cars eight high.

Following the lead of San Francisco's underground park under Union Plaza, several cities are building or have built centrally-located sub-surface garages under parks. Detroit is working on a unit which will hold 100 cars in a 10-storey structure only 18 by 100 feet, and is operated entirely by push-button.

Cleveland and Chicago are among those cities which utilize "fringe" parking on the outskirts of the business district, with bus shuttle service. In Coral Gables, Fla., the city has leased land and installed meters.

Cities need not work in a vacuum in solving their parking difficulties, the Automotive Safety Foundation points out. Help is available through state highway departments, with state and federal highway planning survey funds, under the terms of the Federal Highway Aid Act, available for city studies.

SELF-CONTAINED PARKING for shoppers is being built into many new shopping centres, like this one in suburban New York.

Girl Guides, Brownies Receive Badges

LAKEFIELD (ENS) —An impressive ceremony was held in Memorial Hall on Friday evening when the Girl Guides and Brownies of the village received badges of merit and new members were enrolled. A large number of parents and interested friends attended. The new Girl Guide World Flag was used with the Union Jack for decoration in the hall. The framed warrants of Guide Captain Mrs. Eldon Jewell and Brown Owl Mrs. Reg. Doubt were also on display.

The world flag, its purpose and meaning was explained to those present by Guide Lieut. Mrs. W. E. Farnell.

The First Brownie Pack opened the ceremonies by singing their songs, "The Fairy Ring" and the Brownie Smile song.

The proficiency badges were presented to Golden Bar Brownies for swimming by Brown Owl, Mrs. R. Doubt. Those receiving this award were: Glenda Armstrong, Judy Doubt, Lois Farrow, Agnes Fraser, Anne Gariepy, Lynn Lichty and Betty Anne Payton.

The Thrift Badge was won by Sharon Jewell while Eleanor Quackenbush, Judy Doubt, Lois Farrow and Sherrin Hopkins won the Artists Badge.

Collectors Badges were won by Sally Foster, Lynn Lichty, Sharon Jewell and Carol Rogers.

The presentation of Golden Bars, also made by Mrs. Doubt were to Judy Slater, Judy Wilson, Sandra Spargo, Sharon Payne, Sandra Mansell, Lorainne Stenner. She was assisted by Jeanette Staples, Nancy Doubt and Betty Jane Rath. Mrs. Doubt explained that it was not possible to give badges to all who had passed the various tests as the necessary number of badges had not arrived, but the matter would be remedied as soon as possible.

Eleven Brownies were enrolled into the second Brownie Pack, which is in charge of Brown Owl Mrs. T. E. M. Last. They were: Gloria Carey, Carol Hollingshead, Carolyn Down, Gaye Welsford, Joan Crawford, Sheila Perley, Beth Weavers, Joyce Davis, Karen Graham, Carolyn Northey and Janet Twist. These children were enrolled by Brown Owl, Mrs. Doubt.

Members of the second pack who received their Golden Bars were Georgia Jefferys, Donna Farrow, Judy Foster, Wendy Nickels, Anne Junkin and Marie Deladonne.

Guide Captain Mrs. Eldon Jewell, assisted by Guide Lieut. Mrs. W. E. Farnell presented a proficiency badge for swimming to Patty Jakins and the following were enrolled in the Girl Guides: Elizabeth Witherstone, Diane Peters, Isobel Coons, Elizabeth Bolton, Gloria Bolton and Joanne Rosborough.

Cobourg Comets Defeated In Lindsay 4-2

LINDSAY— Lindsay Muskies opend the Lakeshore league O. H. A. intermediate season here last night with a 4-2 win over the Cobourg Hornets.

The local blueshirts were behind only once, when the Comets opened the scoring at 2.50 of the first period with Reeves banging in a long shot past O'Connell on a pass from Munro.

In the second period, Hicks tied the game on a solo effort, and the Muskies' penalty-killing ability came to the fore, as the parade to the sin-bin began, with the locals drawing most of the free rides. Green, Reeves, O'Donoghue, Davies, Hennessy, Bridge, Coombs and Burns caught the eye of the refs, as the action quickened in pace and the locals began to show signs of chippiness.

The excitement and goal-scoring reached a new high in the third with the penalties continuing.

The Muskies pulled away from the Comets to put the game on ince. Montgomery from Lewis and Green, at 5.40 and Mike Burns from O'Donoghue and Hicks at 7.50 gave them their winning margin. Cobourg pulled to within a goal at 17.28, but Crawford finished off a steady passing play in front of the Comets net at 19.34 to put the game on the ice.

The march to the penalty bench continued as "Boom Boom" Baker, Cobourg to his first seatence of the season, "Whimp" Parke went off for the Muskies, Montgomery and Somerville were banished for fighting and Davis, Greer and Colery finished off the night's bad business.

The Coombes-Parker, Crawford led the way for the winners with their persistent checking, skating and stickhandling, and were used in penalty killing to advantage. Wimp Parker was especially effective in centre.

On the blue line, Hennessy and Davis were outsanding and "Mucker O'Connell" played a steady game in goal.

The Comets net minder, Somerville, played an outstanding game throughout.

Present Bible Drama By Salvation Army

A Bible drama, The Alabastre Cruse, will be presented tonight by The Salvation Army Temple Bible Group under the auspices of the League of Mercy.

The play revolves around Oliyeh, a peasant girl in a Judean village south of Jerusalem at the time of Christ's life on earth.

The girl is overwhelmed by the difficulty of obeying the exactions of pharisaical priests and goes to Jerusalem. Here she lives among maidens in a young Roman henchman's palace. The Roman presents her with his choicest treasurer—a cruse of pure alabaster.

The sinfullness and luxury of the palace soon causes Oliyeh to have misgivings and she decides to return to the villages. On the way she sees Christ and offers Him the wages of her sin, the alabaster cruse. He forgives her and reveals to her His approaching cross which forever establishes her in righteousness and peace.

Major U.N. Offensive No Gain—Rockingham

MONTREAL (CP) — Brig. J.M. Rockingham told the Montreal United Services Institute last night he believes no strategic advantage would be gained by a major United Nations offensive in Korea.

The former Canadian brigade commander in Korea said any further advance would "lengthen U.N. lines of communication and shorten the enemy's."

Canadians at home did not realize the communist "pressure and propaganda" on Far East countries. "As a counter against the ideological war, Canadian, and all U.N. troops for that matter, have served as goodwill ambassadors in the orient," he said.

"We have gained face in the eyes of all Oriental countries. We have shown them we are willing to meet aggression by force."

Heads 25th Brigade In Bogert's Absence

WITH THE CANADIANS IN KOREA (CP) — Lt.-Col. Peter Bingham is temporarily commanding the 25th Canadian infantry brigade during the absence on leave of Brig. M. P. Bogert, the force commander, who is having a short holiday in Hong Kong.

As senior battalion commander, Bingham relieves Bogert during such absences. He commands the 1st battalion, Royal Canadian Regiment.

Also on leave in Hong Kong is Lt.-Col. E. M. D. McNaughton, officer commanding the 1st regiment, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery.

During his absence Maj. Aaron Robertson of Hamilton and Kingston is commanding the regiment.

Rivard Urges Police Act As Peace Officers

QUEBEC (CP) — Solicitor-General Rivard yesterday asked provincial police traffic officers to patrol their beats more regularly and spend less time loitering around restaurants.

Speaking to officers gathered for yearly instructions, Mr. Rivard urged them "to act as peace officers as well as highway patrolmen."

Cellar Of Shop Flooded, Town Is Sued

LINDSAY —(ENS) — A Lindsay dress shop proprietor is suing the town for $2700 damages in connection with the flooding of the cellar of the shop during the last two years. The case is being heard at the assizes here, before Mr. Jusctice Angiers, Col. R. I. Moore, Q. C., town solicitor, is defending the coproration.

Mr. Albert took the witness box yesterday for a two-hour period, in which he said that the cellar of the shop had flooded a year ago last February, and considerable damage had been done to the goods inside. He claimed that intermittent floods during the following months had done further damage and he had called the water works commission.

The waterworks superintendent inspected mains inside and outside the cellar and decided that the trouble lay within the bounds of the Board of Works. During the ensuing months, he said, the issue had been "footballed," between the two departments while the flooding continued. The flooding has now stopped, but the damage to the merchandise has not been repaid.

Mr. Albert testified that an insurance adjuster had placed the loss at $3,076 with the cost price of the goods and articles damaged or lost at about $2,700. He said that some of the articles had to be taken to the town dump, since they were moulding, but that others could be salvaged.

Town solicitor Fulton questioned the owner on the date the damaged goods were placed in stock, and intimated he might have wanted to get rid of them. Mr. Albert replied that he had wanted to sell the goods at a profit. Mr. Fulton also suggested that the water in the basement had come from the flat roof of the building, and had been caused by faulty drains. Seven more witnesses will be called for defence and Mrs. Albert is scheduled to teke the box for the defence this afternoon.

Mr. Fulton concluded his cross-examination by asking the plaintiff whether or not the water had stopped flooding into the basement in June of this year. He was told that such was the case.

Drs. Over-Prescribe Medicine—Specialist

LOS ANGELES (AP)—A doctor told the convention of general practitioners that doctors "are prescribing too much medicine and doing it despite the fact we know too little about the stuff we prescribe and even less about the bodies we are treating."

Dr. William H. Gordon, Lubbock, Tex., heart specialist, made the observation yesterday. He said also that over-exploitation of medicines is increasing unreasonably the cost of medical care.

"I am convinced that all cold vaccines are worthless," Dr. Gordon said.

Fear Deadly Red Tide Returns To Kill Fish

FORT MYERS, Fla. (AP) — Fears were expressed today that a new "red tide" has returned to Gulf of Mexico waters off the southwest Florida coast, bringing death to millions of fish.

The "red tide" infestation took a heavy toll of fish a few years ago. Scientists said it apparently was caused by an organism in the gills.

Shrimp boat skippers returning from Dry Tortugas and Campeche, Mexico, reported the dead fish packed thickly from 70 miles out all the way to Fort Myers beach.

Huks Attack Village

MANILA (AP) — Rebel Huks attacked a village north of Manila yesterday for the second time in 12 hours. The Philippine news service said they killed four persons. Eight villagers were killed in the first raid.

Suicides In Mausoleum

HARTSDALE, N.Y. (AP) — Dr. L. Fred Neyrat, 70, a retired surgeon, fatally shot himself yesterday in the mausoleum where his wife's ashes have reposed since she was cremated after her death four years ago.

DR. RALPH J. BUNCHE (centre), is McGill University's newest graduate — an honor conferred on him by Chancellor B. C. Gardner (right), at an unusual ceremony at Montreal's Macdonald College. Bradford Walsh, college registrar, places the Doctor of Laws, honoris causa, hood over the shoulders of the distinguished peace-maker.

Warkworth Honors Dead Of Two Wars

WARKWORTH (ENS)—A large turnout of ex-service men, led by the Warkworth Band, paraded past the cenotaph in the Remembrance Day service here on Sunday.

The service was in the town hall with the Rev. A. L. Sisco of St. Paul's United Church officiating.

Guest speaker was Major R. E. Drope of Harwood, formerly M.P. for Northumberland. He was introduced by Mr. Sisco.

The band provided the accompaniment for the hymn, "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," and at the end of this part of the service the band and the Legion led the parade to the cenotaph. There wreaths were laid in memory of the dead of the two World Wars.

Mrs. George Arkels, president of the Percy Women's Institute, laid the wreath for her organization. Veterans who laid wreaths: Councillor William Johnston, for the township; Raymond Dudley, for the province, and Gerald Greenly, for the Legion.

After the wreaths were placed the parade marched down Church St. and then returned to the cenotaph for the salute.

Last Post and Reveille was sounded by Trumpeter George Potter.

Mothers At Home Under Heavy Strain

MANCHESTER, England (CP)—Mothers who don't go out to work have more strain and worry than those who do, says a nurseries committee.

The committee decided to ask the health ministry to have day nurseries thrown open to the children of mothers who remain at home during the day.

A committee member, Mrs. Joan Harris, said if the government acted on the appeal much of the strain that turns many mothers into "worn-down bundles of apathy," would be relieved.

Immigrant Would Design Furniture

KITCHENER (CP)—A German artist and inventor who arrived here recently says his ambition is to design furniture which will be exclusively Canadian. He also wants to establish an art school and museum of rare objects.

Prof. Heinrich Johann Gustaf Westphalen of Bremen, Germany, and his wife, Marta, came to Canada with the help of the Canada Lutheran World Relief Organization.

He brought 14 trunks of his paintings, sculptory, writing, inventions, designs and collection of rare objects.

Hunter, 24, Killed By Companion's Gun

PORT ARTHUR (CP) — —Egon Vollbracht, 24-year-old German immigrant, was fatally wounded yesterday when a rifle held by a companion, Paul Langerich, accidentally discharged while being unloaded after a hunting trip. A brother of the victim, Manfred, 21, received a superficial wound when the bullet glanced off him before hitting Egon.

Safety In Numbers

LONDON (CP)—Asked at a magistrate's court here whether he knew that a prisoner had a fiancee at Torquay in Devon, a detective replied: 'From my inquiries I think there are about five fiancees at Torquay."

Suspect Arson

KRESTOVA, B.C. (CP) — The Krestova community hall was destroyed by fire during the weekend. The R.C.M.P. said last night they suspect the blaze was the work of Sons of Freedom Doukhobor arsonists.

Busy Pianist

LONDON (CP)—Cornelius van Allen, 23-year-old Canadian pianist studying here under Nova Scotia scholarships, gave a recital under auspices of the overseas league. He was also engaged for the Bournemouth Municipal Orchestra concert on Nov. 2. Native of Belleville, Ont., he received his training in Toronto and Halifax.

Speaker Tells Of Postal History

BETHANY (ENS).—At the Women's Institute meeting held in the Orange Hall Monday evening, Mrs. H. L. Challice, convener for Historical Research related some interesting facts on "Postal Service."

"We have recently celebrated the 100th anniversary of Canada's postal service. It was in 1851 that the first Canadian postage stamps were issued. The first sending of parcels began in that same year with a limit of two pounds per percel. It was 1854 before the first railway post office was established in Canada on the run between London and Niagara Falls. From 1859 the service developed rapidly and the post card made it's appearance in Canada in 1871. In 1908 came the beginning of rural route service which brought mail to the farm homes.

FIRST RURAL SERVICE

The first of these was tried out between Hamilton and Ancaster. Today there are over 4,000 routes serving 230,000 boxes in Canada. Finally came air mail. The Trans-Canada air mail service was officially inaugurated on March 1, 1939. Now, the Canadian postal service has at its disposal transportation by land, water and air linked with the whole world.

More than 40,000 people in Canada alone are employed in handling mail. Looking backwards, perhaps the earliest postal service on record was one started by a trusted messenger of King Sargon of Chaldea, somewhere around 3000 B.C.

He selected and trained a number of young men, all long distance runners, who were reliable and courageous, necessarily so because of the perils of travel from wild animals, bandits, etc.

ROMANS USED COURIERS

Turning the pages of history quickly, we come to the time that Rome had become a mighty Empire and find the courier system of fast travelling messengers was well established. Their couriers carried with them cages of homing pigeons and by attaching messages to them and letting them out they would fly back home.

During the Siege of Paris, German military authorities actually trained hawks to intercept French pigeons with these messages. It was not until 1544 that permission was granted in Spain and Germany for couriers to carry letters for other than government officials.

The English postal system came into being during the reign of Henry VIII and was used more and more as people learned to read and write. In 1657 a Post Office Act was passed and for more than two centuries the post boy was very important in the English postal setup. The arrival of the railway train opened up new possibilities for the carrying of mail, but it was a long time before it was considered reliable enough for this important duty; railroads in Canada being subject to interruption by everything from buffalos on the tracks to hostile Indians. The progress of mail service in Canada has been truly remarkable."

Mrs. Harold Sanderson conducted a contest on "Men in the News" with Mrs. T. Jennings the winner. Mrs. Challice also gave a poem on "Old Superstitions."

NEW POND RAILING

In keeping with the program, the roll call was answered by "What I would do if I were sixteen again." As a further community service it was decided that the Institute would supply lumber to replace a walk and railing at Gribble's Pond. This pond is privately owned by Mr. Gribble, but is used by the community for swimming in the summer. The repairs will make it safer for children.

Lunch was served by Mrs. Challice, Mrs. H. Sanderson, Mrs. Wm. Phillips and Mrs. C. Armstrong. Mrs. T. S. Gault moved a vote of thanks to the hostess group.

The December meeting will be in charge of Mrs. Hope Rayson, featuring Home Economics and Health, and there will be an exchange of Christmas gifts among the members.

FreePeopleNeedRight ToPublishWithoutFear

BOSTON (AP) — The annual meeting of The Associated Press Managing Editors Association was told today that free people must have the right to get the facts about their government and to publish them without fear of "savage and unfair reprisal."

That premise was laid down in a report by J. Russell Wiggins of the Washington Post at the annual meeting of the A.P.M.E., opening a four-day session.

Some 250 editors are attending the sessions which are analyzing the AP's methods of handling news.

Winnings, chairman of the A.P.M.E. committee on freedom of information, added these rights:

"To publish them (government facts) without prior restraint or censorship

"Access to facilities for disseminating these facts; and

"To distribute these facts to others."

Four Injured As Car Crashes Into Bridge

CHATSWORTH (CP)—Dan Duff, Chatsworth, is in fair condition in hospital here after a car he was driving crashed into a bridge at Dornoch, 20 miles south of Owen Sound, early today.

His 11-year-old daughter, Carol, received less serious injuries and is in satisfactory condition.

Duff's wife and another daughter Mrs. Morris Baker of Owen Sound, also passengers in the car, escaped with minor hurts.

Chatsworth is nine miles south of Owen Sound.

Department Inspectors View Norwood District School

HAVELOCK (ENS) —Principal J. H. Caskey of the Norwood District High School reported the enrollment for October as 268, at a meeting of the Board of Education held in Norwood.

The enrollment according to grades was as follows: Grade IX-136; Grade X-64; Grade XI-28; Grade XII-23; Grade XIII-17. The average attendance was 253.3 and the percentage 94.6. All the buses operated daily on time. The organization is improving steadily but the conditions in the cafeteria are not as desired. Mr. Caskey said he had to stagger the noon hour in the cafe room so that all might be accommodated. Some he said are eating in the auditorium. He suggested 12 tables be supplied in order to remedy the situation. Five pupils he said have left for reasons beyond the control of the school.

VISIT SCHOOL

Mr. Caskey said that Mr. Beatty, superintendent of Secondary Education, Toronto, who was the guest speaker at the official opening, together with the high and public school inspectors who were in attendance, were pleased with the building and equipment, paying tribute to the design, by the architect H. H. Roberts and the beautiful structure that had been erected by the Eastwood Construction Company of Peterborough. The space had been well utilized, there were good auditoriums and science rooms well equipped with the sound well controlled. The shop and home economics inspectors had paid a visit he said and were satisfied with the teachers' equipment and timetable. There had been no adverse criticism by any of the inspectors. They had felt that the cost of the building was reasonable as estimate is now $1,500 per pupil. Mr. Caskey said the caretaker's work was good. The commencement exercises will be held on December 3 and 4.

FIVE CUPS ORDERED

Mr. Caskey requested the Board to furnish five cups for field day trophies—value $25; also a petty cash account of $10 and a runner with the high school crest on it for table. He also reported that there were no master valves at gas tanks.

The Board gave Mr. Caskey, permission to purchase the cups for field day and the secretary treasurer was authorized to open a petty account, limited to $10 The matter of valves for the gas tank was left with the property committee.

Trustee Copp informed the Board that only one furnace was working, and that the two furnaces should be operated alternately. Mr. Eastwood has been contacted and will investigate.

RETURN CHEQUE TO COUNTY

With reference to a letter received from the County Clerk and return of cheque for $20,756.56 which covered the department grant on debenture payment for 1952, it was moved by Truestees C. A. Copp and B. C. Haryett that the secretary-treasurer again forward the cheque to the county clerk and also forward to the district municipal clerks a statement showing amount of debentures and grants and the net sum to be retired by the municipalities broken down as per assessment and percentage.

REMOVE BUILDING

On motion by Truestees R. Doan and K. Ross the application from D. McNeil to remove the Pearce building as per the advertisement be accepted, $75 was accepted and an agreement was drawn.

As insurance papers, bonds, etc. held by the Board now require protection, it was decided that if the school office will accommodate a safe that one be procured for $75.

The transportation committee reported that students on the Danford bus were not as orderly as required and the secretary was instructed to write Mr. Danford that the students must be under control and if not the Board would take the required action to maintain order.

Chairman Buck reported on hydro and water costs. A further report to be made at the December meeting.

Accounts amounting to approximately $2,744 were passed.

U.K. Teen-Agers Study Marriage

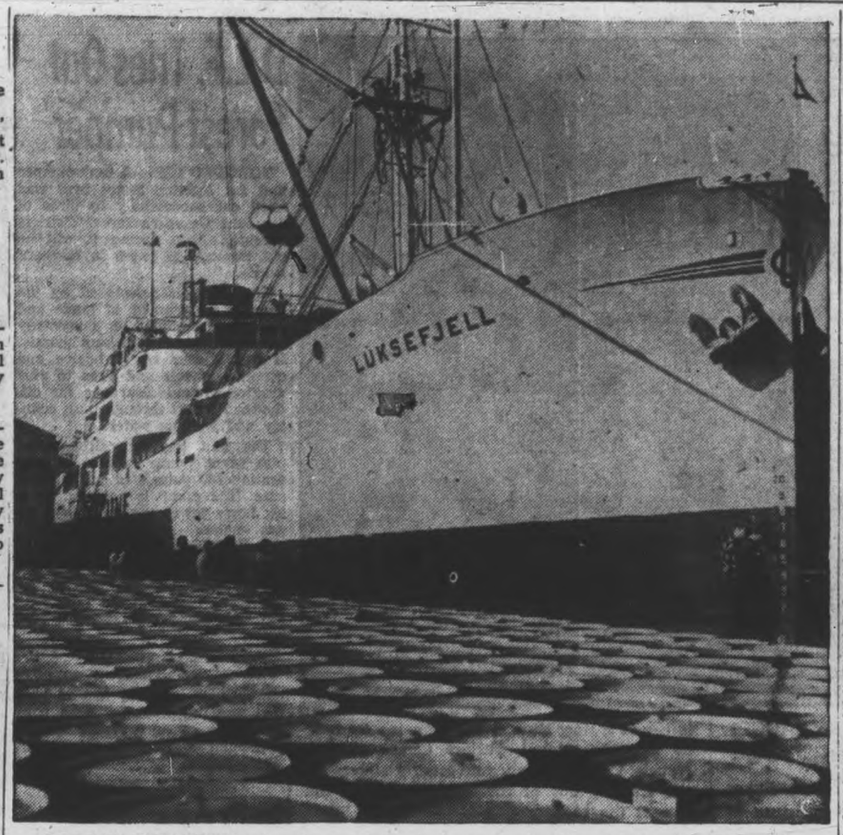
LONDON (Reuters) — Hundreds of teen-age London boys and girls are pairing off as "man and wife" under school supervision and living for a day in a three-room apartment to prepare them for married life.

Headmaster Walter H. Wheeler of the Creek Manor School told a reporter yesterday that each couple spends a day in the furnished apartment adjoining the school in their final year there.

The 611-student school, run by the London County Council, serves as a showcase for visiting educationists from many foreign countries.

The boy and girl start the day by making the double bed together. While the girl cooks lunch, her "husband" sweeps up and polishes furniture. After lunch, they wash dishes together and entertain visitors to tea.

At the end of the day, the girl takes a bath. Her husband sits by a fire and reads the evening paper. A teacher supervises the entire operation.



"There is no sex instruction," Wheeler said. "They absorb that naturally in their biology lessons. We concentrate on teaching them the art of home-making."

Kostelanetz Conducts At Kitchener Hall

TORONTO (CP)—Andre Kostelanetz arrived here yesterday en route to Kitchener where he will conduct the Toronto Symphony Orchestra Friday.

Mr. Kostelanetz said:

"I am going to Kitchener to baptize a hall with music. The Y.M.C.A. have decided that the hall should have music. So they have sold 7,000 tickets and I will conduct the Toronto Symphony Orchestra there to show that it is never too late to bring music into a building."

The Luksefjell and another Norwegian freighter took on rubber and chemicals. English and German ships also put into this port this season to swell the fleet of Dutch, Swedish and French freighters which make Sarnia a regular port of call. Endorsement by the Sarnia Harbor Advisory Committee of a $15,000,000 program for pier installations to permit berthing of a large fleet points up the future importance of the harbor in the St. Lawrence Seaway plan.

Brod Crawford 10 Ugliest Men Picks Filmdom's

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — Who are the 10 unhandsomest actors in Hollywood?

They're Broderick Crawford, Spencer Tracy, Jose Ferrer, Humphrey Bogart, Charles Laughton, William Bendix, Paul Douglas, Marlon Brando, James Cagney and Robert Ryan.

Who picked them?

Broderick Crawford.

"These guys all have ugly mugs, myself included," he admitted. "I don't mean that we have the kind of a face that would scare children. But we're sure as heck ugly when you compare us to the pretty-boy actor in past screen history.

"And I'm glad. The guys with ugly mugs are working. And lots of the pretty boys aren't around much any more. I remember one who was hot as a pistol when I came back to pictures from the army. I see that boy on television now and then."

WORKS IN CYCLES

The whole thing seems to work in cycles. Back in the silent days, the flappers longed for sleek Latin lovers like Rudolph Valentino, Ramon Novarro and Antonio Moreno. Then came the realism of the depression with mugs like James Cagney, Pat O'Brien and Edward G. Robinson. Even Clark Gable was a departure from the usual handsome leading man.

Then the trend switched back to handsome heartbeats like Tyrone Power and Robert Taylor.

"Now we're back to the mugs again," remarked Crawford. "Pictures are more realistic. The European pictures helped bring that. You see movies from Italy and England and all the actors look like real people.

"I'm not knocking the handsome guys. Lord knows, there's a place for them in this business, too. I'd look kinda silly trying to play in 'Camille.' But I think it's just as silly for Tyrone Power to come down a western street with both guns blazing or to take on a roomful of gangsters with his bare fists."

Crawford added that being ugly is career insurance. The matinee idol starts to fall from fame when his jowls start to sag, but the actor with a homely pan can slip gracefully into character parts.

He pointed out that most of those on his 10-unhandsomest list have been prospering in jhollywood for a considerable period. What's more there are seven Oscars among those 10, and all but one have been nominated for at least one Academy Award.

Reject Proposal Ask Dean's Resignation

LONDON (AP)—The Assembly of the Church of England threw out a proposal yesterday that it should consider on an emergency basis a motion for the resignation of the "Red" Dean of Canterbury, Dr. Hewlett Johnson.

Dr. Johnson, sitting in the back of the hall, smiled faintly when the decision was announced.

The issue was raised by Richard Reader Harris, a Conservative member of Parliament. The motion said: "The Assembly deplores the recent utterances of Dr. Hewlett Johnson and is of the opinion that he should resign from the position of Dean of Canterbury."

Even if the motion were considered and approved, Dr. Johnson—known for his Communist sympathies—would not be compelled to quit his post. The dean can be dismissed only for a civil or ecclesiastical offence.

Sterling Bloc Problem Rests On World Basis

OTTAWA (CP)—The economic problems that beset the sterling area must be tackled by a larger body than the Commonwealth before a final solution is obtained, federal officials said yesterday.

On that point they agreed with Foreign Secretary Eden of Britain who told the United Nations Assembly that in the final resort economic problems "cannot be resolved except on a world basis."

But they were puzzled by what Mr. Eden meant when he said the Commonwealth economic conference in London starting Nov. 27 offers a "famous opportunity."

Some suggested that the "famous opportunity" lies in the fact that the heads of state—the prime ministers of the commonwealth—will be gathered at one place and top-level decisions may follow. In the past, conferences dealing with the sterling bloc crisis have been attended by Commonwealth finance ministers.

Horses Head for Obscurity Of Farms Or Maybe Zoo?

"That sonny is a horse. When I was your age, they were quite common in the country and there were even a few of them in the cities drawing bread and milk wagons."

The middle aged man eased his foot off the air intake of the jet-mobile and flicked on the reverse jets to slow down so his grandson could get a longer look at the odd looking animal behind the fence along the roadside.

"About the only place you'll see one now is on a farm where the farmer keeps one for sentimental reasons," he went on. Then, as the horse could no longer be seen after the auto-jet cruised around a bend, the grandfather shoved down the intake pedal and sped off along the superhighway to his Kawartha vacation retreat.

This conversation between one of the youngsters of today and his grandson in about the year 2000 might actually occur. If horses keep disappearing at the present rate in Ontario, they will eventually be as rare as trumpter swans.

Ontraio Department of Agriculture figures show that the province now has the smallest horse population since 1884 when the department started keeping a census of livestock.

Anyone who scoffs at the idea of horses becoming so unusual that anyone would stop a car to look at one, might stop and think that 150 years ago oxen were in common use in rural Ontario.

Now, the only places they are seen are in the back country rural areas of Quebec and the Maritimes.

The beginning of the motor car era marked the beginning of the decline of the horse population. In 1884, there were 535,953 horses in the province. Three years before the turn of the century, the horse population reached its peak of 813,670. It dropped off considerably for a few years, then rose again to 779,000 in 1915. The number then steadily declined to 378,300 in 1950.

Then, in a single year, the number dropped more than 40 per cent to 260,627.

These figures prove that Dobbin will soon be as hard to find as a blacksmith shop.

It's a rare sight indeed today to find a "village smithy" shaping a piece of red hot metal into a horseshoe on his anvil, and the reason is that the blacksmith's main source of income was from shoeing horses.

It was during the Second World War, when farm labor became really scarce that thousands of farmers switched to tractors and mechanized their operations in a big way. During the last half century, the percentage of rural population as compared to the number of people living in cities and towns has changed considerably.

Then, the larger part of the population was engaged in agriculture. Now, it is the other way round, and fewer farmers are producing more. The reason is that modern machinery has stepped up the production of Canadian farms.

Every time a new piece of machinery was purchased, horses were put out to pasture, sold or in recent years, the worst fate of all, slaughtered for horsemeat.

They are even disappearing from the show ring of fall fairs. At the Peterborough Exhibition this year, the comparatively few horse entries brought the comment from the judge that it was the same all over the province.

The only place where the horse is still unchallenged is at the race track. The Sport of Kings shows no signs of becoming extinct however and future generations will likely be placing $2 bets on ponies who trail the field.

Delivery men nowadays prefer driving a truck, to driving and looking after a horse and on the farm, a tractor can do more work faster. Then too, a tractor uses only fuel while it's running, while hayburners have to be fed three times a day every day of the year.

Sonja Cancels New Ice Show

DETROIT (CP) — Sonja Heinie, long one of the world's leading skaters, has cancelled her new ice show which was to have been shown in Detroit next week

The former Olympic champion said prohibitive costs of playing in small arenas has forced discontinuance of her planned show.

Miss Henie and her husband, Winthrop Gardiner, Jr., were reported to have invested $500,000 in the new show which had a $30,000 weekly payroll.

Cancellation of the show was the latest in a series of misadventures for the blonde skater.

Her ice show was produced for several years by Arthur Wirtz of Chicago. Two years ago Miss Henie failed to reach agreement with Wirtz on contract terms and she set about to do her own show.

The Wirtz show continued with the youthful Canadian star, Barbara Ann Scott, in the leading role.

Miss Henie's show got a bad break last year when some stands collapsed at Baltimore, Md., during a show. A number of spectators were injured and law suits totalling $5,000,000 are pending against Miss Henie.

D.L.F. Tries Out Forest Pumper

TORONTO (CP)—A tank-pumper unit for fighting forest fires was tried out successfully in three of southern Ontario's forest districts recently. Next spring it will be put through its paces in northern woods.

The new unit, designed by the Ontario department of lands and forests, is mounted on a specially reinforced one-ton, pick-up chassis. It has a four wheeled-drive and oversize wheels and tires to give greater ground clearance for off-the-road travel through bush country and shallow waters.

The unit has a positive-action piston-type pump capable of generating 600 pounds of water pressure. The pump is powered by a six horse-power air cooled 4-cycle gas engine.

A 327-gallon water tank also is mounted on the truck. The tank can be loaded in 15 minutes and discharges the water through 180 fee of reeled high-pressure-type hose. The hose nozzle will discharge water at the rate of seven gallons a minute.

The truck carries a portable power-pump and 500 feet of hose that can be used to fight fires separately or as a feeder for the tank-pumper from a convenient water-supply.

Ratify Agreement

DETROIT (CP)—Four thousand Edison Company employees who struck Oct. 23 for higher wages ratified a strike-ending agreement by a two-to-one majority, union union officials announced yesterday. They were reporting on a secret ballot taken among the membership of local 223, Utility Workers of America (C.I.O.), on a union-company agreement granting a 10-cent increase on an hourly basic wage rate of $1.72.

Approve Commercial Sponsorship Of TV

By EDWIN S. JOHNSON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON (CP) —In face of a strong opposition the Conservative government has authorized separation of the powerful, publicly-owned British Broadcasting Corporation from its long-standing monopoly control of the United Kingdom's airwaves.

This break with tradition concedes limited rights of competition to private enterprise, following official sanction of the principle of sponsored broadcasting. The government's White Paper granting the authority was carried by 297 votes to 269.

British listeners now get their radio and television entertainment free from advertising unless they tune in on commercially-sponsored programs from the Republic of Ireland or the continent.

NO IMMEDIATE CHANGE

The experiment, announced in conjunction with the renewal of BBC's operating charter for another 10 years, is expected to be launched in 1953. A government memorandum, however, emphasized that its introduction must wait until the calls on capital resources for national defence and other priority undertakings make the move feasible.

The new order does not mean commercial sponsorship will be thrown wide open. It will be confined at the start to the expanding field of television, and on frequencies higher than those used at present.

Television networks already in operation by the BBC will be maintained and enlarged, while the corporation's exclusive rights in the field of radio broadcasting, a monopoly it has enjoyed since 1927, will not be disturbed. Furthermore, sponsored programs will not be given BBC time.

To deal with these and other charter proposals, the television advisory committee, under the chairmanship of Admiral Sir Charles Daniel, has been reconstituted by the government.

Home Secretary Sir David Maxwell Fyfe said that with TV still in its formative stage, it was reasonable to regard it as a suitable field for an experiment in a departure from monopoly.

HUGE OPERATING STAFF

To carry on its far-ranging activities, involving nearly 150 hours of broadcasting daily over its domestic and external networks, the BBC employs an operating staff of some 13,000 and has a total annual budget outlay of more than $50,000,000.

With the BBC retaining sole claim on revenue from the country's 11,500,000 radio and some 1,600,000 television licences, the home secretary suggested the future of the corporation should not be seriously challenged by the change in policy. The competing private interests would have to start from scratch, cope with the BBC's priority position and rely on advertising sponsorship or their own resources to finance their ventures.

Under the new charter the government introduced measures to remove the corporation as far as possible from the arena of politics by ending the practice of hiring and firing BBC governors by orders-in-council.

Instead, the government has decided the power of appointing and discharging members of the controlling board should be vested in a special committee.

The new director-general of the BBC is 53-year-old Sir Ian Jacob, who served on Prime Minister Churchill's staff during the Second World War. He took over the post in October following the resignation of Sir William Haley, recently appointed editor of the Times.

MUCH OPPOSITION

Criticism of sponsored broadcasting has come mainly from the Labor opposition in Parliament and from newspapers. But many Conservative back-benchers as well as government supporters in the House of Lords have been outspoken in their attacks on commercial competition over the air.

Any system of sponsorship, the argument runs, is contrary to the British way of life and traditions, and competition must inevitably lead to debasement of program standards.

This line of criticism was assailed by L. D. Gammans, assistant postmaster-general. The opposition, he said, had come out in favor of a monopoly of what the British people should be allowed to hear and see. He contended that was only a short step towards establishment of a monopoly of what they should be allowed to read and say.

Gets Deer Hard Way

Then, with the hunter gripping its horns, the deer dragged him around a field for 20 minutes before being thrown. A final kick inflicted painful injuries to Valdron's legs.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Ask Husband Sometime What He Would Like

Of another subject could be "Does he exercise his prerogative to have food idiosyncrasies?"

If so, sister cook, instead of bemoaning your monotonous fate, be glad that he can be pleased. Be glad that he has an appetite. Be glad that he can provide the food he will eat. Be glad that you can cook the things he likes to please him.

This count-your-blessings exhortion grew from a visit I made to the sick husband of a friend of mine. He has a hemorrhage in his chest cavity and a pain in his sinus and is losing weight steadily, and is under the care of three doctors, but still cheerfully tries to eat everything his wife eagerly bears in on his tray.

I came away pondering on the devotion of some husbands. How they eat everything that is put before them, without a grumble. Others, of course, growl all of the time.

But what I want to remind you to do is to ask your faithful spouse if there is not something (or things) that you have been forgetting to make for him. Maybe some of the things his mother used to make for him when he was a boy and that he thinks are the height of all treats—maybe that would warm the cockles of his heart.

In our family those things are butter tarts, and boiled suet puddings, and mixed mustard pickles and fresh cherry pie and Yorkshire pudding. (One guess is all you need for guessing the nationality of my forbears.)

Make this week Family Old Home Week and at least try to make some thing that is his own special favourite.

I only know two men who do not like onions, and I think that that is such a low percentage that I am convincing myself that this is a good day to give you the method again for making French fried onion. The other recipes were chosen by gentlemen that I "polled".

FRENCH FRIED ONIONS

Peel Onions (it is not necessary to use Spanish or imported onions but they make your work easier) and cut them into 3/8 inch slices and separate these slices into rings. Soak the onions in skim milk for ½ hour, then drain them very well and dip them in flour. Drop into deep hot fat at 385 deg. Fahr. As soon as golden, skim out onto soft paper, and serve quickly, preferably with a thick juicy steak.

REFRIGERATOR ROLLS

Two cakes yeast, ¼ cup sugar, 1 cup milk, ½ cup shortening, 1 teaspoon salt, 3 beaten eggs, 5 cups bread flour. Crumble the yeast and mix it with the sugar and ½ cup lukewarm water and let stand 20 minutes. Scald the milk. Add the shortening and salt to it. Cool to lukewarm. Add the yeast-sugar mix and the beaten eggs. Add flour, mixing well. Turn out on floured board and knead until satiny and squeaky —about 2 hours. Knead again and form into any desired shapes. Men like Parker House rolls which are made by rolling out round pieces of dough about size of large egg. Spread butter on top and fold over, pressing firmly Let rise to double in bulk. Bake on oiled pan at 425 deg. Fahr. for about 18 minutes. If to be kept on hand knead after first rising, then store well covered in refrigerator until needed.

CREAM PUFFS

One-half cup shortening, lard and butter or butter, 1 cup boiling water or milk, 1 cup bread flour, 4 eggs, 1 teaspoon salt.

Add the shortening or butter to the water or milk and bring to boil. Add the flour all at once and stir fast until ball forms in centre of pan. Remove from heat and cool slightly. Add unbeaten eggs one at a time, beating after each addition until each egg is incorporated. Mixture should be very stiff by the time all of the eggs are added. Drop from tip of dessert spoon onto oiled cookie sheet and bake at 500 deg. Fahr. for 12 minutes, then reduce heat to 350 deg. Fahr. to finish baking. To test for "doneness" remove one puff from oven at end of 40 minutes oven time. If it does not collapse puffs are baked. This first intense heat is essential to make the "choux" paste puff.

When cold slit sides to fill with rich cream filling or sweetened whipped cream. If dough is shaped through pastry bag and tube into strips 4 inches long by 1 inch wide and baked as above you will have eclair shapes and need only slit sides, fill with whipped cream and put rich frosting on top.

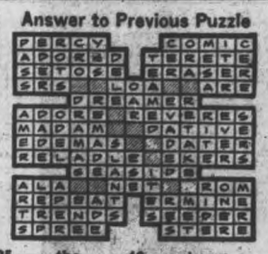
What's Right?

Two women, having lunch together in a crowded restaurant, are talking about mutual acquaintances.

WRONG: They make no effort to keep their conversation from being overheard by those seated close to them.



RIGHT—They keep their voices low—and make sure that no one can overhear the names they mention.

Sea Foods

SHRIMP SALAD MOULD

One and one-quarter tablespoons plain gelatine, ¼ cup cold water, ¼ cup mayonnaise, two 3-oz. packages cream cheese, one 10-oz. can tomato soup, 2 cups trimmed and drained shrimps, 1 cup diced celery, 1 tablespoon chopped green pepper, 1 teaspoon minced onion, ½ cup sliced stuffed olives.

Soak the gelatine in the cold water, and soften the cream cheese by mashing it with a fork. Add the mayonnaise to the softened cheese. Dilute the tomato soup with an equal amount of hot water and heat to boiling. Add the soaked gelatine and stir until dissolved, then slowly stir this into the cheese mixture. Chill and when slightly thickened add the shrimps and vegetables. Pour into large fancy mould. A good fish shaped mould is appropriate. Chill until firm. Serve on lettuce or endive or cress and garnish with whole large shrimps and ripe olives.

TUNA NEWBURG

Two tablespoons butter, 1½ tablespoons flour, ¾ teaspoon salt, few grains cayenne, ½ cup cream, ¼ cup milk. 2 cups flaked tuna fish canned or cooked. 2 egg yolks, 1 tablespoon sherry flavoring. Melt butter, add flour, salt and cayenne and mix well. Add cream and milk gradually, and bring to boiling point, stirring constantly. Add flaked tuna fish. Just before serving add beaten egg yolks and flavouring. Serve on rounds of puff paste garnished with parsley and finely chopped pimiento. This recipe may be used for lobster, shrimps or crabmeat.

Stirring Address By Padre To Ex-Servicewomen

Second annual Remembrance Day banquet of the ex-servicewomen's Branch, No. 452, Canadian Legion, was held Tuesday evening, November 11th, in Hooper's Palm Room. Tables were decorated in red, white and blue.

The branch's padre, Canon Walter J. Gilling, was guest speaker. He used as his theme a quotation from St. Paul: "We are all members one of another."

"It is so easy to become cynical about Remembrance Day" he said. "People were given a few hours holiday from their jobs, children were home from school and everyone gathered to listen to a few pious speeches. But as soon as as the ceremony was over they immediately forgot about it."

"When our soldiers died they lost the power to make this a better world," said Canon Gilling. "We were handed the torch—the task is ours." He continued: "We are all members one of another and each individual member must make a firm resolution which will issue in activitiy to do something about it, or, our boys' sacrifices have been in vain."

Mrs. Pat Vaisey was in charge of the dinner arrangements and she introduced Canon Gilling, who was thanked by Miss Barbara Waters.

President Irma Allen was chairman and spoke briefly. Twenty members of the Branch were present.

Enact Study Book At Trinity Aux.

Elizabeth Parker Evening Auxiliary of Trinity Church Monday evening learned extensively of the United Church mission work in Angola, Africa, from the enactment of a chapter of the study book by members. This chapter dealt with the education.

Miss Helen Staples impersonated the superintendent of the region of Dande and described the schools available in that area. Miss L. Emerson spoke as an African Christian mother, anxious for her daughter to have education. Miss Barbara Woodcock appeared as a 15-year-old African girl just finished school. Miss Rachael Young took the part of an African Christian leader deploring inability to read. A second scene, time six years later, showed the wonderful progress by each.

The program was arranged by Mrs. F. Rappe and Mrs. R. Woodcock and their groups. Miss Helen Moore conducted the worship service, using as her theme "The Bible as a means of grace." Mrs. H. Beatty read portions of scripture in reply to questions "What is meant by the Bible is the word of God?" and "Jesus is the word of God?"

Miss Germaine Sampson presented a most interesting illustrated travelogue of her visit to England during the Festival of Britain. Her good color photography work gave the audience an excellent idea of the scene. Appreciation was extended to her afterward by Miss Mabel Brown.

President Miss Myrtle Sargent presided for the business. Coffee and sandwiches were served by the groups in charge, at the close.

Havelock Friends Honor Mrs. Bales

HAVELOCK (ENS)—Mrs. Robert Melville was the hostess on Monday evening to a number of friends who assembled at her home to bid farewell to Mrs. G. Bales, who left on Tuesday to make her home in Smith Falls where Mr. Bales has been transferred by the C.P.R.

Mrs. Bales was presented with a vase and floral table centre by Mrs. Melville, who voiced the high esteem in which Mrs. Bales is held [illegible] departure, concluding with best wishes for health, happiness and good luck in her new home.

Those present were: Miss Joan Taylor of Toronto, Mrs. F McKay, Miss Lois McKay, Mrs. F Bennett, Mrs. W. Copp, Mrs. H. Pollock, Mrs. J. Davidson, Mrs. H Anderson, Mrs. F. McKenzie, Mrs W. Rice, Mrs. J. Diaper, Mrs W. Woodbeck.

Dr. Langley Talks To Scout Mothers

Fifth Peterborough Scout Mothers, meeting at All Saints' Church Tuesday evening, were addressed by Dr. G. R. Langley. He talked of the basic aims and principles of scouting, emphasizing that no barriers of race, religion, class or politics are recognzied. He also stressed that "nowhere else does a boy receive the same kind of training.

President Mrs. W. Beard presided for the meeting, opening with a special prayer for Remembrance Day. A new member, Mrs. Taylor, was welcomed by the 15 present. Reports of the Hallowe'en parties for scouts and cubs were given by social convener Mrs. W. Rowbotham and supply convener Mrs. D. Grant also reported.

A sewing bee on neckerchiefs is to be held November 25th. A rover and scout communion breakfast will be served November 16th and a combined church parade of guides, cubs, scouts and rovers will follow at 11 o'clock. The Scouts paper drive will be on the 17th.

Mrs. Beard reported a meeting of the Association of Auxiliaries mentioning particularly the uniform exchange. On motion of Mrs. Rowbotham it was decided to have a special collection each month for a flower fund.

Mrs. W. Goodson was named convener of nominations, to be assisted by Mrs. H. Jay and Mrs. J. Morley. A social half hour following the meeting was convened by Mrs. Rowbotham.

Home and School Association News

MAY'S SCHOOL

May's Home and School Association met Monday evening in the Kindergarten room. Those receiving at the door were Mrs. G. Messerney, Mrs. E. Connell and Mrs. G. Martin.

President Mrs. A. Downer presided. It was decided to give the children the same Christmas treat as in previous years. The executive are planning a banquet for the boys who won the cup playing junior soccer.

Miss L. Kidd, religious convener, read the scripture and led in prayer.

Mrs. E. Waldie, health convener, had a good supply of health pamphlets on display. She read a letter concerning the Christmas Seal campaign and what money received from the seals is used for.

Mr. G. Ball showed a color film entitled "Holiday At School," and two shorter films, "On the Farm" and "If the Shoe Fits."

An executive meeting will be held Wednesday, November 26, at the home of Mrs. J. Cooper. Council meeting will be the 19th at the Y.W.C.A.

Mr. Ball's room won the attendance banner for this month. Lunch was served by Mrs. A. Weese and her assistants.

Conveners Named Omemee Bazaar

OMEMEE (ENS) — Mrs. Glen Loken was hostess to the Christ Anglican Church Women's Guild. The president, Mrs. Harvey Laidley, opened the meeting with prayer. Plans were made for a bazaar and supper on November 26, afternoon tea to be served from 3 to 5 and supper from 5 to 7. It was decided to serve turkey at the supper.

Conveners for the bazaar were appointed as follows: country store and bake sale, Miss Hilda Clark and Mrs. D. Deyell; fancy work, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. A. Stephenson and fish pond, Miss Cuddy.

The table committee will be Mrs. H. Bent, Mrs. L. Middleton and Mrs Norman Ruttle; and the decorating convener, Mrs. H. Hill.

Mrs. Hill invited the Guild to her home for the December meet[illegible] Mrs. R. Bent and Mrs. N. [illegible] will be hostesses.

The meeting closed with prayer, after which Mrs. Loken, Mrs. Laidley and Mrs. Nurse served lunch.

Lily Lake Women

LILY LAKE (ENS)—The monthly meeting of the Lily Lake W.A. was held at the home of the president, Mrs. Arthur Hancock. Mrs. Ernest Ireland was co-hostess.

The scripture reading was given by Mrs. Bruce Finley, and the president, who was in charge of the meeting, offered prayer.

The next meeting is to be held at the home of Mrs. George Middleton, when there will be an exchange of Christmas gifts. Mrs. Wm. Steinkrauss and Mrs. Everett Tully are the conveners to be in charge of the dinner to be held at that time.

Lily Lake ladies were asked to canvass part of the community in connection with the T.B. drive to be held soon.

The roll call was answered with an article to be auctioned off to the highest bidder. Mrs. Wm. Steinkrauss was the very capable auctioneer when $5.40 was realized from this venture.

At the close of the meeting lunch was served by the hostesses.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Collins Celebrate 50th Anniversary

A Peterborough couple who met at an Orange walk in Madoc, July 12, 1902, are celebrating their 50th wedding anniversary today.

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Collins, 191 Reid St., are at home today to the four generations of their family and to their neighbors and friends.

Fifty years ago, the couple were married at the Lodge Room Corners United Church by the Rev. W. J. Totten. The bride was the former Mabel Burkitt, daughter of the late Thomas Burkitt and Emma Jane Solmes of Madoc.

The groom was born and grew up in Tweed, son of the late Richard Collins and Sussannah Sexsmith.

Following their marriage, the newlyweds lived for two years in Glen Louis, near Madoc. They then moved to a farm at Corbyville, three miles north of Belleville.

Their next move was to Massassauga in Prince Edward County where Mr. Collins farmed until they came to Peterborough 24 years ago. Since then Mr. Collins has been retired.

Mr. and Mrs. Collins have one daughter and three sons, all living in Peterborough. They are: Mrs. W. C. Bennett (Gladys), Blake, Walter and Bill Collins. One daughter, Mrs. Irwin Hill (Hazel) died in 1935. They have 14 grandchildren and four great grandchildren.

The couple are members of Knox United Church.

Hadassah Honors New Rabbi's Wife

Peterborough chapter of Hadassah held a tea at the home of Mrs. Myer Cherney, Brock St., Sunday afternoon, to formally introduce to the members Mrs. A. M. Babb, wife of the Jewish community's newly appointed spiritual leader, Rabbi Babb.

Receiving with the hostess and guest of honor was Mrs. M. Hollend, president of the chapter.

The tea table was lovely with a centre of white 'mums and blue tapers. Pouring tea were Mrs. A. B. Collis, Mrs. Zimmel Levine, Mrs. Sam Moldaver and Mrs. Joseph Rogow, assisted by Mrs. Sam Goldbach, Mrs. Al. Pottens, Mrs. Rae Green, Mrs. Morris Mandel, Mrs. Ben Green and Mrs. Max Beck.

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Serve Sunday Soup Supper As Special-Purpose Menu

One of the girls on the staff asked for genuine Minestrone (an Italian soup), and a reader asked for Banana Cream Pie.

What I did was prepare these as a posh Sunday night supper, and blush (ever so slightly) to repeat the spontaneous compliments:

"Any time you require guinea pigs to sample your wares, just call us, Mary." "Couldn't you start a style of having a Sunday night soup party every week?" A 6-foot 4-inch brand new M.D. minced up to me and in a coy voice said, "Mrs. M., would you confide your banana cream pie recipe to my bride?"

Gosh, folks—it ain't nuthink! Just a dash of this and a spot of that. What the heck am I saying? —when you read that minestrone recipe you'll find it's dozens of things.

SUNDAY SOUP SUPPER

Italian Minestrone Bread Sticks
Banana Cream Pie Coffee

That's all there is—but uhm! the quality.

MINESTRONE (a genuine Italian soup).

Rector says that minestrone should be so crowded with solid stuff that you have to scoop it up — no watered-down drinking soup.

Let's start tossing in the solid stuff.

Soak ½ cup navy beans overnight. Into 2 quarts cold water put a 2-lb. soup bone from the shin. It should have a few tags of meat on it. Boil bone with lid on for 2 hours. Then add 2 teaspoons salt, ⅛ or ½ teaspoon freshly ground pepper, 1 teaspoon MSG (not essential but desirable), the soaked navy beans, 2 cups of cut-up fresh green beans (1 inch in length), 2 large finely diced potatoes, 1½ cups finely shredded green or Savoy cabbage, ½ cup peas, preferably fresh or frozen but canned will do, ¼ lb. fine noodles, uncooked of course. Cook all of this gently until tender. Remove the bone when the meat can be scraped from it back into the soup.

Now comes the personality — the "pesto." In a bowl cream 2 table spoons butter with 1½ tablespoons olive oil (or salad oil) and 2 tablespoons grated Parmesan (or old Swiss cheese), 1 tablespoon finely chopped parsley, and 1 very small clove garlic chopped as finely as possible. Add to this "pesto" a little salt and pepper and ¼ cup cream. Stir into the soup, then taste. You may need more salt and pepper. Boil the whole business hard for 5 minutes and serve in big bowls, with bread sticks you can buy from Italian-owned stores. We go for it almost ropy with more grated Parmesan on top. Remember this is your entire main course, but if you find Parmesan hard to come by in your town or just too expensive, the part that is hard of some leftover Swiss cheese is ideal. Remember this test—if you can drink it it isn't thick enough!

If your crowd doesn't consume the works—and I don't see how any self-respecting bunch could leave any — it's better on the second day.

Is there anyone in this reading audience who thinks she can make better Minestrone? If so, produce!

BANANA CREAM PIE

Make a baked pastry shell with high fluted sides in 9-inch pie plate.

In top of double boiler mix 2-3 cup sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 2½ tablespoons cornstarch, 1 tablespoon flour. When well mixed stir in 3 cups milk—the stirring process is shortened if this milk is hot. Stir over boiling water until thick. Cover, reduce heat and cook 15 minutes, stirring twice. Stir a little of this mixture into 3 beaten egg yolks, then return the yolk mixture to the cooked mixture and stir over hot water 2 minutes. Remove from heat and add 1 or 2 tablespoons butter and 1½ teaspoons vanilla. Cool, stirring twice. Into baked shell slice 3 medium sized bananas. Immediately pour over cooled filling. If desired, top ½ cup cream which has been whipped until stiff and sweetened with 1 tablespoon icing sugar.

VARIATION: Instead of bananas sprinkle ½ cup toasted slivered almonds in bottom of crust, and be sure to use the whipped cream, and sprinkle more toasted almonds over top.

DOROTHY DIX

Too Timid To End Engagement

DEAR MISS DIX: I'm one of those people who hate to hurt anyone's feelings. I guess you'll call me a jellyfish when you finish this, but I really need advice.

Last year I met a girl who seemed to me very plain and unattractive, but also very nice. We became good friends and she invited me to a few parties, which I attended. On one occasion, I was unable to accept her invitation and, since I realized she was hurt by my refusal, I asked her out. To me, it was just a gesture of apology; to her it meant considerably more. We did have a wonderful time, which was, I suppose, the reason for asking her out again and again.

One night, fooling, she took my ring from my finger and put it on hers. I never got it back. She gave me a very nice gift for my birthday. I have given her several gifts too. Now, a year later, I'd like to know how to call the whole thing off. I like the girl very much, and have no one else in view, but I don't love her. How can I tell her so?—DOUG.

ANSWER: You are a considerably muddled young man and I think your chief difficulty stems from the fact that you really do like the girl more than you will admit, even to yourself, and subconsciously resent the fact that your affections have been bestowed elsewhere than on the glamorous girl of your dreams. You enjoy her company, have pleasant times with her and have continued the friendship very voluntarily. What more do you want?

Of course, at this point, it would naturally be quite a shock to the young lady to be told that you are not seriously interested, but you cannot possibly let the affair drift any further without telling her if you desire to break off. The time has come for you to be a little decisive. Also stop fooling yourself that your namby-pamby attitude is due to consideration for other people's feelings; it's not! The only person with whom you are concerned is—yourself.

BREAK IT OFF

You're afraid of a few uncomfortable moments when you tell the girl you want to break off. Don't let the affair go any further. Be man enough to face the music, tell her you know you will never love her and feel the only decent thing to do is stop seeing her. Then be sure you do stop seeing her. Don't call up some evening just because you happen to feel lonely, or want a date. Leave her alone!

The only considerate and honorable way to end a romance is the quick, direct one. Don't hedge; come to the point! The longer you prolong your dating, the harder it will be on the girl. So if you really have her welfare at heart, make the final break at once.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have written you before, but my letter wasn't published, so I'm trying again. I recently discovered that my husband is having an affair with another woman. It has been going on, apparently, for many years. Now that I know, should I be cool to him, or what attitude would you advise me to take?

E. T.

ANSWER: I'm very sorry your first letter wasn't printed, but it is impossible to publish all the leters I receive. However, a self-addressed, stamped envelope would have brought you a personal reply.

The very last thing you should do is to become suddenly and inexplicably cool to your husband. Either ignore the situation entirely, hoping it will clear in a short time, or tell your husband you are aware of his infidelity. In the latter case, you must be prepared for the next step which may quite easily be a request from him for a divorce or separation.

Don't begin something you can't finish. Make up your mind exactly as to what stand you will take, and stick to it. Don't drag this affair into the light simply to make a martyr of yourself over it. What you decide to do depends upon whether or not you still love your husband, how much [illegible] means to you in terms of security and social status, and whether or not there are children to be considered. Only you, with perhaps the advice of your clergyman, doctor or lawyer, can make the decision.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: What can boys do about girls who persist in following them everywhere? I am 15, and my friend Walt is 14. We are bothered by two girls who shower us with invitations, want to know where we are going all the time and are, in general, a nuisance. We are not interested in girls, and if we ever do become interested, it won't be in "man chasers."

ROB

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: You certainly seem to have attracted a couple of leeches. Since the girls are so seriously interested in boys, I guess it's just unbelievable to them that their attentions aren't returned. You'll just have to continue ignoring them as much as possible, even if it's necesssary to become downright blunt about it. Girls realize that most adolescent boys aren't overanxious for feminine companionship, but they are equally convinced that in time they'll break down the male's reserve. Of course, in time they usually do, so we can't blame them for persistence, can we?

Of Interest to Women

Warsaw Society Elects Officers

WARSAW (ENS —The Women's Association of the United Church met in the Sunday School room with the president Mrs. Harold Ray presiding. adult we must help him to learn to make decisions and then not worry about them; to accept responsibilities; to learn the proper way to manage money and to adopt a right attitude towards life and his fellow men."

A further feature of the program was a piano solo by Miss Gertrude Marion. Both Mrs. Rostocky and Miss Marion were introduced by Mrs. Eldon Johnston, convener of Parent Education, who was responsible for the program and thanked by Mrs. S. A. Grylls.

President Mrs. Stanley Burger was in charge of the business session which opened with the singing of, "O Canada" with Mrs. J. A. Arnott at the piano. Mrs. G. Downing then led in prayer.

Mrs. William C. Grant gave the secretary's report and the treasurer's report was read by Mrs. Thomas Payton. Mrs. E. Rogers reported on the project of Friday evening when the Association catered to a meeting of the district Men's Teachers' Federation and Mrs. Harold Wilford reported that she was delighted with the results of a recent survey regarding individual accident insurance for pupils of the school and stated that the results showed that almost 100 per cent. of the parents were in favor of this idea, and that it would definitely go through. She expressed sincere thanks to all who had worked so hard at the recent canvass.

Librarian of the Lakefield Public Library, Mrs. J. W. Ridpath, was present and discussed with the meeting the "Young Canada Book Week" which will begin November 15th and continue for one week. Mrs. Ridpath had a splendid display of books for children and teen-agers. Realizing that the taste for good reading is formed in childhood, Mrs. Ridpath has made a study of books suitable for youngsters to read and is always willing and ready to advise either the child or parent on reading material suitable to his need.

A "skate exchange" to be held on Saturday in the bowling alley was announced. Anyone having skates not in use was asked to bring them, tagged and priced for sale or exchange. The fee for this service is ten cents.

The attendance prize was won by Mr. K. Borland's room and grade mothers of this room served lunch.

Seek U.N. Admission

TOKYO (AP)—Three prominent Japanese carrying a petition with 300,000 signatures left today by plane for New York to press Japan's plea for admission to the United Nations.

500 British Magistrates Vote Against Using Lash Again

LONDON (CP)—More than 500 magistrates from all parts of the United Kingdom have voted against re-introduction of the lash as a form of punishment for crimes involving acts of violence.

The decision was taken on a motion urging the annual meeting of the Magistratess Association to call for repeal of legislation which in 1948 abolished the power of the courts to impose sentence of whipping. The vote was 219 to 166.

The association's action came in the midst of an indignant outcry in the daily press and a spirited debate in the House of Lords which has swept the country.

MANY TYPES OF WEAPONS

Mover of the resolution, T. F. Marron of Accles, said circumstances demanded stern action should be taken to cope with the growing menace of brutal crimes. Razors, bicycle chains, blackjacks and even Sten guns, were all-too-often used by law-breakers who could not be deterred by normal punishment.

W. Provost of Birmingham said the records proved that brute force treated leniency with contempt. The hardened criminal cared nothing about corrective training or two to three years imprisonment. Severe punishment was the only answer.

But the resolution was described as barbarous by Socialist Member of Parliament for Salford.

"It is a reversion to the Gospel of an eye for an eye and a tooth for a tooth," he said. "I believe the State should never reply to barbarous behaviour with barbarous legal practices. We cannot cure violence by administration of vioence."

Viscount Templewood, chairman of the association and author of several reference works on the subject, said increased crime was not something exclusively confined to Britain. In New York the rise had been much steeper than in London, proving the fallacy of claims that reform of the 1948 act had led to an increase of crime in Britain in 1952.

"NOT METHODS"

"It has been widely said that the new methods are too lenient," Lord Templewood declared. "My answer to that is that the methods are not at fault, but the fact that they are not being fully used."

He urged immediate action to strengthen the under-manned police forces of the country. At present London's metropolitan force was 20 per cent under establishment and the provincial police 12 per cent.

"Is it any wonder that the boys and girls, who now never see a policemen, drift into delinquency and crime?" he asked.

Canada And U.S. Operate Jointly WeatherStations

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada and the United States have agreed to continue joint operation of the half-dozen weather stations which dot the Arctic and send from the "weather-factory" of the north reports that make long-range forecasting possible.

Canada began establishing the stations in 1947 under a five-year plan to operate and supply them jointly with the United States. Now six such stations are spread across the islands of the Arctic archipelago, but the five-year term for joint operation has expired.

A spokesman for the transport department said recently that while it was Canada's ultimate intention to take full responsibility for the stations, the joint arrangement is being continued indefinitely. Weather experts, assessing the work of the stations, have decided their meteorological data are vital.

Most northerly station, named Alert, is situated on the northern tip of Ellesmere Island, just 650 miles from the North Pole. Station Eureka is at the southern tip of the same island. Another may be set up on Ellesmere soon.

Then there is station Resolute on Cornwallis Island, station Isachsen on Elleffringnes Island, Mould Bay on Prince Patrick Island and Cambridge on Victoria Island.

JOINT STAFFS

Joint Canadian and American meteorologists and crews—averaging five to seven to a station—man the outposts, sending reports to central points by radio.

They lead a lonely existence. They get special greetings by radio at Christmas but spring is the big time of the year for them. It is then that two icebreakers and a supply ship make the treacherous trip to bring in supplies. R.C.A.F. Lancasters from the east coast help this force by flying an ice-patrol for the ships.

If ice prevents a station being reached, the supplies are landed at the "mother" station at Resolute and then airlifted in jointly by R.C.A.F. and American planes. Supplies are usually dropped by parachute.

15,000,000 To Have Ulcers Before Death

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — More than 15,000,000 persons in the United States have had stomach ulcers or will have them before they die, Dr. Milford O. Rouse of the University of Texas said today.

In an address to the annual convention of the Southern Medical Association, Dr. Rouse said more than 8,000 persons die every year of stomach or duodenal ulcers. The mortality rate remains the same as it was 25 years ago despite "tremendous" advances in medical knowledge.

C.I.O. Officials Vote To Adjourn Convention

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The vice-presidents of the C. I. O. today recommended postponement of the group's 14th annual convention from Monday, Nov. 17 to Monday, Dec. 1, because of the death of President Philip Murray.

The convention was to have opened next week in Los Angeles. Instead the convention will be held at Atlantic City.

Liquor In Woods

VANCOUVER (CP)—A brief presented by the International Woodworkers of America to the commission on sale of liquor in British Columbia asked that liquor be sold in canteens at logging camps. It said "loggers drink in excess because they are isolated for long periods from access to liquor."

Falls Down Well

GUELPH (CP) — Welldriller Aksel Nielsen, 50, suffered two possible fractured legs, an injured hip and abrasions to an arm when he plummeted 40 feet to the bottom of a well he was tiling at nearby Erin yesterday. He was riding in a bucket when the mechanism failed.

LADS OF HARROW SCHOOL in England watch Prime Minister Winston Churchill leave the speech room of his old school after they sang old familiar songs which the premier himself selected. The weekend reunion marked the 13th consecutive year Mr. Churchill has returned to the school. He listened intently as the boys sang, sometimes tapping his foot and joining in. Once or twice he was noticed dabbing his eyes as old memories flooded back.

Dairy And Livestock Businesses Resumed Of Plagued Farms

REGINA (CP)—Early this year, more than 1,100 head of livestock were shot and buried on federal government orders in the Regina area to stamp out an outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease.

This drastic but necessary action left nearly 30 farmers without a business or an income. They were compensated to some extent by the federal government for the stock they lost. After all signs of infection were removed, the farms were thoroughly cleaned and disinfected under supervision of federal veterinarians.

Now, on these farms which might be called the cleanest in Canada, dairy and livestock businesses are resuming.

BEEF MARKET SLOW

For beef producers, the market is in poor condition and this group of livestock men is not so eager to hurry back into business as the dairy men whose products will find a ready market.

Most of the cattle lost were dairy animals. Fruman brothers dairy, just north of this city, from which 80 head of beef and dairy cattle were destroyed, is partly back in operation with about 10 dairy cows and 25 feeder cattle.

Isadore Fruman isn't sure whether they will return to their former beef and dairy production. "I don't know," he said. "Dairy cows cost about $300 but on the market they are worth only half as much."

Fruman brothers now are shipping about three cans of milk a day. At their peak they produced as much as 16 to 20 cans daily.

William Hanley, whose Primrose dairy just north of the city lost more than 180 head of fine dairy animals in the foot-and-mouth eradication, is hurrying back into production. He is milking 30 head of his new 70-animal herd and plans to get more cattle as soon as possible.

HAS NEW STOCK

More than 50 of his new animals are registered Guernseys from Pilot Butte stock farm and the remainder are Holsteins bought at a recent stock sale in Saskatoon.

Mr. Hanley has resumed milk shipments but hasn't taken up his wholesale trade because his volume is not yet sufficient.

Alec Duck, whose dairy farm is just west of Regina, has replaced 35 of his former 60-head dairy herd and is shipping about 15 cans of milk daily. He may build up his herd gradually from the stock he now has. Alex Duck's family has been in the dairy industry on that farm since 1915.

Konstantine Haun, a neighbor of Alec Duck, has been a grain farmer for the summer with 80 acres of fine wheat. His 40 head of dairy cattle were among the first to go when the eradication began on his farm last Feb. 29.

Just out of hospital after an operation, Mr. Haun says he will go back into dairying when his health improves.

Troop Of Children Lead To Suspects

TORONTO (CP) — A troop of children early today led police to two armed robbery suspects.

Charles Witmer, 46, and Victor Buisson, 40, were arrested on charges of taking a mantel radio from the home of Dalton West.

Police said the children, awakened by the noise, followed the men along the street.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States defence department today reported 1,318 Korean battle casualties in a week's fighting — the largest weekly increase in a year. This brought to 125,887 the total of Americans killed, wounded and missing in action since the war beg[illegible]

Charge 8 Natives In Mau Mau Slaying Of Chief

NAIROBI, Kenya (CP) — Eight Kikuyu tribesmen were charged today with the "Mau Mau" murder a month ago of senior chieftain Waruhiu and ordered held for trial Nov. 25.

The accused included 75-year-old Koinange, a former senior chief, and two of his sons.

Waruhiu was shot and killed Oct. 7, several weeks after he had publicly denounced the secret Mau Mau terrorist society which wants to drive the whites from this British East African colony. The Mau Mau draws its greatest support from the Kikuyus.

Native troops have been rushed south to prevent Mau Mau members from escaping into the neighboring British colony of Tanganyika, a government spokesman said.

The spokesman reported that the government's action in rounding up all livestock of natives in three Kikuyu reservations Monday had had a shattering effect on "uncooperative and hostile" tribesmen. More than 4,000 cattle and 5,000 sheep and goats have been herded into corrals. The tribesmen cannot get them back until they have given what information they have on terrorist hide-outs.

London Times Lauds Canadian Economist

LONDON (Reuters)—The Times today pays tribute to the work of Professor Harold A. Innis, Canadian political economist who died Saturday.

"Probably no other Canadian scholar in the last quarter of a century has won equal prestige abroad," the Times comments.

"Yet with all his success—which he never expected—he always showed an entire absence of vanity."

October Worst Month, 132 Persons Killed

TORONTO (CP) — October was the worst month on record for traffic accidents in Ontario, Highways Minister Doucett said today.

Reports show 132 persons killed in 105 fatal accidents on streets, roads and highways. The worst previous month was October, 1950, with 111 killed.

Police and safety officials attribute the bad record to extremely heavy week-end traffic, early darkness and dangerous driving and walking habits.

Dutch Immgirant Acquires Six Farms In Three Years

COCHRANE, Ont. (CP)—Three years ago Area Struyk, a 45-year-old Dutchman, arrived in this area with a battered car, 11 children and $17 in his pocket.

Today he owns six farms and is reputed to be worth $25,000.

When asked for an explanation, he quotes this biblical verse: "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might."

"Think of it!" says Struyk. "In Holland only a rich man has 100 acres. And the soil here—good, rich soil which nobody seems to want! I can't understand it."

Struyk and his family came here from the Holland Marsh area 30 miles north of Toronto six months after arriving in Canada from the Netherlands. He negotiated a loan to buy 150 acres of unused farmland and with his three sons hauled 330 cords of wood to pay it off.

OWNS 884 ACRES

Now he owns 884 acres of land of which 260 are cleared—50 by himself. He grows wheat, oats, barley and particularly the potatoes for which this area is noted.

"This summer I sold $1,000 worth of potatoes alone," he said. "The best part is, every time we swing an ax, more land becomes available. It's wonderful soil. There is no better in the world."

He's become a landlord. "I bought farms with nobody living in the houses. So I rented 50 acres each to two other Dutch people until they get farms of their own. They're hard workers. They'll do just as well as I have.

TROPHY WINNER—Phil Garratt, Toronto, is shown at the controls of his de Havilland "Beaver" at the Seigniory Club in Montebello. Garratt's contribution in designing the "Beaver" and "Otter" has won him the McKee Trophy, annual award to the person who has done most for Canadian aviation. The award was presented at the meeting of the Air Industries and Transport Association.

Hamilton Plant Open Despite Union Rivalry

HAMILTON (CP) — Hamilton Cottons will remain open, despite bitter union rivalry which resulted in violence when 220 workers returned to work yesterday after a six-week strike.

W. H. Young, works manager of the textile mill, said: "The plant will stay open, we will not be intimidated."

The returning workers, members of the Textile Workers Union of America (C. I. O.), were escorted by police as they forced a way through a picket line set up by about 200 supporters of the United Textile Workers Union of America (A. F. L.). Several persons were roughed up, stones were thrown, but there were no serious injuries.

CATCALLS, INSULTS

The employees left the plant at the end of their shift in four groups and were shouted at by picketers. Catcalls and insults followed them along the street.

The strike began when employees walked out under the leadership of Jack Robinson, Ontario director of the A. F. L. group. Company officials refused to negotiate with the group which asked for a 20-cents hourly wage increase. They reached agreement with C. I. O. officials, legal bargaining union of the employees, for a seven cent hourly pay raise. The new contract was approved by 217 of the 500 employees.

After an appeal by the management, this group decided to return to work yesterday.

A. F. L. leader Robinson said he had no comment to make on yesterday's incidents, but added that the fight will go on.

Two picketers were arrested on charges of obstructing police. They were Bert Porkolab, 42, of Stoney Creek and Ronald Frith, 21, of Hamilton.

Party Seeks Forbidden City Called 'Venice Of Pacific'

By LOUIS L. LECK
Canadian Press Correspondent

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—Egerton Sykes, British archaeologist, is leading a group of scientists on an expedition to the Caroline Islands, north of New Guinea. The party hopes to solve the mystery of the fabulous "forbidden city" of Metalanim.

The city, deserted now for hundreds and perhaps thousands of years, is sometimes called the Venice of the Pacific. Its canals are faced with basalt blocks larger than the stones of the pyramids. Through a gateway 30 feet high, is the treasure chamber of the kinds of the sun, with 25-foot-high walls around it, six to 10 feet through. Great fallen columns lie across stairways and massive walls surround the city's deserted port.

Not a step nor a human voice breaks the silence of the ruins. To the natives the city is taboo. For more than a hundred years they have been telling white men that if they look too much they will die.

ON PONAPE ISLAND

Metalanim is on the island of Ponape, one of the long chain of islands lying between New Guinea and Japan. The city was apparently built on artificial islands on the offshore coral reefs and the channels were faced with the basalt blocks and then used as waterways.

No one knows who built the city. The people who built Metalanim vanished without leading a clue to their identity. There is no recognizable writing, there are no drawings, nothing to link the buildings with any of the Pacific people or with any peoples known anywhere in the world. Archaeologists are sure only that no Pacific natives built Matalanim. Four skulls found in the ruins suggested to some anthropologists that the builders were a negroid race. But a legend of Ponape suggests that if there were any negroes there, they came later.

The legend says that the king of Metalanim was Idzikolkol at the time a fleet of ships with black men arrived at the island. Although the inhabitants were fat and lazy with good living, their fortifications held off the invaders until a discarded mistress of Idzikolkol betrayed the city by leading the invaders to a weak place in the walls.

IRISHMAN'S ACCOUNT

A book published in Boston in 1836 by an Irish seaman named Frank O'Connell gives an account of the ruins. He was wrecked on Ponape in 1825 and spent several years there before being rescued. Of Metalanim he wrote:

"There was a deep solitude, not a living thing except a few birds being discernible.

"It is evident they (the ruins) are the remains of a people superior to the present inhabitants; nay, I may almost say dissimilar. The remains were evidently those of some ancient city or settlement, the date of the existence of which or the cause of its desertion we could not even guess.

Car Pliers Do Job For Dentist

WACO, Tex. (AP) — Dr. Joe Fason, a retired dentist, was strolling in downtown Waco when a man ran up.

"Oh, no, you don't," Dr. Fason replied. "I quit that long ago."

"But, Doc, you gotta do something," Frazier insisted.

Paul McGuffey passed by.

"Got some pliers?" Dr. Fason asked.

McGuffey got them out of his car parked nearby. Frazier's aching tooth came out.

'He yelled 'ow' — he won't be stopping me again," Dr. Fason said when he told a reporter about it yesterday. It happened last week.

Need Reconciliation Or U.N. In Jeopardy

NEW YORK (CP)—Assembly President L. B. Pearson of Canada said last night the United Nations will stand in jeopardy unless there is some measure of East-West reconciliation at the present U.N. Assembly.

Canada's external affairs minister told a U.N. Correspondents Association dinner where he was the guest of honor that with good will on both sides it should be "easy" to reach a reconciliation on the war-prisoner issue blocking a Korean cease-fire.

He said the first four weeks of the assembly has proven the season would prove a severe test of the U.N.

Employees Are Human Employers Reminded

TORONTO (CP)—An American educationist said last night that an employer with a sincere interest in his employees as individuals rather than as types is on the road to good relations.

Dr. C. Gilbert Wrenn, professor of educational psychology at the University of Minnesota, told the Personnel Association of Toronto that employers should indicate they have an interest in the work an employee is doing and should acknowledge the importance or difficult aspect of an employee's job.

In interviews, Dr. Wrenn said, employers should let the worker "talk it out," refrain from moralizing or arguing with an employee.

Shortness

OAKLAND, Calif. (AP) — Joe Paige, 34, long had complained of shortness of breath. He was operated on yesterday and surgeons removed a three-inch knife blade that had been imbedded in his back. Paige recalled he was in a knife fight 12 years ago.

CHICAGO (AP) — Morton J. Zucker, 30, who says he can't swim, started yesterday on a trip around the world in a 44-foot schooner.

Toronto Police Suspect International Swindler

TORONTO (CP)—Toronto police said yesterday they suspect an internationally - known cheque swindler as the man who engineered the defrauding of the Bank of Nova Scotia of $250,000 with bogus certified cheques.

The police, who haven't yet been called in to help with the investigation, say the swindler they suspect is wanted by both Scotland Yard and the United States federal bureau of investigation. He was reported seen here two months ago.

The same man, an Englishman, was blamed for defrauding a Vancouver bank of $5,000 last year.

Iowa Town Offers Four-Man Jail For Sale

GILBERTVILLE, Ia. (AP)—For sale — a four-man jail with two folding cots in each cell.

Mayor B. J. Schmit, 39, explained:

"There hasn't been a prisoner in the jail in the five years I've been mayor and probably longer than that."

The jail is located in the fire house.

Penny Discrepancy

OKLAHOMA CITY (AP)—Auditors went through 18 months of daily bank deposit slips in the county clerk's office, trying to find the source of a mysterious discrepancy. Someone slipped an extra penny in the till and threw the books of the two courthouse offices out of balance.

Millers Support Seaway

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — The Federation of Grain Millers (A. F. L.) is on the record in favor of the St. Lawrence Seaway project. The federation adopted a resolution yesterday urging Congress and the President to "take up the seaway as a necessity to our nation."

Europe's Newest University Seeks To Eliminate Frictions

By GODFREY ANDERSON

SAARBRUECKEN (AP) — Europe's newest university—and the only one mainly devoted to the idea of developing a united Europe—is opening its fifth winter semester with more than 1,000 students.

Its campus is a converted barracks on the edge of a forest a few miles from this smoky coal and steel centre. Its students, mainly Saarlanders, include about 200 Germans and 100 French from the younger generation of the countries which have fought bitterly over the Saar and its riches.

The Saar University considers its main task the promotion of all studies likely to improve international relations and avoid a new world war.

Its teaching staff comes from the Saar, from France, Germany, Austria, Great Britain, Switzerland and Belgium. Open to students from all countries, it accepts the recognized academic credits of every nation.

BILINGUAL SCHOOL

This university is one of the few which is bilingual. All its publications and most of its textbooks are in two languages, with German on the left-hand side of the page and French on the right. Lectures are given in German, French or English.

Professor Jean Francois Angelloz, French-born president of the Saar University, said:

"Above all, we try to make Saarbruecken a meeting place for Europeans. We want our university . . .to become a centre where international teams can work together."

Vice-president is German Dr. Gottfried Koeller, zoology professor, who has taught in Berlin, Kiel, Prague and Shanghai.

By the Franco-Saar Cultural Convention, management and direction of the Saar University is in the hands of a governing board made up of an equal number of French and Saarland members.

Despite the efforts to stress its all-Eurppean function, it has been under fire. The Germans, noting the large number of books shipped to its library from France, claimed the French are seeking a cultural penetration. The French deny it.

TUITION LOW

Annual tuition charges amount to only 3,000 French francs (just under $9.) The student's food and housing in the university dormitories cost 7,000 francs ($20) a month.

These charges enable the university to draw a large part of its students from families which represent the largest section of the Saar population—coal miners, steel workers, railroad men, artisans and small farmers.

Although charges are low, the Saar University claims its teaching body is better paid than professors in either France or Germany. Subsidies granted by the French and Saar governments make up the difference.

OLD-TIMER—As if Montreal's traffic wasn't bad enough. A young Scotsman, who came to Canada in June, recently tied up everything, including pedestrians, on one of the busiest corners in downtown Montreal with a not-so-young car. The machine, a 1912 Dion Bouton, was purchased in Scotland by Hector Corrie for 100 pounds and shipped over here. It features, of all things, a gas pedal that you release to go faster and push to the floor to stop.

U.S. Scientist Sees Future Of Electricity From Atom

By SAM DAWSON

NEW YORK (AP)—The day of electricity from the atom at an economical cost may be coming much faster than first thought.

One leading industrial chemist, Dr. Charles Allen Thomas, president of the Monsanto Chemical Co., thinks it may be only four or five years off in the United States.

Some others think Britain may have it even sooner because production of electricity by present methods is more expensive there.

The current cost of building a new electric plant in England is so high that atomic-produced power would be comparatively competitive. U.S. power companies have the benefit of greater natural water and other resources

Companies looking into the possibilities of producing an improved atomic reactor include, besides Monsanto, Dow Chemical, Detroit Edison, Union Electric, and Union Carbide and Carbon.

Now that Britain has an atomic plant, scientists here estimate she could build a generator and supply commercial power to industry at about 1½ cents a kilowatt hour—a figure competitive there but higher than present American power costs.

Dr. Thomas, however, thinks that present atomic power costs will soon be brought lower His views were contained in a paper read at the St. Louis meeting of the National Academy of Sciences. He foresees "the possibility of newly designed reactors, similar in some respects to those now in use, that will simultaneously produce plutonium for the atomic stockpile and electric power for civilian and industrial consumption.

S.A. Judges Rule Malan's High Court Illegal

BLOEMFONTEIN, South Africa (AP)—South Africa's appeal court today unanimously decided that Prime Minister Daniel Malan's high court of Parliament is illegal. The court's action posed new threats of grave civil strife for the race-torn country. The five judges—their country's highest court until creation of the parliamentary tribunal—dismissed the government's appeal against the Supreme Court's ruling that Parliament acted unconstitutionally in setting itself up as the highest court to rule on constitutional questions.

Parliament, in which Malan's Nationalists have a small majority, took that action after the courts struck down a key law in Malan's white supremacy program.

TWO COURSES LEFT

1. He could defy the verdict and call on the high court of Parliament to rule itself a legal body.

2. He could accept the decision and call an early general election in which he would seek a large enough majority to re-enact his disputed race laws within the framework of the constitution.

The country already is torn by recurring bloodshed and violence and a Negro civil disobedience campaign against restrictive laws. Leaders of groups opposing the government have warned they would "meet action with action" if the Nationalists try to implement laws the courts rule illegal.

Should the government seek to have the parliamentary high court overrule the appeal court, observers fear the independence of the ordinary courts might be destroyed.

There was some indication Malan might accept the Appeal Court's ruling, at least for the time being. Finance Minister N.C. Havenga in a broadcast Sept. 30 said the government would not do anything unconstitutional. But the prime minister two months ago told supporters in Cape Province, where most of South Africa's Negroes live: "I can give this assurance that, with all the implications of this matter, we as a government cannot allow ourselves to lose."

Parliament set itself up as a high court after the appeal judges declared unconstitutional a Malan measure trimming the voting rights of 50,000 persons of mixed blood in Cape Province — the only non-whites who vote in South Africa.

By permitting these to vote only for four white special representatives, instead of the candidates in the various constituencies, the law would have increased Nationalist chances of winning certain Parliament seats.

The Appeal Court ruled this violated the country's basic law, the South Africa Act, which requires a two-thirds majority vote on all matters concerning the language and rights of the people and the political rights of non-whites. The voting law has been approved by a bare majority.

The government then countered by pushing through the creation of the High Court of Parliament, which—with members of the opposition United Party boycotting the new tribunal—promptly declared the vote - trimming constitutional.

The same four colored voters who earlier had challenged the voting bill then brought the court action, ruled on today, to declare the High Court of Parliament Act invalid.

India Studying New Korean Truce Proposal

NEW DELHI (AP)—Authoritative sources said today that India is working out a new Korean truce proposal providing for the screening of prisoners by neutral countries and voluntary repatriation of the P. O. W.s.

The question of prisoner repatriation is the sole issue holding up the Korean armistice talks at Panmunjom.

Under the new Indian plan as reported here, the United Nations would agree in principle that all prisoners should be sent home in keeping with the Communist interpretation of the spirit of the Geneva convention, but Red China and North Korea in turn would agree that no prisoner actually would be sent home unless the screening showed he wanted to go.

The Indian plan envisages communist admission that prisoners should not be forced to return home against their will and agreement to abide by the screening verdict.

MOVE TO NEW CAMPS

The prisoners would be transferred to new camps, administered by the neutral screening countries agreed on by the combatants. This is designe to meet communist contention that prisoners unwilling to go home have been influenced by Nationalist Chinese and South Koreans.

The U. N. command has denied this Red contention and said no Nationalist Chinese are being used in Korea. The Indian plan, however, would specify that Nationalist Chinese and South Koreans would not be transferred to the new camps.

The Indian sources said that no definite proposals have yet been presented either to any of the United Nations or to Red China and North Korea. They indicated, however, that tentative conversations held by India's ambassadors in Washington, Peiping and the U. N. offered hope that the plan might prove acceptable to both sides.

The Indian plan apparently is the one mentioned Wednesday at United Nations headquarters by Australia's minister for external affairs, Richard G. Casey, who said a group of countries including Canada is working on a proposal for transfer of all war prisoners to an island off central Korea and their screening by a neutral commission.

The prisoner issue has deadlocked the Panmunjom talks for months.

Smaller Family Trend In Canada

OTTAWA (CP) — The number of families in Canada increased by almost 700,000 in the last 10 years, but the size of the average family declined.

The bureau of statistics today reported that the number of families climbed to 3,207,000 in 1951 from 2,525,000 in 1941. In that period Canada's population jumped to 14,000,000 from 11,500,000.

During the decade the size of the average family slipped to 3.7 from 3.9 persons. The trend towards smaller families was evident in every province except Newfoundland.

In Ontario, where the number of families increased to 1,162,000 from 909,000, the size of the average family dropped to 3.4 persons from 3.6.

In Quebec, traditional home of the large family, the number of families increased to 856,000 from 647,000 but the size of the average slipped to 4.2 from 4.5.

With this decline, Newfoundland outranked Quebec as the province with the largest average family. The number of families in Canada's newest province increased to 74,000 from 68,000, but the size of the average family remained unchanged at 4.4 persons.

Iran Offers Britain New Oil Compromise

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (CP)—Iran made a new offer to Britain yesterday to settle the dispute between the two countries over nationalization of the Anglo-Iranian Oil Company.

The Iranian government proposed to compensate the British company on the basis adopted in Britain for the compensation of British nationalized industries.

The proposal was disclosed by Dr. Ali Gholi Ardalan, Iranian representative in the United Nations General Assembly's economic and financial committee.

Boy Walks Into Fire On Playmate's Dare

NEW YORK (AP) — A playmate's dare sent three-year-old Joseph Sena walking through a bonfire and emerging as a human torch.

The youngster was playing yesterday with chums near his home in Brooklyn when he toddled into the flames.

A bus driver beat out the flames with his hands then drove Joseph to a hospital.

Today Joseph was described in fair condition.

When Joseph's mother asked him why he walked into the fire, the child said a boy dared him to and "I did and I fell down in it."

Charge Chinese Using Gas

CENTRAL FRONT, Korea —(Friday)—(AP)—South Korean troops, driven from Sniper Ridge early today, charged that Chinese Communist artillery fired gas shells into their positions. The report was without confirmation. Members of a South Korean company on the ridge were quoted by a Korean division headquarters as saying that after the shells landed they could not breathe. United States officers with the South Koreans began an immediate investigation. They emphasized that there was no confirmation and that the report should be treated with extreme caution. They said there had been numerous instances in the Korean war in which phosphorous or smoke shells, or even fumes from high-explosive shells, have been mistaken for gas by soldiers.

A special team of U. S. chemical-warfare officers was ordered to the front within an hour to make a technical investigation.

Survivors of the ridge action were rushed to a medical centre for examination and questioning.

One of the men of the company hit was examined by a doctor who reported the soldier definitely ill.

The doctor said it was possible the illness might have been caused by fumes from old ammunition.

If gas was used, it was odorless, first reports said.

The communists have repeatedly charged the Allies with firing gas shells in Korea.

In denials, Allied officers have said the communists probably confused phosphorous or smoke shells with gas.

Tax Cuts Hang On Gov't Costs

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — Finance Minister Abbott today urged Canadians who want tax reductions to think twice before asking their government to embark on new and expensive projects.

"We can have lower tax rates on two conditions," he told the Women's Canadian Club of London.

"That we increase our total efficiency and productivity and that we do not ask our governments to embark on large new and expensive projects."

Mr. Abbott, in a 3,000-word speech that touched on taxes, [illegible] and consumer demand, agreed with "almost everybody that tax rates are uncomfortably high and that we ought to follow policies which will lead toward lower tax rates"

But Canadians could not have lower taxes if they kept on demanding more and more services from their governments.

Thinks Nothing Of Singing 14 Hours Daily, His Neighbors Think Good Deal Less Of It

NEW YORK (AP) —Young Morton Bloom thinks nothing of singing 14 hours a day. His neighbors think even less of it.

In no dulcet tones it all came out in court yesterday, with 10 residents living within a block of 17-year-old Bloom complaining that he sang almost every day from 7:30 a.m., to 9:30 p.m.

"If he could sing," one complainant told Magistrate Charles F. Murphy, "I wouldn't mind. He yells and it cuts through you like a saw."

Bloom said he sang one song for a vocal teacher three years ago and was told "I had possibilities."

Murphy, learning that Bloom often stayed home from high school classes just to sing, told the youth:

"There's a talent scout looking for you—the truant officer."

Murphy decreed that Bloom sing only in the school auditorium or in the nearly-soundproof basement of his apartment house—and not for 14 hours.

Screaming Chinese Drive At Shell-Torn Sniper Ridge

SEOUL (AP)—Screaming Chinese infantry tonight threw the Allies from Pinpoint Hill on Sniper Ridge in a furious battle. Elements of two Chinese battalions, possibly 1,000 men, overran the central-front height for the 14th time in a month of battle, field dispatches said. They struck behind heavy artillery fire.

South Korean defenders once more were pushed south to lower heights on shell-torn Sniper Ridge. Heavy fighting still was in progress there.

Associated Press correspondent John Randolph said the Reds hit allied positions on Pinpoint Hill at 11:10 p.m. Five hours earlier Allied artillery routed about 750 Reds advancing on Sniper from the east.

Pinpoint was the Allies northernmost stronghold on Sniper. Republic of Korea infantry had spent the day mopping up Red remnants after recapturing the hill early Wednesday.

Bombs and machine-gun fire on entrenched Reds in the Sniper Ridge-Triangle Hill area.

Allied mortar and tank fire chopped up three small red infantry probes against Allied positions at Jackson Heights, south of Iron-

AmateurChemist Blown To Bits

PICTON (CP) — Amateur chemist Leslie Rawlines, 30, accidentally blew himself to pieces today while experimenting with a chemistry set that exploded.

Fragments of his body were scattered about the bathroom of his home. He lived with his father, Henry Rawlins.

All the upstairs windows in the house were shattered by the blast. The entire window frame of the bathroom was hurled to the lawn below and a piece of window curtain was left hanging in a tree.

Rawlins was alone in the house at the time.

Toronto Woman Gets 50 Cleaners Of Flies

TORONTO (CP) — Mrs. William Goodyear has collected 50 vacuum cleaners full of flies from her home here during the last month but she says she has them under control. "They're smaller than fruit flies and hatch from eggs that look like cigaret ash," she said today.

Dr. Fred Urquhart of the Royal Ontario Museum said the insect is a species of saphrophytic fly. He termed the invasion of the woman's home "a freakish thing."

He said the flies apparently singled out the Goodyear house by accident. There is nothing for neighbors to worry about, he said.

KINGSTON (CP) — Thomas Thompson, 87, was fatally injured last night when he walked into the side of a moving automobile.

Think Documents Are Plans Of New Airfields

BRUSSELS (Reuters)—Police have arrested a German here on suspicion of stealing secret documents from North Atlantic Treaty headquarters in France, it was learned today. He is being held on spy charges, according to sources close to police. High Belgian security officials refused comment. "The veil of mystery may be lifted later today," one official said. The man was reported to have been picked up at Eupen, on the Belgo-German frontier, 10 miles from Verviers.

He was believed to have in his possession documents dealing with the construction of western defence airfields in east Belgium.

VERIVERS, Belgium (AP) — A German en route from Hamburg was arrested at Herbesthal today. Large forces of police that have had the area along the German border in a state of virtual siege for two days were almost immediately withdrawn.

The man, identified by the police as Eric Clare, 40, was held, police said, in connection with a smuggling case.

Police declined to explain the reason for the strong show of force in the area around Verviers. Trains, cars, autobuses and hotels were searched.

One newspaper report said the police search was started after documents concerning North Atlantic Treaty plans for eastern Belgium disappeared from Fontainbleau.

Headquarters of Allied Air Force Central Europe, and Land Forces at Fontainebleau, France, both said they had no knowledge of any missing documents. Supreme Headquarters, Allied Powers in Europe, near Paris, said it had not been able to find any evidence that any classified material had fallen into the hands of unauthorized persons.

Charge Father With Rifle Slaying Of Son

HULL, Que. — (CP) — Rolland Charbonneau, 24, faces a charge of murder in the shooting of his 15-months-old son, Michel, at his farm near Perkins Mills early last Sunday.

Crown Attorney Avila Labelle said following an inquest last night that the charge would be laid.

Charbonneau's 19-year-old wife, Lucille, told the inquest jury at Buckingham, 16 miles east of here, that her husband shot the baby in a fit of rage when the child persisted in crying. The jury's verdict found the father criminally liable for the death.

The father stood handcuffed between two policemen while his wife testified.

Mrs. Charbonneau, married at 15 and mother of three other children, all girls, said her husband had been drinking before coming home late Saturday night to their home some 12 miles northeast of here.

THREATENED SUICIDE

She said he first threatened to commit suicide. "He went to get his .22-calibre rifle from the wall, but I grabbed him and made him sit down."

The baby was crying upstairs, she said. He went up and slapped the child once and returned. The baby continued to cry.

"Finally Rolland jumped up again, grabbed his rifle from the wall, and ran upstairs shouting: 'I'll stop him.'

"I hurried up behind Rolland but before I got to the top of the stairs I heard a shot."

She said her husband told her: "If the police come around to ask questions, you tell them you saw something moving outside the downstairs window, and that the gun went off accidentally when I grabbed it off the wall."

SHOT AT CLOSE RANGE

Following the shooting the couple took the baby to hospital at Buckingham where he died early Monday.

Dr. Rosario Fontaine, government medico-legal expert, said powder burns on the body indicated a distance of probably 15 inches. He said the bullet found in the body had no markings to show it had passed through either the floor or the mattress on the bed.

Meet To Discuss Loan Repayment

OTTAWA (CP) — The governors of the Banks of England and Canada will meet here next week to discuss, among other things, repayment of the 1946 Anglo-Canadian loan, it was learned today.

C. F. Cobbold, governor of the Bank of England, will play a three-day visit to Ottawa beginning Nov. 17, following talks with Federal Reserve Bank officials in New York.

One of the main reasons for his current trip, it was learned, is to discuss repayment of the $5,000,000,000 Britain borrowed from the U. S. and Canada in 1946.

An annual instalment of some $176,000,000 covering interest and principal on the two loans is due next month, and Britain is expected to make payment on time, as she did a year ago.

The Canadian portion of this loan was $1,180,000,000 and the annual repayment due to Canada next month will be about $37,000,000.

British Exports To Canada, U.S. Hit New Record

LONDON (CP) — Britain's exports to Canada and the United States in October were valued at £28,600,000, highest in any single month since the Second World War.

The improvement was particularly sharp in exports to Canada. October deliveries of £14,200,000 compared with £10,900,000 in September.

The phrase "dollar drive" has been dinned into the ears of British exporters since the war ended. The October figures suggest a trend in dollar trade which, while overdue, is at least promising.

Britain's total exports last month increased by £35,900,000 to £230,600,000, it was also disclosed in figures issued last night. This reduced the trade gap—the excess of imports over exports—to slightly more than £36,000,000, lowest in nearly two years.

Apart from the increase in dollar export, the more favorable balance of trade is attributed partly to seasonal factors and partly to a sharp reduction in imports. Financial commentators warn that the improvement is being obtained on a shrinking volume of trade.

In general, the British financial situation can be said to be somewhat confused. Gold reserves are rising, but industrial production at home, the basis of future economic well-being, is reported falling.

Meanwhile, the visit to Canada and the United States of C. F. Cobbold, governor of the Bank of England, has stirred new speculation about possible British moves towards at least a limited convertibility of sterling.

The gap between imports and exports was a sharp drop from previous monthly deficits this year.

Court Rejects Kelsey Appeal

TORONTO (CP)—The Ontario appeal court yesterday unanimously rejected an appeal by James Alfred Kelsey, 29, sentenced to hang Jan. 6 for murder of a Welland taxi driver, Sam Delibasich.

W. S. Martin of Niagara Falls, defence counsel for Kelsey, said he plans to take the case to the Supreme Court of Canada.

The appeal court decided that a statement by Kelsey given to the provincial police had been voluntary and was properly admitted to the trial. Martin claimed the defence theory that the statement had been an attempt to gain notoriety was not properly presented to the jury by the trial judge, Mr. Justice R. W Treleaven.

The body of Delibasich was found Dec. 17, 1949 by a rabbit hunter after the man had been missing for a week. Three years later Kelsey and his brother, Lloyd Cross, now awaiting trial, were arrested. Cross was picked up in Brookfield, N.B., and Kelsey in Buffalo, N.Y.

Army May Reorganize Weak Reserve Units

OTTAWA (CP)—A reorganization of Canada's weak and undermanned reserve army is under consideration by Lt.-Gen. Guy Simonds, chief of the general staff

This was learned yesterday in the wake of another blast by the Canadian Legion to the cabinet about the "dangerous weaknesses and inadequacies" of the reserve force and a new Legion call for examination by a commission of inquiry.

The air force and navy, too, are reported ready to take steps to build up their reserves. The R.C.A.F. is likely to post more regular force airmen to reserve fighter squadrons to bolster them. The navy is forming a special branch to look after the reserves and is preparing to work more in 1953 in building up the part-time force.

Takes Listener's Role

Steers Clear Of Commitments To Truman

By MARVIN L. ARROWSMITH

AUGUSTA, Ga. (AP)—President-elect Eisenhower will steer clear of any policy commitments to President Truman when they confer at the White House next week, his associates said today.

They said Eisenhower's role at the conference will be mainly that of a listener, although they emphasized that he agrees with the president that the session will amount to a demonstration of U.S. unity.

The White House announced Wednesday that the Eisenhower-Truman meeting has been set for 2 p.m. EST Tuesday.

In proposing the meeting last week, the president said it would help achieve an orderly transition from the old administration to the new.

SHARES UNITY HOPE

Eisenhower replied that he shared Truman's hope "that we may present to the world an American unity in basic issues."

During the week-end, the president-elect's headquarters issued a statement which said in effect that any pre-inauguration conferences with Truman administration officials would in no way bind the president-elect as to Republican policy.

The statement was intended to make it clear, the general's associates said, that any policy decisions before inauguration day—Jan. 20—would be the responsibility of the out-going administration.

Eisenhower is reported to feel strongly that it would be a mistake for him to deal in any other way at Tuesday's meeting — in either the international or the domestic fields.

Eisenhower, meanwhile, is seeking a cross section of Republican leaders' views on the Korean war situation in advance of his trip to the war zone.

That is one of the major purposes of a series of conferences the general will hold, starting with a session at his vacation retreat here tomorrow with Governor Thomas E. Dewey of New York.

Psychiatrist Warns:

Perils In "Social Drinking"

By FRANK CAREY

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — The "social drinker" who imbibes two highballs every night before dinner may be in danger of becoming an incipient alcoholic, a psychiatrist said today.

Dr. howard R. Masters said: "It has always been my belief that the normal, well-integrated individual who drinks socially will not become an alcoholic unless through disease, injury or conditioning there is some personality change for which he is not entirely responsible."

But, he told the Southern Medical Association, there's a possibility that regular drinking every night before dinner can build up such a "conditioning" in a "normal social drinker."

Such an individual, he added, might establish a "conditioned reflex demand" for alcohol so that "when an environmental situation becomes intolerable and he is physically or psychologically unable to meet the situation, he may become an incipient alcoholic and potentially a sick man."

The doctor read a prepared address at the S. M. A.'s annual meeting.

Speaking of the "problem" of alcoholism to business, industry, and also to the professions, the Medical College of Virginia doctor asserted:

"Any time an individual drinks enough to be absent or late to his work and low on the job he is drinking too much and, if this is a regular or frequently-recurring thing, he may be classified as chronic alcoholic."

It is estimated, he said, that there are between 3,000,000 and 5,000,000 "excessive" drinkers in the United States, "and of these some 800,000 or more are chronic excessive drinkers and may be classified chronic alcoholics."

Iroquois Revenges Death Of 3 With Broadsides

IN KOREAN WATERS (CP)—The Canadian destroyer Iroquois took revenge within 24 hours on the Communist shore battery which killed three of her men Oct. 2. The Iroquois returned the next day, ranged on gun flashes ashore, and then poured in rapid-fire broadsides from her four-inch guns. The whole area was left a smoking wreck and the enemy guns made no further answer—then or during the six days following that the Iroquois patrolled that east-coast area, just south of Songjin.

Three men were killed and three others wounded—the first Canadian naval casualties of the Korean war—when the ship was hit by the shore battery.

Killed were Lt.-Cmdr. John L. Quinn, Halifax; AB. Elburne A. Baikie, Hamilton, and AB. Wallace M. Burden, Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Wounded, none seriously, were AB. Edwin M. Jodoin, Toronto; AB. Joseph A. Gaudet, Tignish, P.E.I., and AB. Waldo Bergghen, Newport, N. S.

HEADED TASK FORCE

The Iroquois began her patrol Sept. 29 under command of Capt. W. M. Landymore of Brantford, Ont., and Ottawa. She headed a task force element with destroyers and destroyer escorts of the U. S. Navy and smaller South Korean craft.

Fifteen minutes after taking over the patrol she was fired on by a hidden shore battery, but none of the shots fell close.

The Iroquois and the destroyer escort U. S. S. Marsh were bombarding a railway and neighboring shore guns Oct. 2 when the Canadian ship was hit. Both ships withdrew, pouring shells on the shore guns.

Even the destroyer's B gun, which took the direct hit a few feet from its mounting, kept up a hot rain of fire.

The dead and wounded were transferred to the U. S. S. Chemung, which carried a surgical team, and early next day the Iroquois returned to the patrol.

Directed by gunnery officer Lieut. Douglas Tutte of Victoria, the four-inch guns took a few ranging salvoes and then poured in broadsides at the flashes of shore guns.

The Iroquois chose to patrol that particular area for six more days, shooting harassing rounds at irregular intervals at the rail line and the adjacent gun emplacement. There was no further sign of fight from the gun.

Worker Charges Assault By Boss

HAMILTON (CP)—A charge of common assault was filed with clerk yesterday against W H. Young, works manager of Hamilton Cottons Company.

A spokesman for the United Textile Workers' Union (A F L) did not reveal the name of the complaintant but said the offence took place Tuesday outside the plant when members of the rival Textile Workers' Union of America (C.I.O.) clashed with the A F L men in an attempt to return to work.

About 275 C.I.O. men returned to work in the plant yesterday with relatively little trouble Police, wary after Tuesday's violence, formed a solid line to separate the two factions and a clash was prevented.

A small group of workers was rushed by pickets but police rescued the workers. Vern Mustard of Welland, an A.F.L. organizer, and one other person were arrested.

Grain Shipment Hits Peak, Said Up By 15%

WINNIPEG (CP) — Shipment of grain from Canada's mighty bread basket is nearing its seasonal peak and railways figures today showed shipments since Aug. 1 already total 15 per cent more than last year.

Reports from the Canadian Pacific and Canadian National Railways showed 109,716 cars loaded at Prairie delivery points for shipment to Lakehead terminals compared with 95,310 in the same period last year.

Each car holds between 1,800 and 2,000 bushels, making the haul total approximately 200,000,000 bushels.

The West's grain crop this year was estimated by the Dominion bureau of statistics at a record 1,300,000,000 bushels. Potential marketings, allowing for seed, feed and carryovers, have been estimated at 870,000,000.

Peak movement on the Great Lakes is reached in November when cold weather gradually cuts off iron ore shipments and vessels switch to the grain run until the early December freeze-up.

RUNNING WELL AHEAD

The last week in November last year saw more than 13,000,000 bushels of grain taken from the Lakehead. Shipments at the end of October this year were running about 10,000,000 a week. Stocks totalled 55,000,000.

Recent grain inspections here show that most grain moving east is high-grade wheat intended to meet sales commitments before winter halts the lake boats.

The railways have been authorized to give priority to shipments of this grain.

DIESELS ON JOB

The C. P. R. reported 56,611 cars of grain loaded since Aug 1 compared with 48,635 last year The C. N. R.'s figures were 53,105 against 46,675.

A factor in this year's speed-up has been the introduction of diesel locomotives which can haul three times the load of a steam locomotive.

ENEMY HOLD THE YOKE

Chinese Communists still were dug in on the Yoke, a maze of tunnels and caves at the northern end of Sniper Ridge.

It was from those caverns that the Reds spewed reinforcements Tuesday, when they drove the South Koreans off Pinpoint Wednesday's South Korean charge, successful in regaining Pinpoint failed to dislodge the Communists from the Yoke.

North Korean Communists attacking U. N. positions on the eastern front last night found themselves blocked by streams of flaming napalm. An Allied staff officer said the Eighth Army troops probably had drums of napalm on their defence lines and detonated them when the enemy approached.

The weather was the best today in three days, but a cloud cover still shielded most of North Korea from really effective air attacks.

Wednesday night 12 B-29s dumped 120 tons of bombs on a rail bridge at Pyongyang, the North Korean capital, and on barracks and storage buildings near Kunu, about 50 miles north of Pyongyang.

CHICAGO GRAIN

CHICAGO (AP) — Wheat eased at the opening today.

Corn showed a strong undertone. Apparently some traders felt the government's boost in estimated corn production, announced after the close Wednesday, was not as large as had been expected.

Wheat started ⅛-½ cent lower, December $2.39-2.38¾; corn was ¼-⅝ higher, December $1.66½-⅝, and oats were ⅜ lower to ⅛ higher, December 87⅞. Soybeans were ½-1¼ cents higher, November $2.99¼.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG (CP)—Prices moved narrowly under moderate commercial demand in early trade today on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange.

Oats and barley came in for light routine shipper demand. Flax showed a better tone under industrial orders. Rye trade was local.

Obituary

JAMES KNOX CAMERON

James Knox Cameron a descendant of one of the pioneer families of Otonabee township, died at his home on Wednesday. Born in Otonabee 80 years ago his death came rather suddenly. Mr. Cameron farmed all his life in the Cameron settlement named after his forefathers and his farm was on lot 25 of 2nd concession.

Predeceased by his wife, formerly Marion Shearer, in 1939, Mr. Cameron leaves one son John and one grandson James in Otonabee. There also survive two sisters and three brothers, Mrs. John Boswell and Miss Sarah, William, Robert and Gordon, all of Otonabee.

The body is at the Mather Funeral Home, Keene, from where the funeral will be held on Friday at 2.00 p.m. with interment in Cameron's cemetery. Mr. A. N. Thomlinson of the Westwood Presbyterian Church will officiate.

Typhoon Lashes Isles

MANILA (AP) — A 115-mile-an-hour typhoon thrashed through the Batanes Island cluster off the northern Philippines today, then blew into the China Sea toward southern Formosa. There were no reports of loss of life or property damage from the Batanes.

1,500 Chickens Hen House Lost In Fire

Fire of unknown origin completely destroyed a two-storey henhouse and 1,500 hens and pullets on the farm of Robert Kay, four miles south of the city in Otonabee township, late Wednesday afternoon.

Wayne, the Kay's nine-year-old son, discovered the fire about 5:15 p.m. He was in the building feeding the poultry when he saw flames in one of the two ground-floor pens.

After futile attempts to extinguish the blaze, he rushed in to tell his mother. She called neighbors for help. A crowd of about 100 watched helplessly as the building burned to the ground an hour after it was discovered.

Mr. Kay was away when the fire started and arrived home to see the building in flames about 15 minutes later.

STRAW ON FLOOR

Mr. Kay said today that he had no idea how it started. He explained that both floors had a covering of straw which he thought probably accounted for the flames getting so quickly out of control.

He also said that he had not estimated his loss.

The 1,500 hens and pullets lost included 900 pullets, Mr. Kay had purchased this week. His loss would be $3,000 for the poultry alone with the present potential value of hens at $2.00 each.

Otonabee township has no fire-fighting equipment. The township has discussed buying equipment, but as yet no action has been taken.

Prices Remain Weak, Volume Stays High

TORONTO (CP) — Prices continued weak today in stepped-up early afternoon stock market trading.

Volume for the first three hours totalled 1,366,000 shares—the largest third-hour volume since late September.

Papers, foods and miscellaneous issues led the industrials' decline and utilities and manufacturing companies also slipped. Steels and financial institutions gained.

A few major price changes marked the downward western oils list. Central Explorers lost 80 cents in the first three hours. Sapphire lost about half that amount in brisk trading and Bailey Selburn and Kenwell also slipped. Anglo-Canadian was one of the few issues gaining.

Senior golds and junior producers lost strength and prospects also showed a wide majority of losses. Larder U. gained pennies in a turnover of about 150,000 shares.

Western oils slipped although Ascot and Eastern Metals added pennies turnovers of more than 125,000 shares each. Silver Miller also gained while Dominion Asbestos and higher-priced issues slipped.

Claims Machine Prompts Witness

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—A machine was accused of telling a witness what to say yesterday in a damage action in Middlesex county court.

Gilson Automobile Transport Ltd. of Oshawa, is asking $252 damages in a jury accident against Frederick Mason of London as the result of an accident on No. 2 highway near here Feb. 24. Mason has entered a counter claim for $347.

William Hayball, Oshawa, driver of the loaded automobile transport, placed his speed at 23 miles an hour before the accident and at the time of impact. He said he consulted a tackograph with which his vehicle was equipped. The instrument recorded his speed mile by mile from Windsor to the accident scene.

H. W. Hockin, lawyer for Mason, suggested that such evidence might be "hearsay" and not admissible.

"It is the evidence of a machine . . .The machine is telling the witness," he said.

The trial is continuing.

Canadian Plow Champ Favorite In UK Match

FALKIRK, Scotland (Reuters)—Canada's plowing champion, Douglas Reid of Brampton, Ont., started a strong favorite in the tractor division of the second annual British national plowing contest here yesterday but finished out of the running.

The title went to an Englishman, Leslie Dixon.

Algie Wallace of North Gower, Ont., also failed to finish with the leaders.

Allan Earl Deen

INDIAN RIVER (ENS).—Funeral services were held Tuesday afternoon from the Belleghem Funeral Home, Peterborough, for Allen Earl Deen who passed away on Sunday in Civic Hospital.

Born in Douro township 34 years ago, he was the son of John Deen and the late Agnes Nelson. Mr. Deen had lived the most of his life on lot 27, concession 2, Otonabee township. He was a member of Westwood Presbyterian Church.

Besides his sorrowing wife, the former Annie Barrons and two sons, Thomas, age 3 and Jack 10 months, he is survived by his father, John Deen, a sister Mrs. Donald Wilson of North Monaghan, and one brother, William, at home.

Services were conducted by the Rev. R. D. Duncanson of Norwood Presbyterian Church, assisted by the Rev. Bingham of Indian River Baptist Church.

Pallbearers were all cousins: Orville Bell, Jack Dewart, Stuart Buck, Sherwood Hendren, Ronald Cameron, Gordon Stevenson. Flower bearers were Leslie Cameron, William Brealey, Archie Elmhurst, Harry Wood, Sherman Nelson, Arnold Stevenson, Stuart Bell. Interment was at St. Mark's cemetery, Warsaw.

3 Generations Of Family Killed In Crash

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Members of three generations of a Crediton family were killed yesterday near Elginfield, about 12 miles north of here, when the pickup truck in which they were riding collided with a car.

Dead are: Mrs. Mary Gower of Ailsa Craig; her daughter, Mrs. Kenneth Kuhn, 35; and her granddaughter, Joyce Isobel Kuhn, 16. Clifford Creighton of Toronto driver of the car, was seriously injured while his companion, Frank Brawley of Toronto, was only slightly hurt.

The women had set out to visit a relative in London Hospital, with the girl driving, when the crash occurred at a highway intersection. The impact swung the car off the highway and it rolled down a four-foot embankment, ripping a small tree out by the roots.

The three women were hurled from the truck. Mrs. Kuhn was found lying in the centre of the road while the other two were on the shoulder. All died from fractured skulls.

Harold Morgan, owner of a service station near the scene, was the first to reach the accident. He found one of the two men hanging on a door of the wrecked car and the other inside unconscious.

It was almost two hours after the accident that Kenneth Kuhn, husband of the dead woman, arrived on the scene. Sick with shock and grief, he identified the bodies of his wife, daughter and mother-in-law.

Another daughter, June, 12, was on her way from school when she was told the news. Mrs. Kuhn had left a note pinned to the door for June telling her where the family had gone.

Muffin-Loving Lord's Appeal To Times Wins Him Surfeit Of Cakes, Full Heart, Stomach

LONDON (Reuters)—Almost every time the postman calls on Lord Asquith of Bishopstone he brings muffins.

Asquith, 62, one of Britain's top judges, is a muffin lover, but even he is getting more than he can eat.

It started a week ago with a letter to the Times: "Sir, why are there no muffins now? And why have there been none for 10 years past? I am, sir, yours hungrily, Asquith of Bishopstone."

That started a flood of muffin samples to Asquith from bakeries and tea shoppes all over the country.

Asquith wrote again to the Times, saying that after being in a "muffin-less misery" he now had a surfeit.

"With a full heart and a fuller stomach I thank and bless these good Samaritans," he wrote.

Meanwhile, other writers waxed hot on the subject. Most agreed that the bell had tolled for this former English favorite which the dictionary defines as "a light, flat, circular, spongy cake, eaten toasted and buttered at breakfast or tea."

Ask Constable Check Speeders

HASTINGS (ENS).—Motorists who are accustomed to speeding through Hastings take note—the constable will be checking up on you. That's the result of a delegation to the town council from the Home and School Association.

One of the two delegations to the Council, Mrs. D. Witred, Mrs. J. Essex and Mrs. L. Wilson requested action by the constable to stop excessive speeding. The council agreed and promised to have the constable be more severe.

The second delegation, Mr. Orr, chairman of the Chamber of Commerce, inquired about the purchasing of lots back of the station. The council plan to investigate the lots for re-purchasing.

Other items discussed were: Fire Chief Bonds was granted permission to purchase chains for the truck; the sum of $10 was voted to the Institute for the Blind; the fire agreement with Asphodel township was given first and second readings.

The following accounts were passed to be paid as read: S. L. Switzer, salary Nov. 1-15, $75.; S. L. A Decline In The Mail Service

For at least two years there has been a noticeable decline in the efficiency of the mail service in Canada, and we think that the Government, and particularly the Postmaster General's Department, should investigate the matter thoroughly and do whatever is necessary to restore the service to first-rate condition. As we have said before in these columns, a first-rate mail service is one of the necessities of a first-rate nation. For many years Canada has enjoyed an excellent mail service, but since the end of the war there has been a decline which has grown markedly worse during the past eighteen or twenty months. We cannot pretend to explain why this is so. It may be that our service arrangements have been outgrown. Perhaps not enough of our trains carry mail. Perhaps our post offices and central depots are understaffed, or we do not pay enough to our postal employees to get the right people on the job. Experience suggests that some of the large centres—of which Toronto is the one nearest to Peterborough—are bottlenecks. Certainly mail to Toronto and points west of it does not move as efficiently as once it did. We do not attempt to lay the blame on anyone. We merely state the plain fact that the service is not as good as it used to be and not as good as Canada needs.

* * *

There is one specific point which we have mentioned many times before, and which we make no apology for mentioning again; that is the matter of twice-daily delivery in residential districts. The Prime Minister, in a recent speech, admitted that this economy may have been a mistake, and that the twice-daily delivery might be restored. We hope it may be so, for we think it unjustifiable to assume that the letters which go from home to home are less important than the letters which go from office to office, although they pay the same postal rate. Consider this letter, for instance:

Dear Granny:

Thank you for the fudge. I ate it all yesterday. Thank you very much. I am doing well at skool and yesterday I got 35 out of 50 for my speling.

Your loving grandson
Johnnie.

What reason has the Post Office Department to suppose that this letter is less important to its recipient than the following:

Dear Sir:

Your esteemed order for 1600 gross of screwtooled greevies to hand, and contents noted. Beg to report that we are fresh out of this item but can let you have it in six months. Meanwhile may we send you 700 gross of ringtailed ugglebuckets? Awaiting favour of your reply.

John Doe
(for Greevy & Ugglebucket Mfg. Co.)

Both letters pay a four cent carrying charge; why make fish of Granny and flesh of the man who doesn't want 700 ugglebuckets? And what makes John Doe's four cent stamp more potent at the post office than Johnnie's?

* * *

Christmas is coming and it will not be long before the Post Office Department is publishing anguished adjurations to the public to send its Christmas mail early. We shall hear many stories of the congestion in the postal service and we shall know that in spite of the best efforts of the Post Office employees everywhere, mail will be later and later, and more and more uncertain until Christmas is over. Is this Christmas agony really necessary? Can nothing be done to reduce its intensity? No other Government department, to our knowledge, often inconvenient, appeals to the public to help it with work which it is apparently not equipped to do. Is it time that our whole postal system was reconsidered and revised to fit the needs of our day?

Dr. Chaim Weizmann

Like the world-famous pianist Paderewski, first President of Poland, the famous chemist Chaim Weizmann was the visionary of his country's independence and not the instrument of it. He became first President of Israel, and not its Premier. Weizmann came to this office not merely because he was the most internationally-respected Jew of his day—as Paderewski was the most famous Pole—but through many long years of devoted service to the realization of his boyhood dream, a Jewish homeland. It is said that his reward for service to Britain in the first World War when he discovered a way to produce synthetic acetone (a chemical needed for the manufacture of explosives) was the indefinite Balfour Declaration, in which a Homeland was promised Jewry. At one time or another before he became President of Israel, Dr. Chaim Weizmann was teacher and director of Hebrew University in Jerusalem, President of the World Zionist Organization and President of the Jewish Agency for Palestine as well as professor in European and British universities. Until he came to occupy the presidency, he maintained a home in London and one in Rehovoth, Palestine. It was from this mansion that the "Father of Israel" was buried on November 11th, and interred in an olive grove of his estate, to the salute of 21 guns.

His Resignation Will Achieve Nothing

What more impossible position can there be to maintain successfully than that of general secretary of an organization whose board of directors have never agreed on any major point and which has consistently failed to fill the major role given it? Such is the position of Trygve Lie, Secretary-General of U.N., theoretically one of the most important positions in the world, actually one of the most frustrating. Mr. Lie has resigned the position in the hope that another may be got to fill it who can better reconcile the divergent points of view of the two main parties to U.N., specifically in the hope that through another Secretary-General a truce in Korea can be managed. It is a slim hope.

Trygve Lie filled the position as impartially as any man could do without being impartial to the principles of the U.N. charter. He was known to favour seating Communist China in the U.N. (a move opposed by the United States). He personally made a tour of European capitals on both sides of the Iron Curtain, to try to lessen the breach between East and West. But when the Red aggression in Korea occurred he maintained the principles of the Charter by outspokenly labelling the Reds aggressive and calling on the United Nations to collectively secure South Korea against the Communist intrusion there.

What better man racially, as well as personally, could U.N. find for its secretary-general than a Norwegian, a representative of a small, unbelligerent power whose affairs and territory are touched both by the West and Russia? Mr. Lie was Foreign Minister of Norway from 1941 and is thoroughly versed in international views and problems. He has brought to the office of Secretary-General high personal qualities and unusual international qualifications. There is little chance that his resignation to make way for another will to anything to ameliorate U.N.'s condition or brighten the international situation.

There may be some less open significance to the resignation. Does Mr. Lie foresee some independent American action in Korea to bring the armistice issue to a head, of which he would not approve and which might diminish still further the influence of U.N.? Does he consider General Eisenhower's forthcoming visit to Korea a reflection on the incapacity of U.N. and on himself as its chief civil servant?

Courtesy And Crooked Dealing

A Canadian Customs officer has been sentenced to eighteen months imprisonment in the city of Detroit because he was smuggling aliens into the U.S.A. from the city of Windsor. It appears that he took the aliens across the border in the trunk of his car, and received $100 each for doing so.

Why was he not found out earlier? Because, we learn, "under a courtesy arrangements between Customs officers of the two countries, their cars are not searched." That is to say, Customs men, their families and friends, travel freely back and forth at the border at Windsor, undoubtedly smuggling a certain amount of goods just as all people at the border do a bit of smuggling, and finally smuggling the most contraband of all commodities—people who wish to enter another country illegally.

We do not mind betting a considerable sum that this "courtesy arrangement" is not sanctioned by the Minister of Customs and does not operate when he is in the district. Customs officers are employed to prevent smuggling, and there is no reason at all why they should enjoy a privilege which is not enjoyed by other Canadians. We hope that the Minister of Customs will take steps to see that this snug little arrangement among the Customs men at Windsor is not resumed.

NOTES AND COMMENT

An economist is quoted as saying that war would be impossible if all business were done on a cash basis. And not only war.

A woman bank teller who is described as "well-liked" is now accused of embezzling $35,000. There's nothing that chills the manager's affection so quickly as that sort of thing.

Says a modern songwriter named Bagdasarian: "Lots of these old folk tunes just need a little revamping and a new set of lyrics and they're pretty listenable." When it comes to folk tunes we belong to the pre-Bagdasarian period.

Sculpture, Paint And Jackets

By MICHAEL MIDDLETON

A YOUNG British sculptor became known to many of the public for the first time in 1948, when two of his works were exhibited in London—one, framed by foliage against a background of water, in the Battersea Park exhibition of open-air sculpture; the other, on a bombed site in Oxford Street, in connection with the Institute of Contemporary Arts' Forty Thousand Years of Modern Art. F. E. McWilliam spent the war in Britain's Royal Air Force, in England and in India, and it is ten years since he last exhibited his work in any quantity.

✧ ✧ ✧

McWILLIAM was born in County Down, in Northern Ireland, in 1909. He studied at the Slade and in Paris. His work is distinguished by a curious mixture of academic classicism and semi-surrealist romanticism (his contacts with the surrealists have been uneasy and intermittent; he does not consider himself to be one of the group). He has been influenced by the Picasso of the 'bone' period—the Picasso who sculpted and painted those 'metamorphic' figures constructed of skeletal, balancing forms—and by Henry Moore's rediscovery of the hole and the mysterious tunnel—of what might be called negative sculpture, the sculpture of what is not there, or is invisible.

McWILLIAM, in fact, pays as much attention to what he leaves out as to what he puts in. He selects certain fundamental forms from a human figure in a certain pose, carves or moulds them quite realistically, and relates them one to another in space quite realistically. What at first startles the onlooker, however, is that whole sections of the theme, of the figure, may just not be there, but only suggested by their context. Now this is an oversimplification of McWilliam's approach. It may suggest something not altogether honest—a reliance upon trickery and a determination to surprise at all costs by means of a forced novelty.

The work itself belies such an evaluation. It is invested with a quite extraordinary power of suggestion. The imagination plays about the implications of these figures as untroubled by their amputations as by the limblessness of a classical fragment. McWilliam is something of a conjurer. By playing two games at the same time he evolves a sort of sculptural double vision, not dissimilar at times from that employed by Dali in painting, but of much greater architectural strength. He is juggling with abstract forms and yet at the same time with realistic and recognisable ones. A balancing act, for example, of polished, formal shapes in Lignum Vitae, is seen suddenly to turn itself into a profile, to which the inward eye adds a non-existent head.

THE VICTORIAN AND ALBERT Museum, London, organised what is believed to be the first international exhibition of the "Art of the Bookjacket", assembled from examples from nineteen countries in America, Asia and Europe. This seems especially fitting, since the bookjacket may be claimed as a British invention—a not unmixed honour, however, for its function was to protect the wares of the London bookseller from the ravages of nineteenth century London's fog and grime.

A jacket of pale buff, printed in red within a formal frame, has been described in connection with a book published by Messrs. Longman in 1833. By 1860 the firm was using a large woodcut on the jacket for an edition of The Pilgrim's Progress, and several other publishers not long afterwards produced some striking wrappers. It was not, however, until the 'nineties that print began to appear fairly regularly on paper jackets, and not until the first decades of the new century did the pictorial wrapper become at all general.

Other countries—notably Germany and the United States—were developing the bookjacket simultaneously, and in recent years another great book-buying nation—Sweden—has been influenced by the British style of book production. It is fair to say, nevertheless, that Britain remains supreme in this small facet of industrial design.

IN OTHER countries the approach to this little poster—for that, in effect, is what it is today—is conditioned by a multitude of local factors. France, normally binding her books in paper covers, only began to take an interest in the typographical design of those covers about fifteen years ago—largely as a result of Peignot's stimulating influence. Now the finest French jackets—usually for editions de luxe—consist either of a reproduction of a painting, or a bold use of large type on an expensive hand-made paper.

The Germanic tradition rests heavily on the colourful use of printers' flowers, borders and decorative material (including, in the past, the decorative qualities of the Gothic blackletter) to produce results at once delicate and prim. The same qualities are to be found in many of the central and northern European countries—much more vigorously in Holland, and often combined with gay and lively designs in Czechoslovakia and Poland. India produces all-over patterns. Switzerland, secure in the excellence of her printing, embraces all the contemporary idioms. The United States demands the glossiest of varnished surfaces, and has produced several outstanding designers who use the language of modern abstract painting—of whom the most interesting is Alvan Lustig.

✧ ✧ ✧

IN BRITAIN the two main divisions of typographical and pictorial design receive almost equal attention. Oliver Simon of the Curwen Press, working in the Renaissance tradition, has exerted a powerful neo-classical influence on the bookjacket no less than on other forms of printing. Bertholde Wolpe, for Faber and Faber, has evolved a distinctive use of very large lettering—sometimes typeset, sometimes drawn—which takes up nearly the whole space of the jacket. Hans Tisdall, for Jonathan Cape, has developed a very individual and decorative kind of spiky drawn lettering which has been much imitated. Perhaps the most striking fact of the exhibition is that good design is not the prerogative of the expensive book alone, but is to be found equally at all levels. If all manufacturers had as much courage as British publishers, the world would be a much more pleasant place to live in.

✧ ✧ ✧

FOUR ROOMS at Burlington House, Piccadilly, London, have been devoted to an exhibition of nearly four hundred British watercolours from the seventeenth to the nineteenth centuries—the private collection of Mr. J. Leslie Wright. One of the most remarkable things about this collection is that it has been formed entirely within the last twenty years.

The emphasis was on landscape and incident. One was taken back to a world of milkmaids and ostlers, wood-cutters and basket-makers, huntsmen and soldiery, gypsies and itinerant musicians; back to the village auction and the street market—a world of robust rusticity encircled by the fishing boats and packets, the harbours and ports of a seafaring and maritime power.

Rowlandson, whose world this was, was splendidly represented by thirty-eight racy and flowing drawings. Thirty Gainsborough sketches, from the most summary to the most careful and precise, were masterpieces of landscape delicacy. The younger Cozens, Girten, de Wint, Cotman, Bonnington, Thomas Malton Jr., Turner combined to recall a more gentle age.

They went out unaffectedly, the artists of that golden century, content to observe and record. To Wales and to Scotland, to the Lowlands and France and the Alps and Italy, further and further afield they went, in search of the sublime and the beautiful and the picturesque, to Jamaica and India and China and the ends of the earth.

Stevenson In Defeat

(MONTREAL STAR)

FEW CANDIDATES for public office come to the end of their campaigns for election without having something on the record of which they are heartily ashamed. This is a normal and unhappy consequence of the process of politics. But, when a man does succeed in keeping his record clean, it is worthy of note and of emulation. Such a man was Adlai Stevenson, Governor of Illinois and Democratic candidate for the U. S. presidency.

On the eve of the voting, this extraordinary man made a short broadcast to the American people. That, at least, was the idea. In the event it turned out far more that he was talking to himself, saying things aloud which were deeply in his heart, with the consequence, as always that it was deeply moving to those who heard. Here is something of what he said:

"Looking back, I am not wholly content that I have said, or said well, everything that was in my heart. I am not sure that I have kept all our concerns, national and international, in proper balance and perspective. I am not sure that I have made my views on all our concerns as clear and precise as I would have liked.

"But I have not evaded, and I have tried, and tried diligently, day and night, to talk sensibly, honestly and candidly about our many problems. I have tried to explain the issues as I see them, and the records of the parties. I have tried to educate. If I have not succeeded altogether, I have certainly educated myself on those questions and also about those wonderful human beings that are America.

"Talking sense is not easy. It means saying things that sometimes people don't like to hear; it means risking votes, and candidates are not supposed to do that. It means saying the same thing in all parts of the country and at all stages of the campaign.

"It means avoiding political expediency, and dealing forthrightly with individuals regardless of the labels they wear, or the votes they can deliver. It means trying to find out what really are the major problems, to get under their surface, to say exactly where one stands on them and what one proposes to do about them.

"It means trying incessantly to keep them foremost, and not be diverted by the sideshows, the assaults and the trivia that clutter our campaigns . . .

"Looking back, I am content. Win or lose, I have told you the truth as I see it. I have said what I meant, and meant what I said. I have not done as well as I should like to have done, but I have done my best, frankly and forthrightly: no man can do more, and you are entitled to no less."

The wise guys in politics may now devote much time explaining that this is not the whoop and hurray that win elections, that Stevenson was a highbrow who did not know how to reach the heart of the voters. But Governor Stevenson will not care. He came out of the campaign clean, as well able to live with himself as he had been before, his integrity intact. He was a man

> "Who comprehends his trust, and to the same
> Keeps faithful with a singleness of aim;
> And therefore does not stoop, nor lie in wait
> For wealth, or honors or for worldly state."

Like the speculating pundits, we do not know, either, if elections can be won that way. But we do know that they ought to be either won, or lost that way; and that it does not really matter much which way the voting goes, if decency and integrity remain intact. A country which possesses a Stevenson is a fortunate land. Perhaps a great public career is by no means at its final end.

Education—How Good?

(LETHBRIDGE HERALD)

HOW good is education in Canada in 1952?

That question is becoming one of our most popular controversies. We've heard it debated in public and in private. It's in the press and over the airwaves.

There are two schools of thought— the reactionaries, as the modernists call them, who want more stress on the three R's; and the progressives who say that education can be made pleasureable instead of a head crammed with facts and dates and rules which can better be found in a book—if one knows which books and where to look.

The arguments which we have heard in public recently appear to indicate that, though there might appear to be a lot of differences between the two schools of thought, there isn't so much difference after all. The progressive says that today's product is better than that of 30 or 40 years ago, the proponent of the three R's says the present-day student isn't equipped so well with the tools a good education should give him or her.

Actually, of course, the student today should have a much better education. He spends more years in school—Canada is passing the pioneering stage where the youngster began early to help Dad or entered business [illegible]. He has a lot more outside the school room—more newspapers, magazines, libraries, radio, to bring him into touch what's going on around him and in the world at large. But has he thoroughly mastered the basics implied in the three R's?

We think President Sidney Smith of the University of Toronto put it very clearly recently when, speaking to the convention of the Canadian Education Association, he said:

"When a child memorizes the declensions of an inflected language, or the multiplication table, or the musical scales, or the ten commandments, he is mastering the tools of learning, and laying the foundations on which reckoning, reasoning, comprehension and expression is based . . . One might call it pre-education . . .

"In education, the emphasis is upon equipping the individual not merely to acquire this information, but to develop his own intellectual and moral powers, to acquire good taste and critical judgement . . . It is a process not without pain . . .

"I am thoroughly in favour of making dull things interesting, but I question whether it is really a kindness to make difficult things easy. There are difficult things that must be done, whether we like it or not, and school days are a poor preparation for life if our pupils are not taught to face a problem courageously, whether it be interesting or not.

The "tools of learning" about which President Smith speaks are those basics which the student takes with him after he leaves school and goes into the world to earn his living and make his contribution to the society which provided him with the means of securing his education. Education goes on long after the young man or young woman leaves school and the tools of learning then meet their real test.

"Knowledge and wisdom, far from being one, have oftimes no connection." That's a saying from an old lesson in English the writer had to master, long, long ago. "Knowledge comes, but wisdom lingers" is another. The tools of learning for living wisely cannot be painlessly acquired.

Coronation Stamps

(London Times)

Mr. Gammans, Assistant Postmaster-General, stated in the House of Commons that the designs for the special issue of coronation stamps were now being examined. A double-sized stamp of the 2½d. denomination would certainly be issued, but at the moment no further announcement could be made. He hoped that the new 2½d. stamp in the permanent series, bearing the head of the Queen, would be on sale by the end of the year, and the new 1½d. stamp would be issued at or about the same time.

Bible Message

(From the Authorized Version)

Blessed is the man whom thou chastenest, O Lord, and teachest him out of thy law . . . In the multidue of my thoughts within me thy comforts delight my soul.

Shall the throne of iniquity have fellowship with thee, which frameth mischief by law? . . . But the Lord is my defence; and my God is the rock of my refuge. (Ps. 94: 12, 19, 20, 22.)

✧ ✧ ✧

The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul: the testimony of the Lord is sure, making wise the simple.

The statutes of the Lord are right rejoicing the heart: the commandment of the Lord is pure, enlightening the eyes.

The fear of the Lord is clean, enduring for ever: the judgements of the Lord are true and righteous altogether.

More to be desired are they than gold, yea, than much fine gold: sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb. Moreover by them is thy servant warned: and in keeping of them there is great reward.

Lakefield Streets May Get Nameplates

LAKEFIELD (ENS). — The Lakefield Chamber of Commerce will present a recommendation to the village council that a street familiarizing plan be adopted and that nameplates be put on all streets of the village.

This decision was made at a well-attended meeting Tuesday evening at the Lakefield Hotel, with president Donald Hendren in the chair.

They will assist the council in any way possible and will, if the plan is adopted, have maps of the village printed with street names. The cost of the maps will be offset by advertising and they will be placed in all stores for distribution.

A. W. Stewart, retail chairman, stated that the council had again been approached about the enforcement of the hawkers' bylaw, and the request had also been made for an increase in these fees. Mr. Stewart also explained the scheme to be followed in having the village suitably decorated for the Christmas season. Christmas trees will be placed on the main street and the merchants are being asked to co-operate by decorating their windows. The Hydro has agreed to purchase strings of colored lights to decorate the business area. He also said that an invitation had been issued to Santa Claus to visit Lakefield.

Tourist chairman W. Hillier reported that plans were already under way for the securing of large quantities of maps of the Kawartha Lakes area for distribution next season, and that the cost would be met by advertisements on them.

Albert G. Buchanan announced that members would be billed for support and maintenance of the tourist information bureau the same time as their membership fees.

APPROACH FARMERS

A number of farmers will be approached to join the local Chamber of Commerce based on the fact that they benefit financially by tourist trade. Capt. J. Sloan is chairman of this committee.

Mr. Hendren, Kenneth Slater, Harold Hamblin and Ralph Beavis were delighted to be able to announce that their work regarding the securing of the sale of motor vehicle licences and drivers' permits had been successful, and that after January 1, residents would be able to obtain them in the village.

Paul O'Brien, son of Mr. and Mrs. William O'Brien, who was successful at Lakefield and Norwood public speaking contest, and who will compeet at Havelock on Friday, gave his prize winning speech at the meeting. It was of special interest to this group as its topic was "Lakefield Chamber of Commerce." Paul was heartily congratulated on his talk and many good wishes will follow him to Havelock.

Sign Up Citizens For Chest X-Rays

Seventy volunteer canvassers started out this morning to round up people of Ashburnham to have their TB X-rays taken.

The mobile chest X-ray clinic is set up for the two-day stint in Ashburnham at Mark St. United Church at Hunter and Mark Sts. today and Friday.

Hundreds are expected to take advantage of getting a free chest X-ray on the east side of the river.

But if anyone misses his chance in Ashburnham, he can catch up with the clinic next week, or even later, at one of its three other rendezvous in other parts of the city.

Canvassers will be signing up the citizens—all over Grade 8 age level eligible—for their free X-rays in the south, north, central and west sections.

OPEN EVENINGS

The clinic is open from 10 a.m. till noon, 2 p.m. to 5 p.m., and in the evening 7 to 10.

The clinic will be operating in the south end, south of Rink and Albert Sts., at St. James' Church at Romaine and Aylmer Sts., November 17 to 21 inclusive.

From November 24 to 28 inclusive, the clinic will be in operation at George St. United Church at George and McDonnel Sts. for all citizens who live north of Brock and Elm Sts.

The central and west sections, sandwiched between the north and south, that is between McDonnel and Rink Sts., will have their opportunity December 1 to 5 inclusive.

At the same time that the ordinary citizens are getting their chest X-rays, a food handlers' section is being conducted. With the approval of Medical Officer of Health Dr. J. P. Wells, all establishments, restaurants and stores handling food have been invited to contact the TB Council headquarters at 26212 to arrange to have their employees checked.

All establishments who have all their employees X-rayed will be given a Certificate of Merit.

Hard-To-Sell Bonds May Cut Enrolments

SUDBURY (CP) — Rural school and municipal officials said here last night some schools will have to reject pupils next September due to the difficulty in selling school debentures.

Harold Bondette, clerk of Neelon-Garson township, said delegations from his municipality were gven the impression, by Toronto brokers that Northern Ontario debentures are not considered a good risk. The principal reason for this, he said, is that many townships are regarded as one-industry municipalities.

I WANT 2000 PEOPLE TO TRY SYNTONA FOR ONLY 25 CENTS

WHAT IT IS!

SYNTONA is an advanced medical compound of 12 of the finest medicinal herbs, and not one a habit-forming drug. It is taken before meals and mixes with the food in one's stomach, thus throwing off the poisons that foster stomach troubles. It acts within 10 minutes to stop gas and pains, sourness, bloating and belching. At the same time SYNTONA drives the poisons from the kidneys and relieves backache, bladder irritation and weakness.

WHAT IT DOES!

It acts on the stomach, liver, kidneys and bowels. It DRIVES OUT rheumatic and neuritic pains, puts a stop to boils, pimples and other common blood disorders by ELIMINATING THE CAUSE! It builds strong healthy nerves. It will free your system of its over-supply of acidity. Those ravaging acids that accumulate and irritate your stomach—fill you with gas—sour your food and cause constipation.

Now whether SYNTONA will help you as it has thousands of others—whether it will end your sufferings in a day or week—remains to be seen, but in the light of what it has done for others it is surely a mistake not to try it for 25c, only a fraction of its worth. SPORTS SHOW WINDOW

By GEC. PERDUE, Sports Editor

When he came over to Canada late last summer, Tony Kotowski had a lot to learn of the Canadian grid game. He thought a rouge something girls used, and a safety touch a loan from one's mother. But he learned fast. Of course the bespectacled big young fellow knew a lot about U.S. football, having played for St. Mary's College in California and at Mississippi State College. Drafted to play for the pro Philadelphia Eagles, he thought he'd take a crack at the Big Four in Canada. Tried out with Hamilton Ti-Cats but they had too many good imports at the time, so Carl Voyles and Frank Gnup recommended him as coach of Peterborough Orfuns. He has proven a popular and capable coach, Orfuns presently being in Eastern Canada intermediate "A" finals.

* * * * * *

Whether or not they get by Montreal Flyers here Saturday to make the trip west to Winnipeg Nov. 22 for a crack at the Canadian crown, Kotowski has won his spurs as a gridiron coach in this country. It is still true that players make a coach, but nonetheless the pilot of a team has a lot to do with its success. Tony had good material to work with from the Orfuns of the previous year. He also had a couple of fine former P.C.V.S. players, and he obtained half a dozen first-rate Orillia footballers. But he moulded that collection together nicely and has the team hustling all the way—and in top condition. He had done an okay job with Orfuns to date.

* * * * * *

They Had To Be Good

As mentioned before, the local gridders are good. Had to be to get by Cobourg Ghosts—with many Toronto seniors aboard—and the classy Hamilton Panthers under Tony Golab. They were '51 Canadian champs. Orfuns may well be tops in intermediate "A" ranks in the nation and, if they can down Montreal on Saturday, they'll have a chance to prove it in Winnipeg. They are blessed, too, with a keen executive under the presidency of Dr. Don Aiken. It all helps to form a winning combination in any sport. We hope the fans will turn out in force Saturday to cheer 'em along and help ease the club's heavy financial problems. An eastern grid final is bound to be an exciting and hard-fought fray. It's a sudden-deather.

Chief Big Heart did it again, with the aid of his old man, winning the main pro mat bout here last eve by downing Lou Plummer twice. Lou's second—a fellow Texan—interfered in the final fall but the ref didn't notice it, and he awarded the fall to Lou. But the Chief's pop popped up and popped off plenty (with fans backing him up) to persuade Referee Sam Gotter that it wasn't cricket. So, Sammy changed his mind and gave the duke to the Indian. Quite a lively time again with bells, feathers, drums, and skullduggery. Johnny Barend and Bull Montana battled to a semi-final draw, while Dick Raines won the prelim o'er Tony Lanza.

Keen T.V.L. Contests

A couple of close contests run off in the T.V.L. pre-season loop last p.m. in Civic Arena. Jack Harris' Havelock entry dumped Jack Jopling's Lakefield crew 7-4, while Red Creighton's Norwood crowd edged the Sheeny Stevenson squad of Hastings 7-6. That leaves Havelock atop the heap at the moment with two wins in as many starts, Norwood and Lakefield each having a victory and a defeat, with Hastings dropping two decisions. It's a short schedule, concluding next Wednesday here with Hastings vs. Lakefield, and Havelock vs. Norwood. Then on Nov. 26 and Dec. 3 the top two teams stage home-and-home playoffs for the McGillis Trophy. Games last night were speedy, interesting and generally quite clean.

Senior "B" Petes suffered a 7-4 setback in Stouffville last evening at the hands of the Clippers, 1952 O.H.A. champs. As Orillia and Stouffville drew 7-7 last week, 'twould indicate that this is a well-matched grouping and every game will be a scrap. Oshawa, fresh from two wins o'er the strong Kingston crew, comes here tomorrow night for a first showing against Jim Ellis' outfit, and that promises to be a tight tussle. Only O.H.A. tilt here this week. The Petes, still in the process of rebuilding, are coming along okay, despite the odd early-season reverse, and fans will see 'em win their share throughout the lengthy schedule. They hope to down the Truckmen from the Motor City at Civic on the morrow.

Als' Officials Move For Longer Schedule

MONTREAL (CP)—The directors of Montreal Alouettes voted last night to ask the Big Four union to increase the 1953 football schedule to 18 games from the present 12, giving each team three more home and away games.

They also passed a resolution calling on the Big Four to ask the Canadian Rugby Union to increase the present limit of eight United States imports and suggested that a mid-summer training camp of two to three weeks be established for Canadian football players.

Orfuns Need About $5,000 To Go To Winnipeg If They Win Eastern Final

If Peterborough Orfuns defeat Montreal Flyers here Saturday for the Eastern Canada football title, the local club will need approximately $5,000 to make the trip west to Winnipeg the following week in quest of the Canadian championship. This was made clear at a meeting yesterday, and efforts are being made by club officials to try to raise some of this required sum, provided Orfuns make the national final. The small surplus Orfuns have at present is not enough to cover the expenses here of the Montreal squad and officials, as required by the C.R.U. However, a big crowd at Saturday's game would take care of this and leave some over toward the western trip if Orfuns are successful. The western club then has to guarantee $2,000 to the C.R.U. toward expenses of the eastern winner.

PRIZE ROOKIE — Johnny Fedosoff, talented 18-year-old backfielder with Toronto Argonauts, has been chosen rookie-of-the-year in the Big Four football league. The five-foot-eleven-inch high school student, who warmed the bench most of the season, drew attention with a two-touchdown performance against Montreal Alouettes. He figures largely in the Argonauts 1953 plans.

MOST VALUABLE — Vince Mazza, powerful 27-year-old middle for Hamilton Tiger-Cats, has been awarded the Jeff Russel trophy as most valuable and sportsmanlike player in the Big Four football union. He joined the Ti-Cats in 1950 after Buffalo Bills folded. He started as left outside with the Bengals, won a spot on the Canadian Press 1951 all-star team and this year switched to the middle spot.

QUITE EXPENSIVE

However, expenses are quite heavy to transport a large club like a football squad — nearly three dozen making the trip, including four or five necessary officials, such as coach, manager, etc. — such a long distance. The team would have to leave here Wednesday to play Saturday in Winnipeg, and would require a few days also on the return trip. Train fare alone for each member of the club would run over $60, not counting meals there and back, and while in Winnipeg, hotel bill, buses to the park, time off work, etc. It is a big bill.

Figured out as closely as possible, club officials feel that close to $5,000 must be raised somehow or other. The players have toiled hard since late August and haven't received a cent at any time for their football. They have attended practises regularly, put up with various injuries and roughings, and now expect to bring Peterborough its first football championship of the country.

THEY NEED HELP

Not only is a huge crowd needed at Saturday's game to help "crack the nut," but contributions are necessary, as well. These were forthcoming to help the lacrosse Timbermen travel west a year ago, to help pull the baseball Petes out of the hole last summer, and to hel psend local ornamental swimmers to the States not so long ago. In some cases, the city helped, while industry and business contributed well to help bring athletic honor to Peterborough. Orfuns' players and officials hope such help will be forthcoming in the case of football.

One citizen who has aided the club in many ways for several years is D. A. McGillis, and he is helping them financially now. But, it is felt by the executive, he should not have to carry too much of the load. For instance, he cleaned off their debts last fall—and they were well in the re, as footbal lis an expensive sport with a short season and often small crowds at games — and he gave them $500 to start them off this season. He also takes care of all expenses for the half dozen starry Orillia players who perform as communters with the Orfuns. These are but a few instances of how Mr. McGillis is aiding in keeping the O.R.F.U. game going here. If others will step in now and help the club, provided it can beat Montreal this weekend, the Orfuns promise Peterborough a Canadian football championship for the first time in the city's history.

Providence Takes Over AHL Lead

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Providence Reds Wednesday night took over the American Hockey League leadership by walloping the sixth-place Buffalo Bisons 8-3. In another game, the last-place Syracuse Warriors came through with a surprising 4-2 victory over Cleveland Barons.

The victory gave Providence 15 points, one more than the idle St. Louis Flyers.

Ray Powell and Zelio Toppazzini each scored two goals for the Reds and Sheldon Bloomer, Ray Laplante, Paul Gladu and Jean-Paul Denis banged home one apiece. Buffalo scorers were Gordon Pennell, Frank Eddolls and Lorne Davis.

Ike Hildebrand put Cleveland ahead of Syracuse in the second period, after a scoreless first, but Armand Lemieux came back with an equalizer late in the session when the Barons were a man short.

Goals by Harry Pidhirny and Kelly Burnett gave the Warriors a 3-1 edge in the third period. Frank Kubasek added the Barons' other marker and Bill Gooden rammed in the final Syracuse goal.

Meet Orfuns Saturday

Lake Shore Flyers Have Good Backfield, Tough Line

MONTREAL (CP) — Lake Shore Flyers, who will meet Peterborough Orfuns Saturday for the Eastern Canada intermediate football championship, have a strong line and a backfield of consistent scorers.

The Flyers, under Coach Bill Davies, finished second in the four-team senior group of the Quebec Rugby Football Union but won the provincial title and earned the trip to Peterborough by edging Ottawa Seconds 13-12 in the playoff last Saturday. Ottawa finished on top in regular-season play.

In their 12 regular games, the home-brew Flyers won six, lost five and tied one. They ran up 155 points against 90 scored against them. Gerry Hecklinger was top scorer for the team with 27 points and quarterback Ron Farrington next with 23. Halfback Moe Martin, who has been offered try-outs with Edmonton Eskimos and Ottawa Rough Riders, scored 21 points.

Against Ottawa Seconds in the sudden-death playoff, Martin galloped 60 yards for a touchdown. Halfback Wilf O'Hagen scored 20 points in the 12-game schedule.

When a few yards are needed, quarterback Farrington often calls on Bubsy Parsons, "The Lakeshore Express", or roly-poly Harry Miles.

Other able performers are Ron Lamb, Harry Shugrue and Bill McLeod.

Farrington and Lamb do the passing and they have a capable bunch of outside wings in Al Gellately, the Binmore brothers, Ray and Dave, and Cam McFadden.

The line has been a strong segment of the team. Among the front-wall men are Yvon Forget, who has seen action with Montreal Alouettes; Moon Melvin, Ernie Hughes, Jack Dudley, Ken Zakuta, Bill Wilkinson, Art Lett and Paul Doyle.

ROLLIE MILES, who runs as far as his name for Edmonton Eskimos. He played spectacularly when the Eskies visited Montreal last year and was just as prominent against Winnipeg. He was the team's M.V.P. man in 1951. Miles is 24, stands five feet 10 inches, and weighs 178. He played with St. Augustus College in North Carolina and was voted to the 1950 Negro all-American team.

Stouffville Gains Victory Over the Petes, 7-4 In Senior "B" Puck Fray

STOUFFVILLE (Special)—Clippers kept their undefeated string intact by whipping the Petes 7-4 on Wednesday night. Defenceman Nick Bangay was the big gun for the winners with three goals and two assists. Hal Gibson counted two with singles scored by playing coach Bob Bangay and Ronnie Bell. Ted Collins was the top scorer for the Petes with two. Greenlaw tallied one and Fryia one. Stouffville jumped into the lead at 2:02 of the first period when Hal Gibson picked the top corner of the net from Nick Bangay. Collins tied it up at 11:30 from Garvey when he was left uncovered in front of the net. Nick Bangay put the Clippers in front with a bullet drive from the blueline.

EVENED IT UP

Collins tallied his second marker to even the count at 1:20 of the second frame but Ronnie Bell notched a fluke goal six minutes later to give the Clippers the lead for the third time. Greenlaw deadlocked the game from Mason at 15:40 to end the scoring in the second period.

The Petes took the lead at 6:17 of the final frame when Fryia scored from Greenlaw and Mason on a neat passing effort.

The Clippers then went wild with four successive goals. Playing coach Bob Bangay stickhandled through the centre of the Petes' defence for an unassisted goal followed by brother Nick Bangay with a sizzling shot which bounced off Harding into the twine. Both teams set a terrific pace but the Petes showed definite signs of tiring. At 14:55 Nick Bangay rapped home his third marker and Hal Gibson ended the scoring at 18:17.

Chief Pins Lou Plummer In Two Straight Falls Of Main Grapple Bout

Chief Big Heart beat rough Lou Plummer in two straight falls at the Brock Arena last night to hurry through the main bout of the pro grappling card. He won his falls in eight and 12 minutes, and hasn't lost a fall in Peterborough yet. However, he came awfully close, and actually Referee Sam Gotter had lifted Plummer's hand for the second fall, and the tall Texan had left the ring, when the referee changed his mind after a vigorous argument with the Chief's father. Gotter then yelled at Lou to return and, when he refused the referee awarded the bout to the Chief.

RAINES HELPED

The official confusion might best be explained by the fact that Lou had a fellow Texan, Dick Raines, in his corner—and Dick interfered in the final fall. With the Chief pummelling Plummer plenty in the latter's corner and setting him up for a fall, sly Dick reached through the ropes and yanked the Indian's feet from under him. Lou flopped on the prostrate Chief and Gotter rang out the count. The Indian's dad jumped in and argued hotly (with gestures) and the crowd backed him up, so Gotter saw the light.

It went 12 minutes and the 249-pound Lou was giving his 234-pound opponent what-for with fists and chokes for quite a spell, before Big Heart got heap big mad and roared back in retaliation. The Indian strongly resented the white man trying to scalp him by jerking his short hair and he once bit Plummer on the hand to show his disapproval. Meantime, his pop beat the war drum in his corner while Raines raised Cain in Lou's corner. Before the lively bout, the Chief did his war dance with bells and feathers going.

BOW-AND-ARROW

Big Heart took the first fall fairly fast with his "bow and arrow hold," yanking one of Lou's arms and one of his legs back from behind and inserting his (the Chief's) foot in the middle of his rival's back to render him "hors de combat" for sure. He softened him up first with a few jaw-breakers and knees as well as body slams, following a rough going-over Lou handed the Indian earlier. The referee missed much of the illegal stuff pulled by the Texan, both the latter and Gotter being booed by the crowd. The grapplers stayed in the ring between rounds.

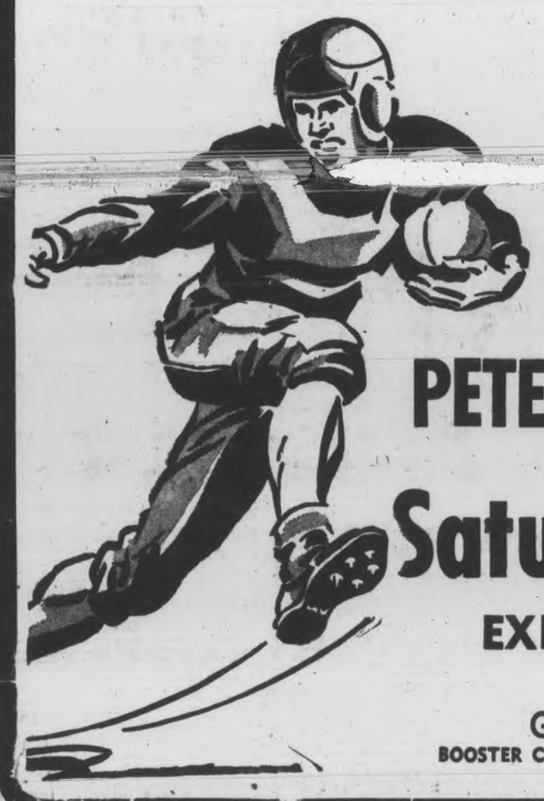
Johnny Barend and Bull Montana grappled to a semi-final draw in 30 minutes. The Bull was as rough as his oldtime namesake and was highly disliked. He used a bit of disappearing tape to rasp popular Johnny's eyes as Ref Sammy lost track of the trick. But Barend squared accounts late in the hectic scrap by tying up his opponent and keeping him in the ropes, as he strummed tunes on the strands all around the ring. The disgruntled Bull was still tied up tightly and being shaken up plenty when the bell went, and the referee was finally able to get Barend to forego his tunes and call it a bout. Montana weighed 242 and Barend 231.

DICK WON IT

The cocky Raines, at 251, downed newcomer Tony Lanza, scaling 224, in 17 minutes of the prelim with a back-breaker after a lot of softening up. They tangled outside after the bell to go right into the ringside seats. Lanza was popular and held his own for a time, twice tossing his rough rival out of the ring. Raines returned to rough it up and use the ropes for leverage, and both used closed fists in hot exchanges. Tony was warned for jumping on the prostrate Dick's arm as the fans booed the referee, who got tangled up in the speedy going a few times, too. It looked pretty even until the fall came suddenly to give the rugged Texan the win.

Caccavella Leads

M. Caccavella had high single of 355 as G. Niles led in threes with 819 this week in the Major Bowling League. U.E.W. topped teams with 3640 as Cherney's came first in single games with a 1292 roll. The 7-0 wins went to Burtol, Odeon, Plaza, Silents, Cherney's, U.E., Selkirk's, Herb's and Studebaker over Clapper, Sunshine McLeod, E & B, Crowley, Wonder, O.P.P., Revenoors and Brewers; as 5-2 victories were taken by Irwin-Godson, Edwards and Hollingsworth over Examiner, Deeth & White and Bickell.



Good scores included: R. Bassett (342) 802, Mike Caccavella 797, L. Collins (328) 785, M. Caccavella (342) 767, N. Collins 766, A. Hall 758, M. Hill 749, M. Caccavella 745, J. Goodson 744, J. Patterson 772, R. Foster 741, J. McKenzie 741, L. Hermonen 727, H. Roberts (312) 722, J. Platt 705, and a single of 311 by G. Niles.

Wally Hergesheimer Scores Four As Rangers Wallop Black Hawks 5-2

By CRAIG ARMSTRONG, Canadian Press Staff Writer

Little Wally Hergesheimer is finally finding his stride in his sophomore year in the National Hockey League. Two seasons ago he was chosen rookie of the year in the American Hockey League when his scoring punch was a big factor in Cleveland Barons winning the Calder Trophy as A.H.L. champions.

His 83 points during the regular season on 42 goals and 41 assists set a league record for a rookie. In the play-offs he scored 11 goals in 11 games to set another mark.

The next year the Winnipeg-born right winger was traded to New York Rangers and last season scored only 38 points for the Blueshirts who finished the season in fifth spot.

Last night he scored four goals to lead the tail-end Rangers to to their second victory of the season with Chicago Black Hawks bowing 5-2 in the only league action.

INTO TOP SPOT

The scoring surge took Wally into a second-place tie with Gordon Howe of Detroit and Max Bentley of Toronto in the league scoring race with 15 points. His four goals gave him a one-goal lead in the goal-scoring department with a total of 10. Bentley is second with nine.

The smallest crowd of the season —5,130—turned out and saw a bruising contest with frequent fights and high sticking. The only other New York victory this season was against Detroit Red Wings Oct. 29.

Tempers flared shortly after Hergesheimer scored his fourth goal early in the third period. Hy Buller New York defenceman, and Chicago's Cal Gardner came to blows. While they were in the penalty box, Fred Glover of the Hawks tripped Ranger goalie Lorne Worsley. They started to swing sticks when Ranger defenceman Allan Stanley tangled with Glover. Both received minor and major penalties. Then during the last minute of play, Ed Kullman of New York high-sticked defenceman Gus Mortson, drawing blood.

RONTY GETS ONE

Paul Ronty notched New York's other tally and assisted Hergesheimer on two. Jim McFadden and Gus Bodnar scored Chicago's goals.

The league standings are almost sure to be shuffled tonight. Only one point separates the top five teams. Second-place Toronto meets the league-leading Canadiens in Montreal; New York and Chicago resume their feud in the Windy City, and fourth-place Boston tangles with the fifth-place Red Wings in Detroit.

Brantford Edge Sarnia 4-3, On Victory Surge

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

Brantford Redmen are real comers in the Ontario Hockey Association Senior A race.

They hit their stride this week and trounced two of the league leaders, Chatham Maroons and Sarnia Sailors. Sarnia was last night's victim 4-3 as the Redmen visited the oil city.

While the Sailors moved into fifth place in the league Owen Sound Mercurys battled the league-leading Stratford Indians to a 4-4 tie in Stratford. The single point moved Owen Sound into a second-place tie with Sarnia and gave Stratford a two-point lead.

INDIANS WIN AGAIN

In the Northern Ontario Hockey Association Senior southern group Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., Indians continued a trend they started Tuesday night in Sudbury by trouncing North Bay Trappers 5-1. The Trappers are tied with Sudbury Wolves for first place but the Indians have beaten both clubs this week. The win puts the Indians within one point of the top of the league.

Harry Kazarian's third-period goal for Owen Sound gave the Mercurys a tie that lasted through a scoreless overtime period. Other goals for the Mercurys went to Tommy Burlington, Jack Ingoldsby and Buck Forslund. Mickey Roth scored two for Owen Sound with singles tallied by Dinny Flanagan and Bill Walsh.

SHILL REDMEN'S HERO

Bill Shill was the big hero for Brantford. With his club a man short in the third period he got away to score the winning goal. Others were by Sam Kennedy, who notched two, and Don Oberholtzer. Skippy Frazell scored twice in the first for Sarnia, Jim Wilson adding another.

Bob Mitchell in the Sault nets missed a shutout by just 10 seconds when Don Hogan scored the only North Bay goal. The rampaging Indians spread their goals evenly among Dean McBride, Johnny Horeck, Ron Rubie, Gord Kerr and Laurie Peterson.

Sarnia travels to Stratford and Kitchener goes to Chatham for O.H.A. senior games tonight while Sault Ste. Marie, Ont., Greyhounds visit Sudbury Wolves in the N.O.H.A.

Edmonton Blows Top Over Victorious Esks

EDMONTON (CP) — Edmonton blew its top last night. More than 5000 fans greeted the inspired Edmonton Eskimos who came up off the ground to win the best-of-three western football finals against the Blue Bombers at Winnipeg Remembrance Day

The whoopin' hollerin' fans literally mobbed the triumphant Eskimos. The homecoming was unequalled in Edmonton sports history.

"This crowd overwhelms me," quarterback Claude Arnold said. "We had some big turnouts at homecomings back in Oklahoma, but I've never seen anything like this."

THERE'S THE STICK, AB—A Lakefield player's hockey stick flies through the air (lower photo) seconds after it had been used to trip Havelock's Ab Carravaggie in the second game of the T.V.L. Wednesday night doubleheader. In spite of the trip, Ab scored and helped Havelock to edge Lakefield 7-6. In the first game Norwood romped through Hastings 7-4. Former Eagle, Joe Rochetta (top photo) flips the puck into Hastings goalie's (Dobson) pads; Dobson saved the Hastings team from a severe beating with numerous good stops.—(Examiner Staff Photos).

Havelock And Norwood Get Pre-Season Wins In Lively T.V.L. Action

Trent Valley Hockey League teams continued their pre-season series with another twin set at Civic Arena Wednesday night, before a larger crowd of spectators than witnessed the opening duels. Havelock took a victory with a fairly convincing win over Jack Jopling's scrappy Lakefield Indians; while Norwood edged Sheeny Stevenson's fiery band from Hastings, with a last ditch rally in the third to nose out a 7-6 verdict. Both battles were replete with thrills of every description for early-season play; and the nightcap proved a hair-raiser with the home crew rattling home four sparkling tallies in the final frame to snatch victory from seeming defeat. The Have's have two wins; Norwood and Lakefield one and one, whereas Hastings has yet to taste victory. But they'll be battling as the series continues apace next week.

OPENED SCORING

Bert Hill opened the scoring at the 13-minute mark in the first period after some hectic play both ways when he combined with Bill Crowley on a fast thrust to the left side of the net, and Bert found a small hole. The two former Legion stars, repeated the dose at the 18-minute mark, on a pretty play as Norwood pressed in and the blond trickster Hill, circled the net, missed, then recovered to whisk the puck into the short side.

Seconds later, Crowley beat Joe Dobson at the goal mouth with the help of Hill and large Moon Wootton, whose improved defence play has enthused even his best friends.

The second frame showed Norwood holding its own against a much stronger Hastings squad as the latter's defence held well and the fast-skating Stevenson crew put up a strong counter attack. Joe Rochetta from Tompkins opened early for the homesters, but after 15 minutes of sizzling two-way action Jimmy Morrow, the erstwhile Oddfellow Comet of the Wyatt-West-Morrow top line scored a beauty for the visitors. He broke to outskate his rivals from his own blue line and parked the disc behind Bill Edgar.

The final frame proved best of all as play reached its highest tempo and each team tallied thrice. Ab Buckton, another former Oddfellow star, clicked solo at 1:20, then Web Blake from Stevenson on neat combination offset this one midway in the frame. Hill from Crowley 20 seconds later and Stewart from Hill near the three-quarter mark, indicated a fair edge for the Creighton band. Hastings finished strong, however, as Lorne Simpson from Locke, and Stevenson from star Bergen Payne late in the frame scored to make it reasonably close. All players gave their best in a fiery struggle.

CLOSE ENOUGH

The nightcap lived up to promise as two staunch rivals really tried to shave the other. A fairly even first period saw Havelock take the lead, lose it, then regain it to earn a 3-2 edge in the scoring. Lang opened on a fine effort with Delahaye and Sloan, then Tom Birch equalized from Henry, four minutes later, midway in the stanza. Herb Knox put the Jopling band one up on a neat Wasson pass as the three-quarter mark approached and play reached a fever pitch. Lorne Eakins scored in less than two minutes for Havelock and seconds later, Ab Caravaggie, who played a fine game with Eakins and all the rest, got his first goal of the night to give the eastern boys the lead.

The second frame proved Lakefield's best and the Redmen opened up to confuse their opponents with 20 minutes of never-let-up hockey. Indians scored four goals in all from the sticks of Knox, Lonsberry, Gord Henry and Cam Wasson, with Doug Hunter, Aubrey Morrison, lending a useful hand and their mates hitting on all six. The Harris boys tried hard but despite it all were unable to score as Indians took honors for the frame.

THINGS CHANGED

In the final period however, the scene completely changed and it was the Harrismen upon whom Dame Fortune smiled so benevolently. Four sparkling markers from the sticks of Ab Caravaggie twice, Alfie Griffin from Laing, and the latter from Griffin, in the dying seconds — the winner — brought the fans to their feet in as dazzling a finish as one could wish to see. It was a close, hard fought game throughout with little, if anything, to choose between them.

On the play, all goaltenders deserved special mention, and every man on each team gave his best. The games were essentially clean and were well-handled by officials, W. (Bill) Flint and C. Puffer.

Frick Gives Rivera Indefinite Probation

NEW YORK (AP)—Baseball Commissioner Ford Frick yesterday ordered Jim Rivera placed on indefinite probation and said that one more slip by the Chicago White Sox outfielder would result in his expulsion from baseball.

Frick, who intimated the penalty imposed upon Rivera was lenient, said the player will be permitted to play with the White Sox but ordered the Chicago club to report to his office any incident of misbehavior on or off the playing field in which Rivera is involved

Making it clear that he considered Rivera guilty "of a certain type of moral delinquency" despite his exoneration by an Illinois grand jury on a charge of rape last month, the commissioner prohibited the White Sox from transferring R vera's contract for a period of one year and placed the burden of responsibility for his conduct on the club.

Joan Fontaine's Wedding Starts Like Slapstick Movie

SAN JOSE, Calif. (AP) — Actress Joan Fontaine's third marriage began like something out of a slapstick movie script — a lost trousseau, a misplaced wedding licence, a missed train, a missed plane and many madly-dashing taxicabs and private cars.

But as in all good scripts, every one was happy.

It went like this:

The 35-year-old actress and Collier Young, 44-year-old film producer, planned to marry quietly at nearby Saratoga.

But when they arrived yesterday from Hollywood they learned that their baggage had missed their plane.

In the luggage was Miss Fontaine's wedding outfit and the marriage licence.

The luggage was placed aboard two other northbound planes.

Taxicabs took it from San Francisco airport 40 miles to Saratoga.

The newly-weds raced 60 miles by car to Oakland to board a train for Chicago. But the train, held 10 minutes for them, had gone.

United Air Lines gave them space on a plane for Reno, where they could board the train.

A 20-mile dash by car to San Francisco airport brought more bad news:

The plane had left. U. A. L. had expected them to board it at Oakland airport.

With that, Mr. and Mrs. Young gave up — overnight. They made reservations to board a plane tonight for Chicago.

Miss Fontaine, sister of actress Olivia de Haviland, formerly was wed to actor Brian Aherne and later to producer William Dozier. Young once was married to actress Ida Lupino.

AITA Establishes Aviation Hall Of Fame

SEIGNIORY CLUB, Que. (CP) —Canada's early aviation history and the men who made it will be honored by the establishment of a Canadian aviation hall of fame.

This was announced last night at the closing session of the Air Industries and Transport Association which decided that the man around whom present plans should revolve is Production Minister Howe.

Mr. Howe was honored as the No. 1 man in formulation of policies which have brought Canadian aviation to its present peak. He was presented with a bronze bust of himself which will be placed in the hall of fame, most likely choice for which is Montreal's International Aviation Building.

Plans for furnishing the hall of fame are not yet complete but it is expected that the "Silver Dart," Canadian-built aircraft and first heavier-than-air craft to take to the air in the British Empire, shortly after the turn of the century, will be there.

The Silver Dart now is in a museum at Baddeck, N.S.

The 18th annual meeting chose as President C. H. (Punch) Dickens, 53, one of the most colorful figures in Canadian aviation and sales director of De Havilland-Aircraft of Canada, Toronto.

Mr. Dickens flew to fame in the late 1920s when he pioneered air routes over the Canadian Arctic.

4880 MILE COAST

Brazil, largest country in South America, has an Atlantic coastline of 4,880 miles.

MUTUAL ADMIRATION—World champion Jacqueline Du Bief, of France, and Montreal's champion scorer Maurice Richard recently expressed admiration for each other's ice prowess. "Jackie" is presenting the Rocket with a pair of gold figure skate book ends. Jacqueline accused Olympic judges of being corrupt and added that she won because they hoped she'd turn pro and cease being so outspoken. She turned pro by joining the Ice Capades but obviously her remarks are still pointed.

RURAL HOCKEY MEETING

GALT (CP)—G. R. Stewart of Barrie yesterday was re-elected president of the Ontario Rural Hockey Association at the organization's 22nd annual meeting.

Other officers elected: first vice-president, Ross Fewster, Ingersoll; second vice-president, J. G Feasby Kitchener; third vice-president, Don Beer, Brougham; secretary-treasurer, H. D. Ovenden, Wainfleet. Executive members: Jos. Steen, Erin; O. J. Hardwicke, Bolton, and E. V. Mehlenbacher, Cayuga.

Secretary Horace Overden reported last season had been the most successful yet with 152 teams entered in the organization, with an enrolment of 2,100 players. The league now extended from Amherstburg in the west to Peterborough in the east, Haliburton in the north and Ridgeway in the south.

GLOBETROTTERS WIN

HAMILTON (CP) — Harlem Globetrotters displayed their amazing basketball talents last night with the aid of Tillsonburg Livingstons, Canadian Champions. The Globetrotters won the exhibition 71-64. Tillsonburg displayed considerable skill in ball handling and proved game competitors for the razzle-dazzle organization from New York.

3 IN BONSPIEL FINAL

GALT (CP)—The Early Bird Bonspiel continued yesterday with three rinks qualifying for today's final. R. J. Carson's Galt rink qualified for a try at the J. G. Little trophy by disposing of J. Howard's Fergus Rink, W. Barclay of Hamilton and Dr. J. Senn of Hamilton. G. McIntyre of Guelph and W. Draper of St. Thomas are the other two finalists.

LEADS SCORING RACE

SEATTLE (CP)—Ian Mackintosh of Vancouver Canucks scored only three points last week to hold a precarious lead in the Western Hockey League scoring race. League statistics show Mackintosh has 13 goals and 10 assists for 23 points for games up to and including last Sunday. Saskatoon's George Senick is second with 22.

✦ ✦ ✦

OLIVER IN LEAD

MELBOURNE, Australia (AP)—Ed Oliver of Lemont, Ill., shot a four-under-par 69 yesterday to take a stroke lead in the first round of the 72-hole Melbourne division of the Ampol golf tournament. Norman Von Nida, Australian open champion, Lloyd Mangrum of Niles, Ill., and Eric Wishart, an Australian amateur, fired 70s.

✦ ✦ ✦

LICENCE REVOKED

COLUMBUS, O. (AP)—The U.S. Trotting Association yesterday revoked the membership and driver's licence of Clifford L. Burgett, 31, of Batavia, N.Y., a trainer and driver of harness horses. The revocation, ordered by U.S.T.A. President Lawrence B. Sheppard, has the effect of ending Burgett's racing career. Sheppard said Burgett concealed a prior criminal record when he applied for a driver's licence.

✦ ✦ ✦

TEXANS FOLD

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—The Dallas franchise in professional football folded yesterday in the wake of losses that ran to almost $25,000 with the season a little more than half finished. President Giles Miller of the Texans, a club that came to Dallas last winter as the first major league professional football franchise in the state, announced the franchise was being turned back to the National Football League.

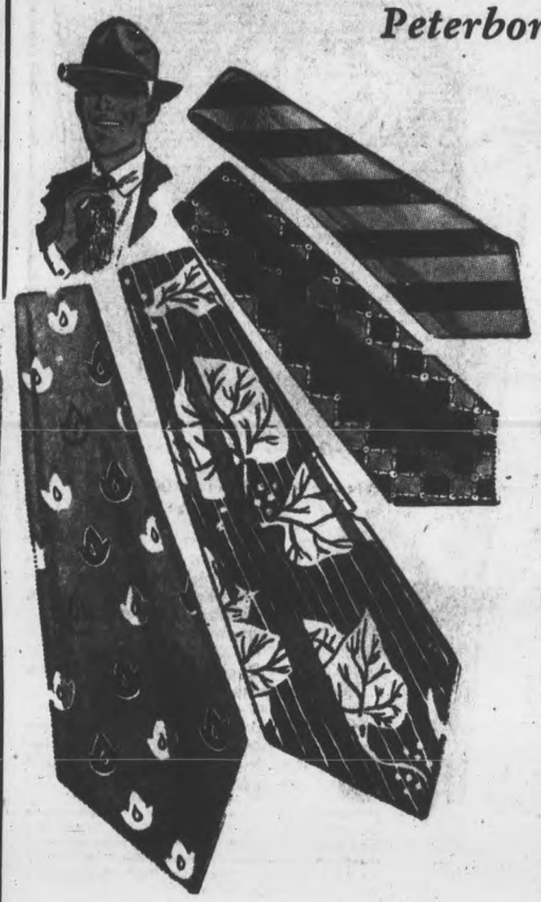
Pat Egan Suspended For Cleveland Brawl

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Pat Egan, defenceman for Providence Reds, yesterday was suspended for the balance of the 1952-53 season for his part in a recent brawl at Cleveland.

Emory Jones, president of the American Hockey League, said the suspension will include the playoffs.

Egan was indefinitely suspended by Jones last Wednesday for taking part in the Nov. 1 brawl during which he was accused of assaulting the two linesmen.

In Providence, President Luis Pieri of the Reds said he would "take such steps as I deem necessary to protect the interests of Pat Egan and the Providence Hockey Club."



Said Egan: "I'm dumbfounded."

Perfect Whist Hand

FAKENHAM, England (AP)—A perfect whist hand—a complete suit for all four players—was dealt at a local whist drive last night. Experts calculated the odds against this were 2,235,197,406,895,366,301,560,000 to 1. Five such perfect hands have been reported dealt at whist or bridge in the last 23 years.

Prince Charles' Birthday Has Canadian Flavor

By MURIEL NARRAWAY

LONDON (CP)—Prince Charles is four years old Friday, and his birthday celebrations seem sure to have a strong Canadian flavor.

The sturdy, active young heir to the throne has been "talking" Canada ever since his parents returned from last year's royal tour. His favorite toy is a radio-controlled automobile set presented by Windsor, Ont.

Charles gets such a kick out of this, officials at Buckingham Palace said, that it's unlikely any birthday gift will oust it from favor. He has a "real boy's" love of mechanical gadgets.

The fair-haired prince knows as much about Canada as if he'd been there in person. His knowledge comes from repeated showings of films taken by the Queen and the Duke of Edinburgh, plus countless stories told to illustrate still photographs. One of his favorite tales is Prince Philip's account of how he and "mummy" drove a Canadian train.

Charles' first thought Friday may be for the tricycle and monkey that are among his birthday requests. Ever since he saw the chimpanzees at London's Regent's Park Zoo, Charles has been coaxing his parents to set up a cage for a "funny monkey" in his own sandpit in the palace gardens.

Queen Mary's gift is expected to be a "talking" book picturing animals, birds and trees with a text recorded on gramophone discs. The prince already has his own record player.

S. Africa Police Jail 160 In Riot Site Raids

CAPETOWN, South Africa (Reuters)—Police arrested a total of 160 persons yesterday in raids on African districts of Kimberley and East London where 22 persons died in week-end racial riots.

One hundred persons were picked up in a house-to-house search in Kimberley, where police also seized hundreds of weapons. There were no firearms in the haul.

Sixty non-whites, including some women, were arrested in East London in connection with the slaying of two white persons, one of them a Roman Catholic medical nun, and the firing of buildings in riots Sunday night.

Police blamed the burning early yesterday of an Anglican church in the East London riot area on "young African hooligans."

DRY WELL—Daniel McLeod, of Dorchester, near London, Ont., stands at the bottom of his 20-foot well which contains only six inches of water. Lack of rain has caused severe hardship among farmers of the district where creeks and wells are going dry.

Springville YPU Have Presbytery Group As Guests

SPRINGVILLE (ENS). — Six young people of the Peterborough Presbytery were guests of the Springville Young People's Union at their meeting on Sunday evening at the home of Hazel McIntosh.

The visitors, who are planning to visit every Union in the Presbytery, took charge of the program. Mr. William Piercey led in a service of song. Miss Doris Stockdale had charge of the worship period. She gave a talk on the need for missions, and led in prayer.

Mr. Ronald Davis read the scripture, then Mrs. Ronald Davis with the aid of a large map of Africa and pictures, presented a graphic account of Africa before and after Christianity.

SCRIPTURE CONTEST

A period of recreation followed with Mr. and Mrs. C. Maclaggen in charge. The group was divided into four smaller groups and a contest was arranged for speed in finding selected portions of scripture. Bible names provided a second game. Bryce Larke expressed appreciation of the visitors and their program. Howard Johnston thanked the hostess and her parents for their home. The serving of refreshments brought the evening to a close. Eleanor Bowles reminded the group of "The United Church Exposition" in Peterborough.

The Farm Forum met on Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Dunford.

Sunday guests of Mr. and Mrs. G. McIntosh were Mr and Mrs. John Knox, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Webster and Mr. Franklin Webster of Norwood and Mr. and Mrs. Ira Robson of Highway 28.

A total of 118,970 acres of tobacco was harvested in Canada in 1951.

No Haircut Until GOP Won, Gets Clipped

CLAY, W.VA. (AP) — Uncle Vincent Hamrick, 83, has had his first haircut in eight years — a Republican clip, he called it.

Uncle Vincent vowed when Governor Thomas E. Dewey lost in 1944 he'd never go to a barber again until the Republicans regained the White House.

So there was quite a ceremony yesterday in Uncle Vincent's lumber yard. Cousin Abner Hamrick, a barber, wielded the shears.

Reject Beverage Rooms

CARLETON PLACE (CP)—This Ottawa Valley town yesterday voted against establishment of hotel beverage rooms and the serving of beer and wine in hotel dining rooms. The town already has a retail beer store and a government liquor store. Beverage room supporters polled less than half the votes, falling well short of the required 60 per cent of votes.

Runaway Halted

SARNIA (CP)—Packing a well-stuffed wallet and a pocketfull of road maps, a 14-year-old adventurer from Verdun, Que., was stopped here yesterday on a run-away trip to Vancouver. United States immigration authorities turned the traveller over to city police when he tried to cross the border. The lad told police he didn't like the way his dad treated him.

Appointed To Board

Ruth Parsons
Baby Counsellor
Heinz Home Institute

Dear Miss Parsons:
I would like to thank Heinz for the guidance I have received in raising my baby.
Our son Robert is just 4½ months old but my doctor says his development is more like a six months child. He was started on Heinz Cereals and now has graduated to Heinz Strained Foods. We have you to thank for a great deal of his rapid progress.
Like many other new mothers I had it the vaguest idea about raising and feeding a new infant but your informative literature has made meal time a happy occasion in our house. Happy healthy babies are a blessing to the home and a constant joy to their parents

When Canadian women are downright pleased with a product they have a gracious custom of saying "thank you" to the maker. That is why Heinz receives so many hundreds of letters from mothers across the country—letters like the one shown here, full of sincere, unsolicited praise for Heinz Baby Foods.

And it's no wonder babies thrive on Heinz Baby Foods. Such an abundance of thought and care and skill goes into their preparation ... and such a heap of good, good food.

Feed your baby digestible, natural-flavour Heinz Pre-Cooked Cereals, now available in both 4-oz. and 8-oz. packages. Later Heinz Strained Baby Foods and Junior Foods will help the pounds pile up.

SPECIAL OFFER:—New Baby Tumbler, an attractive plastic spillproof cup specially designed for babies. Regular 49c value for only 25c and six labels from any Heinz Baby Food or 3 Heinz Cereal labels. Available in Pink or Blue. Write H. J. Heinz Company of Canada Ltd., Dept. S.P., Leamington, Ontario. State colour desired.

Murray Funeral Takes Place Near Coal Mines

PITTSBURGH (AP) — The late Philip Murray, who won the title of labor's statesman while bringing the C. I. O. to its greatest strength, goes to his final resting place today near the soft-coal fields where he began his life's work.

The funeral of the C. I. O president brought labor leaders from many parts of the country to this industrial stronghold to pay their final respects to the onetime immigrant boy who became the friend of U. S. presidents.

One of the honorary pallbearers was James C. Nicholson of Sydney, N. S., director of local 1064 of the United Steelworkers of America (C. I. O.-C. C. L.). He was a close friend of Murray.

Murray's death Sunday in a San Francisco hotel room caused a delay in the C. I. O.'s plans to open its convention in Los Angeles next Monday.

C. I. O. vice-presidents who conferred with Allan S. Haywood, C. I. O. executive vice-president, here Wednesday decided to delay the start of the convention until Dec. 1 and move it from Los Angeles to Atlantic City.

Their decision will come before the C. I. O. executive board here Friday for approval. Ratification is considered a mere formality.

A union spokesman said the convention site was changed to Atlantic City because most of the organization's key personnel are in the east attending Murray's funeral.

Since Murray also was president of the United Steelworkers (C.I.O.) that union also must name a new president. The U. S. W. has called its 36-member executive board to a Pittsburgh session Saturday to outline procedure. U. S. W Secretary-Treasurer David J. McDonald is regarded as a likely choice for president.

Haywood and Walter P. Reuther, a C. I. O. vice-president and head of the United Auto Workers, are considered most probable candidates for the C. I. O. presidency.

St. Andrew's W.A. Holds Meeting

LAKEFIELD (ENS)— Mrs. B. McCoy was hostess to members of the Women's Association of St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church at her home on Tuesday evening. The president, Mrs. E. Turk, led in the devotional period and also presided for the business.

The main item on the agenda was the plans for the Bazaar and afternoon tea to be held on November 21st in the church basement. Conveners were chosen for the various booths. Candy, home cooking, Christmas gifts, aprons and novelties will be for sale.

Refreshments were served by the hostess and the remainder of the evening was spent in quilting.

Potash Deposits In Saskatchewan

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A new phase in Prairie agriculture has opened with the discovery and development of valuable potash deposits near the Saskatchewan centres of Vera and Unity, about 150 miles northwest of Saskatoon.

Potash — actually potassium chloride — is one of the world's most important mineral fertilizers and is rarely found in commercial quantity and concentration.

Besides the Saskatchewan deposit there is only one important one in the Western Hemisphere, at Carisbad, New Mexico. The only other known large deposit in the world is in Germany's Stassfurt basin.

SIZE UNKNOWN

The full extent of the Vera-Unity deposit has not yet been determined, but exploratory drilling indicates it might extend over an area of 250 square miles in varying thicknesses up to 11 feet. The ore is known as sylvinite and contains a high concentration of potassium chloride, a readily soluble salt.

Western Potash Corp. Ltd., has already spent about $1,000,000 on exploratory drilling with a view to commercial development. A shaft has been sunk to a depth of 3,450 feet.

Two methods of recovering the potash can be used. One is the "brine" method in which the potassium chloride is dissolved in water and the solution pumped to the surface where the mineral is recovered by evaporation of the water. The other method is orthodox mining operations.

A ready market is waiting for the potash. At the present time Canada produces scarcely any mineral potash and imports almost $4,000,000 worth a year from the United States and Europe.

Marmora Legion Gives Past President Badge

MARMORA (ENS).—A social evening was held by Marmora Branch No. 237 Canadian Legion in the Legion hall on Tuesday. In addition to Legionnaires attending, it was also open to members of the Ladies' Auxiliary and a few guests.

A past president's badge was presented to Comrade Clayton Bedore and a Past President's Badge to Mrs. Lucille Bedore of the Ladies' Auxiliary. The presentations were made by Major Percy Gray. The evening was spent in euchre. Lunch was served by the Ladies' Auxiliary.

Hydro Plant Supplies Power To Yukon Mines

OTTAWA (CP)—Permanent light and electric power is being supplied mines and communities in the Yukon, 200 miles south of the arctic circle.

The resources department said yesterday that a hydro plant near Mayo has been opened, bringing light and electricity to the frontier settlements of Mayo Landing, Galeno and Keno Hill, about 215 miles north of Whitehorse. Previously light and power came from costly diesel generating plants at the mines. Homes mostly used oil lamps for light.

Power is supplied to lead, zinc and silver mines in the sub-arctic communities where a few hundred miners, prospectors and trappers live.

John Wayne Top Actor Leaving Republic Studio

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP — The long and successful association of John Wayne and Republic Studios apparently has hit the rocks.

The Duke, top man at the box office for the last two years, indicates that he has come to an impasse with his old friend and boss, Herbert J. Yates, head of Republic.

"Yates will have to make me a darned good offer to get me to make another picture with him," says Wayne. "I'm fed up."

He added that his difficulties with Yates arose over the proposed filming of "The Alamo," a story of Texas' fight for independence. The picture was originally scheduled to be made under the banner of Wayne's own production company for Republic release.

"Yates said that I should give up my company and make the picture for Republic," said the Duke. "He said I owed it to Republic. I don't owe Republic anything. I've made a lot of money for the studio. . ."

The location site is another sore point with Wayne. He claims that Yates told Texans the film would be shot in their state.

"But it would have cost $1,000,000 more to shoot it in Texas, instead of Latin America," said Wayne. "So when plans were changed, the Texans got up in arms. Yates sent me down there to square things, which I did. Then I found a Panama location myself."

The rift follows a familiar pattern. Yates also had breakups with Gene Autry and Roy Rogers, who were successively his top cowboy stars.

"But there's a difference," commented Wayne. "Yates built Autry and Rogers into stars. He didn't make me a star."

Asked for rebuttal, Yates said: "At no time have I, as president of Republic, attempted to take any credit for Duke's success; however what Republic has spent in publicizing and establishing his name throughout the world must have been a contributing factor to his success. . .And the box office quality of these pictures must also have been a major factor in influencing those who rated him the No 1 star of our industry. . ."

6,000 Chrysler Men Walk Out In Protest

DETROIT (CP)—Six thousand Chrysler Corporation employees were idle yesterday as the result of a disciplinary layoff involving 9 men, a company spokesman said.

The 49 were sent home Tuesday without pay because they walked out when one man refused to join their union, local 490, United Auto Workers (C.I.O.), he said.

The 49 set up a picket line around the corporation's Highland Park manufacturing plant yesterday excluding 2,000 men from work. An additional 4,000 were sent home from the Dodge truck plant because of a resulting parts shortage.

Refuse Settlement In Detroit Walkout

DETROIT (AP)—Union leaders in the three-week strike against Detroit Edison Co. refused last night to sign a formal settlement because seven strikers had been disciplined.

Thus the walkout continued and Edison put off indefinitely its back-to-work schedules.

Negotiators had reached agreement Saturday night on a new contract calling for a 14-cent hourly package wage increase. Members of the C.I.O. utility workers of America ratified it Monday

Then yesterday Edison fired five employees and suspended the other two. It charged them with "destructive acts" during the strike.

Obituary

MRS. WALLACE PATTERSON

Mrs. Wallace Patterson, the former Matilda Ellen (Helen) Staples, died recently in Seattle in her 84th year.

She was born in Burliegh township, daughter of John Staples and Jessie Swinston, both deceased. She lived her early life in the township. Later she moved to Dawson City and lived there for some years before settling in Seattle.

Her husband predeceased her. She is survived by two brothers and three sisters: William and Thomas of Apsley, Mrs. Edgar Warling (Janet) of Toronto; Mrs. Thomas Parsell (Mary) of Victoria, B.C., and Mrs. Charles Wooll (Effie) of Peterborough.

Burial took place in Seattle.

Child Strangled

GUELPH (CP)—William Furzer, 10-month-old son of Mr. and Mrs. William Furzer, was found dead in his carriage yesterday. Police said he died of strangulation. His father, W. Furzer, night watchman at a manufacturing plant, was sleeping nearby.

Rob Driver

TORONTO (CP)—Two bandits, one armed, yesterday stole $1,200 from a Canada Packers driver shortly after he delivered a parcel of meat to a west-end restaurant. The driver, Sam Smith, 38, said they missed some silver and a number of cheques.

48 Navigators Get Wings At Winnipeg

WINNIPEG (CP) — Forty-eight air crew trainees from Canada, the United Kingdom, Belgium and France are to receive navigators' badges at R.C.A.F. station Winnipeg today.

Ontario graduates include.

Flight cadets W. S. Neilson, Walkerville; L. T. Perry, Deep River and K. J. Judd, Sudbury.

Three-Mile Jam

TORONTO (CP) — One of the worst traffic jams of the year stretched along the Lake Shore road for 2½ miles west of the Humber bridge at Toronto's western outskirts today after a heavy transport truck overturned. The truck and its load of nine tons of beaverboard blocked the highway and held up traffic both ways for more than two hours.

Locks Prevent Help

TORONTO (CP)—A pain-crazed woman, her hair and clothes on fire, tried to escape from her burning home in suburban North York yesterday while a neighbor who was unable to get through the locked doors watched through a window. Mrs. Margaret Fraser, 42, finally was able to unlock the back door and she collapsed over a porch railing. Taken to hospital, her condition was said to be critical.

Suggests It Dissolve

TORONTO (CP) — Attorney-General Porter has suggested to the East Windsor Hospital Association that it might be a good idea to dissolve itself at once. In a letter to Association President J. E. McKeon, he advises organizing a new corporation, as suggested last week in a Royal Commission report on investigation into the hospital's affairs.

Steal Store Safe

WINDSOR, Ont. (CP)—While two witnesses looked on, thieves last night stole a 300-pound safe from the brightly-lighted windows of Hodkinson's appliance store on Windsor's southern outskirts, police said. Anne and Lou Nadin, 18 and 25, brother and sister who were passing the store, saw two men carry out the safe, put it in an automobile and drive away. They called police.

Swindle Simple Says Newspaper

TORONTO (CP) — Simplicity was the keynote of "the $250,000 swindle of the Bank of Nova Scotia," the Globe and Mail says today.

In a newspage story, the newspaper gives this account:

"Three men, sponsors of a stock company, recently launched a new mining issue and succeeded in manipulating it upward in a small boom. While the stock was fluctuating in the high pennies—its top was 60 cents—the trio approached the Bank of Nova Scotia which handled their account.

"The promoters produced forged stock figures showing the value of the new issue to be 90 cents to $1. (Its current value is 25 cents a share.)

"Apparently the bank officials saw no reason to doubt the statement. And so using the fake evaluation as collateral, they obtained a cash loan of $250,000, the money being in the form of certified cheques.

"The promoters left town a couple of days ago."

C. S. Frost, general manager of the bank, had no comment.

Sarnia Native Dies

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Mrs. E. Franklin Pollard died in hospital here last night in her 49th year. Born in Sarnia, her husband is district manager of Imperial Oil, Ltd. here. She had resided in Sarnia, Windsor, Ottawa and Toronto. Charles Galloway of Sarnia is a brother.

Loses Tobacco Crop

SIMCOE (CP)—Fire of unknown origin destroyed the 1952 tobacco crop and large pack barn of Victor Duwyn, Simcoe district, last night in Charlotteville township 15 miles west of here. Total loss was estimated at $30,000 partially covered by insurance.

Named Candidate

HAMILTON — (CP) — Alderman Russell Reinke was selected Liberal candidate for the new federal riding of Hamilton South at a nomination meeting last night.

RCAF Pilot Unhurt As Mustang Crashes

WINNIPEG (CP)—An R.C.A.F. Mustang fighter aircraft on a flight from Calgary to Trenton, Ont., crashed at Armstrong, Ont., yesterday, R.C.A.F. headquarters here reported.

The pilot, FO. W. E. Bell, was not injured, but the craft was badly damaged.

It was believed the plane overshot the runway on a landing and crashed into nearby railroad tracks.

No Tax Cuts Now

CHATHAM (CP)—Finance Minister Abbott, addressing Chatham service club members last night, said he does not contemplate any immediate substantial change in international tensions. He said this situation means Canada can expect a budget of $4,250,000,000 to $4,500,000,000 and that means no immediate tax reductions.

Expect Eisenhower Plan For Solving Iran Problem

WASHINGTON (AP)—State department officials are expected to confer with President-elect Eisenhower or his representatives next week on a new formula for solving the Iranian problem.

It is understood the new approach is a subject for discussion between State Secretary Dean Acheson and Foreign Secretary Eden of Britain in their talks in New York.

The central idea of the formula seems designed to get Iranian oil flowing out and money for it flowing in again as soon as possible—without final settlement of the dispute between Iran and Britain over nationalization of Iran's oil industry.

FEAR COLLAPSE

State department authorities feel that the longer the present impasse continues—and various Iranian agencies like the army and civil service go unpaid—the greater becomes the danger of a collapse of civil authority and the rise of Communist power in the strategic Middle East country.

In the east these authorities have worked on the theory that a legal settlement of the Anglo-Iranian dispute, critical since Iran seized British-owned oil properties there last year, should logically precede or be a part of any settlement reviving the oil industry under Iranian control. But the new approach would relegate legal settlement to a lesser priority.

Eisenhower will have a chance to hear about this plan when he meets with President Truman next Tuesday to prepare for an orderly change of administrations. Eisenhower has designated Senator Henry Cabot Lodge (Rep. Mass.) as his state department liaison man.

Despite appeals from Prime Minister Churchill and President Truman, Iranian Premier Mossadegh has failed to agree to any settlement formula thus far put forward. Mossadegh last month broke relations with the British government, wrecking plans in progress up to that time and somewhat deepening the dispute.

For the proposal to succeed, Britain would have to agree to let oil begin moving out of Iran to world markets again without having final agreement on the amount of compensation Iran should pay for the nationalized properties.

UNION BATTLE—Members of two opposing unions mill about the plant at Hamilton Cottons Company where violence flared in a union jurisdictional dispute. Following a six-week strike at the plant, some 220 returning workers, members of the Textile Workers Union of America (C.I.O.), were escorted by police as they forced a way through a picket line set up by about 200 supporters of the United Textile Workers Union of America (A.F.L.). Several persons were roughed up and stones were thrown. Two pickets, including Vern Mustard, organizer for the A.F.L. union, were arrested during the fracas.

Springville Mission Band Holds Meeting

SPRINGVILLE (ENS) — The monthly meeting of the Springville Mission Band was held on Saturday afternoon at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Carman Seymour. Special features of the meeting were the collection of used toys for Nelson House, and plans were made for the Christmas Party meeting on December 13, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Northey. At this meeting there will be an interchange of Christmas gifts.

The worship period opened with a litany for the home, scripture readings by Keith Johnston, Lynda Northey, Karen Dunford and Nelson Northey. Mrs. Clifford Johnston had charge of the Meditation period and Donna Northey led in prayer.

Mrs. Manson Cathcart told the children the story of the first chapter of the new study book "Nyanza's Two Villages" and Lynda Northey gave a temperance report. The meeting closed with lunch.

time to  relax

Model 1054C
By MOFFAT

In mid-afternoon, with supper to think of, busy Canadian homemakers can relax . . . take time out to read a good book—enjoy favorite radio programs or visit neighbors. Whatever your favorite relaxation may be, the answer to your dream of "time to spare", is the cooking magic of a new Moffat automatic electric range.

Think of it! You just pop your meal in the oven, set the controls and forget it. The oven turns on and off automatically at the chosen time. At the time you select, your food will be cooked to perfection and ready to serve piping hot.

This means many hours of oven-peeking and clock-watching saved every day.

Naturally, your time is worth money. A worker's wage of a dollar an hour should be a conservative estimate of the value of your time. Let's add this up—The automatic features of a new automatic Moffat will save you at least an hour a day. Let us install the automatic Moffat pictured here. Then pay us $30.00 a month—a dollar for each hour you save—and at the end of 10 months it's yours. A gleaming kitchen companion to live with and enjoy for a lifetime.

We will offer you a liberal trade-in allowance on your present range which will apply directly to the cost of the new Moffat.

But hurry! Our quota of these automatic models isn't nearly enough to go round. Drop in tomorrow to pick out the model of your choice while there is still a full line to choose from.

- Fully automatic oven controls
- Precision minute-minder
- Built-in lamp floods cooking surface with light
- Warming oven drawer

EXCEEDS OBJECTIVE

Oshawa's objective of $112,900 for its Community Chest Fund has been exceeded and all returns are not yet complete, it was reported today. Peterborough 1952 objective was $85,000.

JUDGE FROM PETERBOROUGH

E. C. J. Allday of Peterborough, Northamptonshire, England, is coming to the Royal Winter Fair, Toronto, to judge the Dual Purpose Shorthorn cattle. The judging of all classes of beef cattle, except Red Polls, is scheduled for Thursday and Friday, Nov. 21 and 22.

HOLD OPEN HOUSE

Parents of P.C.V.S. students will have the opportunity to tour the collegiate and meet the teachers next Wednesday at the annual open house. The collegiate will be open from 2 p.m. until 5 p.m. and the program will be conducted by the P.C.V.S. Home and School Association.

RESERVES JUDGMENT

Judge John de N. Kennedy has reserved judgment in a civil suit brought against Tommy Hughes of 833 Bell Ave., by Peter Vandenberg, Dummer township contractor. Evidence was heard at the trial in county court that lasted all day Wednesday. Vandenberg is asking for $728, the amount he says Hughes owes him for building Hughes' house in the winter of 1950-51. The defendant, Hughes claims that Vandenberg was working on a contract and set the cost at $1,000 which turned out to be an under-estimate.

RCAF Strength Seen At 30 Squadrons Soon

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada's air force will be 30 squadrons strong within a couple of months, three-quarters of the way to the target strength of 41 squadrons by the spring of 1954, it was indicated today.

The authoritative Canadian Magazine Aircraft, publishing its second annual review of Canada's air defences, reported that squadron strength now stands at 28 after a "startling" growth in the last 12 months.

Of the 28 existing squadrons, the magazine listed nine as regular Sabre jets, compared to two a year ago.

Settle Out Of Court

LINDSAY — (CP) — Mrs. S. ven Wortham of Fenelon Falls Wednesday received a $17,000 out-of-court settlement arising out of a truck-car crash at Cameron a year ago in which her husband was killed. Mrs. Wortham and her son were injured. She brought suit against truck driver George Bryant of Norland; Percy Gaynor, Fenelon Falls, truck owner, and Bert Rettie of Coboconk.

First Graduates Of New Course Get Certificates

Among the 207 students who will receive graduation diplomas from P.C.V.S.' academic, commercial, home economics and industrial arts courses Friday at the annual commencement exercises will be the collegiate's first graduating class of the two-year industrial course.

Two years ago the department of education introduced the new course. It is designed to encourage students who would have normally left school at Grade eight to continue their education in high school.

In the two-year course graduating class are 11 students while there are 46 from Grade 13, 156 from Grade 12 (including both academic and vocational department students).

HONOR GRADUATE

The address to the graduating class will be by Meredith Huycke, B.A. Q.C., a Toronto barrister. Mr. Huycke, a graduate of P.C.V.S., was the top student in his Grade 13 class and went on to win many scholarships while attending the University of Toronto.

The valedictory address will be by Gail Graig who was the top student in general proficiency in 1951-52's Grade 13 classes.

Of more interest to students still in the school is the selection of the head boy and head girl. These students will receive the Mrs. R. F. Downey Prize and the Local Council of Women Scholarship for the head girl, and the H. R. H. Kenner Memorial Prize and the Melville C. Robinson Memorial Prize for head boy.

Lincoln Relative Dies

DAVENPORT (AP) — David Warren Hanks, who traced a relationship to Abraham Lincoln through Nancy Hanks, Lincoln's mother, died yesterday. He was 102.

FIRE that broke out early Wednesday afternoon at the Immaculate Conception Church in Ashburnham caused about $200 damage to the boiler room. Flames burned some loose papers—used for covering seats in the church now being redecorated—and spread up a post into the ceiling where firemen had to probe into the plaster to put out the last spark. Captain Bill Sorrie is shown examining the damaged ceiling.—(Photo by Pitchford, Roy Studio)

10 Agencies Get $17,975 More From 1952 Fund

The Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund has $17,975 to pay to the 10 agencies included in the fund and $14,000 in pledged donations to come in before the 1952 campaign financial books can be closed.

T. A. MacKay, treasurer, reported at the 11th annual meeting of the organization Wednesday night that $68,412 had already been collected from the 1952 campaign. The $14,000 still to come in will bring the campaign collections to a total of $82,412.

During the past year the fund paid $78,700 to the 10 agencies. Of this total $15,000 was paid to complete 1951 allocations. And $63,700 of the $81,675 pledged to the agencies from the 1952 campaign has been paid.

USE RESERVE FUND

It is expected that the remaining $3,975 to be paid to the agencies, that will not be covered by donations still to come in, will have to come out of the organization's reserve fund. Mr. Mackay reported that there is a reserve fund of $12,571.

The following are the payments to the agencies during the year: Canadian Red Cross Society, balance of 1951, $11,000; Canadian Red Cross Society, payment on 1952, $14,000; St. Vincent's Orphanage, $3,500 Salvation Army $4,500. Y.M.-C.A. (1951 balance, $2,000, 1952, $14,000) total $16,000; Y.W.C.A. $1,000 FLOOD

LINDSAY (ENS)—Phil Albert, owner of the Artistic ladies' wear shop here, was awarded $1,000 damages and costs of $250 in a settlement Wednesday against the corporation of the town for flooding in the basement of his store. The trial of the suit came to an abrupt halt, when A. M. Fulton, town solicitor, agreed that further action was unnecessary, and Mr. Justice Anger awarded the sum in settlement of the action. In the words of his lawyer, Col. R. I. Moore, Albert, who was the principal witness in the case, "did an excellent job."

Sixty Houses Still Remain

Sixty-five of the wartime houses in the Hatton block at the west end of Charlotte St. are like the Arab's tent—they have taken wing. One of them was sectionally moving up the Downeyville-Dunsford Road Wednesday afternoon in the direction of Bobcaygeon or Lindsay.

Sixty-five are gone, and 60 are left on the housing area, still occupied. Distribution is indicated as follows: Bailieboro, Erin, Camborne, Trenton, Cannington Bethany, Newtonville, Cobourg, Coldsprings, Port Hope, Belleville, Norwood, Kitchener, Waterloo, Oshawa, Lindsay, Omemee, Brighton, Gore's Landing.

Central Mortgage sells the story and a half house at $550, and the smaller house at $500. Purchasers make their own arrangements for removal.

Normal Students Off On Trip To Toronto

Peterborough Normal School students will be combining business with pleasure on Friday when they will hold their annual excursion to Toronto. There they will tour the city, paying special visits at the parliament buildings and the Royal Ontario Museum.

L. W. Copp, principal, said today that the excursion is held each term to experience the students in the technique of conducting such a trip. When the teachers-to-be are out next year in their own schools, they'll be taking children on similar trips.

Highlights of the trip will be visits to the CBC television studios, the Junior Red Cross Headquarters, the parliament buildings, the Department of Education and the Royal Ontario Museum. They expect to hear the Hon. W. J. Dunlop, Minister of Education, in their stop at the [illegible] ...ill take time out for some work. There they'll be taken on tours throughout the building emphasizing subjects in geography, social studies, and natural science. These topics have already been selected and are grouped according to the lectures.

Most of the students plan to attend the winter fair and also the icecapades in the evening. A few are staying over Friday night to see the Santa Claus parade, the Toronto Maple Leafs hockey game and to do some shopping.

PaperSaysEisenhower May Go To Moscow

PARIS (Reuters) — The evening newspaper France Soir said today U. S. President-elect Eisenhower may go to Moscow if preliminary contacts with the Soviet Union turn out to be satisfactory.

The right-wing socialist paper said in a copyright New York dispatch that this information came from "the immediate entourage of the President-elect."

Community Fund May Increase Size Of Board

The Peterborough Red Cross and Community Fund Board of Directors may increase its membership before the 1953 campaign.

A notice of motion was made at the 11th annual meeting of the organization Wednesday night by John R. Corkery that the matter of increased membership be discussed at the general meeting of the board to be held in December. A. L. Elliott presided.

20 MEMBERS ON BOARD

At present the board is made up of 10 members representing agencies in the fund and 10 members representing the contributing public. An amendment to the fund's constitution will have to be passed to effect an increase.

Ross W. Dobbin, past chairman of the board, made the suggestion that the membership be increased. He said that an increase would give the contributing public a better representation on the board.

NEW APPOINTMENTS

Three new members were appointed to the board Wednesday night. They are Clare Sullivan, Judge John de N. Kennedy, and Ald. William Beggs. The following were reappointed: Mrs. J. P. Watts, Blake Bell, John Corkery, J F. Richardson, H. L. Garner, George Macdonald, Ross Dobbin.

The members representing agencies are: Mrs. W. R. L. Blackwell, Canadian Red Cross Society; Mrs. T. J. Carley, Y.W.C.A.; A. L. Elliott, Y.M.C.A.; James Lillico, Navy League; E. J. Wolff, St. Vincent's Orphanage; E. C. Braund, Salvation Army; Kenneth Dalrymple, Children's Aid Society; Charles Ray, Canadian National Institute for the Blind; Wilson Gemmell, Victorian Order of Nurses; Mrs. S. O. Shields, Humane Society.

Edward Humpage was appointed auditor.

Freighters Collide In Erie, Damage Light

LORAIN, O. (AP) — Two lake freighters collided in Lake Erie 26 miles northwest of Lorain early today. There were no injuries and both vessels proceeded under their own power.

The bow of the Philip Minch, operated by the Kinsman Transit Co., was stove in and the George C. Crawford of the Pittsburgh Steamship division of U. S. Steel suffered damage to one side.

Long Holiday By Working Saturdays

C.G.E. Workers Vote To Work Two Days Others May Follow

Production workers at the C.G.E plant on Wednesday voted to work two Saturdays so they can have extra long weekends at Christmas and New Years.

Though no final agreement has been reached between the company and union officials in the Peterborough works the likelihood is that employees will work Nov. 22 and Dec. 6. These will be working days in lieu of Dec. 26 and Jan. 2 (both Fridays).

LONG WEEKENDS

If this arrangement is made the employees will have a long weekend beginning with Christmas Day (a Thursday) and it will continue until Monday They will work Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday and then have another four-day holiday over New Years.

Other large industries in the city are also considering this juggling of working days.

At the Western Clock Co. the employees will work Nov. 22 instead of on Boxing Day Apparently they will go back to work, as usual, on Jan. 2.

Peterborough Lock Co. are still considering the proposal but at Canada Packers there has been no discussion on it.

The Brinton-Peterborough Carpet Co. employees will have both Boxing Day and Jan. 2 as holidays. But the Saturdays they will work as lieu days have not been decided on. Probably they will be Nov. 29 and Dec. 13.

The majority of the employees at Quaker Oats will probably get Boxing Day off as a straight holiday while stock-taking goes on. Whether or not various shifts work on Jan. 2 will depend on business.

3 Filter Beds Progressing, Ready In May

Work is progressing rapidly on the three new filter beds at Peterborough's filtration plant, a mile north of the city limits on the Lakefield Highway. The excavation work has been completed and the cement footings poured in the past month.

When completed about May, the $300,000 project will be increasing the filtration about 50 per cent, from 6,000,000 gallons to 9,000,000. The beds are being constructed by contractor Walter Mortlock, Peterborough.

Manager of the Peterborough Utilities Commission, R. L. Dobbin, said today that the old plant was over-extended, being built in 1921 for the city which then had a population of approximately 20,000. The growth of the city in recent years has resulted in "over-taxing" the existing facilities.

COULD HAVE SHORTAGE

Regarding the completion of the filter beds by May, Mr. Dobbin said, "They have to be in operation for the summer; if it's a dry summer and the beds are not in operation we'll be short of filtered water."

The contract calls for three filter beds; each will have a capacity of 1,000,000 gallons. Now that the footings have been poured, the actual construction of the beds will be started

But as fast as one project is started another one is in the planning stage. Mr. Dobbin said that the commission is planning a water reservoir across the highway.

Recently it was announced that the preliminary legal work has been started to get the expropriation proceedings underway involving about 18 acres of land adjacent to the filtration plant The city expropriated the land, for the commission for the additional water reservoir.

NEW MINISTER of Park St. Baptist Church is the Rev. A. S. Robin of Toronto who will preach his first sermon as minister of the church Sunday.

Rev. A. S. Roblin New Minister Of Park Street

The Rev. A. S. Roblin will preach his first sermon Sunday after receiving a unanimous call from Park Street Baptist Church this week. He preached at the church once recently as guest minister

With his wife and two children, Mr. Roblin will move into the parsonage that is being redecorated in about two weeks.

Mr. Roblin is a graduate of McMaster University and has had pastorates at Mountsberg, Slate River, and Silverthorne Baptist Church in Toronto.

He was a padre squadron leader in the R.C.A.F. during the Second World War four years on the west coast and overseas with the 429 squadron, where he was known as the flying padre.

At one time, Mr. Roblin was moderator of the Thunder Bay Association of Baptist Churches. In Toronto he was chairman of the Boys' Work Board of the Toronto Religious Education Council, with 50 church hockey teams, 80 softball teams and other boys' work organizations.

Mr. Roblin is interested in personal counselling and chaplain work in industry.

Recently he was clerk-treasurer of the Toronto Association of Baptist Churches.

Thieves Fail To Rob Till

A break-in at Levine's Ladies' Wear, 369 George Street, was discovered when the store was opened today. Entry was apparently gained through a second storey window and it is believed that whoever broke into the store climbed to the roof on the fire escape.

The cash register was tampered with, but there was no money in it, and nothing appeared to have been taken. The cash register was sitting on a cabinet, and marks on the drawers indicated an attempt had been made to "jimmy" them.

Detective Sgt. John Stevenson and plainclothes constable Douglas Farthing investigated.

Cpl. Boath Now Listed As Killed

Reported Missing In Korean Action Two Weeks Ago

Cpl. David Hogg Boath, 19, who was reported missing in bitter fighting in Korea Oct. 28, was today listed as killed in action.

Cpl. Boath was the son of Mr. and Mrs. William Boath of Bridgenorth. His was the only name on today's casualty list.

Cpl. Boath enlisted in the Royal Canadian Regiment in Sept., 1951, and sailed to Korea last March 17. His family said that he started off on leave but was called back to action when fierce fighting broke out in the Korean hills.

His last letter home told his parents that he was eager to get home on leave in four months time. The family lived in Toronto before moving to Bridgenorth.

WORKED IN CITY

Cpl. Boath worked in a cleaning establishment in Peterborough before joining the army.

His sister, Mrs. Walter (Sally) Gatehouse has a husband serving in Germany. A brother, Bill, works in Toronto.

The Canadian army list leaves 1,223 the total casualties reported by Canadian troops in Korea—227 dead, 883 wounded, 28 missing, 84 injured and one captured.

The Canadian navy has reported three dead and three injured in action.

Harvest Trees For Christmas

The last harvest of the year—Christmas trees—in the Pontypool district is already underway and within the next six weeks enough trees will be cut and shipped to brighten 100,000 homes in the United States as far south as Florida.

Potato and tobacco growing in addition to the tree crop has converted the district wasteland areas to a profitable agricultural section where property values have increased eight-fold in the past five years.

Trees were introduced into the area as a government conservation measure to check soil erosion. They rooted well in the sandy soil and it is the small farmer who hasn't at least two acres of planted trees, mostly of the Scotch pine variety.

Plantation cuttings, and it is chiefly a weeding out of small trees to allow mature growth of eventual timber products, bring from 50 cents to $1 on the American market. The trees are bought by wholesalers for export.

Toronto Man First Convicted As Criminal Psychopath

OTTAWA (CP)—George Lundy Tilley of Toronto is the first man ever convicted in Ontario as a criminal sexual psychopath

The 55-year-old salesman yesterday was sentenced to an indefinite term in penitentiary.

He also was sentenced to two years in penitentiary for indecent assault. He was convicted last week of the assault of a 12-year-old Ottawa girl.

In sentencing Tilley, County Judge J. P. Madden said: "From here on psychiatrists will have to take the responsibility of whether or not this man shall ever go free."

He said Tilley's actions were "brutal in the extreme; an act of cold indifference amounting to brutality not consistent with normalcy."

Tilley appeared in his own defence at the close of hearings on the crown's application that he be committed indefinitely as a criminal sexual psychopath. He denied any knowledge of the assault or of abducting the child.

His wife and a former fellow-salesman, Paul Logan, also appeared as character witnesses. Earlier, the crown called psychiatrists.

Must Spend Money To Lower Costs CPR Tells Commission

OTTAWA (CP)—Funds must be provided for modernizing and enlarging railway facilities if transportation costs are to be held down, the Canadian Pacific Railway yesterday told the board of transport commissioners.

N. R. Crump, vice-president of the C.P.R., declared that the company will have to spend $475,000,000 during the next five years to replace old equipment and provide new facilities to meet demands for service and keep pace with the growth of Canada.

"We have in my opinion been losing ground in this respect in recent years," he said, testifying in support of a railway application to have the board change the long-standing basis of setting freight rates in this country.

The railway application asks that the C.P.R. be allowed to earn a set annual return on its net railway investment, with a view to stabilizing its finances and improving its borrowing credit. The board now uses the C.P.R. as the rate "yardstick" but fixes rates on the basis of current financial requirements of the company from time to time.

The company asks to be allowed earnings of 6½ per cent on a "rate base" of about $1,146,000,000—or $74,000,000 a year—which it contends would shore up its credit.

Vice-president Crump said yesterday increased capital expenditure is needed by the C.P.R. because there is a "pressing" necessity for enlarging its facilities.

Later, L. B. Unwin, C.P.R. vice-president of finance, estimated that for 1953 the company will need $60,000,000 in new capital—outside its own resources—to undertake its program.

PC's Seek Restoration Of Some Tax Powers

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Drew said yesterday the Progressive Conservative party ultimately wants to see at least some taxing powers now held by the federal government restored to the provinces.

The national Progressive Conservative leader told a press conference that the recently-signed taxation agreement between the federal and Ontario governments is a "temporary arrangement."

(All provinces except Quebec now rent their income, inheritance and corporation tax fields to the federal government.)

Mr. Drew, arriving here after a bout with influenza at Kamloops, said that under the current agreements the provinces are too dependent on the federal government for revenue and that revenues of the municipalities are diminished.

Heavy Program Of Legislation Faces Que. House

QUEBEC (CP)—A heavy program of legislation, including a measure for provincial censorship of television programs, was laid yesterday before the first meeting of Quebec's 24th legislature.

The television censorship measure was one of 20 bills presented to the legislature soon after Lieutenant-Governor Gaspard Fauteux opened the first Quebec session since provincial elections last July 16.

The bills call for extension of rent control, confiscation of vehicles transporting margarine, banned in Quebec since 1949, and extra funds for farm loans and for housing aid.

There are provisions to increase the pay of judges sitting in provincial courts and to abolish Montreal's old circuit court.

One government bill will exempt power lines put up by Quebec's co-operative electricity services from municipal taxation.

Election of Alexandre Tache (UN—Hull) as speaker of the legislative assembly preceded the reading of the 1,300-word throne speech by the lieutenant-governor.

CHECK FILMS ON TV

The measure to bring television programs under censorship by the Quebec board of film censors refers specifically to telecasts of movie films.

It would also charge the censorship board with "central supervision over television programs and shows."

Censors would report their finding to the attorney-general.

Penalties for infractions are similar to those in effect in connection with movie films shown in theatres. Transmission of an uncensored program would be punishable by a $500 fine or a three-month jail term.

Wool Workers Strike At Renfrew Mills

RENFREW (CP)—Some 165 union employees of Renfrew Woollen Mills Ltd. went on strike yesterday after rejecting the majority report of a conciliation board.

The employees, members of local 769, Textile Workers Union of America (C.I.O. - C.C.L.), have sought increased wages since the last agreement expired Dec. 14, 1951. A conciliation board heard the dispute and its majority report, made public yesterday, asked the employees to continue at their present wage until February.

But the union members rejected the report and voted to strike.

$40 Beaver Hat Bet On Red Feather Success

TORONTO (CP) — Toronto's Mayor Allan Lamport has bet London's Mayor Alan Rush a $40 beaver hat Toronto will go over the top in its Red Feather drive before London.

The bet also calls for a $10 contribution by the loser to the winner's campaign.

"I'll be glad to do anything I can to help the campaign," Mayor Lamport said as he accepted Mayor Rush's challenge.

Knox Y.P.U. Hold Meeting

Knox Young People's Union met Tuesday evening in the church parlours.

The meeting was opened with recreation led by Zella Bush, followed by a sing-song led by Margaret Johnston.

The business period was conducted by the president, June Drummond, and the worship service was conducted by June Drummond and Barbara Latchford and had as its theme "Missionary Work in Japan."

The evening closed with refreshments served by those in charge of the meeting.

Barbara Brent's BUYS AND WHYS A WEEKLY INFORMATION SERVICE

MONTREAL, November 13th—Who ever said that women can't agree on anything? I've talked it over with dozens of my friends, and we've all come to the same conclusion. "There's nothing quite like SWANS DOWN CAKE FLOUR to make wonderful, tender, cakes. No mix, no other flour, can give such superb cake results. It's quite logical too. Swans Down is especially made for better cake baking. It is milled from the finest of soft winter wheat . . . then sifted again and again until 27 times as fine as ordinary flour. Try Swans Down the next time you bake a cake . . . and see if you don't agree with all the rest of us, who have discovered what an improvement Swans Down makes in cake baking.

I'm Sure That, Like Mrs. John Fisher, wife of the famous Canadian radio personality, you'll enjoy the flavour, nutrition and economy of BLUE BONNET MARGARINE. You'll love the delicate, sunny-sweet taste that Blue Bonnet gives to your favourite foods . . . you'll appreciate Blue Bonnet's year 'round nutritional value (no other spread is richer in Vitamin A!) . . . and you'll like what Blue Bonnet does for your food budget. Like thousands of other Canadian homemakers—I'm a constant Blue Bonnet user. I use it in cooking, on vegetables, as a spread for bread. It's as delicious melting hot as served fresh from the ice box. When you try it, I'm sure you'll agree!

We All Agreed at bridge the other day that those grand new chemical soaps make dishwashing a pleasure (well, almost!). And we agreed, too, that JERGENS LOTION is ideal for hands roughened and dried by these new soaps. I use Jergens after every watery chore. Because it's liquid, it quickly penetrates to supply the softening moisture that dry, thirsty skin needs. Keep a bottle of Jergens Lotion handy in both kitchen and bathroom. Make a hand-care habit of it — to keep your hands always soft, smooth and lovely, with that cared-for look that only Jergens can give them. Remember Jergens Lotion . . . because you care for your hands! It's not expensive — just 15c, 37c, 65c and $1.15.

There's Lots Of Z-zipp! to this season's popular skirt-'n'-top fashions. And you can match style with service by sewing LIGHTNING zippers into your skirts. For lightweight materials like taffeta, Style 702 is just right, but for quilted or heavyweight skirts, better buy Style 805. Both these styles are wonderfully flexible — durable — and they have that "one-and-only" self-locking automatic slider that never, never slips. When you're making or buying your skirts — ask for Lightning zippers . . . and write to me — Barbara Brent, 1411 Crescent St., Montreal, P.Q. — for this wonderfully helpful FREE LEAFLET —"Openings for Skirt Fasteners."

Your Baby's Different in many endearing ways. But I'm sure that in one way, he'll be just like other babies. He'll love HEINZ BABY FOODS. And that's a tendency you can encourage, mother, because Heinz Strained Baby Foods are good for babies. They're precooked in Heinz spotless kitchens, so all you have to do is take them from the tin, warm them up and serve. They're wholesome and appetizing . . . meat food products, soups, vegetables and desserts—all expertly blended to give baby extra nourishment. And when baby is a little older, he'll need HEINZ JUNIOR FOODS to help build strong bones and a sturdy little body. So next time you're shopping — ask your dealer for Heinz Baby and Junior Foods.

Not Being A Scientific Genius, I'm not too sure just how the Face-Elle people get their tissue handkerchiefs so super soft and yet so strong and absorbent at the same time. But you don't have to be any kind of genius to appreciate the difference between FACE-ELLE and other brands. You'll find that Face-Elle handkerchiefs don't shred and your fingers won't poke holes in them so easily, either. They're wonderful when you have a cold, too . . . no lint to irritate tender nasal passages. Face-Elle . . . and ask for Face-Elle by name.

Now Cooking Is Always A Pleasure! Yes, my new GURNEY GAS RANGE has changed my kitchen from a "work-room" to a "fun-room". Its designers have thought of everything to make cooking easier. Take that Gurney automatic clock control, for instance. And the interior oven light so you can't be "in-the-dark" about what goes on inside the oven. And, above all, the special Gurney "Even-Heat" oven that keeps the temperature exactly right — automatically — on the sides, the top, the bottom and even in the corners. Ask your dealer to show you the new Gurney Gas Ranges — all of them "kitchen-tested" for carefree cooking.

They Call It the "one-minute" make-up. And no wonder! One minute with wonderful WOODBURY DREAM STUFF does a complete make-up job and you look "morning fresh" all day long. You see, Woodbury Dream Stuff is foundation-tint-and-powder all in one dainty compact. Just smooth it on with a glide of the puff. It's light and velvety — never cakes — is never drying or greasy on your skin . . . and never, never spills. Woodbury Dream Stuff comes complete with puff in a pretty, purse-size packet. Ask for your choice of five dreamy shades — just 75c — or in the new luxury plastic compact — $1.00.

It Gives You prompt relief from the nerve-wracking itching experienced during the "Change of Life" or accompanying Piles, "Athlete's Foot" etc. Yes, tests have proved that this new medical discovery — a double-action cream called POLYCREST, stops itching promptly and destroys many of the germs that cause it. What's more, Polycrest is absolutely safe — will not stain clothing. Ask your druggist for Polycrest . . . and write to me — Barbara Brent, 1411 Crescent St., Montreal, P.Q. — enclosing 10c for postage and packing, and I'll be glad to send you a FREE SAMPLE of Polycrest.

Russians Plan "Radio War" In Europe

NICHOLAS CHARLES

Russia is planning to launch a gigantic radio offensive against Western Europe this winter from new and powerful transmitters in Eastern Germany.

This is the opinion of German and Allied experts who have been studying radio developments in Eastern Germany during the last few months.

Under orders from Moscow, German workmen and technicians in the Eastern zone are rapidly completing a chain of transmitters stretching from the Baltic Sea to the Czech frontier. These transmitters have been allocated wave lengths from inside the Soviet Union and from the neighbouring Communist satellite States. When they come into operation it is thought that they will be used both defensively and offensively. In other words, the new East German radio chain will reinforce Russian jamming of foreign broadcasts and will also blanket the air waves of Western Europe with Communist propaganda.

Alone among the Russian satellites Eastern Germany has so far been free to listen to foreign broadcasts. In September, however, the United States-sponsored station in Berlin, RIAS (Radio in the American Sector) was subjected to "spot" jamming for a week. American officials believe that this was an experiment to test the efficiency of the new jamming equipment while seeking to probe Allied reaction.

RIAS has been a thorn in the flesh of the East German Communists for many years. It is officially estimated that nine-tenths of the Russian zone's eighteen million people listen to RIAS broadcasts every day.

It is unlikely, however, that the new East German radio chain is directed solely against RIAS or against the West German radio network. Russian planners are more probably aiming at the "Voice of America", which is building a new and powerful station at Munich, and the B.B.C.'s (British Broadcasting Corporation) overseas service, which will soon be using a transmitter in the German Federal Republic to increase the power of its broadcasts to Eastern Germany and to the remainder of Russian-dominated Europe.

The probability that Eastern Germany will soon fall behind the whispering curtain of Russian jamming is a political headache for London, Washington and Bonn. But Western Europe's radio experts face a far worse technical problem. This is the possibility that the new East German transmitters will deliberately interfere with national wave-lengths.

Europe's long and medium wave bands are now so crowded that any disturbance will upset their delicate adjustment. At the present time listeners in Britain, France and the Low Countries are subject to sporadic interference from Russian and satellite stations. This interference cannot be described as illegal, although if there were good-will it could be eliminated.

If the Russians decide, however, to begin a direct "radio war", the advantage, as always, will lie with the aggressor. It will take time for the countries of Western Europe to agree that such a war has begun and still more time to agree on measures likely to defeat the enemy.

C. Of E. Clergyman Appeals For Christianity In Schools

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — An Anglican clergyman Wednesday made an urgent appeal to the Canadian Council of Churches for quick action in putting Christianity into schools.

Canon R. K. Naylor of Montreal told the council's ninth annual meeting:

"If we don't find a way through the Canadian Council of Churches to restore Christianity in our schools—then Heaven help our schools."

He said that unless Christianity is taught in Canadian schools something else will fill the gap.

"And it won't be Christianity. The psychiatrists are just waiting on the doorstep to take the place of religious teaching in schools."

Psychiatrists will teach a doctrine which will not be Christian, he warned.

"SATISFIED AS IS"

Generally, Canon Naylor said, school officials are satisfied with the world as it is. They don't want to make any changes. Indifference, of people generally as well as educationists, was one of the big problems facing the church.

At a colorful evening service at St. Paul's Anglican Cathedral where dignitaries of the Anglican, Baptist, Presbyterian, United and other churches joined in praying for the church as a whole, the immediate past moderator of the United Church of Canada issued a plea for action in the unification of Protestant churches.

Very Rev. C. M. Nicholson, principal of Pine Hill Divinity Hall, Halifax, said "there never can be really an ecumenical theology until we are on the ecumenical road."

Most Rev. Philip Carrington, Anglican Archbishop of Quebec, told delegates at an earlier session that the way to unity may lie through agreement on methods of worship.

SEES POSSIBILITIES

He said he saw "distinct possibilities" in this approach and felt that ecumenical unity might be worked out better on a liturgy level than on an administrative one.

Rev. Gordon A. Siscoe, secretary of the United Church, said that individual churches are attempting to do everything they can separately. Only what was left over was the concern of the council. He added:

"Our responsibility today is to help equip the churches of Europe for new tasks, for the maintenance of evangelism and Christian witness in an increasingly indifferent and hostile world."

Present C. L. Kellogg With Service Medal

CAMPBELLFORD (ENS) —C. L. Kellogg a former employee of the Trent Canal, was presented with the Imperial Service Medal recently, after serving 32 years with the canal.

T. J. Ryan, Superintendent Engineer of the Trent Canal, along with James McGaw, Superintendent of Maintainance presented the medal at Mr. Kellogg's home on Ranney St.

Mr. Kellogg started his [illegible] service with the canal at the close of the First World War as Lockmaster at Healey Falls. He was transferred from there to Lock 13, and in 1931 was promoted to Superintendent, Grade 2, with the Campbellford division.

Keen On Coiffures, Man Lands In Court

ST. IVES, England (Reuters)—Alexander MacDonald's irrestible urge to tell strange women how to wear their hair landed him in court yesterday, charged with acting in a manner likely to cause a breach of the peace. He was placed under £50 bond for one year. MacDonald once went into a beauty shop and told the woman in charge she should re-style her hair-do

MacDonald, 33, said he has suffered excessive interest in coiffures since childhood.

Gestures Serve As Words In French Ballet

By MARK BARRON

NEW YORK (AP) — The French are a canny race and they demonstrated it last night at the Ziegfeld Theatre when a French company brought in an attraction billed simply as "Madeleine Renaud, Jean-Louis Barrault and their company."

The stars, Madeleine Renaud and Jean-Louis Barrault, played in French and won applause from people who could not understand French.

They made superb pantomime in their eloquent gestures in "Les Fausses Confidences," Marivaux's comedy of "The False Secrets," and "Baptiste," a pantomime ballet by Jacques Prevert.

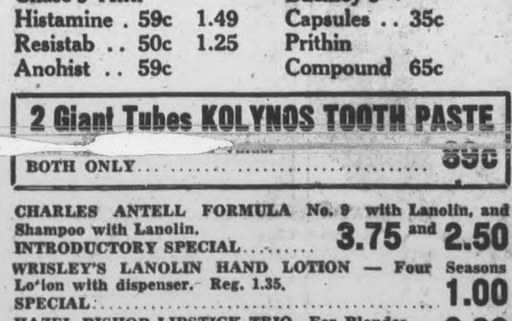
These French performers do their plays in ballet and pantomime styles, so knowledge of the French language is not entirely necessary for the audience. The dance styles interpret almost all of the gestures, without words, of "Les Fausses Confidences."

This French group of performers are excellent and the Broadway audience threw cheers and posies at them. They will close in four weeks and depart for France.

Robert S. Nurse

The funeral for Robert Smithson Nurse, lot 1, con. 4 Smith township, who died Monday, was held Wednesday from the Comstock funeral home.

The Rev. Charles Richmond of St. James' Anglican Church, Emily township, conducted the service.



Pallbearers were: Stewart Darling, George Nurse, Evans Storey, William Darling, Eric Brackwell, Herbert Darling. Burial was in Emily cemetery.

Egypt To Make Steel

CAIRO (Reuters) — Egypt last night announced plans to create a steel industry of her own, using hydro-electric power from the Nile River and ore from Upper Egypt. A government spokesman said bids for construction of the plant will be received on an international basis.

Kills Wife, Suicides

MILAN, Italy (Reuters)—A 72-year-old Italian pensioner yesterday killed the 67-year-old woman he married three years ago after advertising in a newspaper for a wife and then took his own life by turning on the gas. The pensioner left a note saying he did it because she was "frivolous."

"I switched to DOMINION for tastier, tenderer meats

..AND FOUND THAT I CUT FOOD COSTS TOO.

"One Sunday last winter we had dinner at Mother's. The roast was simply wonderful! So tender and juicy! So full of that rich, beefy flavour that makes men drool."

"You must have paid plenty for this special roast," I sighed. "Wish I could afford it."

"You can", said Mother, "because it isn't a special high-priced roast. Why I get wonderful roasts like this at Dominion every week, and so can you."

"She was right! I've never had a disappointing cut of meat from Dominion. But the biggest surprise of all is the way I've cut food costs by doing all my shopping at Dominion. I save enough to buy lots of things I couldn't afford before!"

Throughout this page you'll find photos of a few of the 50,000 women who have switched to Dominion from other food stores, in the past year. Join them at Dominion this week and find out why ... for yourself!

MARY MOORE SAYS:

Fish As Fresh As Wind Over Water

Fresh fish has the finest flavor of any food I know and I love it, but stale fish has the worst—plus the odor—even worse than an over-ripe egg.

I'm growling because I bought what I thought was a choice fillet of lake trout for a private little dinner for Marianne and me on her day off from the hospital. I broiled it in my most approved manner—and the whole thing—well, I'll remain a lady—it was old.

Imagine being 'ad by a fish. Now I'm the fish.

Remember to do what I didn't do—smell it. There should not be the slightest whiff of anything that isn't as fresh as wind over water.

BROILED FISH FILLETS

If it's fillet of lake trout, whitefish, salmon or halibut or the frozen fillets of haddock you can buy from a box in any fish store—broil it. For each fillet, that has been wiped with a slightly damp cloth, cut a piece of parchment paper or aluminum foil the same shape. Butter or oil the paper and place fish on it, skin side down. Spread the cut surface with soft butter, sprinkle with salt, pepper and paprika and place one inch from very hot burner on broiling pan. Cook just until flesh will flake right through—but no longer. It does not need to be turned unless it is nearly an inch thick in the chunkiest parts. Transfer it to hot platter. The parchment or foil facilitates this, that is why it is used. Sprinkle with lemon, garnish with parsley, serve at once. A choice partner is

SCALLOPED TOMATOES

This is a rare dish that I could eat with pleasure once per month—every cook should know and serve it—but don't skimp on the butter. Toast four slices of white bread until deep gold and crisp. Butter them and cut them into 1¼ or 1½-inch squares. In ⅓ cup butter gently saute 1 tablespoon finely chopped onion. Add the buttered toast squares and stir them around in the butter over very

Speaker Follows Up Theme

Forty mothers of the Trinity Church Baby Band attended the meeting Wednesday evening which was in charge of Mrs. H Coon's group. Mrs. G. Wallace read scripture and Mrs. J. Clark led in prayer. Their theme "A Needy World" was well carried through by the guest speaker, Mrs. W. B. Arnup of Lakefield. Mrs Arnup, with her husband, spent a year in the interior of China as a medical missionary and she related their experiences there during the time the communists took over. Also very interesting were the colored slides which she showed. Mrs. Arnup was introduced by Mrs. R. MacDonald, and thanked by Mrs. R. Bogle Mrs. W. B. Gordon, president, presided for the business session. December 20th was announced the date for the annual Christmas party for mothers and children. Completed layettes were on display and it was decided to send some of these to Korea and distribute the rest locally Mrs. O. Jamieson was pianist for the evening. At the close Mrs. Coon's group served refreshments and a social time was enjoyed.

To Bring Opera "Iolanthe" Here

"Iolanthe," this year's production of the Canada Packers Opera Company will be presented in Peterborough on Saturday. February 28th, 1953, by the St. Paul's Married Couples Club it was decided at the meeting Wednesday evening.

This and other business was conducted by president Howard Perry. Mr. Herb Hewitt, coach of one of the hockey teams, asked club members for continued support by buying sweaters and goal sticks for the two teams, Peewees and Bantams. He then introduced Mr. Bob McQuade, St. Paul's representative to the boys' sports council, who informed how the Civic Arena charges of $50 per team will be met by the selling of booster club tickets costing one dollar each.

Christmas meeting of the club will be held at the manse, the date to be announced later. The Rev. C. G. Boyd was appointed convener of a nominating committee.

Program convener Les Davis introduced Mrs Frank Patterson who proceeded to show colored slides of famous national parks in United States and Canada, including the Grand Canyon and Yellowstone Park Members of the Young People's Society joined the audience for this. Mrs. Patterson was thanked by vice president Dennis Crowhurst.

Lunch was served by social convener Mrs. James Bell and assistants.

Mark St. WA Uses Flower Colors To Deck Tea Room

The favorite chrysanthemum colors of the fall, yellow and bronze, were the theme of decorations for the Women's Association tea and bazaar in the Mark St. Sunday School hall Wednesday afternoon. The tea table, with a hand-made lace cloth in ecru shade, was centred with an effective arrangement of the yellow and bronze 'mums, complemented by yellow tapers.

President Mrs. F. L. Edworthy received the many guests who patronized this event. She was assisted by the minister's wife, Mrs. B. S. Morwood, and Mrs. Max Pomeroy was hostess in the tea room Miss M. Eason received tickets at the treasurer's table.

Tea pourers were Mrs. Hugh Hunter, Mrs. H. C. Benson, Mrs. A. Chartren and Mrs. A. Cox, and servers were Mrs. S. Exell, Mrs. D Anderson, Mrs. George Jefford Mrs. Max Fallis, Mrs. F. Samis, Mrs. H. Bell, Mrs. F. Moore, Mrs. W. Ferguson, Mrs. W. Lockie, Mrs. Edna King, Mrs. L. R. Bissett and Mrs. H. Allen. Mrs. E. Lillico and Mrs. Charles English were in charge of the tea table.

The G.G.I.T. had a table of Christmas decoration suitable for windows and the festive board and leader Mrs. George Barns and Miss Ruth Hendren were in charge A home cooking table was convened by Mrs William Thompson.

Each of the five groups in the W.A. had a bazaar table at which they displayed for sale a variety of articles made by the members. The group leaders are Mrs Austin Payne, Mrs. A. Roberts, Mrs. H. Allan, Mrs. F. Dixon and Mrs. H. Bell

Dressmakers Hold Fashion Show For Royal Sisters

LONDON (Reuters)—The Queen and her sister, Princess Margaret, spent an afternoon looking at Britain's latest fashions yesterday in a mannequin show arranged for her by London's big dressmakers.

It was a private show at Claridge's Hotel, but millions of Britons saw a repeat performance without the Queen on television last night.

The Queen and Princess saw 66 models, six from each of 11 large fashion houses, designed for wear this winter before the coronation next June 2.

Many foreshadowed coronation motifs, especially in embroidered and brocaded designs showing the English rose and the thistle of Scotland.

The Royal sisters both wore velvet coats. The Queen's was dark green and fitted. With it, she wore a folded beret in bronze with metallic bronze-colored medallions and a small bronze net veil, and open-toed pumps.

Princess Margaret's was in a deep rich red, belted and full-skirted. She wore a deep-blue velvet hat in a small turban shape and open-fronted pumps with spike heels.

Among daytime models shown were versions of the now-famous "gaucho" jacket designed by Michael of Lachasse and a striking navy-blue fitted redingote with collar lined with colored yellow felt which formed a detachable scarf, by Charles Creed.

Kinettes End Year Plan Cook School

Twenty-seven members of the Kinette Club met at the Empress Hotel for their final meeting of 1952, with Mrs. B. Metcalfe, vice-president, presiding in the absence of president Mrs. Howard Powell. Mrs. R. Hamilton, treasurer, gave thefinancial report for the year, which was very favorable. Mrs. Walker Jones, secretary, read an the financial report for the year, tivities and projects and conveners of each committee read reports.

Three new members were introduced to the club, Mrs. N. Buzzele, Mrs. Gerald Norris and Mrs. Garnet Towns.

The home cooking school report was given by Mrs. Don Grills. Details were worked out satisfactorily for this event which is taking place on December 2 and 3. Brenda York will be the dietician featured and will give away each night, the articles baked. Free door prizes will be given away each evening as well as 50 other draw prizes.

Mr. Gordon Farquaharson, president of the Kinsmen Club, conducted the installation of the 1953 officers, outlining the duties of each office. The new executive is as follows:

President, Mrs. B. Metcalfe; 1st vice-president, Mrs. C. Craig; 2nd vice-president, Mrs. Don Grills; secretary, Mrs. George [illegible]; treasurer, Mrs. Robert Hamilton; press, Mrs. B. LaPlante.

The new committee will be in charge of the January 1953 meeting:

Handicraft Topic Federation Meet

Mrs. Charles Stanton kindly loaned her home at 610 George St., on Wednesday afternoon and evening for the tea and bazaar of the Peterborough Handcraft Guild. President of the Guild, Mrs. Elmer Frost, Mrs. C. C. Pilon and Mrs. M. G. Niblett received the guests and tea was poured by Mrs. G. A. Reinhardt, Mrs. R. H. Parker, Mrs. C. S. Browne and Mrs. R. J Bolton

A cake made from an old Hungarian recipe by Mrs. H. Warner was raffled and won by Mrs. James Wharry, The raffle was run by Miss Lena Eakin, Mrs. J. W. Miles and Miss Ruth Simpson.

The table of handcraft work was in charge of Mrs. E. Thompson, and Miss Sarah Armstrong and the homecooking table attended by Mrs. James Wharry, Mrs. O. C. Kally, Misses June Fraser and Lily Taylor.

Mrs. H. Steggles, Miss Ann Jamieson and Miss Alma Dobbin served tea, and Mrs. J. Sharp and Miss Jean Scott were at the door.

Home and School Association News

KING EDWARD SCHOOL

President Mrs. J. Dunkerley opened the King Edward Home and School Association meeting this week with a two minute period of silence in memory of fallen men of two world wars.

Special guests at this meeting were the school's anual field day winners who were introduced by Mr. W. Patterson and later treated to chocolate cake and ice cream. They included Dick Simmons Barry Heard, Anne James, Lorraine Huffman, David Elmsley, Gerald Warner, Nancy Heal, Lorraine Rowe, Raymond Ball, Fred Stanbury, Alma McCullough and Beverley Busby.

Mr. J Telford's class was announced winner of the recent successful membership drive by the Association. Attendance prize for the meeting was also won by Mr. Telford's room. A report on the recent dental health dinner was given by health convener Mrs. E. Wellman.

Speaker for the evening Mrs. J. Henderson, librarian of the South End library, was introduced by Mrs. H. Turner. She gave an informative talk on "Books and Your Children." This pointed out the importance for parents to adjust themselves to their child's level of reading and to endeavor to create in each child an interest in reading.

Two films shown by Mr. J Burns were "Highland Holiday on Cape Breton" and "Snow Fiesta in the Laurentians."

Mrs. L. Webb tendered thanks for the program and refreshments were served by Mrs. N Gilders and Mrs. A. Clark and committee.

PARKHILL SCHOOL

One minute of silence, followed by reading of the poem "O Valiant Hearts" by President Mrs. Vern Ferguson, opened the meeting of Parkhill Home and School Association on the evening of Remembrance Day, Nov. 11. A devotional period was led by Mrs. H. Lewis.

Guest speaker, Mr. R. J. Bolton, principal of Prince of Wales School, was introduced by Mrs. G. B. Goulding. He spoke on the unit system in the primary grade which was started at his school a year ago by the teachers, who organized the program for themselves. The scheme, which originated in Hamilton, has now spread to other schools in the city.

"It is adapted to teach the child at his own level of learning," explained Mr. Bolton. He compared it with the old system in which a child was forced to stay in grade one for a year in spite of his progress, and if he was slow was forced to repeat the year. By this scheme a bright child was actually retarded.

"In the unit system the child works as fast as his ability permits and stays in one unit only until ready for the next. This develops a sense of accomplishment. Normally, a child of average ability can cover the nine units of the primary grade in three years," said the teacher.

Mr Bolton commented on the attendance of 60 parents at this meeting—a high percentage for a small community—and said he thinks a small school has an advantage over the large as all pupils are acquainted.

Treasurer Mrs. G. Montgomery reported a considerable sum realized from a recent rummage sale. Purchase of an electric tea kettle and a Christmas party for the graduates, as initiated last year, were motions favorably received. Mrs. F. Barker commented briefly on the Home and School literature she had on display.

Appreciation to the speaker was expresed by Mrs. W. Wiseman and Mrs. A. Lester and committee served refreshments at the close.

Handcraft Guild Tea And Bazaar At Mrs. Stanton's

Interesting sidelights in the field of Canadian handicraft were revealed by Mrs. M. G Hughson in an informal talk to the members of the Woman's Federation at George Street United Church Wednesday night Her display of hand made articles ranged from woven tartan ties from Nova Scotia to little Eskimo dolls from the west.

In the devotional period that preceded Mrs. Hughson's talk, Mrs. George Douglas read from the scriptures and Mrs. R. W. Parneli led in prayer. Mrs. Clifford Turnbull discussed three chapters from the study book dealing with the extensive duties of the African native woman.

The double trio of P.C.V.S. [illegible] entertained the group with several charming selections., concluding with a duet by Misses Ann Grant and Barbara Woodcock, "Whispering Hope."

A collection for the Missionary Fund was made, during which Mrs. Harry Race played Mendelssohn's Song Without Words.

It was announced that Mrs. Parnell is chairman of the nominating committee, assisted by Mrs. F. A. Hucks and three other members to be appointed President Mrs. Arthur Black urged members to attend the United Church Expostiion and Pageant. Plans were finalized for the tea section of the W. A. tea and bazaar which is being held on November 26th Tickets were distributed for members to sell.

Mrs. Black welcomed the following new members, Mrs. Erle Wellbourn, Miss Betty Goldie and Mrs. Frank Sargent.

The group were served tea by Mrs. Harold Nicholls and her committee.

New School Colors Featured At Grove H & S Tea

The new colors of the Grove School, green and yellow, were featured in the decorations for the tea and bazaar Wednesday afternoon, and each member of the Home and School Association asissting wore the colors. President Mrs. Nels Foster was receiving at the tea room door, assisted by Mrs. Joseph Barnard, wife of the principal. Mrs Jack Ainslie was taking the tickets.

Mrs. S. Whitfield had convened the tea room and the serving table was most attractive with tall bouquets of yellow 'mums and green streamers and the guest tables carried out this theme

Tea pourers were Mrs. B. Fife, Mrs. T. Kay, Mrs. G. Adams and Mrs. J Weir. Mrs. F Sanders was the tea room hostess and servers were Mrs. W. Beggs, Mrs. A. Finnemore Mrs. W. Hargreaves, Mrs. W. Higgins, Mrs. G. Stewart, Mrs. J. Patterson, Mrs. H. Hadley and Miss Eleanor Glover.

The replenishing of plates and kitchen work was being done by Mrs. E Partington, Mrs W E. Hopkins, Mrs. A. Johnston, Mrs. H. C. Harris, Mrs. G Rutherford, Mrs. A Davies and Mrs. G. Beauchamp Mrs. J. Holt was in charge of making the tea.

A candy table near the tea room, in charge of Mrs. Joe Mortimer, was very soon laid bare by the pupils who had been dismissed early. From that table they dashed to the upstair hall and collected a variety of small items dear to children from the fish pond, where Mrs. C. R. Evans and Mrs. J. Hanson were behind the decorated front.

A home baking table, also in the upstair hall, was very well supplied with delicious looking pies and cakes. It was convened by Mrs. W. Anderson and Mrs. C. Franklin and Mrs. L. Putnam were assisting her with sales.

The bazaar table offered doll's dresses, aprons, berets and scarfs in plaid, Christmas stockings and such items. It was in charge of Mrs. R. Page and Mrs. G. Carson.

The nursery, where small children were kept busy with the kindergarten playthings during the tea hours, was superintended by Mrs. L. Post, Mrs. R. Johnston and Mrs. K. Johnston.

Excelsior Class Has Good Crowd At Annual Tea

The Excelsior Bible Class of St. James United Church had a very pleasing attendance at the annual tea and bazaar held Wednesday afternoon in the Sunday school room. The teacher, Miss Jessie Martin received and also poured tea as did the minister's wife, Mrs. H. D. McCormack and Mrs. William Mantell and Mrs. A. Saunders.

The decorations, done by Mrs. W. N. Thompson, were very attractive, being in fans of streamers in green, gold and bronze over each bazaar table and from the posts in the tea room section. The table centre of gold and bronze chrysanthemums featured an unusual flowerabra holder in silver and was highlighted with yellow tapers. The lace cloth was laid over green to complete the color scheme in the setting.

Individual tea tables each had a fancy frilled centrepiece in gold and bronze set with green. These were attended by Mrs. Ashton Fife, Mrs. A. Phillips, Mrs. G. Curtain, Mrs. G. Messervey, Mrs. V. M. Keating and Mrs. R. Bell Mrs. Q. Dantzer was the tea room convener.

Replenishing the plates and tea pots was looked after by Mrs. W. Thompson, Mrs. H. Winterbottom, Mrs. R. Price, Mrs. E. Williamson and Mrs. H. Fife.

A fish pond which attracted the children was operated by Mrs. Roy Heard and Mrs. H. E. Bell and her small customers were afterward transferred to the nursery in charge of Mrs. Wm. Anderson.

Candy and small plants were being sold by Mrs. G. Cuffe and Mrs. L. Robinson and the home cooking table was in charge of Mrs. W. N. Thompson, Mrs. M. Draper, Mrs. W. Brown and Mrs. H. Donaldson.

The bazaar articles were on three tables, the first featuring embroidered luncheon cloths, pot holders, etc., in charge of Mrs. N. Sullivan and Mrs. G. English, the second with aprons and towels, in charge of Mrs. R. Nattress and Mrs. C. Palmer, and the children's wear for sale by Mrs. Roy Armour and Mrs. Walter Mortlock.

Canada's annual production of canned food for dogs and cats is worth a little more than $4,000,000

'Mums On Display

NIAGARA FALLS, Ont. (CP)—More than 2,000 chrysanthemums are on display in full bloom at the Niagara Falls Parks Commission greenhouses here. The flowers are expected to continue to bloom until Christmas.

About 150 different varieties of 'mums are represented in tints of yellow, pink, white and lavender. They range in size from the tiny button 'mums to the "exhibition chrysanthemums" whose blossoms measure up to eight inches in diameter.

DOROTHY DIX

Marriage Too One-Sided According To This Husband

DEAR MISS DIX: We have been married seven years. About four years ago my husband began dating another girl. We broke up our home but, after a year's separation, he promised he would never be untrue again. For the children's sake, and because I love him, we went back together. Everything was fine until six months ago when he stayed out all night. The same thing has happened since and, although he says I have nothing to worry about, he refuses to tell what he does on these occasions.

Furthermore, these are his viewpoints on marriage: As long as he brings home a pay check, he has no other obligation to us; he is entitled to come and go as he pleases, doesn't feel he should take the children or me out at all and accuses me of being a nagging wife if I ask where he has been. He has told me many times the only reason he married me is to have someone to take care of the house and have children for him. He has suggested that I get your viewpoint.

ANSWER: Did your husband have a speciall marriage ceremony writt.. for him? Apparently he did, since his idea of marriage differs so radically from any I have ever heard. I'd love to see his privately issued, specially privileged edition.

When he married you, he promised to love, honor and cherish, and, by any interpretation of the English language, that involves considerably more than bringing home a paycheck and treating a wife like a hired hand. In fact, he seems to take considerable pride in pointing out to you that your status is exactly that of an unsalaried underling.

INSIST ON YOUR RIGHTS

You have every right to know where your husband goes when he stays out after night; the fact that he is unwilling to disclose this information gives you every reason to doubt that his actions are above reproach.

If your husband is at all interested in establishing his home on a firm foundation, which, of course, should have been done seven years ago, he'll give up these liberal notions of the right to unlimited freedom, settling for a little more give and take. No one-sided marriage can be happy; compromise and concession must be equally divided. Your husband would apparently be just as happy, if not happier, with a paid housekeeper to care for his home. Of course, she'd cost a bit more than you do, but on the other hand her status would preclude any possibility of nagging, as he calls it.

You certainly are not being treated as a wife and probably never will be. Your husband is an essentially selfish and egotitical person. He is probably incapable of sharing anything with anyone, since he has inflated his own ego with the assurance that no one is on a par with him, therefore no one is worthy to be accepted into partnership with him. This attitude is not uncommon in marriage, and, of course, with it no home can be a happy one.

DEAR MISS DIX: My husband is in service and I write to him every day. I tell him everything I do. He is jealous and gets mad over small things. I have been told not to be so frank with him. I never do anything I think is wrong, but he seems to try to read things into my letters that aren't there.

PAT C.

✧ ✧ ✧

ANSWER: If your husband has a naturally jealous nature, his absence from home is bound to augment it. Read your letters over carefully, and make sure that you have left no opening for his suspicion to latch onto. If you know that it annoys him to be told certain things—as for instance—that you visited friends he doesn't like, or something of that sort—omit the item. I certainly hope you aren't doing anything you shouldn't, in which case, of course, you have your own conscience to tell you what to do.

✧ ✧ ✧

DEAR MISS DIX: I have been going steady with a boy for about two months and would like to give him a birthday present. What would you suggest?

LA VERN

ANSWER: Since I assume you are very young, and probably don't have much money to spend, I think records would make a nice gift. If he plays a musical instrument, sheet music would also be welcome. Almost all young people like music.

low heat until they absorb all of it and get a little crisp. Put them in buttered baking dish with 1 can of tomatoes—28 oz.—in alternate layers, salting and peppering the layers as you go, and finishing up with 5 or 6 toast squares on top. Bake about 30 or 45 minutes at 350 or 375 deg. Fahr. It is foolproof. We served it one night with checken baked in cream and noodles with poppy seeds—that was a year ago. We are still hearing about it.

OVEN POACHED FISH

Directions are for one fish large enough for 4 people—boned but left in one piece. Place wiped and dried fish on buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with salt, pepper, 2 tablespoons lemon juice and parsley. Dot with 4 tablespoons butter and bake for 20 minutes at 350 deg. Fahr. This is very low temperature, but this makes the fish juices collect in which the fish poaches. Transfer fish to hot platter. Make a sauce by stirring togethe 1 tablespoon flour, 2 tablespoons butter, then add the pan juice and enough tomato juice to make it up to 1 cup. Stir until thick. This sauce is delicious flavored with a little basil or bay leaf.

I seldom advise you to fry things for I don't fry much food myself but this is a Garny dish and it is ever so good for a change.

SAUTEED CABBAGE

Five tablespoons bacon drippings, 6 cups well-packed finely shredded cabbage—I like Savoy but I'm not Dutch, ¼ cup cream (or milk), ¼ cup hot water, 1 tablespoon sugar, ¼ teaspoon mustard, ½ teaspoon salt. Melt the drippings and gently fry the cabbage in it for 10 or 15 minutes—do not brown it. Mix remaining ingredients with ¼ cup water and add to the cabbage. Mix well, heat through, and serve very hot.

Ever fry two dozen fresh caught blue pickerel fillets in butter and divide them with just two other people? I did. I'm still enjoying the memory.

What's Right?

When a man is sitting in a public waiting room a woman seated nearby drops something on the floor.

WRONG: He lets the woman retrieve it.

RIGHT: He picks it up and hands it to her.

Reinforced Christmas Tree Carries 4,000 Ornaments

By ANN BARTOS RUSHTON
NEA Special Correspondent

DENVER, Colo. (NEA) — A Christmas "open house" at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gano Senter of Denver is like other Christmas "open houses' in only one respect.

People come in for short visits, but they're not just friends and relatives. There have been 10,000 of them each Yule season for the past 20 years. Usually they're complete strangers. And they don't come to see the Senters.

They cross the Senter threshold to see what well may be the world's most dazzling private Christmas tree. It cost a small fortune, is exhibited with showman ship and never fails to enthrall spectators.

The Senter Christmas tree is about 10 small trees and 50 to 75 extra limbs, all firmly put together by a hired carpenter. The height of the tree—11 feet—is limited by the height of the Senter living room.

700 POUNDS

The tree has to be super-strong to support 4,000 ornaments and 700 colored lights that hang on it. The whole works weighs about 700 pounds.

Mrs. Senter is sole tree-trimmer. The job takes her one week, sometimes 14 to 16 hours a day. When it is finished hardly a needle is visible, only lights and a solid mass of glittering, priceless, intricate ornaments.

Public showings begin on Christmas Day at dusk when the Senters turn on 1,000 colored lights that outline the wrought-iron fence outside their home. The tree stays up until Jan. 3.

People waiting on sidewalks and in parked cars begin to file through the Senter portals in groups of 40. They are guided in a specific indoor traffic pattern.

The Senters estimate they've paid out at least $10,000 for tree bric-a-brac, which includes a silver lame cloth under it and a 200-piece miniature village that flanks it. Many decorations are gifts of well-wishers.

While guests gaze at the tree in the living room, an organ in the basement plays Christmas carols, birds twitter (it is really a French music box) and a revolving wheel casts changing colors upon the spectacle.

SPECIAL ORNAMENTS

Senter stands by to show special ornaments like the tiny harp whose strings are minute glass vials of perfume, giant Swedish snowflakes flecked with colored stones, Moses-in-the-bullrushes, a miniature organ that plays.

After 15 minutes the house lights dim, the show is over, and another group is ushered in.

The Senters cater to children. Most of their private showings are for orphans, Scout groups, and crippled youngsters and are followed by hilarious parties in the Senter rumpus room.

Mrs. Senter takes care to hang children's favorite ornaments in approximately the same spots each year.

Senter, who spends a great deal of time watching his wife trim the tree just to be able to cope with such emergencies, conmforted the lad by finding the favored ornament a couple of branches away.

The front row is generally reserved for youngsters. One father discovered he was minus a son after his group had made its exit to the street. After a frantic search in the cold night outdoors and the milling crowds inside, the lad was found squatted in kiddies' row. He'd been there all the while, seeing the show for the third time.

TIRED OUT

"We are happy to see others happy," the Senters simply offer as their motive, although they confess the crowds sometimes tire them to the point where they "have been tempted to leave immediately for a foreign country." But each year they renew the project with vim, vigor and ornaments surpassing those of the year before.

They do not solicit visitors. Advertising is solely word-of-mouth of others, and the tree has never been publicized outside Colorado yet spectators come from all sections of the world.

Two years ago a group of maharajas from India were in Colorado to study engineering projects and dropped in to see the tree. The Senters received in the mail weeks later some intricate hand-carved ivory ornaments, gifts of princes whom their project had pleased.

Suspect Two Men Of Five Holdup's

TORONTO (CP) —Police suspect that five robberies during the last two days have been carried out by the same two men.

Two of the crimes occurred Tuesday night, the other three last night. The first two were house robberies in Etobicoke township.

A meat packing firm driver, Samuel Smith, 35, was robbed of $1,000 as he finished delivering a meat order. One man was armed and they took only change and bills ignoring $400 in cheques and $200 in his pockets.

Walter Malkiewicz was robbed of $120 as he stood by the cash register of his new shoe store. The gunman hit him over the head and kept he and his clerk covered while the till was rifled.

The third robbery was at a downtown tavern where two gunmen entered, covered cashier Mary Siccone and lifted $40 from the till.

2nd Charge Laid, Technicality Defeated First

BANCROFT (ENS)—Judgment was reserved Wednesday by Magistrate R. C. Jackson on a dangerous driving charge laid against Clarence Thompson, 57, of St. Ola.

Thompson was alleged to be the driver of one of two cars that crashed on the road to Lake St. Peter, 3½ miles north of Maynooth. As a result of the accident the driver of the other car, 25-year-old Gordon S. O'Brien of Toronto, was fatally injured.

Thompson was originally charged with careless driving under the Highway Traffic Act. But it was dismissed on Oct. 29 because of a technicality. The magistrate had adjourned the charge for more than eight days without the consent of the accused or his lawyer.

PLEADED NOT GUILTY

The more serious charge of dangerous driving was laid under the Criminal Code. S. Gordon Robertson, Q.C. of Belleville, assistant crown attorney for Hastings County, is crown counsel.

At the summary trial held here Wednesday Thompson pleaded not guilty. He was defended by Ronald Cass of Belleville.

Mr. Robertson contended that the fatal accident took place on O'Brien's side of the road. Evidence indicated that where the crash occurred there is a curve on a hill with a blind spot to the south.

John Shevlin of 303 Frederick Ave., Peterborough, who was seriously injured while riding as a passenger in O'Brien's car, was a key crown witness. However, Shevlin said he couldn't remember details of the crash.

Magistrate Jackson reserved judgment for two weeks to consider whether a reasonable doubt was established.

Jury Selected For Theft Trial

PEMBROKE (CP) — A jury was selected today for the trial of three men charged with the theft of material in 1950 from nearby Petawawa military camp.

The case is being heard before Judge A. G. MacDougall of Ottawa.

Jack Jacobson, salvage dealer, and his two employees, D. C. Mawhinney and Amos Durant, all of Brockville, are charged with stealing kitchen ranges, heaters, steel rails, machinery and scrap metal from the camp.

J. J. Robinette of Toronto, defence counsel, challenged 33 jurors in the panel and 15 were turned down.

Charges against the three men were laid last spring. One man, S. Sgt. J. M. Young of Petawawa, has been convicted and sentenced to two years in penitentiary on similar charges.

Walks Into Side Of Car Elderly Man Killed

NORTH BAY (CP)—Dennis Laronde, 82, of Cooks Mills, several miles north of North Bay, died last night of injuries suffered when struck by a car near his home Nov. 3.

He walked into the side of a car operated by James A. Morgan, 52, North Cobalt and formerly of North Bay.

Grants For Culture From Foundation

TORONTO (CP) — Grants of $5,000 each to the Opera Festival Association of Toronto and the National Ballet Guild of Canada were announced today by the Atkinson Charitable Foundation. The grant to the ballet guild is to be used by the organization in Ontario.

Woman Bears Triplets On Alaskan Island

The 30-year-old mother and her babies,- two girls and a boy, are doing well. She was attended only by neighbor women at their birth and suffered from loss of blood and shock.

She has six other children.

Hurt By Torpedo

ST. CATHARINES (CP)—Glen MacDonald, high school student from nearby Merritton is recovering from injuries. Officials say he experimented with a signalling torpedo on a railway track.

LITTLE VISITOR hunts for her favorite ornament on the Senter family tree in Denver, where 10,000 strangers turn up every Yuletide to trek through the Senters' living room.

Duped Art Experts, Refugee Admits Faking 'Old' Murals

LUEBECK, Germany (AP)—an obscure German refugee painter has kicked over the easel for scores of Europe's art experts.

"Conscience" drove him, he said, to startle art lovers with the disclosure that the murals on St. Mary's Church in Luebeck were not of 1270 A.D. origin, but his own of 1950.

The St. Mary's murals, believed uncovered by wartime bomb damage and then "restored," actually are faces of German movie actresses, friends and relatives of the little painter.

What made it worse for art experts and patrons was that the "restoration" at St. Mary's was unveiled in the presence of West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer, himself.

Malskat, who is 39, says he has produced hundreds of fake "old masters."

"THEY GOT NAMES"

"They wanted names," he said. "I gave names to them: Renoir, Rembrandt, Gaugin, Degas, Corot and others. They should have read 'Malskat.' "

Nervous art gallery men in important European cities are culling their stocks to make sure some of Malskat's masterful "old masters" are not in their establishments.

The palette was washed clean when Malskat quarreled with his employer, Dietrich Fey, 40. He claims the fake restorations and other phoney pieces were done at Fey's orders.

Fey has not answered the charges formally, but his lawyer issued a statement saying Malskat lied and would be sued for libel.

PAINTED TURKEY

"At first fake reproductions were fun, and it kept me in money, too. Art dealers wanted to see big names," Malskat said.

"I don't care if I go to jail. I wanted to see Fey there too, and some of those art dealers who knew perfectly well they were buying fakes cheaply and selling them to foreign collectors for fortunes."

He said that he and Fey also perpetrated a fake restoration in 1937 on a 13th Century painting which German art writers praised as original masterpieces "by our brilliant ancestors."

Malskat comes from Koenigsberg, East Prussia, taken over by the Russians in the last war and re-named Kaliningrad. He says he was almost found back in 1938 when he painted a turkey in a mural. A Hamburg professor pointed out that the arrival of turkeys in Europe from the new world postdated the paintings by a couple of centuries, but the Nazis wanted to avoid a scandal and invented a story that the Vikings brought them over.

"I had seen some scratches on the wall which looked as if they might have been a turkey and painted it," he explained.

JEANETTE SCOTT CHAPTER

A $50 scholarship to the Kiwanis Music Festival to further study of a pupil was voted by the Jeanette Scott Chapter, I.O.D.E., at the meeting Tuesday evening in the Y.W.C.A. green room. Regent Mrs. R. Matthews presided.

Mrs. W. Smith, educational convener, reported that the adopted school has now joined with Apsley and no longer requires assistance. It was decided to adopt another school later. The chapter now is aiding two students at university.

Mrs. G. Whiteside gave a short report on progress of the Y nursery school which the chapter has aided financially. There are 20 children attending and director Mrs. Victor Northcott invites visitors to the classes in the basement of the Grove School.

Mrs. G. McIntyre reported on overseas parcels and suggested what is now on hand be added to at Christmas and given to needy new Canadians. It was voted to send the balance of overseas fund to the provincial food fund.

Miss Mary Medd told the members of her trip to England and Scotland this past summer. Refreshments and a social period followed.

Trieste Independence Movement Pushes To Make Voice Heard

G. E. R. GEDYE

VIENNA (O.F.N.S.) — Taking advantage of the temporary lull in Italo-Yugloslav acerbities over Trieste which has followed the meetings this summer of the British Foreign Secretary, Mr. Anthony Eden, first with the Italian Premier, Signor Alcide de Gasperi, and later with Marshal Tito, the Trieste Independence Movement is trying to make its small voice heard in Europe.

There are three small parties co-operating in this movement. The Independent Front, which greatly increased its strength at this year's local election, obtaining over one-third of the number of votes secured by the powerful Christian Democrats, is the leading member of the group. The others are the Triestine Bloc, and the Slovene National List. The latter is anti-Tito as well as anti-Italian, and agrees with the other two in demanding the establishment of an independent Free Territory of Trieste, in accordance with the provisions of the Italian Peace Treaty.

Under the Treaty's Free Territory of Trieste, belonging neither to Italy nor to Yugoslavia, is to be established. It has to include both Zone A-Trieste proper and its environs, now administered by the Anglo-American Allied Military Government (A.M.G.), where Italy has secured the upper hand, and Zone B, administered by the Yugolsavs and now practically incorporated in the Republic of Yugolsavia.

ITALY CHALLENGED

Italy is now challenging the legality of Yugoslavia's actions in Zone B, without reference to the legality or otherwise of her own actions in Zone A.

The advocates of Independence base their claims firstly upon legal grounds. The Italian Peace Treaty has been signed and duly ratified by Italy, and its provisions, they say, must be observed by all parties. They warn that any revision of the Treaty in respect of Trieste would provide Italy with a dangerous precedent for demanding revision of other of its articles—those dealing with the former Italian colonies, for instance. Secondly, the Independence Movement maintains that Italy has no historical claim to the territory, which, despite the admitted predominance there of the Italian language, belonged to her only from 1918 to 1938. Thirdly, and this is the Movement's main thesis, its advocates claim that union of Trieste with Italy would bring economic ruin to Trieste Port. The port was created by the Hapsburgs, and its natural and indispensable hinterland is the area of the Danube basin. Only as a truly Free State can Trieste serve this area again, and prosper.

Dr. Mario Stocca, a Trieste barrister, who is head of The Independence Movement, is now in Vienna to discuss the question of the Free Territory with Austrian statesmen, members of parliament and newspaper editors. He has some interesting proposals in mind. In the view of his Movement, Marshal Tito's proposal—which Italy rejected—for an Italo-Yugoslav condominium to administer Trieste, with alternative Yugoslav and Italian governments, would lead sooner or later to a coup d'etat by one of these powers and the violent incorporation of Trieste into Yugoslav or Italy.

WHY NOT AUSTRIA?

Dr. Stocca told me, however, that a condominium might offer some hope if a third party were involved. Britain, he said, would be the most suitable; but if, as was likely, she refused to be committed, why should not Austria, so closely connected with Trieste, be the mediating power?

The Independence Movement maintains that Italy has already secured too many advantages in Trieste without Treaty sanction—advantages that she has used for purposes of infiltration, manipulation of elections and economic pressure, at the expense of the city's prosperity. And for this state of affairs it blames the Italian [illegible] which is free neither to import nor to export without permission from Rome, to whom it must hand all its foreign currency earnings. A.M.G.'s yielding to Italian intransigeance, say the independence advocates, has given Italy the power to put such pressure on the inhabitants that the electoral results are far from reflecting the real wishes of the Triestini. They quote the present president of the Italian Republic, Signor Luigi Einaudi, who wrote in 1915: "Trieste . . . would lose a great portion of its wealth and value the day it were severed from its German and Slav hinterland and attached to Italy."

Yet in view of the need that the West has for the support of both Italy and Yugoslavia against the East, there seems little practical prospect of the Independence Movement realising wishes which, in themselves, have the backing of history, are anchored in a treaty, and would seem politically as well as economically, both reasonable and just.

UK Commissioner Nye Tours Kingston Area

KINGSTON (CP) — Sir Archibald Nye, United Kingdom high commissioner in Canada, today started a two-day tour of military installations in the Kingston area. This is his first visit here since coming to Canada earlier this year.

He addressed students at the National Defence College this morning.

Threw Glass At Picture Of Stalin, Jumps Ship

STOCKHOLM (Reuters) — Police said today they are holding a Polish seaman who jumped overboard from his communist ship and swam to shore because he committed an "unpardonable sin."

Navy Plane Crashes, 11 Believed Killed

SHELTON, Wash. (AP)—A navy four-engine plane crashed on an Olympic peninsula hillside last night, probably killing all 11 men aboard.

Don Ragan, a dairy farmer, said the plane's gas tanks apparently exploded — "I don't see how anyone could have lived."

Toronto District Needs 400-500 More Doctors

TORONTO (CP) — Dr. L. A. Pequegnat, Toronto medical officer of health said last night 400 to 500 more doctors are needed here for civil defence work.

Speaking to a meeting of the physicians' sub-committee of the Toronto and York committee on civil defence, he said an atomic bomb, dropped on Toronto, would probably leave 20,000 persons injured. Hospitals could accommodate only 10,000.

Freights Crash, One Car Burns

OSHAWA (CP) — Several cars were derailed and one was destroyed by fire in a rear-end collision between two freight trains at the east end of the Canadian Pacific Railways yards early today. Members of the train crews escaped serious injury.

A westbound diesel-powered train rounding a curve, struck the caboose of the other train as it pulled into a siding. The caboose was knocked over a 30-foot embankment and burst into flames.

The first unit of the diesel also went over the embankment but remained upright and its crew was unhurt. The only injured man was a trainman who was released from hospital after treatment.

Needed 2 Canes For ARTHRITIC PAIN

"Five years ago when I went to the country I could get about only with the help of two canes," writes Mrs. J. A. Mowry, 219 Newman St., Saint John, N.B. "I suffered greatly from the pain of arthritis and rheumatism. This miserable pain bothered me for many years—until I heard about T-R-C's. T-R-C's gave me the great relief I had longed for. This year, as I go to the country, I do not need canes—thanks to T-R-C's."

French Pilot Flies Miniature Jet Plane

PARIS (AP) — France claimed today to have built and flown the world's first miniature jet plane, a 950-pound two-seater made of duratiminum.

The tiny plane was demonstrated by a test pilot at nearby Toussuisle-Noble yesterday. It is designed primarily to teach new pilots how to fly jets.

The minijet's span is 23 feet, its over-all length 17 feet and it is six feet high. A turbojet gives it a top speed of 250 miles an hour, with a cruising speed of 225 miles.

Hamilton Gets Proposal For Telemeter TV

HAMILTON (CP) — Board of Control today received a proposal from Famous Players Canadian Corporation Limited to erect a 300-foot antenna and studios on Hamilton mountain at a cost of $150,000 to provide improved television reception in Hamilton and installation of a "telemeter" device on a pay-as-you-see basis to subscribers.

Ramsy Evans, solicitor for the company, asked the board to consider an amendment to the City of Hamilton Act to provide for a franchise to establish the necessary wires and cables to be put up in conjunction with the community antenna system.

He explained that the telemeter installation was an additional project available on an additional private channel only to subscribers for the transmission of "sporting events, educational features and most certainly motion pictures."

The plan involved the laying of coxial cables at a cost of from $5,000 to $8,000 a mile. The brief presented to the board said no charge would be made for television programs received by the community antenna from the regular television broadcast channels.

The telemeter phase of the proposal provides that coins be placed in the machine in the subscriber's home

The board agreed to ask for legislation from the province to give the city power to grant the franchise requested, but was not prepared to make any definite commitment to Famous Players Canadian Corporation.

"We are all ready to go," said Harold Roberts, real estate manager, "but we do not want to hog the market in any way."

"You are miles ahead of us," declared Mayor Jackson. "This legislation would just give us the power. It does not say we would do it. For my part, I don't want to be a party to putting in more poles and wires in the city. We are asking for powers which we may never use. Personally I would hate to see them used."

Most Modern Hospital Slated For Barriefield

KINGSTON (CP) — A new military hospital, designed to be the most modern in Canada, is on the drawing boards for Barriefield, it was learned authoritatively today. Estimates of the cost of building and equipping the hospital run as high as $5,000,000.

The plans originally called for construction of a 175-bed hospital. However, constant changes in the size have been put forward and it was learned that a hospital with a 325-bed capacity has been advocated in some quarters.

The eastern Ontario area now is served by the Kingston military hospital at Barriefield. Its present bed capacity is 144 but more can be added.

Location of the proposed hospital has not yet been finally decided. However, 80 acres of farm land on No. 15 highway adjacent to Barriefield village were expropriated by the government this summer. At the time this was believed to be the site for the hospital and it was surveyed.

3 Months' Sentence For Attempted Murder

SIMCOE (CP) — Morley Shephard of Kelvin today was sentenced to three months definite and one year indeterminate on a charge of attempted murder of his wife. He was convicted Tuesday.

The charge was laid after a shooting affray July 12.

Shephard was found innocent of a charge of wounding his daughter Marlene, 10, with a shotgun pellet the same day.

Gov.-General Opens New Military College

ST. JOHNS, Que. (CP)—Governor-General Massey today opens officially the College Militaire Royal de Saint Jean, which will provide French-language officers for the army.

Approximately 120 cadet students from many parts of Canada have been undergoing training since the unofficial opening two months ago. Two-thirds of them are French-speaking, although all cadets take courses in their mother tongue.

Suspect Vengeance Motive In Murder

WHITE ABBEY, Northern Ireland (AP)—Patricia Curran, 19-year-old daughter of a Northern Ireland high court justice, was found shot to death early today on the grounds of her family's estate.

Police said she may have been murdered by a vengeful criminal sentenced by her father, Justice Lance Curran.

Postal Slogan Writers Battle In Germany

BERLIN (AP) — Post office slogan writers joined the East-West duel in Berlin today.

Letters from the communist east bore this stamp on the envelopes: "Learn from the Soviet people and the great Stalin how to build socialism."

The West Berlin post office put its own stamp directly underneath: "And what has resulted from it."

Plug-in Medicine Provides Missing Pulse

CAMBRIDGE, Mass. (AP) — A method of keeping people alive by virtually plugging them into an electrical outlet was disclosed today by the New England Journal of Medicine.

The regional medical publication says that to "hook up" a patient is "simple" and describes it this way:

A thyraton stimulator, about the size of a table radio — "which provides the missing heartbeat" — is plugged into an ordinary alternating-current electrical outlet. It converts the electricity into waves or impulses.

Then hypodermic needles connected to the machine are inserted into each side of the patient's chest.

"The needles carry the electric pulse through the thick outer skin which is resistant to electric current," the Journal says. "The electrical impulse then travels from a negative electrode, clamped on one needle, across the heart to a positive electrode on the other needle."

The paper says: "If the heart can be kept beating and pumping blood over a period of time, there is a good chance that the normal heart beat will resume again.

"If the heart beat stops for long the patient dies."

The new method of giving failing hearts a second chance was developed by Dr. Paul M. Zoll of the Harvard Medical School. He said in his report that the lives of at least two patients have been saved by this method.

The heart of one patient was kept pumping by electrical impulses for five straight days.

Make First National Study Corporate Gifts

TORONTO (CP) — Five thousand Canadian corporations have been asked to participate in the first national study of corporate giving in Canada by answering a questionnaire, it was announced today.

George M. Black, Jr., chairman of the study, said the increasing problem of the multiplicity of appeals and the need for assumption by corporate enterprise of a more effective position in the field of private philanthropy has resulted in formation of a committee on corporate giving.

Choose 2 Liberal MP's Throne Speech Motion

OTTAWA (CP) — Two Liberal members, elected in by-elections May 26 last, have been chosen to move and second the traditional motion for adoption of an address in reply to the speech from the throne at the session of Parliament opening Nov. 20.

Joseph Deslieres, member for the Quebec constituency of Brome-Missisquoi, will move the motion. It will be seconded by Norman C. Schneider, member for the Ontario constituency of Waterloo North

Cars Derailed, Trains Held Up

NORTH BAY (CP) — Two cars of a northbound Canadian National Railways freight were derailed early today at Utterson near Huntsville. No person was injured and damage was slight.

The derailment held up passenger train 46 for approximately an hour and passenger 47 for half an hour, although it reached North Bay this morning on time.

C. N. R. authorities said a truck on each of two cars derailed at the "frog" of a switch as the freight was entering a siding to allow southbound 46 to go through.

The passenger cleared the remaining freight cars and caboose from the main line and then proceeded south to Toronto.

It was the third derailment in Ontario in 32 hours: A Canadian Pacific Railway train was derailed near Oshawa during the night and an Ontario Northern Railways freight had a three-car derailment Tuesday on a work train near Englehart.

Russian Communists Suffer Same Ills They Attribute Capitalistic System

EDWARD CRANKSHAW

LONDON (OFNS) — One of the most striking features of the speeches of the Nineteenth Soviet Party Congress was the insistence on the necessity for a thoroughgoing Party purge. The speakers in Moscow did not go into much detail, but they made it clear that the Communist Party of the U.S.S.R. was suffering from precisely those ills which good Communists like to attribute to the stultifying and evil environment of the capitalist system; personal greed, dishonesty, corruption and idleness.

Nobody familiar with life in the Soviet Union could be in the least surprised by these charges. The old Russian Empire was renowned for its corruption; and it takes more than a political revolution to stamp out the habits of centuries. Add to this the facts that the most devoted and idealistic revolutionaries were wiped out by Stalin in the great purges of the 'thirties and that the highly centralised bureaucracy brought into being by the Soviet system offers unparalleled opportunities for graft of every kind, and there is every reason to assume that the Soviet Union would be a racketeers' paradise. As indeed it is.

KNOWS RIGHT PEOPLE

"Blatt", a word which occurs in no Russian dictionary, is a word which no Soviet citizen who wishes to make the best of his opportunities can afford to do without. Its exact meaning is hard to define: it signifies a cross between graft and "pull". Without it you can get nowhere. The man who has good Blatt can get almost anywhere. It means that he knows the right people in the right places and can reciprocate favours received with favours given. It is Blatt that makes the Soviet Union tick. But for the lubricant and energising qualities of Blatt the ponderous bureaucratic machine would break down under the weight of its own rules and regulations.

That is common knowledge among those who know their Soviet Union, although fellow travellers can never bring themselves to believe it. Why it should be considered a disgrace it is hard to know; for obviously, as we are beginning to find even in England, the only way to get anything done in an over-centralised bureaucracy is to break regulations—and make it worth while for others to break them.

But what is bothering the rulers of Russia today is something a great deal more serious than the ubiquity of Blatt among the anonymous mass of ordinary citizens: it is the prevalence of full-scale corruption on a paralysing scale in those very circles which are supposed to set an example to the people as a whole and to model their lives on Caesar's wife: the members of the Communist Party.

Details of the sort of thing that is going on were provided not by the national bosses speaking in Moscow, but by the Republican Party leaders, speaking on their own ground, themselves working overtime to gain the favour of Moscow, at the Republican Party Congresses which recently took place all over the Soviet Union as part of the preparation for the All Union Congress in Moscow. At the Congresses men like Mgeladze of the Georgian Party, and Bagirov of Azerbaijan, told the world more about the facts of life inside the Communist administration than it would be possible to hear from three years' reading of the Soviet Press in the ordinary way.

THOROUGH SEARCH

Bagirov's speech, in particular, turned into one long and detailed tirade against iniquity of every conceivable kind, but Mgeladze ran him close; and these performances were paralleled by the main speeches in half-a-dozen other Republican Congresses. Every field of activity came under fire:—the all-important oil industry of Baku, the railways, road transport, the cotton industry, agriculture, trade, and all the rest. And the complaint was always the same. The oil plan, for example, was unfulfilled because 'the ranks of our glorious drillers, geologists and miners have been infiltrated by persons who arouse suspicion by their acts—which are not in keeping with Soviet citizens . . . "

Then comes a list of names of men who have been found wanting and dismissed. It was the same under every heading of the economy; and the rot had spread also to the cultural life of Azerbaijan. "In many important trade organisations criminal elements have long been doing what they pleased without punishment, have stolen and squandered many goods." And so on.

Some of the individual stories [illegible] in other republics might have come straight out of the Russia of "The Inspector General" (comedy by Nikolai Gogol).

People ask why all this dirty linen has to be washed in public? Why do the Party Secretaries, who are finally responsible for the state of affairs in their own areas, make such damaging admissions? The answer is bound up with the notorious Soviet custom of self-criticism. Moscow has put its foot down; the Bagirovs of the U.S.S.R. are on the spot. If they defend their administration they are finished. But if they admit the shortcomings, pile the blame on scapegoats and demand public resolutions to do better, than they get another chance.

Mother, Eight Children Suffocate In House Fire

THERE IS NO WATER SHORTAGE in Peterborough. Other communities are going short due to the dry summer and fall. The Trent water control system that regulates a great pattern of lakes and streams in Central Ontario funnels through the Otonabee River in the heart of the city. Lockmaster Joe Dineen has just finished pulling stoplogs from the control dam at Lock 23. If drought conditions existed he would free the cribs to hold back all possible water.—(Examiner Staff Photo)

Seesaw Fight Continues For Key Hill

South Koreans, Reds Still Locked In Vicious Battle

SEOUL (AP)—Counter-attacking South Koreans and die-hard Chinese Communists locked in confused battle as darkness and a blinding ground fog fell on blood-soaked Pinpoint Hill tonight.

AP correspondent John Randolph, reporting from the central front said the Reds' furious artillery and stubborn infantry resistance combined to prevent South Koreans from recapturing Pinpoint —dominant height on Sniper Ridge.

It was the first time in the month-long desperate battle for the Kumhwa Ridges that South Korean shock troops had failed to carry their objective in a daylight attack.

SHORT OF CREST

After 13 hours of steady fighting, Republic of Korea troops were part way up the scarred and muddy slopes but still short of Pinpoint's crest.

Screaming Chinese infantry took the hill early today in fanatical human-wave attacks that swept them into South Korean entrenchments. Hand-to-hand fighting raged in foxholes.

The South Koreans counter-attacked four hours later.

Again it was close-quarter fighting on the hill the South Koreans have taken—and lost—14 times in 32 days.

South Korean division reports at mid-morning placed the Allies on Pinpoint—apparently an error that grew out of the confused situation.

As night fell, a revised announcement said the South Koreans were only part way to their objective.

Rain and heavy clouds grounded Fifth Air Force planes today. But last night, light bombers claimed destruction of 115 enemy trucks in North Korea.

Aside from the flaming central front sector around Sniper Ridge, action on the battlefront was light.

Pet Spaniel Riding On Float Of Seaplane Startles Pilot, Dog Holds On In Landing

SEATTLE (AP).—It was a routine flight for pilot Roy Aitchison as he gunned his seaplane along at 2,000 feet until he looked out a window. Then he nearly froze with fright.

What he saw was the Aitchison family's pet cocker spaniel pup, Curley, clinging desperately to a pontoon. The dog's tail was toward the front and his fur was blowing like crazy.

Aitchison thought it was hopeless, he related here Thursday, but he throttled the plane down to 60 miles an hour. Then, making a slow turn, he flew back to nearby Lake Sammamish with Curley still hanging on.

In the wash of the landing, he feared the dog would be lost, but the plucky pup hung on.

Lie Blames "Indiscriminate" Smears, Charges For Suicide Of U.N. Aide

NEW YORK (AP).—The suicide of Abraham H. Feller, director of the United Nations legal department, has touched off controversy between U.N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie and the McCarran sub-committee, investigating the loyalty of the American employees of the world organization. The 47-year-old Feller tore himself from his wife's arms on Thursday and leaped to death from their 12th-floor apartment.

Lie, who announced his resignation from his U.N. post Monday, said Feller killed himself because of the strain of defending U. N. employees "against indiscriminate smears and exaggerated charges."

A federal grand jury as well as the Senate internal security subcommittee, headed by Senator Pat McCarran (Dem. Nev.) has been looking into charges of subversive affiliations aimed at some American members of the secretariat.

FELLER NOT A TARGET

Robert Morris, counsel for the Senate sub-committee, said Feller himself was not a target of the investigation. In a statement on behalf of three members of the sub-committee — Senators James Eastland (Dem. Miss.), Homer Ferguson (Rep. Mich.) and Willis Smither (Dem. N.C.) — Morris termed Lie's assertion "irresponsible."

Feller was an $18,000-a-year general counsel and principal director of the U.N. legal department since 1946.

Associates said he had been a close friend of Alger Hiss, former state department aide convicted of lying to a grand jury when he denied passing official secrets to Whittaker Chambers, self-admitted courier for a pre-war Soviet spy ring.

Lie, in a statement, said Feller "has worked day and night under my direction to uphold due process of law and justice in the investigations against the indiscriminate smears and exaggerated charges."

UNDER HEAVY STRAIN

"This placed him under a prolonged and serious strain," Lie said. "The terrible tragedy of his death is the result."

Morris' statement read:

"The statement of Trygve Lie is on its face irresponsible. This subcommittee is charged with the duty of determining whether any United States citizen working at the United Nations poses a threat to our national security.

"Although the investigation is barely under way, we have seen a parade of United Nations officials refuse to deny membership in the Communist party and in some cases refuse to answer whether they have been involved in espionage against this country. . . .

"We fully intend to continue our investigation in the interest of the security of the United States."

On shipboard bound for South America Thursday, McCarran said: "Mr. Feller was not before me while I was in the committee. I don't know if his death will interfere with the investigation. I've never talked to the man."

French Troops Halt Vietminh In Tonkin Delta

HANOI, Indo-China (Reuters — Rebel Vietminh forces today hurled a major new offensive in the rich Tonkin delta, 70 miles south of Hanoi, but ran into a stonewall defence.

A French military spokesman said the rebels failed to penetrate defences around the big Roman Catholic city of Phat Diem, their first objective.

The offensive was interpreted as a communist effort to divide and weaken French forces between two widely-separated battlefronts north and south of Hanoi. French forces have succeeded in holding the Vietminh offensive mounted last month northwest of Hanoi.

Rebel forces seized Phat Diem last year but were driven out by the French. For many months its defence has aroused an argument between the French high command and Bishop Le Huu Tu of Phat Diem.

The Roman Catholic bishop refused full co-operation with the French and formed a private army of armed peasants to defend the area by his own strategy

The bishop's great influence over Catholic communities in the delta forced the French into a compromise defence agreement with him. This left part of the defence to French forces and the remainder to the bishop's private army.

Father, Son at Work As Nine Suffocate At Home

WESTPORT, Mass. (AP).—A mother and eight children died early today in a fire at their home while the only two survivors of the family, the father and a son, were away at work. The mother and her children were suffocated by smoke and intense heat carried to their upstairs bedrooms from a fire in the kitchen through floor ventilators. The bodies of four of the younger children were found on the floor as though they tried to escape before they were overcome. The mother and three children were dead in their beds.

The dead were Mrs. Mary T. Audette, 44, and these eight of her nine children: Genevieve, 17; Madeline, 16; Natale, 14; Shirley, 12; Eleanor, 9; Veronica, 7; Francis, 5, and Geraldine, 3.

The children's father, Aladdin, 47, and an older brother, Daniel, 19, were at work on the overnight shift at a mill in adjacent Fall River.

WINDOWS CLOSED

Firefighters said none of the windows in the house was open and storm windows created an oven-like condition inside the house.

Fire officials said the heat in the upstairs bedrooms was so intense that firefighters had to water down the rooms for 15 minutes before they could get to the bodies from ladders.

Police chief Charles Dean said he believes the fire started in a rubbish box in the kitchen of the two-storey frame house.

News of the tragedy was telephoned to the father at his place of work by neighbors.

Manuel Rego, Audette's co-worker, took the call and summoned Audette to the telephone.

"He didn't say a word," Rego said. "He was so completely stunned for several seconds that he couldn't say anything. Then he ran out of the plant."

Guards Too Few To Watch Boyd Gang Cells

TORONTO (CP) — A senior Deputy Governor George Jacobs told a Royal Commission yesterday that the Don jail frequently hadn't enough men on duty last summer to keep a constant watch on the cell block where the Boyd gang was held.

Jacobs, an employee at the Don for 22 years, testified that the night staff varied from four to eight men.

He told the commission, inquiring into the affairs of the jail, that he pointed out the inadequacy to Governor Thomas Brand, now under suspension, but could remember no specific order to watch the block at all times.

The commission was appointed following the escape of four members of the gang. They were later recaptured, convicted and sentenced.

Jacobs said it was the habit of some jail officers to leave spaces in the attendance book so times of their inspections could be filled in afterwards. He named Deputy Governor Noble as one of the offenders and admitted under questioning that "no love was lost" between him and Noble.

He cited an incident when Noble had chastised a guard before a group of prisoners and another when Noble had reprimanded him for playing cards with a number of guards.

"Mr. Noble used to do the same thing himself," he contended.

Claims Army Morale Bad

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—Canadian Army morale in Germany is bad and the welfare services the 27th Brigade gets are poor, says Rev. W. H. Young of Toronto. Dr. Young, chairman of the Chaplain Service of the Canadian Council of Churches, told the Council on Thursday that reports received from the brigade in the last three to four months are disquieting. "In fact, this is a masterpiece of understatement," he said, "but I don't want to go into details." He said Canadian churches must do something about the situation. The Defence Department's attitude was that all four welfare agencies—Y.M.C.A., Knights of Columbus, Salvation Army or Red Cross—could not be sent to Europe to look after a single brigade.

That left only army welfare officers to concern themselves with the welfare needs of troops. But neither the Chaplain Service nor the churches were satisfied with the work of the welfare officers.

BRITISH SOLVE PROBLEM

The British Army in Germany had far higher morale. The difference was that British churches had established "welfare houses" for their troops. He suggested that the Council take similar action.

Agreeing with Dr. Young, the Council ordered its committee on chaplains in the forces to make a full report to the executive of the Council for its action.

CLAIM ARMY

Claxton Scores Churchman On Morale Point

OTTAWA (CP)—Defence Minister Claxton, in a sharply-worded statement, said today reliable reports indicate the morale of Canada's 27th brigade in Germany is good "considering the men are serving abroad in peacetime."

At the same time, he hinted that improvements in services for the troops are in the wind.

The minister took issue with a statement in London, Ont., last night by Rev. W. H. Young of Toronto, chairman of the chaplain service of the Canadian Council of Churches. Dr. Young said the brigade's morale is "very bad" and that the welfare services the army provides are inadequate.

Mr. Claxton said educational, recreational and welfare services are provided the brigade "but there is always room for improvement in the services available in any new operation."

"Constructive suggestions made by some of the churches are being actively followed up."

He did not elaborate.

HITS "SWEEPING" CHARGES

The minister said Dr. Young "has not even visited our forces in Germany. . .He made similar charges about our troops in Korea without having been there either."

"Sweeping statements like that have the effect of damaging the morale of the forces, decreasing recruiting and interfering with the defence of Canada. Reports from all sides indicate that the 27th brigade is one of the finest fighting forces there. . ."

It had even been called the best Allied fighting force in Europe.

"You don't get this type of force if morale is not high. Public . . . brigade is good considering they are serving abroad in peacetime. They are well fed and well led."

Firemen Credit Girl With Saving 21 Lives

TORONTO (CP) — Firemen today credited Sandra Simon, 5, with saving the lives of 21 persons, including seven children, when a burning mattress filled a three-storey roominghouse in north-central Toronto with smoke. All the tenants fled in night attire.

"I woke because the smoke hurt my eyes," Sandra said. "It made me cough. I opened the door and saw the smoke and I was scared. I ran to Mummy and got her out of bed."

Firemen said they were "amazed" no one was overcome.

New TV Policy Urged In Brief To Government

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian government has been asked to change its policy and allow private radio stations to enter the field of television.

The Canadian Association of Broadcasters, whose membership includes most of the privately-owned stations in Canada, made the request Wednesday in a brief submitted to Prime Minister St. Laurent and some members of the cabinet.

The brief, made public yesterday, was submitted at a closed meeting and neither party would disclose the outcome of the discussions. It was learned, however, that the C.A.B. delegates were given some indications that the government's policy may be relaxed.

The existing policy was set down last spring when the government announced that no television licences would be granted to private stations until the CBC has established TV stations in key points across the country.

In his last public statement on the matter, Prime Minister St. Laurent said the government was considering the role that private stations should play in the field of television

Gale Loses Force Swings To Sea

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—A gale which battered the east coast of Newfoundland was losing some of its ferocity today as it blew itself out between Labrador and Greenland.

But the fate of a small fishing craft and her two-man crew, missing in east-coast Trinity Bay, was unknown. Capt. F. Vardy and a companion left Clarenville early Thursday but did not turn up at their destination, Hickman's Harbor. It was believed the boat may have put in at a cove with engine trouble.

Weather bureau officials reported the storm centre 250 miles off Goose Bay, Labrador, early today, heading slowly for Greenland with winds hitting a peak of 45 miles an hour. Diminishing winds were forecast for the entire Newfoundland region, which reeled under the impact of 70-mile-an-hour blasts Thursday.

The Halifax tug Foundation Lillian today was butting her way through heavy seas some 400 miles off St. John's, with the fuel-dry Norwegian freighter Bencas in tow.

In the rugged Topsails region of central Newfoundland, trains were moving on time after three- to four-foot snowfall.

At Flowers Cove on the northern peninsula, a young girl ill with meningitis awaited the arrival of a storm-stalled mercy plane to fly her to hospital.

Memory Lapse Caused Ship Loss

VANCOUVER (CP)—A memory lapse by Chief Officer Charles W. Savage caused loss of the Canadian Pacific Steamships' luxury liner Princess Kathleen near Juneau, Alaska, Sept. 7, a court decision said yesterday.

Mr. Justice Sidney Smith, who conducted the formal inquiry, suspended Savage's master's ticket for one year from the date of the sinking. But he recommended that at the end of six months Savage be granted a chief officer's ticket.

Savage held captain's papers at the time of the mishap but was serving as chief officer.

The Kathleen went down without loss of life, off Lena Point in Lynn Canal, 17 miles north of Juneau.

Savage, on watch on the bridge at the time of the mishap, testified he forgot he had ordered the quartermaster to alter to a starboard course about 10 minutes before the lookout sighted land close at hand.

The first mate said he then ordered "hard to starboard" and within seconds the ship ran aground.

Dollar Premium Hits New Low

BUFFALO, N. Y. (AP) — Banks here posted the premium on the Canadian dollar at one-half of one per cent yesterday, the lowest buying rate in months and a full percentage point lower than Wednesday. The selling rate yesterday was two per cent, compared to 2½ per cent Wednesday.

Bank sources attributed the change to increased purchases of U. S. dollars by Canadians.

At Watertown yesterday, banks accepted American and Canadian dollars on even terms for the first time since January. However, banks were selling Canadian dollars there for $1.02.

At one time last summer, a Canadian dollar brought $1.05 in U. S. currency in Watertown.

Typhoon Kills 30

TAIPEH, Formosa (Reuters)—A typhoon whipped across southern Formosa during the night, leaving at least 30 dead, more than 200 persons injured and hundreds of houses flattened, first reports said today.

Bring Bush Fire Under Control

PARRY SOUND (CP) — A bush fire on Great Duck Island which for a time yesterday threatened the life of a lighthouse-keeper, his wife and an assistant, was brought under control today by fire-fighters who went to the scene by boat.

Yesterday Robert Leeson, lightkeeper on the island off the west shore of Manitoulin Island, radioed for help when the flames burned to within two miles of his house.

At that time a plane belonging to the Ontario lands and forests department flew over the island but could see nothing but smoke.

A fire which destroyed two bush lots in a 15-acre area in Striker township, north of Blind River, also has been extinguished. Rangers said water was transported five miles to the scene of this fire by barrel.

Meanwhile at Videl Bay, on the north side of Manitoulin Island, a small bush fire is under control. in the district and John Walker, manager of the Ontario Paper Company, said the bush, without rain for days, is a "grave threat" to that area of the island.

Canadian Brigade To Stay [illegible] Hannover

SOEST, Germany (CP) — Canada's 27th brigade will remain in the Hannover area of Germany a year longer than originally anticipated.

Four new camps for the brigade are taking shape over a big and scenically beautiful area on three sides of this 2,000-year-old Germany city of Soest. But it will be late 1953 before the formation moves in.

When the Brigade reached Hannover a year ago the plan was for it to shift 100-odd miles southward to the Soest area in the fall of 1952. Various delays have killed that plan.

To the east, south and southwest of Soest construction of barracks is under way in four areas. Two Canadian engineer officers supervise the progress of German contractors. Maj. L. C. Brown of Edmonton and Lieut. Georges Langlois of Quebec City work with British Army authorities charged with construction of the Canadian camps.

Five miles east of Soest the land was formerly a brush-bounded farm. Here surveying of roads is complete, a first building foundation is being set in brick, and a water well has been drilled This 1,000-man camp will be the headquarters of service units.

Beside the war-famous Mohne Lake, where an R. A. F. raid destroyed the power dam, and about 10 miles south of Soest, is an area which will accommodate brigade headquarters and one infantry battalion, about 1,500 men.

The third area lies close to the Harz Mountains, about 25 miles to the southwest. There farmers have been harvesting their crops as survey pegs were placed in ground. This site, largest of the four, will accommodate about 1,700 soldiers.

The fourth area, about four miles south of Werl and 10 miles west of Soest, has proved the biggest undertaking so far. This area was formerly a part of the state forest and park and required heavy tree-clearing.

Cobourg '53 Site Of Plow Match

TORONTO (CP) — The world plowing championship will be held in Ontario next October, the provincial department of agriculture said today.

The department announced it has just received word from London that an 11-country meeting had voted to accept the invitation from the Ontario Plowmen's Association to hold the 1953 world competion here in conjunction with Ontario's international plowing match which will be at Cobourg, about 70 miles east of Toronto.

The world match usually is held in the British Isles or in northern Europe.

Five Die As Tanker, Navy Transport Collide

NORFOLK, Va. (AP) — A navy transport engaged in amphibious warfare manoeuvres and the Texas Company tanker Washington collided 50 miles east of Cape Henry today with a toll placed by the navy at five dead and six injured.

The navy said all casualties were among army personnel aboard the transport Ruchamkin. No injuries were reported among the Ruchamkin's crew or aboard the 10,000-ton Washington. The tanker continued to Philadelphia.

The Ruchamkin is one of 26 naval ships engaged in operation Sea Scape, a two-week training exercise in amphibious warfare.

Prince Charles Four

Britain Marks Birthday Of Heir Apparent

By ROBERT S. F. JONES

LONDON (AP)—All Britain said happy birthday today to a small citizen with a long handle—His Royal Highness the Duke of Cornwall, Duke of Rothesay, Earl of Garrick, Baron of Renfrew, Lord of the Isles and Prince and Great Steward of Scotland.

In other words chubby - faced Prince Charles is four years old today.

It's his most important birthday so far.

For one thing, he's heir apparent to the throne now—grandfather King George VI died last Feb. 6. Consequently special flags were flown atop Buckingham Palace and government buildings, and booming guns saluted him from the Tower of London. The national anthem was played in his honor at the opening of the BBC's first morning news broadcast.

BOTH PARENTS HOME

And it's his first birthday together with both his parents.

On the first and second ones, papa—the Duke of Edinburgh—was still serving in the Royal Navy.

Last year his mother—then Princess Elizabeth—and the Duke were on their way home from a tour of Canada.

This year the Queen and the Duke kept the day free of all official engagements, just like other parents, so they could spend all their time with Charles and his two-year-old sister, Princess Anne.

The day began—as usual—at 8 a. m. for Charles when he and his sister were awakened by nurse Helen Lightbody for their morning bath.

Next came breakfast and then the great moment of opening a mail bag of parcels. Aunt "Margot" — Princess Margaret — and grandmother Queen Elizabeth were to come around for this.

No details ever are officially given about the presents the Royal Family receives. But Charles is known to delight in gadgets and things that go off with a bang.

Charles will be allowed to keep presents from relatives and his own special circle of friends. Others will be acknowledged and then passed on to children of members of the palace staff.

At tea time, a birthday party is scheduled.

The guest list is secret but it probably includes Charles' two cousins, Prince Richard of Gloucester and Viscount Laselles, and Charles' special buddy, Charles Dawnay, son of his grandmother's private secretary. Refreshments will include ice cream and a birthday cake with four candles.

Triple-Death Crash Claims Fourth Life

LONDON, Ont. (CP)—The Elginfield car-truck crash in which two Crediton women and a 16-year-old girl were killed Wednesday, claimed a fourth life today.

Clifford Creighton, 28, one of two Toronto men riding in the car, died in hospital. He had not regained onsciousness since the crash.

Still in hospital is his companion, Frank Brawley of Toronto, sole survivor of the collision. He suffered face cuts and possible chest injuries not believed serious.

Mayor Whitton Denies Considering U.N. Job

OTTAWA (CP) — Mayor Charlotte Whitton said today she isn't considering taking a job with the United Nations, win or lose in the Dec. 1 civic election in which she is a mayoralty candidate.

Miss Whitton denied a Toronto report that she has received invitations from the U. N. and may consider them if defeated.
